CHARGE MILK IS RUN INTO RIVER.

San Joaquin Dairyman Admits Allegation as to Skimmed Product.

[BY. A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

STOCKTON, Nov. 8.—It was impossible to get in touch with any officers of the Milk Producers' Association this evening concerning the charge that milk is being run into a sewer leading into the San Joaquin River.

Fred H. Arnsburger, president of the San Joaquin Creamery, the largest independent dairyman in Stockton, states that it is true that dairies in the vicinity of Holt and Tracy are running skimmed milk, very low in food value, into the river, after being separated.

INVESTIGATOR TELLS OF "SHAMEFUL WASTAGE" AT STOCKTON PLANT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO Nov. 8.—Bailey Millard managing editor of the San Francisco Bulletin, in a signed statement published here today, charged that from 2500 to 3000 gallons of separated milk, "precisely the same kind that most people get when they ask for a glass at a restaurant or order an oyster stew or a dish of milk toast," was being poured daily into the sewer at a creamery at Holt, eight miles west of Stockton.

He was accompanied on a visit to the creamery yesterday by N. M. Castle, special agent of the bureau of investigation of the Department of Justice, who said he would report his findings to the United States Attorney for determination as to whether the facts warranted a criminal prosecution.

"There is shameful wastage there," declared Mr. Castle. "It is as good milk as you would get at the cheaper restaurants. Although it is being poured into the sewer and the thirty-nine farmers comprising that association can have all of it they want free, you or I cannot buy it. That association should be sending more milk to San Francisco, instead of piling up such by-products as butter and cheese."

According to Millard's statement, more than half the daily output of the creamery "enough to feed over 10000 children' was being thrown away. Employes of the plant furnished the information, he declared, that the wastage had been going on for four months, ever since establishment of the plant.

The San Francisco Board of Supervisors has under consideration a measure to repeal the ordinance requiring all milk sold in the city to be pasteurized here, advocates of the plan asserting this would make possible the shipment of more milk to San Francisco.

FEDERAL FREIGHTER ASHORE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 8.—The United States Shipping Board freighter Benoni, from New York to China and Japan via Honolulu, is ashore at Tokio Bay, according to a wireless received today by the marine department of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce. It was reported the cargo was being discharged in the hope that the Benoni would float at high tide.

CONGRESS FOR WOOD.

General is First in President Poll.

Gets 136 Votes in Secret Ballot, with Gov. Lowden Second, with 44.

Pershing Receives 3 in the Field of Fifteen Possible Competitors.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—If the sentiment of the Republican members of the House and Senate could be considered a criterion, Gen. Leonard Wood would be the next nominee of his party for the Presidency.

By a vote of 116 in the House and 20 in the Senate, as against a field of fifteen possible competitors, in a secret poll, Gen. Wood led them all, Gov. Lowden of Illinois running second with 44 votes.

This question was put to each Senator and Representative, "Who, in your opinion, will be the nominee of the Republican party for the Presidency in 1920?"

The replies indicate the following result:

House—Gen. Wood, 116; Gov. Lowden, 41; Senator Watson, 28; Senator Harding, 22; Senator Johnson, 6; William H. Taft, 3; Gen. Pershing, 2; Senator Knox, 1; Gov. Sproul, 1; Senator Poindexter, 1; noncommittal, 15, absent 7.

Senate—Gen. Wood, 20; Senator Harding, 4; Senator Johnson, 4; Gov. Lowden, 3; Senator Watson, 3; Senator Poindexter, 2; Charles E. Hughes, 1; Senator Borah, 1; Senator Kellogg, 1; Senator Spencer, 1; Senator Edge, 1; Senator Sutherland, 1; Senator Lenroot, 1; Gen. Pershing, 1; noncommittal, 5.

TOTAL OF 136.

Total—Gen. Wood, 136; Gov. Lowden, 44; Senator Harding, 26; Senator Watson, 26; Senator Johnson, 10; William H. Taft, 3; Senator Poindexter, 3; Gen. Pershing, 3; Charles E. Hughes, 1; Senator Knox, 1; Gov. Sproul, 1; Senator Borah 1; Senator Kellogg, 1; Senator Spencer, 1; Senator Edge, 1; Senator Sutherland, 1; Senator Lenroot, 1; noncommittal, 20; absent, 6.

New England members were almost unanimously for Wood. It was in New Hampshire that he was born over a grocery store. It was in Massachusetts that he attended Harvard College, of which he is now an overseer, and it was there that he cast his first vote. Of the Massachusetts members of the House nine are for Wood, one for Lowden, one for Taft and one noncommittal. In order that the identity of the members may not be divulged, the vote of Connecticut, Rhode Island, Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont is here given en bloc. Eleven Representatives voted for Wood, two for Lowden, one for Harding and one was noncommittal.

Partly due to the Plattsburg movement for the national defense and partly to the association of his name with that of Theodore Roosevelt, Wood has a great preponderance of favorable opinion in the New York delegation. Fifteen expressed a preference for him, one is for Lowden, one for Watson, one for Taft, one for Pershing and three were noncommittal.

In the Pennsylvania delegation nineteen members of the House are for Wood. Lowden has one supporter there, Harding one, Senator Knox one, Gov. Sproul one and one was noncommittal.

The States of New Jersey, Maryland and Delaware line up with ten for Wood and one for Harding.

MICHIGAN FOR WOOD.

Ten of the Michigan members are for Wood, one is for Harding and one noncommittal.

Harding has nine votes in Ohio, with four for Wood and one noncommittal. In the Indiana delegation twelve are for Watson and one is for Lowden. In Wisconsin there is mostly Lowden sentiment. Five members of the House expressed a preference for him while three voted for Wood and one was noncommittal. Iowa is overwhelmingly for Lowden, who attended the State university there. Nine are for the Illinois Governor, one is for Wood and one is for Johnson.

In the border States of Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Missouri and Oklahoma seven voted for Wood, two for Lowden, one for Harding and one was noncommittal. West Virginia members of the House stand four for Harding and one for Lowden.

The West is also for Wood. This is true of the Southwest, due largely to the fact that in the Spanish War he was colonel of the Rough Riders, of which Theodore Roosevelt was originally lieutenant-colonel. California, Oregon and Washington voted six for Wood, five for Johnson, one for Poindexter and one was noncommittal. New Mexico, Idaho, Wyoming, Montana and Colorado gave four for Wood, three for Lowden and one for Pershing. Kansas, Nebraska and North and South Dakota gave eight votes for Wood, four for Harding, four for Lowden and three were noncommittal.

TAFT INTERPRETS RESERVATIONS

Believes Friends of Peace Treaty Could Well Accept Most of Them If They Are Couched in Language Less Offensive to Signatories.

BY WILLIAM HOWARD TAFT.

All the amendments to the peace treaty have been or will be beaten. The friends of the treaty may well rejoice that the fight has reached this stage, because there was a time when it looked as if two or three of the amendments might be adopted. For practical purposes, the difference between an amendment and a reservation is that, in case of an amendment, the ratification will not take place unless all the nations signatories to the treaty formally agree that, as to all of them and their obligations, the treaty is so amended.

A ratification with reservation is one which is conditioned on a change or a qualification or an interpretation applicable only to the obligations under the treaty of the nation making the reservation. A reservation really does not require express acquiescence by any of the other parties if they go on with the treaty without objection. It is good to be rid of the possibility of amendments, because it reduces the probability that a resubmission to a conference or extended negotiations will be necessary.

This victory for friends of the treaty is due to the courage, the independence and the broad vision of the original mild reservationists, Senators McCumber, Colt and McNary, and their associates, who have gathered to their assistance, Senators Nelson, Kellogg, Hale, Edge, Sterling and Hayes. They, with the aid from time to time of other Republicans and all the Democrats but three or four, defeated the amendments. They have had to stand up against the naggings, disagreeable pressure of party associates, accompanied by bitter criticism, by innuendoes as to their loyalty to their fellows and by sneers at their dreaded convictions. The friends of the treaty may well be grateful to this band of nine Republicans, because without them the treaty would have been a wreck.

THE CONDITIONS.

But, now we come to the reservations. What are the conditions. The Democrats find themselves in great embarrassment, and it is their own fault. They took the stand that until the amendments were disposed of they would not consider reservations. They insisted that the Republicans would not stand for amendments against the treaty, and that they themselves might push the treaty through without either amendments or reservations. They drove the mild reservationists, of whom there were but three in the beginning, into a situation where they could only struggle for compromise with their Republican associates. They made it necessary for this little group to come to a tentative agreement with other Republicans on reservations. The mild reservationists made the best fight they could to avoid injury to the treaty. In this fight they had no backing from the Democrats.

The question arises, what course should the real friends of the treaty take as between the proposed reservations and the programme of the Democrats to defeat the ratification resolution with reservations? Of course, this depends somewhat upon the reservations that are likely to be adopted. Fourteen of them have been recommended by the Foreign Relations Committee. As to one of them, the fourteenth, one may say that if that is to be adopted, then the treaty might as well be defeated. It was proposed by Senator Reed, whose opposition to the treaty has been open and avowed, and whose advocacy of this reservation is entirely consistent with his previous attitude. It is as follows:

"Fourteenth — The United States reserves to itself exclusively the right to decide what question affects its honor or its vital interests and declares that such questions are not under this treaty to be submitted in any way either to arbitration or to the consideration of the council or of the Assembly of the League of Nations or any agency thereof or to the decision or recommendation of any other power."

DEFEAT FOR FOURTEENTH.

The above emasculates the treaty and makes the relation of the United States to the league one of a mere visitor to the council of nations, with no responsibility and a corresponding absence of influence or power for good. The best informed are confident that this reservation will be defeated, as it ought to be.

With respect to the other reservations, it may be said that one who favors the ratification without any reservations might well wish they were either defeated or modified to more interpretative form, and at least that they might be put in more gracious and diplomatic words.

As at first reported, they seem to have been framed with the deliberate purpose of making them so offensive to our allies that they could not accept them with self-respect. They have been much improved in this respect, however, in the negotiations between the groups represented by Mr. Lodge and Mr. McCumber.

Coming now to consider their substance, they should be subjected to two tests. First, how much will they impair the efficacy of the league; second, how likely are they

DEMANDS RANSOM RETURN.

New York Congressman Says Jenkins Episode Most Shameful in History.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—Mandatory direction to the State Department to insist on payment by Mexico of the $150,000 raised by friends of American Consular Agent William O. Jenkins at Puebla, Mex., to secure his ransom from brigand kidnapers and the punishment of the brigands is provided in a joint resolution introduced in the House today by Representative Gould of New York.

"The Department of State, in open and cynical repudiation of the most sacred obligation of government, to protect the lives, liberty and property of its citizens, has declared an open season on Americans for bandits and rebels in Mexico," says Gould. "It has even extended this reputation to its own official representatives in Mexico.

"If relatives or friends of a representative of the United States government find it necessary to pay $150,000 to insure his safety while on his official mission in a foreign and friendly country, our government has no interest in the affair. If other Americans in a friendly country are kidnaped and held for ransom, or killed, their government has no greater interest in their misfortunes than in those of Mexican nationals in Mexico.

"In the shameful history of our recent relations with Mexico, nothing stands out more disgracefully than this. No menace of Bolshevism could strike more directly at the root of government by law and order."

In the Senate a resolution by Senator King would ask the State Department to report whether the Mexican government had been requested to reimburse Mr. Jenkins for the amount of the ransom. It was referred to a committee.

ROME, Nov. 8.—Disorders occurred at Milan and Genoa as a result of Socialist celebrations on the anniversary of the Russian revolution by which the Bolsheviki came into power.

Shots were fired and many arrests were made at Milan, where the Socialists clashed with former soldiers.

Troops at Genoa dispersed processions of Socialists carrying red flags and pictures of Lenine.

OHIO DRYS FINALLY VICTORIOUS.

COLUMBUS, Nov. 8.—Ohio last Tuesday voted to sustain its Legislature's ratification of the Federal prohibition amendment by a majority of 1480, according to complete returns from all but two precincts in the State, and official returns from seventy-nine of the eighty-eight counties, tabulated tonight at the office of the Secretary of State. The vote stood: For ratification, 499,776; against, 498,296.

Although official returns on the other prohibition questions voted upon had not been tabulated officially, they indicated repeal of State-wide prohibition was defeated by 30,000, or more; that the 2.75 per cent. beer proposal was defeated by 15,000 or more, and that the wets defeated the Crabbe prohibition enforcement act by 25,000 or more.

Mrs. Milo Abercrombie,

VON BRINCKEN'S WIFE FINALLY RID OF TITLE.

MRS. ABERCROMBIE NO LONGER TO BE EMBARRASSED BY REMINDER OF GERMANY.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 8.—Socially devastated by the world war—in a way, a human derelict of the wreckage of Imperial Germany, Mrs. Milo Abercrombie, a beautiful San Francisco society girl and divorced wife of Baron von Brincken, former attache of the German Consulate here, now a Federal prisoner at McNeill's Island, sits in her Peninsular home today, meditating over the folly that induced her to wed a sprig of Prussian militarism.

SOCIAL ISOLATION.

Surrounding Mrs. Abercrombie, whose still beautiful face is seamed by lines of sorrow from brooding over social isolation occasioned by America's participation in the war, sit wonderingly her two beautiful children, Marie and John—wondering why their mother no longer calls them Cecilia and Wilhelm. For she as yet has not told them that their odious former names, souvenirs of allegiance to Hohenzollern royalty, have been forever outlawed, at the mother's plea, by the Superior Court of California.

Thursday, by attorney, Baroness von Brincken with her children appeared here before Judge Crothers. When her lawyer, who was her stepfather, George A McGowen, emerged from the courtroom, the Baroness was plain Mrs. Abercrombie; her children, Marie Abercrombie and John Abercrombie.

FIGHT OF MONTHS.

The changing of names marked the end of a court fight of months on the part of the Abercrombies and Mr. McGowen to get rid of the hated Teutonic title of Von Brincken. The successful result comes as a finishing touch to the divorce granted the fair woman July 22, last, by Superior Judge Flood.

At the hearing Thursday, Mr. McGowen recited at length the history of the Von Brincken case, basing the Baroness's petition upon the Baron's perpetuation of a felony in connection with the well-known illegal operations of the German Consulate here, as revealed by the United States Department of Justice and the Secret Service. Therefore, petitioned Mr. McGowen, the Baroness prayed for the change in name to spare her further "humiliation and embarrassment" inherent in the title.

TAMPICO OIL FIELD SHIPMENTS QUOTED.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

TAMPICO (Mex.) Nov. 8.—The total shipments of crude and refined petroleum through the ports of Tampico, Tuxpan and Port Lobos for the first nine months of the present year were 56,771,583 barrels, as compared with total shipments of 56,765,396 barrels for the whole twelve months of the year 1918. Of the shipments for the first nine months of this year 46,150,760 barrels were crude petroleum and 10,652,120 barrels were refined petroleum.

It is estimated that the total shipments for the present year will be approximately 80,000,000 barrels.

BULLETIN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 8.—The election of J. W. Harreld, Republican nominee, who made his race on an anti-League of Nations platform, over Democratic Nominee Claude Weaver seemed assured tonight on the face of complete unofficial returns from 236 out of 265 precincts in the Fifth Congressional District.

Returns from the 236 precincts gave Harreld a majority of 1040, the vote being as follows: Weaver, 10,779; Harreld, 11,819.

Oklahoma City and county, with fifteen out of seventy-five precincts reporting, gave Weaver 921 and Harreld 441.

Oklahoma county, largest of the seven which make the district, returned a majority of 1019 for Harreld. Oklahoma county's seventy-five precincts gave Weaver 3980 against Harreld's 4999.

SAN ANTONIO (Tex.) Nov. 8.—Pancho Villa has appeared at San Diego, near Rio Conchos, with 1000 men and he is approaching Chihuahua with the intention of capturing that city, dispatches from there today announce. Gen. Dieguez, Federal garrison commander at Chihuahua, has been dispatched at the head of a strong column to meet Villa in an attempt to stop his reported advance on Chihuahua. Other Federal forces from Jiminez and Camarego have been sent to reinforce Gen. Dieguez. This is the first open attack made by Villa in more than thirty days, and a dispatch received here indicates he is compelled by approaching winter to descend from his mountain stronghold in search for food and clothing for his command.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—A wireless message from Gen. Hundreds of Radicals, Taken in New Eastern Raids, Jailed Last Night.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—Reports to the Department of Justice tonight showed 211 men and women are being held on deportation warrants. Rearrests may be made, however, on later developments, according to Atty.-Gen. Palmer.

Some of those arrested were unable to satisfy the Government agents they were American citizens and still are being watched.

The number held on deportation warrants in the various cities follows:

Newark, N. J., 31; Baltimore, 10; Akron, O., 6; Monessen, Pa., 2; Bentleyville, Pa., 1; Universal, Pa., 1; Cleveland, 17; Buffalo, 14; Philadelphia, 9; Trenton, N. J., 1; Hartford, Conn., 33; New York, 39; Chicago, 7; and Detroit, 40.

Mr. Palmer disclosed tonight that Adolph Schnabel, whom he described as "the brains of the Union of Russian Workers," was taken into custody ten days ago. He is at Ellis Island awaiting deportation. Peter Bianki, who succeeded Schnabel as general secretary of the Russian Union, also is being held for deportation.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Raids were made in Manhattan, Brooklyn and the Bronx tonight upon alleged "Reds." Shortly before midnight there were 200 prisoners in custody. It was said every investigating agency of the United States had been ordered to co-operate with Department of Justice agents in the crusade to curb the spread of radicalism.

About 200 prisoners were taken tonight in a raid on a hall on Fifth street made by agents of the Department of Justice, under Chief William J. Flynn. The Department of Justice men were aided by members of the New York police "bomb squad."

The prisoners, whom the police described as "Reds," were taken to police headquarters. A meeting was in progress when the "round-up" was made.

BRIDEPORT (Ct.) Nov. 8.—Sixty alleged radicals were arrested tonight in raids by agents of the Department of Justice, aided by local police. Most of the prisoners were taken in boarding-houses on the east side and were brought to city chambers to be examined.

DETROIT, Nov. 8.—Continuing their raids on meeting places and homes of members of the Union of Russian Workers, Department of Justice operatives tonight added approximately 250 alleged radical agitators to the fifty-two taken into custody last night and early today.

BRING SOLDIER DEAD OF RUSSIAN SERVICE.

CONGRESSMAN OSBORNE MEMBER OF COMMITTEE TO MEET RETURNING SHIP.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—Congressman Osborne is in New York as a member of the special committee of the House and Senate to receive the bodies of the United States soldiers which are to arrive on the steamer Lake Daraga, which is due to arrive in New York tomorrow.

The soldiers whose bodies are thus honored were all killed in Russia, and most of them lived in Detroit. A large delegation from that city will be at the pier in Hoboken, where the steamer will dock, and where the funeral services will be held.

Full military honors will be accorded the 111 bodies of the soldier dead.

As soon as the services have been completed, bodies which are claimed by the nearest relatives will be turned over to them, and the others will be brought to the Arlington National Cemetery for interment.

With the exception of two bodies which were returned "irregularly," Mr. Baker said today, those on the Lake Daraga, are the first to be brought home. Maj.-Gen. William S. Graves, commanding American troops in Russia, has been instructed to send the names by wireless and the family will be notified in each instance.

to bring about long negotiation and delay by the other powers and the proposal of countless reservations?

SECOND RESERVATION.

The second in the list of reservations concerns Article X. It is as follows: "Second, the United States assumes no obligation to preserve the territorial integrity or political independence of any other country or to interfere in controversies between nations—whether members of the league or not—under the provisions of Article X, or to employ the military or naval forces of the United States under any article of the treaty for any purpose unless in any particular case the Congress which, under the Constitution, has the sole power to declare war or authorize the employment of the military or naval forces of the United States, shall by act or joint resolution so provide."

ARTICLE X.

This leaves the obligation of the United States to respect the territorial integrity and political independence of every other member of the league, but it weakens the obligation to preserve that integrity under Article X, and if need be to employ the military and naval forces for such purpose. It may be argued that there is still an imperfect obligation left which it is for the Congress of the United States to recognize by action. In any case, even if the obligation were absolute, it could only be performed by the Congress of the United States, in whom, as recited in the reservation, is the constitutional authority to respond to the obligation. If it is to respond to the obligation, it must decide that it exists. In the absence of a tribunal of the league to pass upon such an obligation and construe it for all members of the league, each member must construe its own obligation.

Those who have looked upon Article X as one of the important articles in the league will regret extremely that it has been thought necessary to modify or render doubtful the existence of the obligation therein set forth. They have felt that the fact of the obligation of all the nations under Article X would so frighten members of the league and other nations from violating the territorial integrity or political independence of another nation that it would not be necessary to depend upon any actual fulfillment of the obligation; that as the declaration of the Monroe Doctrine was found sufficient to enforce it without the use of any army or a navy, so under Article X the territorial integrity and and political independence of the smaller nations would be protected by the fear of violating it, which the threatened operation of Article X would instill in all nations. Still, it should be remembered that the universal boycott against a covenant-breaking nation remains unimpaired by any reservations and that it will promptly operate under most wars begun in violation of Article X. It threatens a penalty in some respects more drastic than war itself, and will have a powerfully deterrent effect against war. In so far as this second reservation affects the obligation of the United States to use its military and naval forces under any other article of the league, it suffices to say that there is no positive obligation of that sort in any other article—certainly not in Articles XVI or XVII.

CAUSE OF TROUBLE.

Article X is the one causing the chief controversy in the Senate. Many who sincerely favor a League of Nations are not willing to bind the United States absolutely to its provisions strictly construed. It is understood, moreover, that this second reservation is the one article upon which the mild reservationists have agreed with their Republican colleagues and that there is a commitment in respect to it which it would be difficult to disturb. In other words, it seems impossible to secure the sixty-four votes needed for ratification unless this reservation, or something like it, shall be accepted by those who are anxious to secure ratification.

Just how the other parties to the treaty will regard this reservation may be doubtful. They are anxious to have the United States join the league. They know that our people are much more likely to respond to moral obligations in advance. They know that by the presence of a representative in the Council the United States could prevent any advice from the Council that would involve it in any remote war in which it would be unfair to expect it to take part, and that its joining in the boycott would, except in a general way, be a much more effective weapon for the purpose of the league than any army it could send. They are likely to acquiesce in the reservation. For these reasons, as between losing the league and accepting this reservation, the friends of the league may well urge the latter course upon the Senate.

THIRD RESERVATION.

The third reservation provides that no mandate should be accepted by the United States for the government of any countries taken over in the care of the league, except by action of the Congress of the United States. Certainly no objection can be made to this reservation. True, it is not necessary. No such burden could or would be accepted by the President alone, a contingency, which was evidently feared. He could enter no such contract as that of a mandatory without the advice and consent of the Senate, unless specifically authorized to do so by the treaty. This reservation authorizes the Congress to accept the trust, which is well, because the Congress will have to help the President in meeting the responsibility if accepted. Certainly no other party to the treaty could object to this reservation, which concerns only a definition of the authority of the branches of our own government.

The fourth reservation reserves to the United States exclusively the right to decide what is a domestic question not subject to arbitration or recommendation by the tribunals of the league, and declares a number of questions to be domestic. No objection can be made to the subjects specified, which are immigration, labor, coastwise traffic, the traiff, commerce, the suppression of traffic in women and children, in opium and in other dangerous drugs. The covenant directs the council or Assembly, in hearing disputes between nations, if it shall find the question under dispute to be a domestic one, to make its finding accordingly and to take no further steps in the settlement of the dispute.

INTERNATIONAL TRIBUNALS.

In other words, the matter of jurisdiction is submitted in the first instance to the tribunal before whom one or the other of the parties seeks to bring it, but if the tribunal should find something to be an international question, which either party deemed to be domestic, that party would not be bound by the finding as to jurisdiction. To bring about such a result there must be a specific stipulation that such jurisdictional finding is to be binding on the parties. The difference between a court of general jurisdiction and one of special limited jurisdiction in municipal law is that the court of general jurisdiction has power to determine its own jurisdiction so as to bind the parties, whereas a court of special and limited jurisdiction may have its jurisdiction disputed collaterally if, in fact, that which it assumes to decide is not within its jurisdiction.

International tribunals are of a peculiarly special and limited character, so that neither party is bound by a finding of jurisdiction and may disregard it unless specifically so bound by the terms of submission. Certainly the reservation is merely a reasonable interpretation of the covenant in a form that might have been made less abrupt. No other nation is likely to object to it, for each would insist on it as applied to its own case.

The fifth reservation declares that the United States will not submit to arbitration or to inquiry by the Assembly or the council questions which, in the judgment of the United States, depend upon and relate to the Monroe Doctrine, and that doctrine is to be interpreted by the United States alone and is wholly outside of the jurisdiction of the League of Nations or any provision contained in the treaty of peace with Germany. The language of the covenant is that regional understandings lige the Monroe Doctrine are not to be affected by the league. If the covenant does not affect the Monroe Doctrine then the Monroe Doctrine is to stand as it is and there is a mere recital of one feature of the Monroe Doctrine as the Senate construes it to be. In that sense, therefore, it is an interpretative clause rather than a modification of the covenant.

ALLIES WON'T OBJECT.

Of course, many would prefer a less aggressive form of reservation defining the Monroe Doctrine in full, so that other nations may know what we declare it to be, and expressing such confidence in the justice of the doctrine as to be willing to submit it to an impartial tribunal to apply it in case of difference as to its application. But our Allies and associates in the league are not likely to do more than shrug their shoulders at its form, confident that in an actual necessity for asserting the doctrine we will not enforce it except for the part of resisting unjust aggression and of serving the peace of this hemisphere. They have grown used to our attitude by this time—that we will not trust them, but they must trust us.

The sixth reservation concerns the Shantung provision of the treaty and is as follows:

"Sixth — The United States withholds its assent to Articles CLVI, CLVII and CLVIII and reserves full liberty of action with respect to any controversy which may arise under said article between the republic of China and the empire of Japan."

The articles referred to are not a part of a covenant, but of the peace settlement in the treaty.

Such a reservation, however, will impair the useful part the United States may play in the league in bringing about a right adjustment of the relations between Japan and China. As a condition of the insertion of these articles, Japan made promises in which she agreed to restore Shantung to China, to open Tsing-tao to equal rights of settlement and trade to all and to retain, in her economic interest in the railroads of Shuntung, no power to police these railroads with Japanese soldiers, and this all in a reasonable time.

JAPANESE QUESTION.

A reservation wherein the United States accepts the assurance of Japan that she will comply with these promises in a reasonable time, but can yield assent to the articles only when such compliance is fulfilled and reserves full liberty of action until then with respect to any controversy which may arise under said articles between China and Japan, would be just as effective for the purpose and would not necessarily aggravate the feelings of Japan, already deeply hurt by the insults heaped on her in the Senate.

More than this, if the United States thus withholds any participation in the action of the league and, under these articles, and chooses to depend on our individual action toward Japan in bringing Japan to a proper adjustment of the Shantung matter, we lose an opportunity to press Japan for justice with the weight of the league's demand. Everyone knows that after acquiescing in Germany's possession for fifteen years we are not going to war all alone against Japan about Shantung. We ought not by adopting this reservation to deprive ourselves of the right through the league to insist on Japan's compliance with the condition upon which these articles were put in the treaty.

It is to be hoped that the reservation can be qualified accordingly. The change suggested would remove doubt as to Japan's acquiescence in the reservation.

The seventh reservation simply notifies the other powers that Congress will provide by law for participation in such commissions and tribunals as may be needed in carrying out the provisions of the treaty and for the selection of our representatives therein and that they must be confirmed by the Senate. It was not necessary to insert this as a reservation in our ratification, because such a law and such confirmation would have been provided and required by Congress without it. But certainly the other powers cannot and will not object to its insertion here nor could there be any reasonable objection to the provision by anyone.

EIGHTH RESERVATION.

The eighth reservation is as follows:

"Eighth — The United States understands that the reparation commission will regulate or interfere with exports from the United States to Germany, or from Germany to the United States, only when the United States by act or joint resolution of Congress approves such regulation or interference."

By the seventeenth and eighteenth articles of the second annex to the general provisions on reparation it is provided that, in case Germany defaults in the performance of any obligation under this part of the treaty, the reparation commission shall give notice to the interested powers and recommend what action ought to be taken, and the Allied and associated powers are to have the right to take such economic financial reprisals as they may determine. It would seem, therefore, that this reservation is merely an interpretative reservation, properly remitting the question of remedy to the constitutional authority in the United States, to-wit, Congress, and that no objection can be taken to it.

Reservation nine provides that the United States shall not be obligated to contribute to any expense of the League of Nations or any agency organized under it, to carry out the treaty provisions unless and until Congress makes the appropriation. This is rather a mean and stingy notice to the powers that the United States is going to chaffer over the question whether the expenses that the league has incurred are proper and whether the United States should meet her share. It manifests a small spirit, but the other powers are not likely to object to it, because they realize when it comes to action the United States will be quite as generously just as any of them.

TENTH RESERVATION.

By the tenth reservation it is provided that:

If the United States shall at any time adopt any plan for the limitation of armaments proposed by the Council of the League of Nations under the provisions of Article VIII it reserves the right to increase such armaments without the consent of the Council whenever the United States is threatened with invasion or engaged in war.

The great benefit of Article VIII of the covenant is in preventing preparation for war before war is on or before it is really threatened, and, therefore, this reservation on behalf of the United States will not interfere with the efficacy of Article VIII unless it may induce other nations to insist on a similar reservation on their own behalf. There is no objection when a nation is in war to allowing it to make all the preparation it can for its own safety.

It was thought by the framers of Article VIII that the provision therin by which the Council has authority to increase in the limit of armament, would meet the requirement of any emergency. The objection made is that the action of the Council has to be unanimous and, therefore, that in the contingency of war or threatened war we might not be able to secure the increase needed because of the objection of one member of the Council. If European nations secured the same reservation very slight circumstances might be made an excuse to increase armament.

"The fear that the United States would ever be embarrassed by Article VIII is only a figment of the imagination of those who oppose the league. She will have an ample limit granted her in the armament agreement between nations, because no nation will fear her aggression. It is altogether unlikely that when we have a limit we shall ever reach it except in time of war. It will be much better if this reservation could be changed so as to strike out "threatened invasion" as an excuse lest such reservation may become applicable to Europe, where the strict maintenance of the limit under Article VIII without evasion is of the utmost importance.

ELEVENTH RESERVATION.

The eleventh reservation is as follows: The United States reserves the right to permit, in its discretion, the nationals of the covenant-breaking state as defined in Article XVI of the covenant of the League of Nations, residing within the United States or in countries other than that violating said Article XVI to continue their commercial, financial and personal relations with the nationals of the United States.

There is no objection to this reservation. It does not impair in any degree the boycott provided for in Article XVI, and one cannot suppose that it would be objected to by any other nation.

Reservation twelve is as follows: Nothing in Articles CCLXXXXVI, CCLXXXXVII, or in any of the annexed thereto, or in any other article, section or annex of the treaty of peace with Germany shall, as against citizens of the United States, be taken to mean any confirmation, ratification or approval of any act otherwise illegal or in contravention of the rights of citizens of the United States.

It is difficult to tell what the effect of this reservation was intended to be or will be. The provision for settling claims between countries is through clearinghouses established by each country and by a system of set-offs, each country settling, so far as practicable, with its own citizens. This reservation seems to be intended to prevent such a settlement from being a commitment of the United States to the approval of anything unlawful, according to the laws of war, or contrary to the right of citizens of this country. It does not seem likely to constitute an obstruction to the operation of the clearinghouse sections, and it may be doubted whether any objection will be made to it. Reservation twelve is in form an interpretative reservation, and perhaps is no more than that.

RESERVATION THIRTEEN.

Reservation thirteen is as follows: The United States declines to accept any interest, as trustee or in her own right, or any responsibility for the government or disposition of the overseas possessions of Germany, her rights and titles to which Germany renounces to the principal Allied and associated powers under Article CXIX to CXXXVII, inclusive

This seems to be intended to be a criticism of the disposition of the German colonies and a washing of the hands of the United States of any participation therein. It is not likely that the countries who are to become mandatories for such colonies will regard this declaration of the United States as serious, for it will not interfere with their functions and will, therefore, not be made a basis for further negotiation.

We have thus reviewed all the reservations reported. It seems probable that the reservations, except the twelfth, will not lead the other countries to object to our ratification of the treaty thus limited. It would help greatly to have the Shantung reservation changed in form. It would help much to have the reservation as to armament modified and it is to be hoped that in the discussion some of the other objections pointed out to these reservations may be modified. It would help much if the reservations could be merely adopted as a part of the resolution of ratification so that the nations on the other side may silently acquiesce in them rather than to require formal acceptance of these reservations by any of the nations.

THE PREAMBLE.

The preamble, as reported by the committee, is as follows: The committee also reports the following reservations and understandings to be made a part and condition of the resolution of ratification, which ratification is not to take effect or bind the United States until the said following reservations and understandings have been accepted as a part and a condition of said instrument of ratification by at least three of the four principal Allied and associated powers, to wit: Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan.

It is now announced that Mr. Lodge has accepted a change in this preamble so that a mere exchange of notes by the three powers with the United States would be sufficient.

This, we hope, may dispense with the necessity for a reference to the French Assembly, to the British Parliament and to the Parliament of Italy or to the Parliament of Japan, and is a great improvement in that respect. It will, however, much facilitate acquiescence in the reservations if no such requirement is made at all. As it is, it may nag some of the nations into a suggestion of reservations on their part and involve delay.

On the whole, however, there can be no doubt that it is vastly better to ratify the treaty with the preamble and all the reservations, excluding the fourteenth, than to have it defeated. The weakening of Article X is recognized, but there are still teeth in the treaty through the universal boycott. There will still be teeth in the treaty if the nations who have already accepted it respond as between themselves to the strict obligations of Article X, and we may be sure, as the world will be sure, that the United States will not fail in her duty.

LEAGUE AN EXPERIMENT.

The treaty and the league are both experiments. They are both decisive and the league is capable of much improvement in a good deal of its machinery. The necessity and wisdom of amendments will demonstrate themselves when the league goes into practical operation. It is an enormous step forward toward better international conditions even with the thirteen reservations. There are many in the Senate who wish to defeat it entirely and are rejoicing in the prospect. The real friends of the treaty should be willing to sacrifice something of their hopes and ambitions in respect to it to save so much of benefit to the world as would be saved if the treaty can be ratified with all the reservations except the fourteenth.

It is proposed by the Democrats to defeat the resolution of ratification with these reservations and then propose milder reservations and bring them up for consideration. This is a very dangerous plan and probably cannot be carried through. Even if it is practicable the mild reservations suggested by them will not be accepted by a sufficient number of votes in the Senate in any event.

If the Democrats wish to propose milder reservations or secure modifications of those proposed, now is the time, before voting on the resolutions. Yes, let them appoint a committee for conference with the Republicans in favor of the treaty and see if they cannot reach a compromise which will secure the support of sixty-four votes. To wait, as proposed, will be fatal. The Democrats will not relieve themselves from the burden of beating the treaty under these conditions. They have already, by their course, made the reservations more drastic than they need to have been. They have parted with the control which they might have had over the course of the treaty in the Senate, with all the advantage which that would have given them. Why will they now persist in a policy that may and probably will accomplish the full purpose of the "bitter-enders?"

ACTION IS DEMANDED.

It is said that the President will not submit the treaty with reservations to the other powers, but will withhold further action in respect to it, and thus defeat it. He has such power, but we cannot think he will allow himself to exercise it. It is not as if we were attempting to better our existing relations with other countries with some new proposal. We are technically at war with Germany. We must end it.

The situation now demands action. The whole world is pausing to see what we are going to do and praying for a ratification. The business of the world and the business between us and the world is being held up by reason of the delay in ratification. Can the President take the responsibility of defeating his own treaty because, in some respects, it has been changed, when as a whole it is much the same as that to which he put his signature? Does he wish to go to Berlin. Not until his action shall prove otherwise can we suppose this possible. A treaty is made under the Constitution by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate.

Steinway Genius

Never, by any other instrument, has the musical world been so enriched, has musical art received such an incentive to development, as in the creation of this marvelous medium of tonal expression. The steel, the copper, the woods, the felts—in short, all the materials entering into its construction — have, through all these years, been just as readily available to the manufacturers of other pianos, but it has remained for STEINWAY GENIUS to combine them in such a manner that the human mind can conceive of no tonal beauty more exquisite than they provide.

CONFESS STEEL STRIKE'S LOST.

Workers Everywhere Hastening Back to Mills.

No Shortage Reported in Factories' Output.

William Z. Foster is Run Out of Johnstown, Pa.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 8.—L. E. Titus, member of the steel workers' council at Gary and captain of pickets, admitted to military authorities that the steel strike is lost.

"There is no use pretending," he said to Col. W. S. Mapes, commanding the regular troops. "The men are going back to work. The strike is lost, and the army is responsible."

Many workers have returned to the steel mills. Thousands of former employees still are idle, mill officials say, but most of them are foreigners and members of the radical element and will not be re-employed.

Production in actual tonnage is well in excess of the rate just before the strike, which was the heaviest rate since early in the year. Many men have returned to work recently at plants where working forces are being aligned for efficient operation. In some cases men who have returned to work are kept on repair jobs temporarily.

Outside the Chicago district the strike situation is clearly defined at all plants, which either are operating at nearly if not quite 100 per cent. or are close as to actual tonnage production or very nearly so. The Eastern Pennsylvania mills are nearly all practically full, as are the southern mills. The Western Pennsylvania plants are nearly all operating substantially full except for one or two spots where the strike still hangs on.

The shortage in steel that was expected by the strike leaders, and perhaps also by the manufacturers, does not seem to have developed. Manufacturing customers are not plentifully supplied, but they seem to have enough steel to maintain their operations fairly well.

The strike is lost, but not dead.

MORE BOMB OUTRAGES.

A reign of terror prevails throughout the Donora-Monessen-Charleroi - Bellevernon (Pennsylvania) industrial section as a result of repeated bomb outrages in which residences have been dynamited and attempts made to blow up street cars and trains. Street-car strikers who have refused to return to work are charged by officers with being responsible.

Residents live in a state of fear, not knowing where the next attempt to destroy life and property may be made. Three arrests have been made in connection with the attempt to dynamite a Monessen-Bellevernon street car Thursday night which was bound for Bellevernon filled with steel workers for Monessen. The car was hurled from the track and partially wrecked, but none of the occupants seriously injured, although several were bruised and cut by flying glass. State troopers and workingmen on whose lives the attempt was made joined in the pursuit of three men who were seen running away from the vicinity.

Another typical illustration of the strike methods appears in the sensational testimony by Peter Lakulich, 12-year-old son of one of the defendants, which resulted in four Lithuanians being held for court without bail on a charge of feloniously dynamiting a dwelling with intent to murder, at a hearing before Justice Boyd of Donora. The men were taken to Washington.

State troopers took the youthful witness with them and he gave his startling testimony before Judge McIlvaine. When called to the stand at the hearing yesterday the boy said that Charles Dombrowsky had visited the home of his father in Bentleyville and secured the dynamite used in attempting to blow up the home of John Somak in Donora. He said Dombrowsky stated he was going to use it in wrecking the Somak home. Somak, on the stand, declared the steel strikers had threatened him with bodily harm if he returned to work at the mills. He said he told them he had a family to support and that it was imperative for him to do so.

RUN FOSTER OUT OF TOWN.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

JOHNSTOWN (Pa.) Nov. 8.—William Z. Foster, secretary of the National Steel Strike Committee, was forced to leave Johnstown yesterday, where he was scheduled to address steel workers, and two other organizers were requested to leave by a citizens' committee. The committee intends, it is said, to "run the organizers out of town."

Foster left for Altoona, Pa., immediately, and from that place issued a statement saying "the city police and others took it upon themselves" to order him out of town.

"They warned me there would be a riot if I were to speak," he said. As he did not wish to have disorder, he declared, he did not resist when being escorted by a score of men to the station to take a train.

T. J. Conboy, chief steel organizer of the district, was requested by the citizens' committee last night to leave Johnstown. He agreed to do so by 5 o'clock. Dominick Gelotte, United Mine Workers' organizer, refused to leave on the ground that he is a resident of the county and said he would not go until forced to do so.

A business men's committee, including W. R. Lunk, secretary of the Y.M.C.A., and H. L. Tredonnick, president of the Chamber of Commerce, aided by steel workers who wish to return to work, last night began active operations in a campaign to "run the organizers out of town." T. J. Conboy, chief steel organizer, it was said, has agreed to leave Johnstown.

Dominick Gelotte, organizer for the United Mine Workers, it was said, refused to leave his room at a hotel and police were called to prevent a riot.

CONGRESS FOR GENERAL WOOD.

candidate Wood, so far as the preference of the members of the House is concerned, is the second choice.

SENATE FAVORS WOOD.

On the Senate side of the Capitol the Wood sentiment is no less pronounced. Because Senators Borah, Kellogg, Spencer, Edge, Poindexter and Lenroot, as well as Senators Johnson, Harding, and Watson, are understood to be somewhat receptive and have been prominently mentioned in their own States at least, they are placed in the poll as modestly admitting that one among their number might make an excellent Chief Executive of the United States.

To designate closely the preferences of States or small groups of States would reveal the identity of the Senators voting in the poll. Hence the Republican Senators are divided into classifications, those east and those west of the Mississippi River. Of the twenty-nine Senators east of the Mississippi, twelve voted for Wood, two for Lowden, three for Watson, four for Harding, one for Johnson, one for Sutherland, one for Edge, one for Lenroot, one for Hughes and three were noncommittal. Of the twenty Republican Senators west of the Mississippi, eight voted for Wood, one for Lowden, one for Harding, three for Johnson, one for Borah, one for Kellogg, one for Spencer, one for Pershing and two for Poindexter. One was noncommittal.

STATE DEPARTMENT URGES BRITAIN AND FRANCE TO HASTEN CONSORTIUM.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—The State Department, it is learned, has informed the British and French governments of its inability to accept a reservation by Japan of Manchuria and Inner Mongolia as a condition under which Japan will join the consortium for financing China. This government, in view of the "pressing financial needs of the Chinese government," has proposed to the British government and the French government that they, together with the United States, proceed with the organization of the consortium, leaving open until a subsequent date the question of Japanese particiation.

It is understood that neither the French nor the British government has consented to proceed with the formation of the consortium without Japanese participation and there is said to be little likelihood that Great Britain, Japan's formal ally will co-operate in the proposed undertaking if Japan is excluded.

The Japanese government, it is reported, desires to participate in the consortium and has indicated that it does not so much affect Manchuria and Inner Mongolia as certain districts or portions of those territories where Japan has large vested interests, such as railroads and mines.

It is in view of the inability of the powers to agree with the United States on the consortium question that the State Department has approved of an emergency loan of $30,000,000 to China by a Chicago bank.

STUDENT RAIDERS OF TRAIN ARE RELEASED.

WON'T PAY FARE, SO STATE FARM CELEBRATORS SPEND NIGHT IN JAIL.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 8.—Charges against 147 students of the University of California State Farm of an attempt to avoid payment of railway fare, a misdemeanor under the State law, were dismissed this morning by Police Judge L. M. Shelley, after the students, through David M. Garrett, their yell leader, had promised each to pay the Southern Pacific Company 54 cents, the fare from Davis to Sacramento, which they evaded. They all had spent the night in the Sacramento Jail.

A charge of interference with the United States mails, which it was said last night would be placed against them, was not entered.

Still dressed in the fantastic garb which they had worn at a football rally at Davis last night, the students paraded out of the courtroom in single file and lock-stepped through the streets of Sacramento to the Southern Pacific Depot, where they awaited a train that would take them back to Davis in time to witness the football game this afternoon between the University Farm and a team from the University of Nevada.

TO ADVERTISE GAME.

Garrett, as spokesman for his fellows, told the court today that after a football rally in Davis last night, someone had suggested that they all go to Sacramento in fantastic garb to parade the streets and advertise the approaching game.

When they boarded the train, some one, in a spirit of fun, Garrett said, had refused to pay his fare and others followed this lead. At Micon, a flag station near Sacramento, the conductor stopped the train and when payment of fare was still refused, he uncoupled the engine and went to Sacramento, here a riot call was turned in at the police station.

MINERS TRYING A NEW COST REDUCTION PLAN.

SHOULD IT FAIL, THEY WILL RECEIVE 50-CENT INCREASE DEMANDED.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

TONOPAH (Nev.) Nov. 8.—The Tonopah and Divide Miners' and Millmen's Union have signed a contract with the mine owners, it was announced today, that the 50-cents-a-day advance granted the miners is to stand unless the commissary and boarding-house established by the operators succeeds in reducing the cost of living by the amount of the rise. The union members are to vote tonight on ratifying the contract.

The operators, under the terms of the contract, are to establish a commissary where the miners may buy their supplies at cost and in conjunction with it operate a boarding-house. A Federal mediator, through whose intercession this arrangement was effected, will be called back at the expiration of sixty days to determine whether the cost of living by this means has been reduced to the amount of 50 cents a day. If it has, it was announced, the increase in wages will be abolished. Coal is to be delivered to the miners at cost.

The miners resumed work recently with the understanding their grievances would be submitted to a Federal mediator.

HOUSE ADMITS SHORT LINES TO RAIL BILL.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—With the return of the railroads to private operation, short line roads, although they have not been under Federal control, would receive the financial aid from the government similar to that given the larger systems now operated by the government, under a provision adopted yesterday by the House Interstate Commerce Committee as part of its draft of permanent railroad legislation.

The new sections provide payment for six months of amounts equal to the rental to which the short lines would be entitled under the rail control law, had these lines been retained by the Railroad Administration. The short lines also would be given the privilege of obtaining government loans.

Considerable opposition to the sections was manifest, objections being raised that subsidies were being granted the carriers.

All provisions of the house subcommittee draft of the railroad bill relating to extension of control by the Interstate Commerce Commission over coastwise and inland water carriers were eliminated yesterday by the committee, which twice voted to deny the commission control of port-to-port rates. The committee began consideration with the law sections of the measure, but no decision was reached. The discussion indicated anti-strike legislation similar to that in the Senate bill would not be adopted, although Representative Webster, Republican, announced his intention of offering such a proposal.

SENATE SCORES LABOR DESPOTS

Denounces Any Kind of Tyranny in America.

Committee Presents Report on Steel Strike.

Recommends Compulsory Inquiries by Mediators.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—Characterizing all strikes as "industrial barbarism" and declaring that "there is no place in this country either for industrial despotism or labor despotism," the Senate committee which investigated the steel strike today presented its report. The committee's main conclusion was expressed in the statement that "the public has a right to demand that capital shall not arrogate to itself the right to determine in its own way those industrial questions, and it is the same as to labor, and the duty is upon Congress to provide some way of adjusting these difficulties."

As a permanent preventive of strikes, which the committee concedes "are apparently the only way for labor to secure even its just demands if employers refuse to grant them," it is recommended that Congress authorize the establishment of some such mediation agency with well-defined powers as the recently dissolved war labor board.

"This board would have power of compulsory investigation," the report adds, "but not to the extent of compulsory arbitration. A just decision of the board would be indorsed by the public. There is good sense enough in the American public to bring about an adjustment of these difficulties."

The committee summed up its findings as follows:

The laborers in the steel mills had a just complaint relative to long hours of service, though wages were satisfactory.

That they had the right to have representatives of their own choosing present grievances to employers, though possibly the representatives should come from the industry affected.

That behind the strike there was massed a considerable element of "I.W.W.'s," "anarchists," "revolutionists" and "Russian soviets."

REMEDIES SUGGESTED.

Remedies suggested by the committee included:

That Congress establish a commission somewhat of the nature of the War Labor Board, with wide powers, though not with the power of compulsory arbitration.

That an Americanization law be passed requiring effective education of illiterates.

That Congress consider ways and means of extending aid to workmen seeking to buy their own homes.

That naturalization laws be amended to provide for deportation of aliens who fail to learn English within five years.

That Congress enact stringent legislation dealing with anarchists, revolutionists and "all who would de[illegible] the American government."

The report was signed by Senator Kenyon of Iowa, chairman, and Senators Sterling, South Dakota; [illegible] Colorado, Republicans, and McKellar, Tennessee, and Walsh, Massachusetts, Democrats.

CAUSES OF STRIKE.

Treating of the causes of the strike, the committee expressed the opinion that the walk-out was precipitated by the determination of the American Federation of Labor to organize the steel industry. Wages are not a factor in the strike, the committee held, being high enough to give no reason for dissatisfaction. Hours of the workers, however, the Senators believed, are too long.

Further behind the strike, the committee found, was massed "a considerable element of revolutionary radicalism, of which it is said, there is no question but that William Z. Foster, secretary of the general strike committee, was a leader. With Jacob Margolis, attorney for the I.W.W., and assistant in organizing the strike, Secretary Foster came in for unsparing condemnation. Despite Foster's partial disavowal of his former syndicalistic doctrines, the committee failed to be convinced that the strike leader has had "a change of heart," but, on the contrary, "he is now in the full h[illegible] his power."

"The laborers in the steel mills had a just complaint relative to the [illegible] service on the part of some of them," said the committee. "They had the right to have representatives of their own choosing present grievances to the employers. Some members of the committee believe that [illegible] such [illegible] ought not to be from outside the industry."

DISCUSS WORK HOURS.

With the system of working hours in the steel industry the committee disagreed strongly, saying:

"An eight-hour day with a living wage that will enable men to support their families and bring up their children according to the standards of American life ought to be a cardinal part of our industrial policy, and the sooner the principle is recognized the better it will be for the entire country."

The report also dealt with the efforts of strike leaders to get Judge E. H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, into a conference, far enough to point out that committee members felt sympathy with the principle of collective bargaining, but did not believe the steel strikers had taken the right course.

"The representatives selected (for bargaining) should be those who believe in the principles of American government," the report said on this point. "Judge Gary could well have objected to receiving a man with the views of Mr. Foster. He did not put his refusal on that ground, but rather put it on the ground that the men did not represent the employees, though himself conceding that 10 to 15 per cent. of the men in the mills were probably unionized. It seems to us that even this 10 or 15 per cent. had the right to select their own representatives and present their grievances, and that they should have been heard."

Testimony before the committee, the record said, sustained the contention of the steel companies that a large proportion of the strikers are foreigners or non-English speaking people.

DENOUNCE RADICALISM.

Touching on the subject of radicalism in the strike, the report said:

"The committee is of the opinion that the American Federation of Labor had made a serious mistake and has lost much favorable public opinion by permitting the leadership of the strike movement to pass into the hands of some who have heretofore entertained the most radical and dangerous doctrines.

"Such men," said the report, alluding to Foster and Margolis, "are dangerous to the country and they are dangerous to the cause of union labor. It is unfair for men who may be struggling for their rights to be represented by such leaders. If Mr. Foster has the real interest of the laboring man at heart he should remove himself from any leadership. If he will not remove himself from leadership, the American Federation of Labor should purge itself from such leadership in order to sustain the confidence the country has had in it under leadership of Mr. Gompers."

In regard to the suppression of public meetings in the strike zones, the committee observed that "the suppression of frank discussion only serves to accentuate a bad situation. Officials ought not to be permitted to prevent men from meeting to talk over their grievances and presenting to men their arguments in favor of joining the union."

WORLD'S CHRISTIAN CONFERENCE OPENS.

JUDGE THOMAS OF SANTA ANA WILL PARTICIPATE IN MEETING IN PITTSBURGH.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 8.—Christian statesmen and social and moral reformers from forty-seven countries of the world will assemble in Pittsburgh during "Armistice Week," beginning tomorrow, when the Third World's Christian Citizenship Conference will be held. The conference has not met since 1913, when sessions were held in Portland, Ore.

A variety of momentous problems of international interest, including those pertaining to social, moral, industrial, economic, civil and political activities, will come before the convention. The purposes of the meeting, as outlined in the call issued by the National Reform Association, are:

PLAN WORLD CAMPAIGN.

To promote the cause of Christian internationalism; to further the effort to establish a just and lasting peace among the nations of the earth; to help conserve the moral interests of the world, and to aid in solving the world's moral problems.

For two years nine international commissions of nine members each have been compiling reports on world conditions to be presented to and acted upon by the conference. The commissions and their chairmen are: Capital and labor, Dr. William Z. Batten, Philadelphia, Pa.; the Lord's Day, Dr. William M. Rochester, Toronto, Canada; intemperance, Dr. Edwin C. Dinwiddie, Washington, D. C.; social impurity, B. Samuel Steadwell, La Crosse, Wis.; the family, Judge William H. Thomas, Santa Ana, Cal.; immigration, Dr. Sydney L. Gulick, New York City; Mormonism, Mrs. Theodore Cory, London, Eng.; peace, Dr. Frederick Lynch, New York City; public education, Dr. R. C. Wylie, Pittsburgh, Pa.

FOREIGNERS TO SPEAK.

Many speakers, some of them foreigners, have accepted invitations to address the conference sessions here, including Joachim Alexopoulos, dean of the Greek church, Synod of the United States; Ygnacio Bonillas, Mexican Ambassador to the United States; Policarpo Bonilla, former President of Honduras; Capt. U. N. Bachman, special envoy of the United States Peace Commission to Russia; Dr. Calderon, Ambassador to the United States from Bolivia; Pierre Chotch, Minister of Justice of Montenegro; P. C. Chang, educator of Tientsin, China; Mlle. J. Merle D'Aubigne, organizer of French war relief agencies; Countess D'Ursel, lady-in-waiting to the Queen of Belgium, and Dr. Danjo Ebina, editor of Tokio.

ALL THE BOYS OUT ON ARMISTICE DAY.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 8.—More trained men will parade in California on Armistice Day, November 11, than ever before marched in the State at one time, Adjt.-Gen. Borree said today.

He urged for general observance throughout California of this occasion proclaimed by Gov. Stephens as a "welcome home" day, a legal holiday.

"I hope that every citizen will make a personal effort to greet as many service men as possible that day, give them a hearty shake of the hand and let them know California has a way of her own to say "welcome home' to the boys," Gen. Borree said.

At the office of the chairman of the welcome home celebration in each community golden scrolls will be given to relatives of the California men and women who lost their lives in the war. In Los Angeles Gov. Stephens personally will present the scrolls to relatives.

It is desired, Gen. Borree said, that all of the scrolls be distributed on November 11, and he has asked a general response from relatives of the service men who lost their lives in the war.

SELL STEAK AT 18 CENTS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 8.—To back up their charges that some of their employers were profiteering, striking butchers today opened a large retail shop and sold porterhouse steak at 18 cents a pound, veal chops at 16 cents a pound, and hamburger steak at 10 cents a pound. Other meats were sold at a corresponding low price, and the union butchers declare that, although the figures were from 50 to 75 per cent. below the prices charged by a majority of retail dealers, the strikers were making a fair profit on their sales. The union butchers are demanding an increase of $35 to $40 a week in their minimum weekly wage.

Armistice Day

One year ago, with a word over the wire, how the world went wild with joy that poured out everywhere in an overwhelming flood! Perhaps it was the greatest reaction from the greatest strain that we will ever see.

The chaotic world is not yet settled, but is rapidly subsiding. We have gone through much. We have passed many question marks; and most of them have been answered—right. We may rejoice in the swift triumphs of loyalty and freedom, law and order, in the news of the past days and months, as we did a year ago.

It is the first great anniversary for the American Legion; and our heart is with them now, as it was then. They will be our stabilizer and protection for a generation and more. We want them to go marching on in their organization of peace.

Tuesday will be a holiday. We presume we will have plenty of cars, but if you are going to rent one, it might be well to make reservation Monday.

ought Her Time Had About Come.

"I had suffered so long that I really thought I could live only a while longer," was the statement made by Mrs. F. M. Mueller, Eighteenth Place, Los Angeles, conversation with a Tanlac representative the other day.

I could just feel as fine always, have since Tanlac has restored health, I would be happy all life," continued Mrs. Mueller.

the past fifteen years I have been in a miserable, run-down condition, with little life about me, the time I went around feeling about ready to give up. My were in an awful condition, my appetite got so poor that I care whether I went to the I had rheumatism in my right and in my limbs and the pains so bad at times that I could stand it. I couldn't sleep but roll and toss from one side of bed to the other, and I got so and lost so much strength that to give up my housework entirely. I tried treatment after treatment, had several examinations including the X-ray, and finally underwent an operation, but in of all that, I got no better and I kept growing weaker all time.

had almost lost confidence in medicine, and when I began to take I had no idea whatever that would do me a particle of good. before I had finished half a bottle my husband and friends all began to tell me that I was looking better. Of course that encouraged me, from then on my improvement rapid, and now today you see the best of health. My appetite is simply wonderful and I can eat my meals, and the rheumatism disappeared entirely. My nerves in fine condition and I am sleeping soundly every night and am doing my own housework by myself. feel better than I have in years, my husband is so well pleased the way Tanlac has helped me he thinks as much of Tanlac as

BRIDE OF MAN HUSBAND SHOT.

Mrs. Dwyer Weds Two Years After Ranch Shooting.

Assailant Served Term for Wounding Brandstetter.

Deputies Who Found Woman Witnesses at Wedding.

Recalling a shooting affray of two years ago, Henry Brandstetter, formerly chief brewmaster for the Maier Brewing Company, and now a contractor and rancher of San Fernando, was married yesterday by Justice Brown to Mrs. Mary Dwyer, former wife of Erwin E. Dwyer, who shot Mr. Brandstetter.

The marriage is a pecular sequel to the shooting of Mr. Brandstetter on his ranch in Little Tejunga Canyon, on September 22, 1917. Dwyer afterwards served a term of eighteen months in San Quentin for assault with intent to commit murder.

Mr. and Mrs. Dwyer were separated at the time of the shooting. Her husband was accused of going to the Brandstetter ranch and waiting all night for Brandstetter. Mrs. Dwyer was working on the ranch, as was her brother.

As Brandstetter stepped out of his house, Dwyer shot him, inflicting a wound that nearly proved fatal. Dwyer was convicted and served his term, and Mrs. Dwyer disappeared for eight months.

Upon request of Mr. Brandstetter after his recovery, Deputy Sheriffs Fox and Nolan, who had investigated the case, found Mrs. Dwyer. Yesterday Mr. Brandstetter hunted up the deputies and informed them of the coming marriage. A license was obtained, Mr. Brandstetter giving his age as 49 and Mrs. Dwyer at 31. Then the deputies went with the couple to a local jewelry store, where a ring was purchased. They came back to the Courthouse and were married by Justice Brown.

Mr. and Mrs. Brandstetter left for San Diego on a honeymoon, after which they will return to their home in San Fernando.

Mother! Teach the Children Their Daily Health Duty

You can't be too insistent!

FEW children find pleasure in the things most vital to their physical comfort and health, so it rests with the watchful mother to see that they are done. The child will be grateful in after years.

Chief among the functions necessary to the upbuilding of the little body, so that it will not be a dyspeptic, constipated body when it matures, is elimination regularly every morning. If the mother will be insistent and allow nothing to interfere with it, it will soon become a habit, a daily routine that will not be forgotten throughout life.

There are times, however, when nature will not operate unaided. Then give Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin, and the headaches, the biliousness, the torpor will quickly disappear. It acts gently and without griping, and as it contains no narcotics and is pleasant to the taste, it may be given to infants. Thousands of families have been regulated to healthy maturity with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

A bottle can be bought at any drug store for 50c and $1. Those who already know its virtues buy the dollar size and consider it economical. In a large family there is always someone who would feel better for a dose of a good medicine like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

In spite of the fact that Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the largest selling liquid laxative in the world, there being over 6 million bottles sold each year, many who need its benefits have not yet used it. If you have not, send your name and address for a free trial bottle to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 511 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois.

AMNESIA PLEA FAILS IN AUTO FRAUD CASE.

Statements of Charles G. Loraine, convicted of defrauding a local automobile rental service out of a motor car, that he suffered from amnesia from November, 1918, until after his arrest last March, did not cover a long enough period, according to Judge Willis, who sentenced Loraine to San Quentin prison for from one to ten years.

The supposed period of amnesia covers only 1918 and 1919, it was pointed out by the court, while the report of Probation Officer Dodds shows that Loraine previously served two terms in the State prison at Huntsville, Pa.

Loraine, who was formerly a nurse in the psychopathic ward of the County Hospital, was arrested after officers had trailed him from Los Angeles to Martinez, Cal., where the car he drove was wrecked.

SEWER'S A PROBLEM.

City Council to be Asked to Speed North-side Job.

The Board of Public Works will ask the City Council tomorrow to instruct the City Engineer to prepare plans for sewers in the district north of Slauson avenue and west of Van Ness avenue, where some special problems are to be solved.

A portion of this district, in the vicinity of Sixth avenue and Fifty-second street, is low and as the general slope is to the north, the City Engineer recommends that a right of way be obtained for an intercepting sewer along the present north boundary of the city at the termini of the streets running northerly from Slauson avenue.

At present there are 375 houses in this district and the number is being rapidly increased. The City Engineer estimates that about eighteen months must elapse before the proposed sewers can be put into use, and it is deemed desirable to start proceedings at once.

A Home Made Gray Hair Remedy.

Gray, streaked or faded hair can be immediately made black, brown or light brown, whichever shade you desire, by the use of the following remedy that you can make at home:

Merely get a box of Orlex powder at any drug store. It costs very little and no extras to buy. Dissolve it in 4 oz. of distilled or rain water and comb it through the hair. Full directions for use and a $100.00 gold bond come in each box guaranteeing the user that Orlex powder does not contain silver, lead, zinc, sulphur, mercury, aniline, coaltar products or their derivatives.

It is safe, does not rub off, is not sticky or gummy and leaves the hair fluffy. It will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger.—[Advertisement.

WILL ACT TOMORROW ON SALARY INCREASE.

ORDINANCE TO BE RUSHED FOR PASSAGE BY COUNCIL AS TAX HEARINGS START.

The City Council tomorrow will discuss the ordinance amending the standardization ordinance for city employees, fixing the rate of increase in salaries for policemen and firemen. It is believed that the rules will be suspended and the ordinance placed directly upon its passage, instead of going over for one week, as is the general rule.

Tomorrow afternoon, at 1:30 o'clock, the first public hearing by the Council on the proposed new license tax ordinance, which is to be the medium for raising the required revenues for these increases, will be held. It is probable that there will be daily hearings until the new license ordinance is adopted.

Efficiency Director McQuiston, in discussing the proposed general increase of salaries of city employees, states that if all the employees are given increases in proportion to that proposed for the police and firemen, it will require an addition of $1,226,896 to the $4,973,906 now provided for personal services.

HUNT THEM FROM AIR.

Spying Out Bandits is Marine Aviator's Task in Island Republics.

Thrills are the daily fare of the adventurous Americans who are doing guard duty in the air for Uncle Sam in the turbulent island republics of Hayti and Santo Domingo, according to information given out yesterday at the Marine Corps recruiting office, 214 Central Building.

"We have all read a great deal lately about the activities of American aviators along the Mexican border," said Maj. Fegan, "but little is known of the equally exciting adventures of another group of aviators who are guarding our interests in the West Indies.

"In a way, the operations of the officers and men of the marine aviation forces in Haiti and Santo Domingo are without precedent in our history. These flyers are the 'eyes' of the marine expeditionary force now scattered through the jungles and over the mountains of the West Indian island occupied by the two tiny nations.

"So far as I know it is the first time that aviators have been used on so elaborate a scale for the suppression of bandits and so-called revolutionists. While the infantry, artillery and machine-gun units of the 'land marines' sit on the lid, their brothers of the air snoop around in the sky and spy out the hiding places of bandit gangs and revolutionary 'armies.'"

PATHS FOR PARK.

To Take Pedestrians Around Hills to Top of Mt. Lookout.

Marked changes are being made in Elysian Park since the return of E. R. Rees as foreman. Under his supervision new footpaths are being constructed on the first and second hills, and already about a mile of these new walks is being used. The new paths are being constructed on fifteen-foot contours, starting from the established paths above the Fremont Gate section, and winding around the hills, through trees and shrubbery, to the top of Mt. Lookout.

Eventually they will be extended to Vista Grande, thus giving pedestrians easy access to many beauty spots in this park that now are seldom visited.

BOOM NOW REACHES CITY ELECTRICIAN.

In line with other city departments that come in direct contact with the great expansion of building activities, City Electrician Manahan has asked the Board of Public Works for additional help in handling the new work of his office. He has asked for a transfer of $1385 to the electrical fund for the payment of salary for an additional inspector for the balance of the fiscal year. The request will go before the City Council tomorrow.

ROAD IMPROVEMENT URGED.

An appeal from the Glendale Chamber of Commerce, signed by John W. Usilton, president, and O. A. Lane, and filed with the City Clerk yesterday for presentation to the City Council tomorrow, urges speed in improving that portion of Brand boulevard connecting with the Ivanhoe bridge across the Los Angeles River. It is said this roadway is in such condition that travel on it is constantly decreasing, and that the purpose of the Council in providing the bridge is being defeated because of delay in permanent improvement of the highway.

PHYSICIANS WOULD SAFEGUARD PUBLIC.

At a meeting of physicians and surgeons held recently in Los Angeles, a society was organized, it was announced, to be known as the Southern California Society of Anesthetists. PIMPLY? WELL, DON'T BE

People Notice It. Drive Them Off with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints, and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take one or two nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 10c and [illegible]

RESERVATION TO PACT IS ADOPTED

Republican Leaders Sweep Aside Modifications.

Stubborn Fight to Prevent Tampering Unavailing.

Attacks on Wilson Resented in a Bitter Speech.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—A resolution purposing "to safeguard" the nation's right to withdraw from membership in the League of Nations was adopted by the Senate today with every Republican Senator and six Democrats voting for it or paired in its support.

Holding the whip-hand by a safe majority, the Republican leaders swept aside every suggested modification and carried the reservation through exactly as approved by the Foreign Relations Committee. Two Republican Senators of the mild reservation group led a stubborn fight to alter it, but after it had failed, voted for adoption.

The final count was 50 to 35 and pairs announcing for the absentees showed the Senate membership to be divided 55 to 41. Five Democrats, Senators Reed, Missouri; Gore, Oklahoma; Smith, Georgia; Walsh, Massachusetts, and Chamberlain, Oregon, voting in the affirmative, while Senator Shield, Democrat, Tennessee, was paired in favor of the reservation. The first of fourteen reservations proposed by the committee to carry out a programme which its sponsors say has been pledged a safe majority provides RESERVATION TEXT.

"The United States so understands and construes Article I that in case of notice of withdrawal from the League of Nations, as provided in said article, the United States shall be the sole judge as to whether all its international obligations and all its obligations under the said covenant have been fulfilled, and notice of withdrawal by the United States may be given by a concurrent resolution of the Congress of the United States."

Following is the vote in detail:

For adoption:

Republicans—Ball, Borah, Brandegee, Calder, Capper, Colt, Cummins, Curtis, Dillingham, Edge, Fall, Fernald, France, Gronna, Hale, Harding, Johnson of California; Jones of Washington; Kenyon, Keyes, Knox, La Follette, Lenroot, Lodge, McCormick, McCumber, McLean, McNary, Moses, Nelsen, New, Newberry, Norris, Page, Penrose, Phipps, Poindexter, Sherman, Smoot, Spencer, Sterling, Townsend, Wadsworth, Warren and Watson—45.

Democrats — Chamberlain, Gore, Reed, Smith of Georgia and Walsh, Massachusetts—5.

Total—50.

OPPOSITION VOTE.

Against:

Republicans—None.

Democrats — Ashurst, Culberson, Dial, Fletcher, Gay, Gerry, Harris, Harrison, Henderson, Hitchcock, Johnson of South Dakota; Jones of New Mexico; Kendrick, King, Kirby, McKellar, Myers, Nugent, Overman, Owen, Phelan, Pittman, Pomerene, Robinson, Sheppard, Smith of Arizona; Smith of Maryland; Smith of South Carolina; Swanson, Thomas, Trammel, Underwood, Walsh of Montana; Williams and Wolcott. Total—35.

The eleven Senators not voting were aligned as follows:

For adoption: Republicans — Elkins, Frelinghuysen, Kellogg and Sutherland, and Shields, Democrat, Tennessee.

Against: Democrats — Bankhead, Beckham, Martin, Ransdell, Simmons and Stanley.

The fight to alter the reservation centered on its concluding clause. The Democrats and Senators McCumber and Wilson of the mild reservation Republicans argued that the Executive should have a voice in deciding any question of withdrawal.

Three proposed amendments on the subject were rejected by majorities ranging from six to fifty.

ATTACKS RESENTED.

Senator Nelson proposed that a joint resolution instead of a concurrent resolution be stipulated for notice of withdrawal, so that signature of the President would be required. He declared "intense partisanship" had twisted the language of the reservation so as to "put a slight on President Wilson while he is on a sick bed, brought down by his hard work to re-establish peace."

Republican Leader Lodge retorted that "no motive of hostility" had influenced the framing of the reservation. Should the provision ever be invoked, he said, it was apt to be a Republican, and not a Democratic, President whose power was curtailed. Senators Nelson and McCumber alone, on the Republican side, voted for the motion, and it was defeated, 45 to 39.

Senator Walsh then proposed to strike out entirely the Congressional authorization. His motion was beaten, 49 to 37. A similar motion previously by Senator Thomas was withdrawn, Mr. Thomas saying he was sure it would fail.

The motion by Senator Gore to empower either the President or Congress to give notice of withdrawal was voted down 68 to 18, gaining scattered support from both sides of the chamber. Senator King moved to make the provision relative to judging obligations applicable to all the league members, but that was beaten 52 to 30.

PARTISANSHIP CHARGED.

Charges of partisanship frequently were exchanged during the day of debate which preceded the roll call, Senator Lenroot, another of the mild reservationists, making a pointed denial the Republicans had played politics.

He said he understood forty Democrats were ready to shape their attitude on the treaty by direction of the White House. Democratic Leader Hitchcock replied it would be just as true to say forty-nine Republicans were shaping their action to suit a Republican leader.

"Does the Senator mean to say," asked Senator Lenroot, "that a large number of Senators on that side of the aisle are not waiting to do what the President asks them to do?"

"I deny it," retorted Senator Hitchcock.

"That is, that question has not been raised and won't be raised."

NOW FOR ARTICLE X.

Today's voting brought the Senate to the crux of the whole reservation fight, the question of qualifying Article X of the covenant. The committee's reservation of the subject, virtually identical with one which the President had said he would regard as a rejection of the treaty, will come up Monday.

Throughout the day the "irreconcilable" foes of the treaty, whose attitude has caused much speculation among party leaders, held conferences over changes they will propose to Article X. They did not make known their decision, but Republican managers asserted confidence that opposition to the committee draft would not be carried to the point of voting against the reservation, should it come to a roll call unamended.

TO HOLD NIGHT SESSIONS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—Next week the Senate will hold night sessions, according to present plans, in order to expedite action on the ratification of the Versailles treaty. The most significant feature in today's vote on the first of the reservations was the voting of Senator Chamberlain of Oregon with the Republicans and his apparent desertion from the forty pledged to support the President through thick and thin. Whether Senator Chamberlain will vote with the Republicans on other reservations, he would not say at the close of the session, but his defection, if it be a permanenent one will not affecet the programme of Administration Leader Hitchcock.

One other spectacular feature of today's session was the denunciation by Senator Nelson of Minnesota of those Senators who are attempting to vent their spleen on the President and who have carried it so far as to prevent the occupant of that office, having any part in the decision to withdraw from the league. His speech was bitter and, while futile, in results showed plainly the animus of the majority Senators in attacking the treaty as one of personal hostility to the President.

DRUG LEAK STOPPED.

Chauffeur Arrested as Forger of Prescriptions for Morphine.

A search of six months by State narcotic inspectors for a man who had been forging medical prescriptions to secure drugs ended last night in the arrest of Roy Jackson, a chauffer, 37, years old, of 825 East Eighteenth street, in drug store at Fifth and Los Angeles streets.

The arrest was made by State Drug Inspector Luckenbach, who charged Jackson with having stolen 500 prescription blanks from Dr. Frank S. Byington, his former employer, who has offices in the Los Angeles Investment Building. Jackson is suspected of having forged doctors' names to about 300 of the prescription blanks and with having secured a large amount of morphine from downtown druggists.

He is held in the City Jail without bail on charges of violating the State narcotic act and suspicion of burglary. He denies the forgery charge, but admitted he was a partner of Monte Pearl, now serving six months for trying to use one of the forged prescriptions.

BOLSHEVIKI CLAIM IMPORTANT GAINS.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

LONDON, Nov. 8.—Occupation of a series of villages seventeen miles southwest of Peterhof (in the Petrograd district) is claimed in a Bolshevik communication received here by wireless.

In the direction of Yamburg, the Bolsheviki say they have advanced to Kikarino, west of Gatchina, but admit retirement to the right bank of the Duna River in the Polotsk region owing to enemy pressure.

PLANS TO AVERT COAL LACK IN WASHINGTON.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SEATTLE, Nov. 8.—Railroad Administration offices here today made preparations to relieve a threatened coal famine in eastern Washington.

The Northern Pacific Railroad, it was announced, will take care of the situation as far as it is able. The Northern Pacific owns the Northwestern Improvement Company mines, which supply a large part of Eastern Washington with coal.

Armistice Day Air Circus

It's Free to All

Tuesday, Nov. 11, 1919

Join us in the first annual celebration in honor of the signing of the Armistice—Tuesday, November 11, at 2 p. m.

Come out to de Mille Field and see the greatest exhibition of air stunts you ever witnessed.

Some of America's foremost Aviators will perform and there will be one or two of the De Haviland Planes equipped with Liberty Motors, identical with those great planes that crossed the continent in less than 25 hours.

World's Champion Daredevil

Diving head first out of an airplane at the height of 8000 feet is the thriller of the day. From that dizzy height E. Edward Burgess, the World's Champion Aeronautical Daredevil, will drop from an airplane with an army parachute.

Take a Ride in an Airplane

You'll be glad you did—it is the greatest experience—a pleasure and an education. Come out to our new field at the corner of Wilshire and Crescent—be our guest for the day—join us in celebration this big day—remember the exhibition is Free.

BEARS BEAT TROJANS BY ONE POINT

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

Somebody's highly trained intellect at U.S.C. slipped a cog in the second quarter yesterday. Otherwise the annual football game between the Southern University and California on Bovard Field would have ended in a dead heat with honors even.

As a result of this trouble in the mental machinery California won from the Cardinal and Gold, 14 to 13. Thus U.S.C. was left just one point shy of drawing with the topheavy favorites from the north, and the point was nowhere to be had. It had been tossed away on the wild, wild wind an hour and a half before and blown off into space.

To begin, not exactly at the beginning, but approximatdly thereabout, U.S.C. began doing things early which discounted the heavy, black, oleaginous pessimism of Coach Henderson, who always makes a death dive into the slough of despond just previous to every game.

Speaking technically, the University of Southern California team got away to a flying start. Twice in the first half some athlete jerseyed in rings of cardinal and gold snatched the spheroid out of the air and raced more than half the length of the field to touchdowns. The second of these touchdowns was followed by a failure to kick goal, and this omission cost U.S.C. the game. Otherwise, it would have been a drawn battle, which under the circumstances would have been tantamount to a victory for the southerners, who never were conceded a chance against the beefy Berkeleyans.

FRESH JAZZ.

The sight of that 13-to-0 score staring at them from the scoreboard seemed to put a lot of fresh jazz into the Blue and Gold gladiators, and they twice crossed the U.S.C. goal line, and exercised great care and skill on both occasions to toe the tricky pigskins between the goal posts. By conserving each of the points which may be tacked onto the tailend of a touchdown by scientific kicking, the northerners were able to bring home the bacon.

At no time was California's expected superiority in evidence. The visitors uncorked nothing new in the way of football. True, they repeatedly drilled their way down the field by direct assaults against the line, but they were impotent against the U.S.C. ends. Time and again their interference melted away or spent itself in vain against the wings of the Cardinal and Gold. California's first touchdown was achieved on a forward pass after the visitors had crashed their way over the line, only to be called back on a penalty. Their second touchdown came after a long aerial pass had placed the ball within two yards of the U.S.C. line, from which Wells, a warrior banded with blue and gold, bucked it across.

STILL YOUNG.

The game was still young when Simpson hurtled into the air, snatched a California forward pass and reached sixty yards through an almost even field. Simpson had hardly pulled down the ball when he broke from the pack and was down the field in a flash. One man, Rowe, stood between him and the line. Rowe charged diagonally across the field. Simpson, seeing that he would be cut off unless there should be a faulty tackle, lessened his speed, giving his converging interference, which was coming in from all sides, time to envelop him. Rowe was bowled over and trampled under the herd, and Simpson, shooting out into an open field, raced to his goal. "Swede" Evans, famed for his educated toes, kicked goal. Later, however, demands were made on the toes of Mr. Evans which they couldn't meet. His toes could be heard cracking under the strain, and defeat oozed in through the cracks.

In the second quarter somebody somewhere in the California line-up fumbled. Again a U.S.C. man was Johnny on the spot. This time it was Dean. The fozzle was a tall, aerial fumble—a sort of floater that left the ball hanging in mid-air until Dean could kick himself off the ground and embrace it. With the pigskin reposing against his heaving bosom, Dean streaked off down the field, hurdling the lime lines, and deposited himself on the safe side of the dead line. Dean was very much pursued, but all the pursuers except one were bowled over or otherwise eliminated by catapulting athletes with cardinal and gold trimmings. The lone pursuer, however, managed to maintain the pace and downed Dean near the sideline just after he had crossed the goal.

TOE EPISODE.

This brings us down to the toe episode. Instead of kicking out for position, U.S.C. elected to bring the ball out and try for the goal from a difficult angle. Apparently the home guards were afraid to let the ball pass through the many hands, probably fearing a muff. The angle was so abrupt that Evans had hardly anything to shoot at. It seemed the only way to get the ball between the posts was to drive it through endwise. No bunch of toes is skillful enough for that kind of shooting, and Evans missed fire. Thus vanished the possible glory of a tied score.

The California athletes then went at the business in hand with tri-vitalized energy. However, after they had accumulated their second touchdown some of this tri-vitalized energy began to ooze out of some of their best men, and at the finish the battle was swaying back and forth so bitterly that Andy Smith almost drank himself to death. Every time anything unusual happened Andy arose from his board seat, hopped over a board rail and buried his face in the water bucket. Either Andy had had a bad night or he had such a red-hot desire to win that it was necessary to cool off his interior. Mr. Smith was badly water-logged at the finish and could be heard splash loudly as he left the field.

MORE—

Mr. Smith caused a scandal by smoking cigarettes in public both before, during and after the game. How different from our southern coaches. Down here we have an hour of silent prayer before each college game, and the coaches, when they want to smoke a cigarette, go out under the bleachers and fumigate the feet of the dollar patrons.

THEY'RE HUMAN.

Among other things the game developed two scientific facts, to-wit: That Governors and college presidents are human. Gov. Stephens witnessed the game as the guest of President Bovard. When U.S.C. made its two touchdowns, President Bovard rose straight out of his seat, waved his hat with complete abandon and emitted a couple of approving blasts which could be easily distinguished above the surrounding enthusiasm.

As Mr. Stephens is Governor of all the people and football players of this great commonwealth, he was forced to maintain an attitude of friendly neutrality toward both factions, and possess himself in silence. The Governor found a vent for his energy by cracking peanuts and partaking of the kernals. Once the Governor was heard to ask where the movies might be. Plainly, there is not enough action in a mere football game for our strenuous Governor. He would have movies actors served alive on the side lines.

The usual amount of noise was draped about the combat. Much of the noise was organized. Rival rooting clubs barked at each other across the arena, and rival bands sought to submerge each other in billows of sound. Sweet songs were sung back and forth, and the bands several times played a duet without knowing it. California came south with a brass band of twenty-six (26) pieces, which is one of the largest collection of rare musical instruments owned by any university. However, the U.S.C. band, which maintains a large supply of musical implements, had the better of the argument, as it had the wind to its back. Where the wind blew directly into the funnels of the visiting musicians it wafted the glad notes of the U.S.C. players across the field in rollicking chunks.

Occasionally the organized disturbance was punctured by a lone, whistling shot of sound faired from the mouth of some zealot who arrived so late that he found himself frozen out of the inner circle of rooters. Such zealots as these sat alone, rooted alone and froze alone.

Both rooting clubs weer armed with paper pom-poms and waved these threateningly at one another. There is nothing gets the goat of a rooting club quicker than to have a rival rooting club wave paper pom-poms at it.

Everything considered, everybody had a high old time from the Governor down.

HOW SCORES WERE MADE.

Thrilling Football Clash Won by Narrow Margin of Kicked Goal.

BY PAUL LOWRY.

The University of Southern California eleven sprung the gridiron sensation of the season by holding the heavy California machine to a 14-to-13 score yesterday. A kicked goal was the Blue and Gold's margin of victory.

Had big "Swede" Evans not foozled an attempt at goal, following Charlie Dean's sixty-five-yard run to a touchdown in the second quarter, the score would have been a tie. The try was from a difficult angle on the very edge of the sidelines. Criticism has been hurled at the head of Walter McMillan, the Trojan quarter-back, for not electing to kick the ball out and thus secure a better angle.

FOUR OF FIVE.

Coach Henderson of U.S.C. stated after the game that McMillan preferred to trust to Evans's rather than his own toe. On Friday night the big "Swede" kicked four out of every five he attempted from the sidelines. But the chance yesterday was from the midst of a bunch of devil grass—something McMillan hadn't reckoned with in bringing the ball out.

The 9000 persons who thronged Bovard Field yesterday saw one of the greatest football fights that has ever been staged in Southern California. They saw exciting situations from the beginning of the game to the end, long runs to touchdowns through a scattered field, beautiful forward passes, the like of which have not been seen in the south this year, and tackling which even the grayest-bearded spectator has seldom seen equaled for fierceness.

To California goes the credit for winning the game, but the moral victory is U.S.C.'s. Doped to lose by at least thirty points the Trojans surprised even their warmest admirers. They fought their way to two touchdowns by the fire and energy they put into their play.

The "breaks," which Coach Henderson had mentioned as likely to turn the tide U.S.C.-ward, happened. The Trojans got them and scored their touchdowns by taking advantage of the situations created.

Simpson intercepted a forward pass from Rowe to Deeds in the first quarter, and ran the fastest fifty yards he has ever been credited with in his life.

LOTS OF PEP.

Early in the second quarter "Dunny" Wells, the Blue and Gold full-back, fumbled on a split buck. Dean, the Trojan right half, dashing in to back up the line, grabbed the ball on the run as it hovered in the air, and sprinted madly for the distant goal line. His only pursuers were neatly blocked by his team-mates. It was a sixty-five-yard run, the longest of the game. Evans missed the try, as has been recorded, and the score was 13 to 0.

Maddened by these two successive prods, the Bears had blood in their eyes. Evans kicked off and Cline came in twenty yards, Right Guard Townsend getting him by a long, diving tackle on the California thirty-yard line. The march to the U.S.C. goal line started—with "Dummy" Wells, the Blue and Gold full-back, doing most of the marching.

In fact it may be said that Wells infested very much of the afternoon's pastime from a California standpoint. Without this earnest young man's efforts to depend on, it is very doubtful if the Blue and Gold would have registered a victory. Wells carried the ball on about three out of every four plays. Brooks was occasionally dependable, but Well always so. Rowe was practically useless except as a forward passer, but he was dart at that.

LATERAL PASS.

With the ball on the Trojan one-yard line, and Coach Andy Smith praying, "Come on, California, play football," Wells plunged over, but the Bears were offside and a five-yard penalty was inflicted. Then occurred one of those beautiful lateral passes from Rowe to Cline, the latter receiving it behind the goal. It looked from the stands as if Leadingham might have blocked the oval had he tried. Cline had slipped in behind the U.S.C. half and was crouched on the ground waiting for the spheroid as it grazed Leadingham's fingers. Cline kicked the goal.

California's second touchdown came in the third quarter after Wells had hammered the ball to the 7-yard line, where U.S.C. held. Leadingham punted to the U.S.C. 35-yard line, and line plunges by Wells, Case and Rowe took it back ten yards. Another wonderful forward pass from Rowe to Cline for thirty yards put the ball on the 3-yard mark. Wells furnished six more points to the Blue and Gold total by bucking it over. Cline added one on a successful goal kick.

Thereafter in the third quarter and the fourth there were many plays of one kind and another. "Dummy" Wells, who had been crushing the Trojan line to bits, went out of the game on a hard tackle by Hester on a run-in of Evans's kickoff. Both men were laid out, but Hester stayed in. The Blue and Gold smashed the ball to the U.S.C. 1-yard line in the fourth quarter, but a 15-yard penalty for rough work in the line removed the oval from the danger zone.

Taken all in all, Coach Henderson's strategy was remarkable. The result of the game vindicated his every move.

Every man on the Trojan team is a hero. They all played remarkable ball. Their spirit was wonderful. Beale and Evans, husky Townsend, Capt. Fox, Eddie Simpson, Ends Toolen and Smith and the four backs played the game of their lives, as well as the men who substituted.

HEARNE WINS FIRST MONEY.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PHOENIX (Ariz.) Nov. 8.—Eddie Hearne, in his Chevrolet, this afternoon won first money of $2500 in the 100-mile nonstock, class D auto race at the State Fair. The time was 1h. 29m. 9s., declared by Referee Bullard the fastest 100 miles ever made on a circular dirt track. One mile was made in 49s. Roscoe Sarles, in a Frontenac, was second, less than five minutes later, and Cliff Durant, in a Chevrolet, came in a half-minute later. They won, respectively, $1500 and $1000. L. K. Nicholson, in a Hudson, was fourth. Valdo Stein's Oldfield Special was fifth, after repairing a broken gasoline line. C. G. Miller's Fiat went out early, and Toft and Armstrong failed to start.

The race was a fast and clean one throughout and unmarred by accident. There had been a threatening dash of rain early in the day, and the oiled turns later were declared to have been too slippery.

WHITTIER IS WALLOPED.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, Nov. 8.—The University of Redlands came back strong this afternoon and walloped Whittier to the tune of 20 to 7. Redlands had it on the Quakers from the jump-off and the score would have been even more one-sided but for the fact that the Redlands back field got into motion before the ball was passed two or three times and lost chances to score.

Redlands received the kick and Yount was sent around end for a good gain. After three more plays Yount was again given the ball and, circling end, went over for a touchdown, less than two minutes of play. Randall punted out to Loper and then kicked the goal.

LOT OF FIGHT.

In the second quarter Redlands again came back with a lot of fight and carried the ball to the 5-yard line. Making two yards at a time, the ball was pushed over with Randall, the quarter-back, on top of it. Randall failed to kick the goal. Redlands scored again in the second quarter when Whittier fumbled on her 30-yard line. Randall called a forward to Carpenter, who gathered in the ball with a clear field and ran thirty yards for a touchdown. Randall kicked the goal. Redlands had the ball on the 2-yard line with three downs to make it when the whistle blew for the half.

STANTON'S OXYS COP.

In a ragged game, streaked with flashes of real football, "Fox" Stanton's Occidental gridiron squad defeated the tanbark aggregation of Throop College by the score of 19 to 6, on Patterson Field yesterday afternoon.

The Oxy Tigers registered their initial score in the first five minutes of the game when Kirkpatrick, husky captain of the Bengal team, slid over the line on a buck off Throop's right tackle. The Eagle Rock aggregation scored again in the second period, when a series of short end runs and off-tackle bucks by Smith and Curtis, Occidental halves, put the ball over for the second touchdown. Curtis failed to convert the kick either time. Oxy's last score came in the third frame. Oxy received a Throop punt on the Mechanics' 30-yard line, and Curtis immediately afterwards made a thirty-five-yard run for a touchdown on a short end run round Throop's right end. The kick was converted. Score 19-0.

Throop failed to make a first down until the third quarter, when Siemon, substituting for Lavagnino at full, made eight yards through the Tiger line for the first time in the game.

Throughout the game Kirkpatrick proved a tower of strength to the Tigers. His work on the defensive again branded him as the best defensive full-back in the south. Curtis and Smith gained consistently when given the ball, while Walker and Powers played a man-sized game on the line. The line-up:

Throop.		Occidental.
Black	R.E.L.	Grube, Pitman
Robloff	R.T.L.	Fuller, Herr
Mullen	R.G.L.	Hitch
Hambrook	C.	Powers, Root

YALE SMOTHERS BROWN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW HAVEN (Ct.) Nov. 8.—Yale defeated Brown in a gruelling contest in Yale bowl today, 14 to 0. The game was featured by the brilliant offensive work of Kempton and Braden of the Blue back field and the deadly tacking of Williams and Albright, Brown ends. The Rhode Islanders threatened the Yale goal line but once, when they reached the 25-yard line in the first period, but were held for downs. One attempted field goal was blocked. The visitors' goal line was in danger three times, outside of the two Yale touchdowns. In the third period Brown held the Blue for downs on the 2-yard line.

Gloom settled on the Yale supporters in the first minute of the game when Kempton injured his shoulder and was taken from the line-up. He returned in the second period, but it was not until the third period that Yale displayed an attack which made victory appear certain. Kempton made a thirty-yard run and Braden pierced the Brown line for several good gains. A forward pass, Kempton to Neville, netted eight yards, and then Braden went over for the first touchdown.

Campbell, substitute half-back, carried the ball over the goal line for Yale's second touchdown at the start of the fourth period. Line-up and summary:

Score by periods:

Yale	0	0	7	7—14

Yale scoring: Touchdowns, Braden, Campbell (substitute for Webb.) Goals from touchdowns, Braden, 2. Referee, Evans, Williams. Umpire, Earl Williams, Pennsylvania. Field judge, Noble, Amherst.

CALIFORNIA FROSH COPS GAME 20 TO 12.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BERKELEY, Nov. 8.—The University of California freshmen defeated the University of Southern California first year eleven on California Feld today, 20 to 12. The California men proved good ground gainers both through the line and around the ends, while the Los Angeles team was unable to make headway through the Blue and Gold line.

Leahy of U.S.C. made the first score by running fifty yards to a touchdown. Hard line plunging and successful skirting of the ends took the ball across the field for the California freshmen's points.

STANFORD PUTS BEE ON THE SANTA CLARA.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

STANFORD UNIVERSITY (Cal.) Nov. 8.—Stanford defeated Santa Clara today, 13 to 0, in the fastest and hardest-fought game on Stanford Field this season. Coach Evans started the game with only four varsity men in the line-up on account of injuries to the others, but before the end he had the entire string playing, regardless of their condition.

Two long runs by Carroll and Patrick were responsible for Stanford's scores. Santa Clara played hard but was unable to withstand the Cardinals' speed. Stanford also showed well in defense, the line holding against the plunges of Baker and Noll, Santa Clara stars.

Carroll took the ball forty yards around the end in the second period to Santa Clara's twenty-yard line. Straight football carried Stanford to the one-yard line and Holt was shoved over for the first score. Templeton failed to kick goal.

FIERCE BATTLE ENDS IN A TIE.

Harvard and Princeton in Great Grid Melee.

Crimson Showing Disappoints Followers.

Result Almost Victory for Orange-Black.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PRINCETON (N. J.) Nov. 8.—Harvard and Princeton played a 10-to-10 tie game today in what was probably the most thrilling football contest ever staged in Palmer Memorial Stadium. The 30,000 or more spectators were in almost constant excitement as the teams fought through the game.

The Cambridge eleven, on the short end of the score almost all the way, staged a wonderful come-back and, playing desperately in the last minutes, staved off defeat and tied the score. There was a breathless moment when Church of Harvard carefully surveyed the angle he had to kick and then swiftly but surely sent the pigskin between the goal posts to give the fighting Crimson team its tenth point.

FANS DISAPPOINTED.

That Harvard failed to win was a keen disappointment to her followers. Rated as one of the most powerful elevens in the East, her supporters looked for victory over Princeton, who had lost her last two games.

That Harvard had an easy schedule prior to today's game was discounted by Crimson's enthusiasts, who pointed to the large scores the team has made as showing the power and drive behind her style of play.

Princeton was immensely pleased with the game. In fact, many of her followers consider the result a victory. With the poor record so far this season, thousands of her supporters did not look for success and her showing was a surprise.

Casey, who was used more than any other player on the Harvard team, stood out as the bright particular star for that eleven.

Line-up:

Princeton (10.)		Harvard (10.)

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN DIEGO, Nov. 8.—The date of the driving of the golden spike marking the completion of the San Diego and Arizona Railroad has been set for November 15. Announcement of the tariffs for the new road was made today.

A mammoth celebration for the opening of the road has been set for December first, and will continue five days. President John D. Spreckels will drive the spike marking completion of the new railroad.

Arrival of the first train over the route from El Centro will mark the beginning of the celebration in San Diego at about 10 o'clock on the morning of December 1. President Spreckels will be on the train in a special car accompanied by his guests, who will include many prominent railroad men. The Governors of Arizona and New Mexico also are expected to be aboard and be received at the Union Station here by Gov. Stephens of California.

Special effort is to be made to bring visitors from all of Southern California to the celebration. The Board of Supervisors of Los Angeles county has expressed good will in a resolution congratulating the people of San Diego and Imperial Valley upon completion of a new transcontinental railway route.

MEXICAN INJURED; MOTORIST ESCAPES.

FATE BEFRIENDS WOMAN WHOSE MACHINE HITS TELEPHONE POLE.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

POMONA, Nov. 8.—Probably fatal internal injuries to a Mexican, Carlos Baptista of Covina, the demolishment of the motorcycle on which he was riding, the wrecking of the automobile, driven by a woman, into which she crashed at high speed, and the cutting down of a telegraph pole by the latter machine as it swerved after the first crash, resulted from an accident near the Southern California Edison Company's power station on the Puente road between that place and Walnut.

In order to avoid publicity due to the accident, the woman driver of the car, after having her wrecked machine brought to the Spadra Garage, procured another machine there to continue her journey to Los Angeles, and took with her the owner's license card and both numbers of the machine. Hence her identity is unknown here, although her name was taken by county officers at the time a county ambulance took the injured man from the scene to the County Hospital in Los Angeles.

According to James E. Granger, proprietor of the Spadra Garage, the woman said that the Mexican turned out of a cross road at great speed, and crashed into her car diagonally, hitting the front wheel. He was thrown up onto the hood of the auto and catapulted off under the wheels, the car passing over his chest, breaking several ribs and inflicting grave internal injuries. In the effort to escape running over the Mexican, the woman swerved her car off the road and mowed down the telegraph pole, this second crash doing more damage to her machine than the collision with the motorcycle. Notwithstanding this double accident, the woman, who was accompanied by her husband, miraculously escaped without injury.

FIREMEN DROP LABOR CHARTER

Pasadena Department Withdraws from A.F. of L.

Crown City Joins in Celebration of Armistice Day.

Extra Trains Bring Many from Frozen East.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PASADENA, Nov. 8.—The Pasadena Firemen's union will give up its affiliation with the American Federation of Labor at a meeting to be held Monday, it is understood here today, following a conference held by a number of prominent citizens with representatives of the firemen. Their union will resolve itself into an association. Citizens have promised to aid the firemen in getting more pay and better working conditions. The citizens' committee is understood to have received assurances of co-operation in this from City Commissioner Harley F. Newell of the Department of Public Safety and Chief E. F. Coop of the department.

The chief complaints of the firemen have concerned their pay and the new regulations of Chief Coop which they regarded as an invasion of personal rights. The regulations of the chief practically prohibited the firemen from taking part in political movements when off duty.

ARCHITECTURAL HARMONY.

A movement toward architectural harmony in the downtown business buildings of Pasadena has been started by the Pasadena Board of Trade, which is endeavoring to secure the co-operation of all down-and builders. Rev. Ellis Bishop has been named to head a special committee to take up this movement for business architecture that does not jar the eyes or nerves. Probably conferences will be held at which efforts will be made to agree upon a general architectural scheme for the city's business district and which will be followed, in the main, in all future building operations.

It is believed by the proponents of the movement that a harmonious architectural scheme will be pleasing not only to Pasadenans but will make a most favorable impression upon tourists.

GENERAL CLOSING TUESDAY.

There will be a general observance of Armistice Day, November 11, as a holiday. At the recommendation of the local post of the American Legion practically all the business houses of the city have decided to remain closed all day in commemoration of the cessation of hostilities in the world war. The principal celebration of the day here will be a military ball under auspices of the American Legion Tuesday night.

MANY TOURISTS ARRIVE.

Many winter residents and tourists have arrived in Pasadena for the season this week. Today five transcontinental trains on the Santa Fe augmented the winter colony, the California Limited arriving in three sections and the Navajo train in two sections.

The march of the tourist season was marked tonight with the first dinner dance of the winter social season.

DECORATED BY FRANCE

Mrs. J. B. Seager, chairman of the French War Relief Committee of Pasadena, and Mrs. William J. Carr, wife of State Senator Carr, have been decorated by the Croix Rouge Francaise (the French Red Cross) for their services in behalf of France during the war and since. Mrs. Carr is the head of the Pasadena committee to all the fatherless children of France.

Accompanying the crosses and ribbons of the Croix Rouge, which arrived today, were letters to the Pasadena women from Gen. Pau president of the French Red Cross conveying the appreciation of that organization for what they did.

The Pasadena French relief organization made a big record of achievement.

PIER MUST BE REPAIRED.

Experts' Report Says Santa Monica will be Forced to Spend $75,000.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA MONICA, Nov. 7.—The voters of Santa Monica are faced with a prospect of voting $75,000 for pier repairs or lose the municipal pier for wrich they paid $100,000 ten years ago.

The report of engineers filed with the City Commissioners this morning gives a result of a series of complete investigations. Examination of the pier was made to ascertain the cause of the breaking away of one of the piles. This morning's report, signed by the firms of Quinton, Code & Hill, Olmstead & Gillilen, and Leeds & Barnard, states that there are only twenty sound piles out of 150, and that the pier is in such a condition that a strong storm would carry it away.

In giving cause for the sudden disintegration of the structure, the report states that the salt water has penetrated the porous and permeable concrete, of which the piles were fashioned. In addition the engineers contend that there is some faulty workmanship evident in the building of the piles, and that storms during the building probably helped to effect the present situation. During the last ten years it is said that new facts about the construction of piers have been learned. The report concludes with the statement that another structure built on the same general plan would cost $200,000, but that $75,000 would bring about needed repairs. Wooden creosoted piling and wooden struts, if installed in the near future, will save the pier, it is said by the engineers.

POMONA SCHOOL CENSUS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

POMONA, Nov. 8.—Covering the southern half of the city in a census of minors, in compliance with the State requirements, 100 teachers, today, finished half of the task here and next Friday they will canvass the remaining territory. The results of the first day have not yet been tabulated, but it is estimated that about 1300 school children were found in addition to the minors who are not attending school and that there are 2300 school children in the entire city.

An interesting phase of the work yesterday is contained in the fact that only two minor cripples were found on the entire south side.

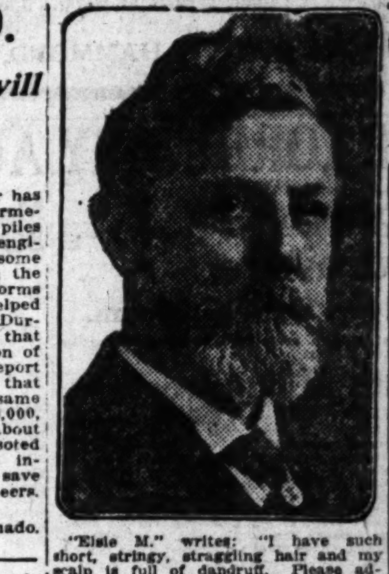
"Hotel del Coronado" will be very popular this season. Reserve at 517 Spring. H. F. Norcross, agt.—[Advertisement.

NEW SYSTEM OF FAT REDUCTION

Here's a new way for all fat people to laugh together at that old bugaboo—Obesity. The saying that "there is nothing new under the sun" does not now apply to fat people any more. Here is something new for them—a new sensation, a new pleasure, a new and graceful figure, easily found by anyone who is passing beyond the limits of slimness. Everyone has heard of the Marmola Prescription; that harmless combination of fat-defying elements discovered by one of our foremost physicians. Now, from the same high authority, there comes another idea—the idea of condensing these same pure, harmless ingredients into a pleasant little tablet. Taken after eating and at bed time, they help the stomach to dispose of all the fatty foods, converting them into compact, solid flesh, muscle and energy, without dieting or exercise. Marmola Prescription Tablets regulate the entire system—do for you what bodily exertion and self-denial cannot do, and the fat, once routed, is gone for good. You can prove all this at a trifling cost. Marmola Prescription Tablets are sold by all druggists or sent post paid by the Marmola Company, 864 Woodward avenue, Detroit, Mich. A large case—sufficient to bring lasting results—is but $1.

The DOCTOR'S ADVICE

by Dr. Lewis Baker



The questions answered below are general in character; the symptoms or diseases are given and the answers should apply to any case of similar nature.

Those wishing further advice, free, may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College Building, College-Ellwood streets, Dayton, Ohio., enclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply. Full name and address must be given, but only initials or fictitious name will be used in my answers. The remedies can be obtained at any well-stocked drug store. Any druggist can order of wholesaler.

"Elsie M." writes: "I have such short, stringy, straggling hair and my scalp is full of dandruff. Please advise what to do."

Answer: The best advice I can offer is simple. Get at a well-stocked drugstore a 4 oz. jar of plain yellow Minyol, directions accompanying, and use it regularly. It promotes a healthy, vigorous growth of hair and abates dandruff, itching scalp, lustreless hair and stops falling hair. If the hair is harsh and straggling it restores a soft, fluffy appearance, and brings back the intense natural color.

"Hazelle" says: "I would certainly appreciate something that would increase my weight and take away that languid feeling which I am subject to most of the time. My blood is weak and watery and my appetite is poor."

Answer: Your condition is very easily overcome if you will follow the directions given below. Ask your druggist for 3-grain Hypo-Nuclane Tablets and take according to the directions and your weight should increase. These tablets promote assimilation, absorption and aid digestion, transform the complexon and figure. They should be taken regularly for several months.

"D. E. G." writes: "My rheumatism is getting worse all the time. I am getting so stiff that it makes it very hard for me to get around."

Answer: Get at the drugstore the ingredients named, mix thoroughly and take a teaspoonful at mealtime and again at bedtime and you should soon be entirely relieved of that disagreeable disease, rheumatism. Purchase 2 drams of iodide of potassium; ½ oz. of wine of colchicum; 4 drams of sodium salicylate; 1 oz. comp. fluid Balmwort; 1 oz. comp. essence Cardiol, and 5 ozs. of syrup sarsaparilla. This has satisfied thousands.

"A. J. C." writes: "I have suffered with a chronic cough for almost a year, and catch a fresh cold every few weeks. Nothing the doctor gives me helps, so I write to you."

Answer: You need a thorough laxative cough syrup, one that not only relieves, but surely drives it from the system. The following regularly used will oust any curable cough or cold promptly: Obtain a 2¼ oz. bottle of essence of Mentho-laxene, mix it with a home-made sugar syrup or honey as per directions on bottle.

"Secretary" writes: "I have pains in my spine and frightful headache in back of head, fainting spells, twitching and trembling, nervousness, sleeplessness, loss of appetite and strength, and in fact am a 'has been,' when it comes to performing accustomed work and duties."

Answer: In all such cases the assimilative functions have not kept pace with waste functions and a powerful harmless tonic treatment is needed. I find three-grain Cadomene Tablets unexcelled and astonishingly beneficial in such cases and advise them for you.

"Weakness" writes: "Have been doctoring for kidney trouble and now want your advice. Frequent desire, is followed by burning pain and am very tender and sore over region of bladder. Also backache affects me dreadfully. Can hardly move when I awake in the morning. Weakness, too, is a symptom."

Answer: I think if you will take Balmwort Tablets regularly for a few weeks your kidneys and bladder will become normal and such symptoms vanish. This is unequalled for such complaints in my estimation.

"Poor H." writes: "My health is very poor on account of a long-standing constipation. I have to use pills or something all the time. Can you prescribe something to take that will cure chronic constipation?"

Answer: Constipation is probably the cause of more illness than any other thing. Most remedies only aggravate the trouble and never cure. I always prescribe 3-grain Sulpherb Tablets (not sulphur tablets,) and have found them most reliable and gradually curative. They act pleasantly and tone up the bowels and liver while purifying the blood.

COURT ORDERS MINERS BACK.

Declares Strike is Conspiracy Against Nation.

Holds that Lever Act is a Valid Law of Land.

Must Return to Jobs Before Armistice Day.

der cancelling the strike be submitted to him by 10 a.m., Tuesday, and issued by 6 p.m., that day.

DELAY PLAN DEFEATED.

The union men through their attorney, Henry Warrum, asked at the opening of court that the proceedings be postponed a week or ten days in the hope that meanwhile the strike might be settled. The government, through C. B. Ames, assistant Attorney-General, objected and the court thereupon took up the motion to dissolve the injunction. The government position was that the case was too important to admit delay.

The attorneys then agreed that in ruling upon the motion for dissolution of the restraining order the court might also rule on the question of issuing an injunction as prayed in the petition filed last week by the government.

Mr. Ames then offered affidavits from H. B. Spencer and Marion Underwood of the Railroad Administration at Washington as to diminishing coal supplies and diminishing financial returns through operation of the roads.

"Taken together these affidavits show," said Judge Ames, "that the government is operating the roads now at a loss which will increase with diminution of supplies for operation."

Counsel for the defense tried to object to the reading, but Judge Anderson halted them.

ATTORNEY REBUKED.

"These are equity proceedings and I am going to let the evidence in," said the court.

Judge Ames then read an affidavit from Thomas L. Lewis, secretary of the New River Coal Association of West Virginia. This document detailed the alleged violation of union contracts in that field. Similar affidavits were offered detailing alleged similar conditions in Eastern Kentucky and Tennessee.

Judge Ames then related the reestablishment of certain Fuel Administration orders.

"I believe these are all the facts we wish to present at this time," said Judge Ames.

The defense thereupon started to read its motion to dissolve in the form of an affidavit. The document asserted the legality of the strike call and that the sole object was to better the living conditions of the miners by increased wages and shorter working hours. This was explained as designed to combat the government assertion of a conspiracy to violate the Lever Food and Fuel Control Act.

DENY LEVER CONTROL.

The affidavit cited the statute forbidding issuance of injunctions in labor disputes unless based upon destruction of property of the complainant. The Lever act, it was argued, had become ineffective because the war had "ceased progressively," two of the circumstances cited in this connection being that the soldier members of the union had been discharged from government service and that the coal mines had been returned to their owners.

"The union members, therefore, believed that peace had come and that the United States was no longer at war," said the affidavit and it offered to show in court that by acts of the Federal administration the war powers relating to the fuel industry had been dissolved.

The motion also argued that the restraining order was calculated to destroy the right to strike and result in dissolution of the organization. It also asserted that the portion of the order restraining use of union funds confiscated property without due process of law.

This closed the evidence and Judge Anderson then agreed with the attorneys that an hour and a half be allowed each side for argument.

Judge Ames opened for the government.

Reading from the Congressional Record, he got into the case President Wilson's statement on the coal strike, reading it in full. President Lewis of the union, with thumbs thrust into the armholes of his waistcoat, listened to the Chief Executive's excoriation of the organization with nonchalant manner, emphasized by closed eyes and an occasional use of a pencil as a toothpick.

WILSON'S STATEMENT.

"The President states fact in that statement to the American people," said Judge Ames. "Because of a disagreement between the miners and operators of the central competitive field a strike has been ordered throughout the United States. And this, too, notwithstanding that in other fields there were in force contracts, which were negotiated independently of the central field.

"It is not for the defendants to decide what is the law in this case. In civilized countries such questions are left to the arbitrament of courts.

"The courts of this land have decided that the war is yet extant. The unions say it has ended. They thus oppose their employers, the courts and the government. It is assumed by the government, however, that the defendants acted in good faith, believing that their course was legal.

"Therefore, the civil, rather than the criminal, process has been invoked as a matter of fairness and common justice.

TIME TO SPEAK PLAINLY.

"As the President of the United States has said, the time has come for plain speaking. No organization may override the law. Otherwise there is successful revolution. And I do not believe the American people have reached the stage where such a course can be approved.

"The government contends that this strike is illegal in that it violates the Federal Fuel Control Act."

Replying to the contention that the war had "ceased progressively," Judge Ames said the Lever act provided that it would remain in force until peace was proclaimed, which he said has not been done.

He also denied that the Clayton act had any application to the present case. He said the provisions on strikes did not permit an unlawful act, and that section 20 of the act did not apply because this was not a case between employers and employees.

IS LAW SUPREME?

"We feel," said Judge Ames in concluding, "that there is nothing comparable with the importance of ascertaining whether the law of this court is supreme. When we reach the point there the supremacy of the law is challenged by any man or body of men, we have reached the point where the decay of the republic has set in."

Mr. Warrum, for the union, started with a flat statement that every decision in the country relating to strikes had averred the right of workmen to strike when unaccompanied by boycott or disorder. He read opinions to this effect, but Judge Anderson asked:

NO WORKERS PRESENT.

"How do these apply to these cases when there is not a single defendant in this court who works with his hands?"

The attorney said the injunction against the officers or agents of the miners was in effect an injunction against the miners. On this theory he was allowed to continue his argument.

"These defendants are not interlopers," he said. "They are the duly constituted representatives of the men, and the government's bill of complaint itself shows that the men themselves ordered the strike and directed their officers to carry that order into effect.

"It is further important that in the bill appears the fact that these very defendants were parties to the Washington wage agreement and recognized them as lawful agents. But now the government turns around and seeks to place in a position of interlopers these same agents when they carry out orders of their principal.

EVADING THE ISSUE.

"That is not the question before the court at all," said Judge Anderson. "The Lever act makes it an unlawful conspiracy for two or more persons to arrange to limit production of coal. That is perfectly apparent to me. Everybody knows that. You may discuss that, if you wish."

"But Your Honor has just said you are convinced the conspiracy exists," explained the attorney.

"Well, let's go on with the case as any other case," said the court.

"Certainly," rejoined Mr. Warrum. "Judge Evans has held that the war powers of the Lever act have expired and . . ."

"But I do not agree with Judge Evans," said Judge Anderson. "Congress had the right to say, and did say, that the Lever act should remain in force until a definite thing was done. That has not been done. So I hold that the Lever act is still in force.

TAKES FIRM STAND.

"I also hold that stopping work in coal mines restricts the production of fuel.

"I am going to hold that even two miners who work with their hands may not legally conspire to stop production of coal."

The court also upheld the assertion of the government that the Clayton act did not apply to this case.

The decision swung to the operator's attitude, and the judge remarked they were not in court; that he had only one side of the controversy before him.

"But bring them in," he said. "I will be willing to enjoin their illegal acts also."

The war condition of the Lever act and the status of independent service came up, leading Mr. Warrum to say:

"This is a case in equity, not a court-martial."

"I don't understand that remark, but I concede the fact," said Judge Anderson.

Further attempts to bring in the right of employees to quit work singly or in a body met with equal obstruction from the court.

"When Congress passed the Lever bill it made unlawful any conspiracy tending to decrease coal production. That is the law and that ends it."

Mr. Warrum sat down and Judge Anderson started a discussion of the Debs railroad case. He pointed out that the Supreme Court of the United States held the government had had a right to get an injunction preventing railroad tie-up.

"Now," he said, "the government controls the railroads and in using them to transport troops and mails can you assert that anyone has a right to stop the roads in these circumstances?"

ASSERTS "RIGHTS."

"I assert," said Warrum, "the right to strike for higher wages and to stop the roads if that result is an incident."

"You are wrong," said the court.

"I'm through," said Mr. Warrum.

William V. Rooker then tried vainly to discuss the Lever act, but the judge cut him short by holding formally that the act remains in force.

"Can I discuss the allegation of irreparable injury?" asked Mr. Rooker.

"Don't waste your time," said Judge Anderson. "I am going to hold that irreparable injury does exist in this case. Why, millions of dollars are being lost. What is the use in discussing this question on the Lever bill?"

BACK TO DEBS CASE.

Mr. Rooker agreed there was little. He then tried to show a difference between this case and the Debs case.

"I suggest you turn to the mandate that this strike order be rescinded," said Judge Anderson.

"I am going to issue that unless you persuade me otherwise."

Mr. Rooker agreed there was nothing more to be said, and Judge Anderson began his pronouncement.

"It is not a question for the court to say when this war ends," he said. "The Lever act is constitutional and in force and clearly prohibits the thing these men have done. The restraining order ought to be made a preliminary injunction and if the government has drawn one it may read it."

Judge Ames then read the injunction which affirmed the restraining order and also enjoined the defendants from continuing in effect the October 15 strike order. It commanded them to cancel the order and notify all members of local and district unions of the cancellation.

The union attorneys and President Lewis and Secretary Green retired to consult as to the proper time needed to issue the cancellation and agreed on November 11.

CALL TO LEADERS.

The union leaders are under orders to meet here Monday, draw up a cancellation of the strike order, submit it for Judge Anderson's approval by 10 a.m. Tuesday and have notice of it on the way to all local and district unions by 6 p.m. that day. Telegrams summoning district presidents and members of the executive board and the central competitive field scale committee to meet here Monday were dispatched a few hours after Judge Anderson's sweeping mandate was issued.

Union officials here would not comment upon the court action.

"Not a word," said John L. Lewis, acting president of the big organization, and his colleagues were even less communicative.

C. B. Ames, Assistant Attorney-General, who conducted the case for the government, also smiled, but more cheerfully than the union men, when asked for comment, and said:

"Attorneys for the union fought a losing fight from the start of the proceedings."

"The injunction, prepared by the Attorney-General's department in Washington, repeated the restraining order of October 31, which forbade the issuing of any message of "exhortation or encouragement" to the strikers, and also tied up the union's relief funds. It then provided the mandate for cancellation of the strike's call in the following language:

"And they (the defendants) are further enjoined from permitting the strike order issued on or about October 15, 1919, to the miners and mine workers in the bituminous coal fields of the United States to take effect on midnight of October 31, 1919, to longer remain in effect, commanding them to desist from aiding such strike by permitting said strike order to remain in effect, and commanding them to issue a withdrawal and cancellation of said strike order and communicate the same to district or local unions, committees and members of the International United Mine Workers of America, as fully and completely as the said strike order has been heretofore distributed and circulated to the said organizations, its member districts or local unions or any committee therefor."

If left to pursue its normal course, the injunction proceedings probably will rest until November 20. The defendants have until that date to file a formal answer, and when that time expires it is within the province of the government attorneys to ask that the temporary injunction issued today be made permanent.

It was pointed out by government officials that this was expected to result, inasmuch as Judge Anderson decided the issues in the case today.

Attorneys for the miners indicated that they will take the case to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in Chicago at the earliest possible date.

Such action, however, will not affect the injunction proceedings nor the government's plan to ask that the temporary injunction be made permanent on November 20. In the meanwhile, it is pointed out, the court's order to call off the strike must be carried out.

Jurist Who Sends Miners Back to Work.

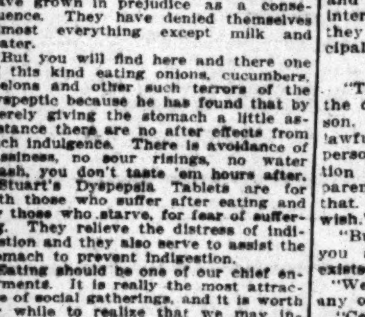
Judge Anderson.

He upholds the government's contention that the calling of the coal strike constituted sedition and the effort to tie up the railroads and bring suffering to the nation's people a conspiracy against the government and an open violation of the Lever Act.

Eat Buckwheats—Yes, You Can

Or Any Other Kind of Food Set Before You. But You Need a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet to Help the Stomach Move It Along.

Hot biscuits, buckwheats, rich cake and many other tempting foods are declared to be wholesome, digestible and nourishing under normal stomach conditions.



"These Hot Cakes Give More Enjoyment for Breakfast Than Anything Else Since I Discovered Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets."

Many people, however, once got the notion they couldn't eat such things and have grown in prejudice as a consequence. They have denied themselves almost everything except milk and water.

But you will find here and there one of this kind eating onions, cucumbers, melons and other such terrors of the dyspeptic because he has found that by merely giving the stomach a little assistance there are no after effects from such indulgence. There is avoidance of gassiness, no sour risings, no water brash, you don't taste 'em hours after.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are for both those who suffer after eating and for those who starve, for fear of suffering. They relieve the distress of indigestion and they also serve to assist the stomach to prevent indigestion.

Eating should be one of our chief enjoyments. It is really the most attractive of social gatherings, and it is worth our while to realize that we may indulge freely by exercising the precautionary measure of aiding the digestive process. Thus you may eat your hot biscuits, buckwheats, rich cake, onions, mince pie, sausage and so on provided you take a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet afterwards.

Do You Want to Make a Quick, Clean Profit on a Nominal Investment?

A definite, serious, immediate demand for houses exists in Los Angeles. Houses in all parts of the city are being sold as fast as they can be built. Many are sold before the roofs are on.
Right at this critical stage when property owners are taking advantage of the opportunity to get fancy prices for lots comes this

Corporation Dissolution Sale of Arlington Heights Terrace Lots at Less than Half Former Prices

We announced this sale for the first time last Sunday. One of the first men we took out, J. M. Cooper of 335 Marsh-Strong Bldg., a prominent architect and builder, bought twenty-two lots. The very next day he ordered lumber for ten attractive homes, which he is going to build at once to sell around $3000. Another buyer bought fifteen lots and is going to build on them. Other buyers bought from one to five lots each.

There were only 194 lots to start with. In order to close up the syndicate that owns them the prices are cut to

When The Day Is Over

When the household cares and the worries of everyday life have dragged you down, made you unhappy, and there is nothing in life but headache, backache and worry, turn to the right prescription, one gotten up by Dr. Pierce fifty years ago.

Everything growing out of the ground seems intended for some use in establishing natural conditions. Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., long since found out what is naturally best for women's diseases. He learned it all through treating thousands of cases. The result of his studies was a medicine called Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This medicine is made of vegetable growths that nature surely intended for backache, headache, weakening, bearing-down pains, irregularities, pelvic inflammations, and for the many disorders common to women in all ages of life. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is made of lady's slipper root, black cohosh root, unicorn root, blue cohosh root and Oregon grape root. Dr. Pierce knew, when he first made this standard medicine, that whiskey and morphine are injurious, and so he has always kept them out of his remedies. Women who take this standard remedy know that in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription they are getting a safe woman's tonic so good that druggists everywhere sell it, in liquid or tablet form.

You Can't Brush Or Wash Out Dandruff.

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.—[Advertisement.

Itching. Very Irritating. Cuticura Healed.

"My head began to itch, causing me to scratch, and a rash came. The itching was very irritating and my hair came out terribly, and became thin and dry. The breaking out caused disfigurement for the time being.

"Then I started to use Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and I used two cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment when I was healed." (Signed) Miss Nina Venetucci, R. R. 1, Box 112, Colorado Springs, Colo., Jan. 22, 1919.

Daily use of Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Talcum usually prevent skin troubles.

Soap 25c, Ointment 25 and 50c, Talcum 25c. Sold throughout the world. For sample each free address: "Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. H, Malden, Mass." Cuticura Soap shaves without mug.

ALL READY FOR ARMISTICE DAY.

Thousands Expected at Park for Victory Pageant.

Y.M.C.A. to Honor Overseas Workers at a Dinner.

Anniversary Celebration to be Widely Observed.

Arrangements to handle the crowds that are expected to fill Exposition Park Tuesday at the Armistice Day celebration were completed yesterday by the committees in charge. At least 50,000 persons will take part in the celebration at the park, it is estimated.

Tickets have been issued for the grand stand, reserved for women war workers. Pedestrians can enter the park at Hoover street, Exposition boulevard, Vermont avenue, or at the Figueroa, Thirty-ninth street or Leighton avenue entrances. Automobiles must enter through the Hoover street gates, from Santa Barbara avenue. They will be directed to the parking spaces by attendants.

Capt. Murray, acting chief of police, and Capt. Heath and Lieut. Adams of the University Police Station will be in command of 100 policemen assigned to the park. Two companies of the National Guard, under command of Capt. A. L. Anderson, will assist in preserving order among the crowds.

GOVERNOR TO SPEAK.

The judges' stand in front of the grand stand has been removed to make place for the speakers' platform from which Gov. Stephens and other speakers will deliver their addresses. Capt. W. K. Riddle, in the absense of Admiral Rodman, the highest ranking officer of the Pacific Fleet, will make the address to women war workers. Joseph Scott, an attorney, also will be among the speakers.

More than 250 men and women who served as Y.M.C.A. secretaries overseas and in American camps will be the guests of the Los Angeles and California State Y.M.C.A. at a dinner in the auditorium in the Central Y.M.C.A. Building. At least 500 persons are expected to attend.

Tributes to the dead, wounded and those who won citations will be offered at the dinner by Lloyd Darsie, E. H. Willisford and Carl S. Patton. Ten-minute talks by R. J. Burge, the Rev. Dr. J. Whitcomb Brougher and Dr. J. A. Francis will be the features of the speaking programme. D. E. Luther, general secretary of the Los Angeles Y.M.C.A.; C. C. Chapman, chairman of the California State Committee, and Harry O. Hill, State secretary of the organization, will make the addresses of welcome. Charles M. Conant, recently from overseas, will preside.

A half-day holiday will be observed by the Los Angeles postoffice on Tuesday. The parcel-post window will be open all day for the sale of stamps, but there will be only two deliveries of mail in the business district, and one in the residence part of the city.

FEDERAL OFFICES CLOSE.

The officials of the local Land Office received instructions yesterday to close the office all day Tuesday. Similar action will be taken by the internal revenue and customs offices. The office of the United States District Court clerk will be closed, and there will be a general suspension of public business at the local Federal Building.

The British War Veterans' Association will give a concert and dance on Tuesday evening at the Gamut Club. Among those who will contribute to the programme are Ruth Roland, Wanda Hawley, Peggy Hyland, Dorothy Lee, Jane Bryson, Margaret Houghton, Gertrude Stanley and Winter Hall. A number of prominent Britishers have been invited to attend.

Local Eagles are arranging a celebration of their own for the holiday at Selig Zoo, the programme including patriotic exercises, flag-raising and sports. Mayor Rolph of San Francisco has been invited to dedicate a specially made silk American flag. Attorney Thomas P. White will be the principal speaker. Superior Judge Goodcell of San Bernardino also will make an address.

The committee in charge expects a big crowd with delegations from as far north as Bakersfield and as far south as San Bernardino.

The Grand Army of the Republic and the Woman's Relief Corps will take prominent parts in the exercises at Exposition Park. Capt. Charles A. Phelps of Stanton Post will be in command of the G.A.R. guard of honor consisting of C. B. Wilson, National Senior Vice-Commander; Russell C. Martin, Department Commander of California and Nevada; R. Heffelfinger, Adjutant-General of the department, and the Woman's Relief Corps will be represented by Mrs. Swartout, President of Stanton W.R.C.; Mrs. Ford, President of Bartlett-Logan, W.R.C., and Mrs. Jennie S. McGahan of Stanton W.R.C., who will be flag bearer for the W.R.C.

AUTOIST RACES "STUNT" FLYER.

Speeding Here from Arizona on Wager to Take Part in Armistice Joys.

Cliff Durant, sportsman, clubman and wealthy automobile racer, telegraphed Mayor Snyder last night that he is racing Lieut. Locklear, a well-known stunt aviator, from Phoenix, Ariz., to Los Angeles to participate in the Armistice Day celebration at Exposition Park Tuesday afternoon. Durant stated he is wagering $5000 against Mr. Locklear's promise to give his plane-changing exhibition at the Exposition Park celebration Armistice Day. The winner should arrive at Chaplin Field late this afternoon.

READY FOR LEGION BALL.

The programme for the American Legion Ball at the Shrine Auditorium Tuesday night, at which the ranking army and navy officers in the West and the highest State, county and city officials will be present, was announced last night: It follows:

Gov. Stephens will open the ball with an address beginning at 8:15 p.m. His subject will be "Future Duties of ex-Service Men."

Victory pageant, with 200 girls in costumes, under direction of Mme. Matildita.

Ettore Campana, formerly of the Metropolitan Opera House, will sing the "Marseillaise." He will be followed by the Overseas Quartette.

Old glory tableau, after which Mme. Constance Falfour will sing the "Star Spangled Banner."

Dancing will begin at the conclusion of the tableau and song and at 11:30, Harry Lauder will sing.

Among the features will be a "Liquid Fire" dance and a "Trench" dance, American Legion innovations, in which scenic effects, wind, artillery fire, and other "war trimmings" will be introduced.

The Salvation Army, Red Cross, Y.M.C.A., and Knights of Columbus will hove dugouts lige the ones maintained by them in France, and will distribute, free of charge, the same "goodies" they gave the men in France.

Lieut.-Gen. Hunter K. Liggett, commander of the Department of the West and formerly in command of the Second Army overseas, Admiral Rodman, commander of the Pacific Fleet, Gov. Stephens, Mayor Snyder and members of the City Council and Board of Supervisors are expected to be present. The guests will be ushered in by twenty-five Chinese girls, in costume.

More than 5000 tickets already are in the hands of the public, and the officers of the American Legion feel certain the big auditorium will be filled. Final report on the tickets will be made at the American Legion Day luncheon at the Advertising Club of Los Angeles at the Alexandria, Tuesday at noon.

BRITISH HERE HONOR VICTORIA CROSS MAN.

SERGT. RAYFIELD'S BRAVERY AT ARRAS TOLD AT RECEPTION BY LOCAL SOCIETIES.

Sergt. W. L. Rayfield, the Los Angeles man who won the Victoria Cross for performing acts of extraordinary bravery under fire, was honored at a testimonial entertainment and dance last night by the associated British societies of Los Angeles, at the Ebell Club House. Sergt. Rayfield was escorted to the platform by an honor guard of returned British soldiers in uniform. He was welcomed by Chairman John Topham, and Attorney John S. Cooper read the citation signed by King George at the time the decoration was bestowed.

This citation sets forth that Sergt. Rayfield at Arras in September, 1918, alone rushed a German trench, bayoneting two and taking two prisoners. Later he killed an enemy sniper and then rushed another trench, single-handed and captured thirty Germans. Finally, he rescued a wounded comrade under fire.

The reading of the citation was received with great applause by the audience of more than 500. Sergt. Rayfield, who was also told that a generous purse had been raised for him in Los Angeles, in a modest speech, thanked his friends.

Brief speeches were made by Harry Gearing, president of the Canadian Club, and Charles Winsel, Belgian Vice-Consul. On the stage to greet Sergt. Rayfield, was S. A. Milborne of the Overseas Club, who enlisted him in Los Angeles for service with the Seventh Canadian Infantry Battalion.

WOODCRAFT LEAGUE OUTING ON TUESDAY.

Boys of the Los Angeles tribes of the Woodcraft league will celebrate Armistice Day in a hike up the Arroyo Seco to Dark Canyon to locate a permanent woodcraft camp in the Angeles National Reserve.

The party will be under the guidance of Harry C. James, local ranger for the Woodcraft League assisted by the following chiefs, Sam Parnall, of the Cahuenga tribe, Walter Hopps, El Camino Real tribe; Ctanley Pomeroy of the Shoshone tribe, and some representatives from the newly-organized tribe at Echo Park avenue school.

PUTS TEETH IN HIS PRICE BILL.

Jail for Profiteers Feature of Measure by Young.

Gives State Control of All Necessities of Life.

Stops Hoarding, Destruction and Limits Profits.

In an effort to lower the cost of living and to provide the State with some weapon with which to fight the profiteers and the associations who at present have control of the food supply here, Lyndol L. Young, special assistant United States District Attorney, yesterday drafted an outline of a law which is said by attorneys here to meet the demands of the people. The proposed law is to be introduced in the Legislature by Senator Brown if a special session is called by the Governor. Several organizations here are preparing resolutions and petitions to present to the chief executive of the State calling upon him to convene the Legislature to find some relief from present prices.

The law, as outlined by Mr. Young, assumes jurisdiction over all the necessities of life. This includes food, clothing, fuel and all articles used by the people of the State in sustaining life. All articles sold in the State must bear the cost and selling price of manufacturer, broker, wholesaler, jobber, retailer or any other agent that handles the goods. This will prevent excessive profits. Warehousing and holding in cold storage are regulated. Profits are limited.

PROHIBITS DESTRUCTION.

The destruction of food or other necessity is forbidden. This will stop the practice of some Japanese farmers in allowing food to rot so that the product will be in demand in the market and the price will be higher than under natural conditions. Monopolization is forbidden. Hoarding of any article is prohibited.

The present State Market Commission is hit and should the bill be passed, this department will be done away with. Under the plan of the commission associations are encouraged in order to keep the price of commodities up. Under the Young bill this is forbidden. The bill provides for the seizure of necessities held for more than one year. All persons connected with a business are held for the acts of that business if in violation of the law.

As a penalty, the bill provides a jail sentence of not more than six months for offenders. This eliminates the objection to the majority of laws, it is said, that permits a wealthy person or corporation to pay a fine only. The outline, as drawn by Mr. Young, reads:

"An act to protect the health and to promote the welfare and convenience of the people, by securing an adequate supply of necessaries, by making an equitable distribution of necessaries, by preventing waste and hoarding of necessaries, by preventing monopolies and combinations from fixing prices on necessaries and for other things.

"(1.) Necessaries shall include food, clothing, fuel, oil and every other article that is necessary to the sustaining of human life.

"(2.) It shall be unlawful for any person to either offer for sale or sell any necessaries, whether manufactured in this State or elsewhere, unless said necessaries or their containers bear in plain figures and in a conspicuous place, the cost and selling price of said necessaries of every person from the manufacturer to the retailer who deals in or handles the same.

"(3.) All necessaries held in cold storage or warehouses shall bear the date when same were placed in cold storage or warehouse. Necessaries shall not be held in cold storage or in warehouses for more than a reasonable length of time. In no case is this period to exceed one year.

"(4.) No person who deals in necessaries shall charge an unreasonable or excessive price for same or make an unreasonable or unjust profit the handling or dealing in or with any necessaries.

"(5.) It shall be unlawful for any person to willfully destroy any necessaries for the purpose of enchancing the price or restricting the supply thereof; or to restrict the distribution of necessaries or to hoard or attempt to monopolize any of said necessaries. (Mr. Young states that Section 4 of the Federal food law will be taken verbatim. This thoroughly covers all destruction or monopolization of necessaries and the transportation of same.)

"(6.) It shall be unlawful for any person to hoard any necessaries. Necessaries shall be deemed to be hoarded in the meaning of this act when they are held in greater quantity than any person, firm or corporation shall need to supply his or its normal demand, for a reasonable length of time. (This section will be taken from Section 6 of the Federal Food Act with the exception of the penalty and the exceptions. A penalty is provided in this bill and the exceptions in the Federal act are not deemed necessary in this State.)

"(7.) Provides procedure for seizing hoarded necessaries or necessaries held in cold storage or warehouses for longer period than one year. Also provides for the sale of seized necessaries if adjudged to be hoarded or held in cold storage or warehouses for longer period than provided therein.

"(8.) Any person who conspires or agrees with any other person to limit the facilities for transporting, producing or dealing in any necessaries or who restricts the supply or distribution of any necessaries or who limits the production of any necessaries to enhance the price thereof shall be guilty of violation of this act. (This section is taken from the Federal Food Act, Section 9.)

"(9.) Make it unlawful for any person to monopolize or control or to attempt to monopolize or control or to combine with any other person or persons to monopolize or control any necessaries or to fix the cost or selling price of any necessaries.

"(10.) Provides for a suit in the name of the people of California for an injunction to prevent the doing of any act herein made unlawful.

"(11.) Provides that it shall be the duty of the Attorney-General to institute civil proceedings and to prosecute criminal actions for violations of this act.

APPLIES TO ALL.

"(12.) Defines "person." This includes corporations and associations, individuals and partnerships, and every business or institution doing business in the State.

"(13.) Penalty. A jail sentence must be served, not to exceed six months, and a fine of not more than $1000 may be made."

Mr. Young believes that all dealers in necessaries should operate under State license, and the return from these licenses, with any fines that may be made, will provide funds for the Attorney-General to devote special attention to the enforcing of the law.

WOMEN, DRY CLEAN THINGS AT HOME

Save five to ten dollars quickly by dry cleaning everything in the home that would be ruined by soap and water — suits, coats, waists, silks, laces, gloves, shoes, furs, draperies, rugs—everything.

Place a gallon or more of gasoline in a dishpan or wash boiler, put in the things to be dry cleaned, then wash them with Solvite Soap. Shortly, everything comes out looking like new.

Nothing fades, shrinks or wrinkles. No pressing needed. Do not attempt to dry clean without Solvite Soap. This gasoline soap is the secret of all dry cleaning.

A package of Solvite soap containing directions for home dry cleaning costs little at any drug, grocery or department store. Dry clean outdoors or away from flame.—[Advertisement.

World Needs 2000 Ships.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 8.—The world needs 2000 ships of 10,000 tons each to bring its merchant marine up to the pre-war status, and the United States will do most of that shipbuilding, said Charles M. Schwab, head of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, here last night. He arrived from the East yesterday for a vacation trip.

FITZGERALD
Exclusive Mehlin Representative

A Perfectly Sustained Piano Tone is the result of the 17 distinctly new patented exclusive features of construction represented in the

Mehlin
PIANO

—every one of these 17 features is based on scientific acoustic principles. The ideas of tone production which were known only to master violin makers of centuries ago have been sought out and applied by the Mehlins in the perfection of their ideal instruments.

—these 17 features, including the graduated acoustic bridge, the patented scale, the patented grand fallboard, the free vibrating sounding board, etc., are said by musical authorities to constitute some of the most important improvements made in piano building for forty years.

The results of these improvements can only be fully appreciated by hearing the wondrously sweet singing tone of the Mehlin. This we most cordially invite you to do.

The Mehlin Piano may be had in either grand or inverted grand style. The Mehlin Inverted Grand, shaped like an upright, possesses all the superior tonal characteristics of the regular grand piano. The Mehlin may also be obtained in combination with the Angelus-Artrio Player action.

SORENESS, PAIN, ACHING JOINTS

Don't Suffer! Relief Comes the Moment You Rub With Old "St. Jacobs Liniment."

Don't stay sore, stiff and lame! Limber up! Rub soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Liniment" right in your aching muscles, joints and painful nerves. It's the quickest, surest pain relief on earth. It is absolutely harmless and doesn't burn the skin.

"St. Jacobs Liniment" conquers pain. It instantly takes away any ache, soreness and stiffness in the head, neck, shoulders, back, legs, arms, fingers or any part of the body—nothing like it. You simply pour a little in your hand and rub "where it hurts," and relief comes instantly. Don't stay crippled! Get a small trial bottle now from any drug store. It never disappoints—six gold medal awards.—[Advertisement.

JAPS BLAMELESS, IS FOOD WASTE REPORT.

COMMITTEE FINDS NO WILLFUL DESTRUCTION OF CROPS TO CONTROL PRICES.

There is no unnecessary waste of food products in Los Angeles for the purpose of controlling prices, according to the report of a special committee appointed from the Los Angeles County Farm Bureau and made public yesterday. It was charged some time ago that Japanese truckers were destroying large tracts of crops in an effort to keep prices up.

The committee found that there has been large waste, but that it was due to natural causes, particularly the transportation strike, the perishable nature of tomatoes and the lateness of the peach crop.

"Waste in the field," the report states, "seems to be assigned to crops appearing to be of value being plowed under because the season was practically over, a general oversupply and a large per cent. of the tomato crop having been affected with blossoms and rot or had become diseased, rendering it unfit for cannery use."

COSTS MORE NOW TO KEEP AUTOS RUNNING.

The high cost of living was recognized yesterday by the Board of Supervisors in granting employees who use their own automobiles in the county's service 5 cents a mile instead of 4 cents a mile for wear and tear on the cars. About 230 employees use their own cars in county work. The extra one cent a mile will cost the county about $300 a month.

NAVAL BRIGADE "LOST."

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—A "lost naval bridage" comprising 100 enlisted men in the Naval Aviation Corps was "discovered" today by William P. Larkin, overseas director of the Knights of Columbus. They are stationed at Montauk Point, N. Y., and because their service records have become lost, it is said they are being detained without hope of discharge until these documents can be located. Mr. Larkin said that the Knights are taking steps to have the men liberated.

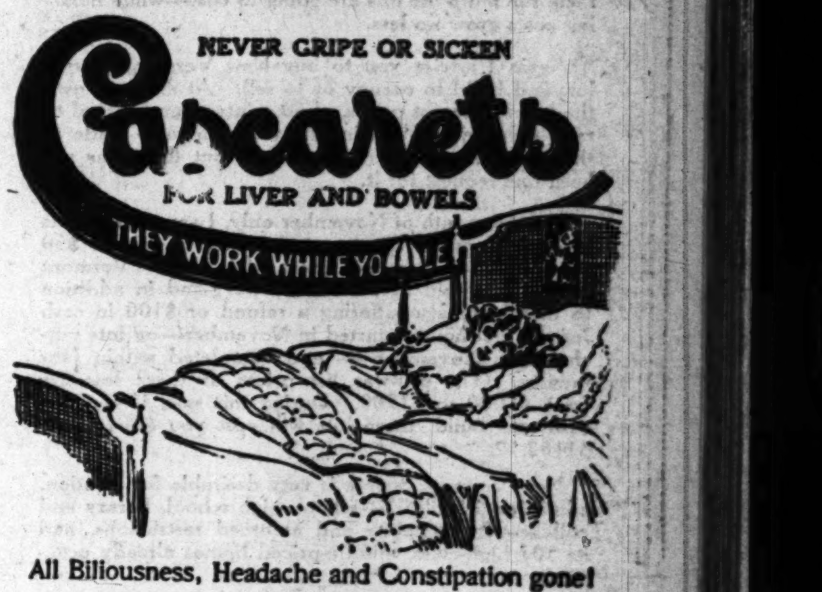
FOR LIVER AND BOWELS



THEY WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP

All Biliousness, Headache and Constipation gone!

INDIGESTION

"Pape's Diapepsin" instantly relieves Dyspepsia, or a Sour, Acid, Gassy Stomach—quick! Sure!

Food souring, gas, acidity! Wonder what upset your stomach? Well, don't bother. The moment you eat a tablet or two of Pape's Diapepsin all the lumps of indigestion pain, the sourness, heartburn and belching of gases, due to acidity, vanish—truly wonderful!

Millions of people know that it is needless to be bothered with indigestion, dyspepsia or a disordered stomach. A few tablets of Pape's Diapepsin neutralize acidity and give relief at once—no waiting! Buy a box of Pape's Diapepsin now! Don't stay miserable! Try to regulate your stomach so you can eat favorite foods without causing distress. The cost is so little. The benefits so great. You, too, will be a Diapepsin enthusiast afterwards.—[Advertisement.

HAD I TAKEN CALOMEL I WOULD BE SICK, WEAK NOW

But I took "Dodson's Liver Tone" Instead and Feel Grand—Calomel Nauseates—Salivates!

Every druggist in town has noticed a great falling off in the sale of Calomel. They all give the same reason. Dodson's Liver Tone is taking its place.

"Calomel is dangerous and people know it." Dodson's Liver Tone is personally guaranteed by every druggist who sells it. A large bottle doesn't cost very much, but if it fails to give easy relief in every case of liver sluggishness and constipation, just ask for your money back.

Dodson's Liver Tone is a pleasant-tasting, purely vegetable remedy, harmless to both children and adults. Take a spoonful at night and wake up feeling fine; no biliousness, sick headache, acid stomach or constipated bowels. It doesn't gripe or cause inconvenience all the next day like violent Calomel. Take a dose of Calomel today and tomorrow you will feel weak, sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day.—[Advertisement.

Sound Advice
On Building Homes
And Making Money

I have been in Los Angeles and vicinity thirty-two years. In recent years, the company, of which I was president, developed twenty-one hundred lots—80 city blocks—in this city. My judgment and appraisal, for others, of realty values and their probable future values, has been conservative enough to be accepted by the highest banking authorities.

Last winter and spring I advised the public to buy lots in New Vermont Square and build houses, either to occupy or to sell. All who accepted my advice made money.

Let us examine the situation now. Real estate has always been the last commodity to advance in price. It was bound to follow the general advance in prices. Its advance has now started; and in some cases in this city lots have advanced much after the skyrocketing manner of other necessities.

Los Angeles is already very short of homes. Many new permanent residents, without homes, are now here. A flood of them is on the way, and arriving daily. Facts and figures now in hand indicate that this fall and winter and next spring will see the greatest influx of homeseekers this city has known. In addition to those who are coming because of climate, many are being brought here by our new industries.

A comparison of the findings of investigating committees in the principal cities of the country shows a fixed belief that building costs will not come down much for several years—not until the man power, materials and production destroyed or consumed by the war are made up.

Los Angeles has got to have homes—there is no question about that—and the longer we wait to build them the more the lots are going to cost—while building costs grow no less.

Again I advise you to buy New Vermont Square lots and build to occupy or to sell. At any rate own the lots at present prices. Last winter I guaranteed to return the money within one year, on sales made at that time, if the buyer wanted it, but there has not been one request for it.

For the month of November only, I am offering lots in New Vermont Square at a saving to you of $50 to $206.63 under the prices which New Vermont Square lots sold at before the war; and in addition to that I am also offering a refund of $100 in cash for the first houses started in November—on lots purchased in November — and completed within four months. The pre-war list prices of these lots are from $1000 to $1500. During this sale, if you pay cash and build, these lots will cost you $802.50 to $1182.52.

New Vermont Square is very desirable for location, educational facilities—school, high school, library and college—its complete and enforced restrictions, and its 507 high-class, middle-priced homes already occupied.

New Vermont Square is between Western and Van Ness avenue and Santa Barbara (40th street) and Vernon avenues. Call at 1017 Van Nuys Building for map showing sold and unsold lots. Take Hawthorne or University-Dalton yellow cars on Spring, or Vermont-Georgia yellow car (marked Santa Barbara-Arlington) on Hill. Get off at Western. Five-cent fare.

POLITICS.

THE WATCHMAN.

TREND OF POLITICAL THOUGHT AND ACTION.

By the Sentry on His Beat.

"I would not accept a United States Senatorship if it was offered to me on a silver platter today. I will not be a candidate for the Senate. I am satisfied to be Governor of California."

This was the definite statement made by Gov. Stephens to several women at the Friday Morning Club three days ago. It is, so far as I have been able to learn, the first definite public statement the Governor has made on this line. In fact, he has been loudly silent on the subject for some weeks; although close personal friends of the Governor here have declared they had direct assurance that he would not be in the race for the Senatorial toga.

In this same connection, an interesting bit of political gossip during the past few days has been that Mrs. Clara Burdette, one of the most prominent club women of the United States, would be a candidate for the United States Senatorship, and that she would have the backing of the club women of Southern California in particular, with probably the undivided support of the central and northern portions of the State.

Mrs. Burdette says: "It is an absurd idea; I have no intention of becoming a candidate for the place."

Gov. Stephens having reached the point where he is ready to make such statements as that at the Friday Morning Club, it is probable he will be issuing a public announcement on the subject soon; and that this will open the way for the friends of E. A. Meserve to get into definite action on his behalf. Mr. Meserve has already stated, through the newspapers, that his candidacy for the Senate depended entirely on whether or not Gov. Stephens was to be in the field.

Demand Still Insistent.

The demand for anti-Japanese legislation is still an insistent one, regardless of the fact that the Governor refused to reconvene the State Legislature to consider such legislation after it had acted on woman suffrage. From all sections of the State come expression of newspapers as to the necessity for action. While there is general agreement on that, the wisdom of action before affairs of world-wide importance are more nearly settled is an open question. The time will come, however, when the Japanese question must receive attention—and that is likely to be before the next regular session of the State Legislature, if present expression of sentiment may be taken as a criterion.

San Francisco Election.

James Rolph goes back as Mayor of San Francisco with a plurality over Eugene Schmitz of 27,587. Schmitz did not carry a single Assembly District, and polled only about 1000 more votes than he did in his last race for the Board of Supervisors. Matthew Brady defeated Charles M. Fickert by about 6000 votes for District Attorney. San Francisco did well to defeat Schimtz, but it appears to many Southlanders that Fickert will deserve re-election. Brady, however, has a good record as a lawyer, civil service commissioner and police judge.

Who'll Be "It?"

Gov. Stephens's visit here during the past few days has given opportunity for friends of the candidates for appointment to the State Board of Equalization to press their claims. From all I can learn, the choice still lies between Dr. Frederick C. Langdon, now a member of the City Council, and H. C. Cattell of Pasadena. Close friends of Dr. Langdon feel certain he will be named for the place.

This, of course, would precipitate an immediate scramble for Dr. Langdon's seat in the City Council, but I'm pretty safe in making the guess that if it comes to this, Ed J. Delorey will be the man selected by the Council to fill the vacancy.

Appointments in Prospect.

Mayor Snyder is now considering available material for one vacancy on the Fire Commission—caused by the welcome resignation of Francis Drake, ultra-radical labor unionite—and other places on commissions where terms will expire on the first of next January.

That the Mayor will seek to secure the services of a broad-gauge, successful business man on the Fire Commission, to work with A. C. Denman, Jr., the remaining commissioners, is a foregone conclusion. Those who keep watch on city politics are interested in the question of what will develop in regard to other appointments that will be possible after the first of the new year.

Here's the list of those whose terms expire on January 1: Jack Smith, Municipal Art Commission; J. Wiseman MacDonald, Civil Service Commission; Mrs. F. M. Harmon, Library Board; J. Josiah Evans Cowles, Playground Commission; Owen McAleer, Board of Public Works; R. F. Del Valle, Board of Public Service Commissioners; J. Joseph Coyne and Mrs. Julia Kaufman, Social Service Commission; N. T. Powell, city treasurer.

The Mayor has announced that he will reappoint Mr. Powell in recognition of his able services in the office of the city treasurer. The report is current that Martin Marsh is slated for a place on the Board of Public Works and that former Senator Del Valle will be reappointed to the Public Service Board, where he has served for years, much of the time as its president. It is probable also that D. Joseph Coyne will be reappointed to the Social Service Commission, and there is also much likelihood of the reappointment of Mr. MacDonald, Mrs. Harmon and Dr Cowles.

Ellis is Out.

That was a pretty squabble that has been agitating the State Reclamation Board and that has resulted in Gov. Stephens removing therefrom W. T. Ellis of Marysville. Ellis made charges of incompetency and extravagance against Melville Dozier, Jr., engineer for the reclamation service, but at a public hearing the board failed to sustain these charges. The other members of the board appealed to Gov. Stephens to remove Ellis and prompt action followed.

Higgins is Selected.

Shally J. Higgins has been selected by the City Council of San Diego for City Attorney, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of T. B. Cosgrove. Mr. Higgins served as deputy for six years in this office. There has been a controversy in San Diego as to whether the Mayor or the City Council had the right to make this appointment, but the Council won out. Don M. Stewart becomes a member of the City Council, filling the vacancy created by the death of Beacher Sterne.

They're After Judges.

From the local union labor camp comes the word that a card index by precincts is being worked out, listing all the union labor voters of Los Angeles, and that the claim is made the union members and their direct dependents will have approximately 80,000 votes. Based on previous estimates from this source one can safely divide this by three to get a comparatively correct figure.

But, wherever, voting strength may be developed, it is to be directed at the next election against every Superior Court judge who has granted an anti-union labor injunction, according to a decision that has been reached by the Central Council of Labor.

If a court injunction prevents you from picketing, destroying property or making personal attacks on independent workmen, then with your ballot swat the judge who issued the injunction—that's the dope from Labor Temple.

Headless University.

Close on to a year has passed without the regents of the State University having selected a successor to Benjamin Ide Wheeler, who resigned the presidency of this great institution. The place is by no means a political one, in the generally accepted sense of the term, but there is more or less political pressure brought to bear in the consideration of possible material for this high office.

Ralph P. Merritt, who has been connected with the administration of the university since 1912, and who made a brilliant record in his work as State Food Administrator, has been one of the prominent figures considered, but he has issued a statement in which he emphatically demands that he be not discussed in this connection, and that the office of Controller, which he now holds, offers him the field of opportunity, which he desires.

Dr. E. C. Moore, head of the Los Angeles branch of the State University, has been mentioned for the presidency, but he declares he has troubles enough in the place he now fills.

IF BACKACHY OR KIDNEYS BOTHER

Eat Less Meat, Also Take Glass of Salts Before Eating Breakfast.

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad.

Eat less meat, drink lots of water; also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.—[Advertisement.

HEREFORDS AVERAGE $711.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 8.—An average of $711 was realized yesterday for thirty-five registered Hereford cattle auctioned at the California International Live-stock Show under auspices of the Pacific Coast Hereford Breeders' Association.

For cows the average was $748 and for bulls $547. The sale was conducted by C. L. Hughes of Sacramento, general manager of the California Breeders' Sales and Pedigree Company.

William Briggs of Dixon, a newcomer in the breeding of Hereford cattle in California, was the heavy buyer of high priced stock. He paid $3650 for the top female, the young cow Miss Dale, and two heifers.

The top bull of the sale was California Prince Donald, consigned by J. A. Bunting of Mission, San Jose, and sold to the La Honda Stock Farm of La Honda for $200.

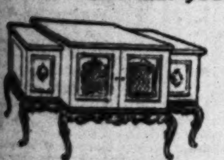
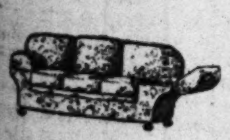
The Unusual in Musical Things at Richardson's

It is the unusualness of an article that gives as much pleasure as its use, providing it be practical and it is only such musical things as are unusual and practical that you'll find at Richardson's.



This Grafonola of Queen Anne Period Cabinet design — a match for the finest furniture in the finest home — its price is $1250.00.

And other styles of Grafonolas in all sizes and finishes—with double disc records in complete catalog.



Imagine a Phonograph concealed within a luxurious Davenport—Here it is—the Davaphone—a sweet-toned instrument that plays all records.

The prices on Davaphones run from $350 to $400, depending upon your choice of Tapestry—that is a feature—select your own covering.

And the new way to select Records—hear them — play them yourself on the "Console" — no one to bother you—just as in your own home.

Sheet Music and Bubble Books with nursery rhymes on Records for the grown-ups of tomorrow.

SERVE, LEARN AND EARN NOW.

Educational Advantages are Offered by the Army.

Knights of Columbus Also Assisting in the Work.

Enlisted Man Studies Trade and Qualifies as Expert.

In accordance with instructions issued by the War Department, many vocational training schools are being established by the army, so that enlisted men may receive educational training in the science or industry that interests them.

The general policy, the War Department states, necessary includes giving adequate and immediate opportunity for the enlisted men of the army to study those sciences, trades and professions which will make them better soldiers.

One prominent army officer, speaking of the education of the enlisted men in the army said: "The day of the 'common soldier' is done for. Today enlisted men in the army, from the private up, must be trained men, they must understand the reason for and why, of everything, and the science of war requires that the fighting men be experts in their line."

At each place where the training of soldiers is being carried on, the first year's work is practical, so far as it concerns direct results, and creative and experimental in so far as it concerns the methods followed, standards of training and programme of instructions.

While the training is being given primarily to make better soldiers, more intelligent men, those who are given the opportunity to study the higher branches of the different vocations will find themselves well equipped with a trade or a profession when their period of soldiering is at an end, army recruiting officers pointed out yesterday.

IN SIGNAL CORPS.

Particularly is this true of the Signal Corps, where the enlisted men are taught radio telegraphy, Morse telegraphy, telephony, motion photography, still photography, meterology, optical instrument repairing, care and use of electric engines and gasoline engines, storage batteriecs, repair and manufacture of automobiles and all of the different branches connected with electricity.

Applicants for the Signal Corps must have a common school education or better. If their education is advanced promotion, as a result, will be more rapid, but the opportunity to study is open to all enlisted men. In fact, the study of telegraphy, and telephony, the installation and repair to telephones; and inside and outside wiring, is absolutely essential.

In the artillery branch the enlisted men are taught many subjects which fit them for positions in civilian life.

Newly-enlisted men are now being sent direct to schools. On arrival at the school, they are given an opportunity to observe the work, and if they see some particular branch of army work which they prefer they are allowed to enter a class studying this subject, as the army has learned that men learn those things in which they are interested faster than they do a subject which is objectionable.

While the several branches of the army which require technical experts are teaching the subjects required of the experts, the general plan throughout the army is to elevate the education of the enlisted men, and large industrial concerns are eager to employ those men who have been given the government vocational training, it is pointed out.

An instance is told of a sergeant in the Coast Artillery Corps, trained at a government vocational training school, who afterward continued the study of steel and armor-plate and became such an authority on these subjects that he obtained a position with the United States Steel Corporation which paid him $25,000 a year.

With the new army pay scale, however, good positions are offered all trained men who desire to remain in the service, and the salary paid them is generally better than they would get from civilian corporations, when the allowances are considered.

These vocational training camps are now in operation, and the local recruiting office is daily enlisting men for the different branches of the service where special vocational training may be received.

ALSO SCHOLARSHIPS.

At Paris Island the Knights of Columbus offer many educational courses to Marine Corps recruits. The post school is a gift of the Knights of Columbus to the enlisted men of the Marine Corps Barracks and Recruit Depot at Paris Island. This is a free school; all men of the Marine Corps are welcome and everything is free. All come, and everything is free, including supplies and books. This school was opened recently.

Enlisted men may choose any of the following courses of study: Drafing, mathematics, mechanical drawing, mechanics, motor transports, complete business courses, modern languages, practical education, general high school, gas engineering, electrical engineering, civil engineering, science, psychology, literature, writing, Palmer system; law, tool-making, music, telegraphy radio.

More instructors will be added as the needs of this school require it.

The Knights of Columbus, in addition, are offering 100 free scholarships to ex-service marines in fifty of the leading universities of the country.

Cured Her Fits.

Mrs. Paul Gram, residing at 916 Fourth street, Milwaukee, Wis., recently gave out the following statement "I had suffered with fits (epilepsy) for over fourteen years. Doctors and medicine did me no good. It seemed that I was beyond all hope of relief when at last I secured a preparation that cured me sound and well. Over ten years have passed and the attacks have not returned. I wish everyone who suffers from this terrible disease would write R. P. N. Lepso, 94 Island avenue, Milwaukee, Wis., and ask for a bottle of the same kind of medicine which he gave me. He has generously promised to send it postpaid, free, to anyone who writes him."—[Advertisement.

NOW TAKING ORDERS

FOR CUSTOM-TAILORED CLOTHES

AT OUR TEMPORARY HOME

WE HAD HOPED to formally open our new store at 504 South Broadway this week but the many details of appointment and furnishing, which will make this tailoring shop one of the most beautiful in the West, have taken longer than we anticipated. When completed, it will be a perfect expression of the craftsmanship which has made the House of Everett the highest attainment of the tailoring art, but it will not be completed for several weeks.

MEANWHILE the comprehensive selection of domestic and foreign materials intended for our formal opening display have arrived and since the season is advancing we have opened temporary quarters at 208 Citizen's National Bank Building

HERE we will take orders for custom-tailored clothes embodying the best of New York and London style decrees and Everett quality craftsmanship at the Everett price of

THE HOUSE OF EVERETT maintains a style and quality standard exclusively its own. There is no standard higher.

BACK FROM FRANCE.

Lieut.-Col. McKnight Returns After Long Service Abroad.

After more than two years war service abroad Lieut.-Col. James S. McKnight, former Assemblyman, has returned to Los Angeles wearing the Serbian White Eagle, a decoration conferred on him for relief in Europe since the signing of the armistice. Lieut.-Col. McKnight has been in uniform almost continuously for more than four years, counting service on the border with the old Seventh Regiment.

He was a major in the regiment when it was called into service in 1917. He was stationed at Camp Kearny and left there on an assignment as instructor at the army school of the line at Langres, France. Later he went into the field with the One Hundred and Sixtieth Regiment, formerly California's Seventh Regiment, and was in the Meuse-Argonne battle.

After the armistice was signed he worked with the American Relief Administration under Herbert Hoover. He was recommended in France for the Legion of Honor. He expects to practice law in Los Angeles.

PROTEST FROM JURY.

Shabby Court Quarters Criticised; Statement Sent to Council.

Seeking to improve the condition of his court rooms, which he says are sadly in need of repairs, Police Judge Crawford, sent to the City Council yesterday a statement of conditions, made by the members of a jury.

The statement declares the court rooms are greatly delapidated, the walls need tinting, the rug in the chambers is shabby, the toilets unsanitary, and the window shades torn and faded. The jurors recommended that conditions be immediately improved, for the benefit of litigants, witnesses, jurors and judge.

THE WEATHER.
[Official Report.]

LOCAL OFFICE, U. S. WEATHER BUREAU, Los Angeles, Nov. 8. — [Reported by H. B. Hersey, Meteorologist.] At 5 o'clock a.m. the barometer registered 29.89; at 5 p.m., 29.97. Thermometer for the corresponding hours showed 50 deg. and 61 deg. Relative humidity, 5 a.m., 60 per cent.; 5 p.m., 20 per cent. Wind 5 a.m., northwest, velocity 14 miles; 5 p.m., northwest, velocity 10 miles. Highest temperature, 66 deg.; lowest, 49 deg. Rainfall for season 1.85 inches; last season to date, .70 of an inch. Barometer reduced to sea level.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.—The depression central yesterday morning in Utah has moved slowly to the southeast and now covers Western Colorado, New Mexico, Eastern Utah and Arizona. A strong field of high pressure has moved in over Montana, causing colder weather over the Pacific Slope and Rocky Mountains. Light rain has fallen during the past twenty-four hours on the Middle and North Pacific Coast, and snow at several stations in the Rocky Mountain country. Fair weather will continue in this vicinity Sunday. Light frost is probable early in the morning in exposed places.

The wind at the surface was southwesterly yesterday morning, but shifted to westerly at 600 feet elevation. At 1500 feet the wind shifted to northwesterly, and maintained that direction to the limit of observations which was 12,000 feet. A moderate breeze was blowing up to 2000 feet, being 20 miles an hour. From the latter elevation to 4000 feet, the velocity was light. Above 4000 feet, the wind increased rapidly and a gale was blowing above 7500 feet, the maximum velocity of 64 miles per hour being recorded at 12,000 feet elevation.

ORCHARD REPORTS.—Minimum and maximum temperatures from the orchards, reported yesterday to the Los Angeles office of the U. S. Weather Bureau, were as follows:

MIGHTIEST TELESCOPE MAKES GOOD HERE.

Mt. Wilson Observatory Director Announces Brilliant Success of the Giant Reflector that Sees Millions of New Stars; the Moon's Finest Photos are Taken as Four-Hundred-Mile "Close-ups."

Since the very first telescope made by man peered feebly into the mysteries of the heavens, perhaps no single event in the history of astronomy has held more interest for scientists and laymen alike than the accompanying announcement by Dr. George E. Hale, director of the Mt. Wilson Observatory, that the new 100-inch reflector on Mt. Wilson, by far the greatest and most powerful telescope in the world, is an unqualified success. Of scarcely less interest is the largest scale and clearest photograph ever made of the moon, produced with the giant telescope and reproduced in the rotogravure section of this issue of The Times.

Mechanical perfection and superb atmospheric conditions assure that the 100-inch telescope will pierce millions of miles into space that man has never seen before, will lead to the discovery of perhaps 100,000,000 stars now unknown and will possibly yield up that most fascinating of all secrets—the organization of the boundless universe in which our giant sun is but a tiny mite, rushing at fearful speed toward an unguessed goal in the mighty flux of countless millions of celestial bodies.

The big reflector sees the moon as if it were less than 400 miles from the earth. What may it not find on the surface of Mars, with her "canals," and on the other planets of the solar system? What unpierced mysteries may it not make clear? What new wonders may it find in the depths of space?

Until the huge telescope was installed and the suitability of atmospheric conditions determined, the most astute scientist could not be certain of the mammoth instrument's success. But all doubt has now been removed. The air is stable enough for the great aperture; a new era has dawned for the astronomer.

Hence the importance of Dr. Hale's announcement.

In the following article, prepared from data furnished by Dr. Hale, are set forth the salient facts connected with the scientific feat just accomplished at Mt. Wilson and the marvelous work being done there.

Dr. George Ellery Hale, director of the Mt. Wilson Observatory made the important announcement last week that, following a series of tests made throughout the past summer months of the new 100-inch Hooker telescope, the largest in the world, the results of those experiments were entirely successful. In other words, the telescope made good. It has already given the largest and sharpest photographs of the moon ever obtained, showing the earth's satellite on its scale as if it were brought within 400 miles of the earth. The moon is in fact, 240,000 miles from the earth so that photographs on this scale correspond to a magnifying power of 600. Still higher powers can be used visually, but photographs of the moon that are made after this degree of magnification have not been taken before. In all the other tests the telescope has proved equally successful.

It was with some feeling of uncertainty as to just what would occur that the members of the observatory staff began their tests of the new telescope. More than five years and many thousands of dollars had been spent in grinding the 100-inch mirror, in constructing the ponderous concrete blocks, an enormous building and dome 100 feet in diameter, and great steel parts which are needed to house and suspend the telescope, which weighs many tons. Once constructed, all had to be hauled up the [illegible] dangerous Mt. Wilson road to the top of the mountain, [illegible] up a narrow winding trail and then assembled at the top. [illegible] spring all was in readiness. What would the tests show? The optical and mechanical difficulties had probably been overcome, but would the atmosphere be steady enough to permit so large an instrument to give sharp images?

THE PHOTOGRAPHS.

"I am glad to announce," said Dr. Hale at the offices of the Mt. Wilson Observatory on Santa Barbara street, Pasadena, "that the telescope has made good. Members of the staff have taken some remarkably fine photographs of the star clusters, nebulae, stellar spectra and other phenomena. [One of the photographs of the moon, taken by Francis G. Pease, is reproduced for the first time in the rotogravure section of today's Times. It was taken a few weeks [illegible]

The work of many kinds already done by the telescope has come up to our fullest expectations, and the gain in its light-gathering power over the sixty-inch Mt. Wilson telescope is, in fact, as proved by tests, fully equal to what, in theory, the increased size should give. The new telescope gives about three times as much light as the sixty-inch telescope, just as we should expect from its increased size. Moreover, and this is the most important point, the atmospheric conditions on Mt. Wilson have been proved to be good enough for a telescope of this great aperture."

Thus, it is believed, and tests have demonstrated the soundness of this belief, that the new telescope will bring into view many millions of stars which cannot now be seen, and will extend the vision of man millions of miles into space.

MYRIAD STARS.

Only 5000 stars may be seen with the unaided eye, and with the sixty-inch reflector on Mt. Wilson, it is estimated that several hundreds of millions of stars may be photographed. With the new 100-inch telescope it is believed that at least 100,000,000 stars beyond the reach of the sixty-inch telescope can be recorded.

How is this done? In brief, light enters the telescope from the portion of the stellar universe, the star, or moon, or nebula, at which it is pointed, like a gun. Down the barrel of the telescope this light travels to the 100-inch mirror, where it is caught and reflected back in the telescope to another smaller convex mirror near the upper end of the tube. This reflects it back toward the center of the great mirror, where it falls on a small plane mirror, standing at an angle of forty-five degrees with the axis of the telescope. This reflects the light at right angles to a point on the side of the tube near the bottom, where the image is formed. Here it can be photographed. In another arrangement of the telescope, the image is formed on one side of the tube near its upper end. Almost all the work is photographic, that is, the astronomer makes photographs of the stars and nebulae and studies the photographs, which show much fainter objects than can be seen visually.

Already a number of important photographs have been taken with the new 100-inch reflector, and all these show its great power.

MOUNTAINS ON MOON.

The photograph of the moon, reproduced in today's Times, shows a section of the moon on a scale of about fifty miles to the inch. On the upper left of the picture, in an arc, nearly 460 miles long, are shown those mountains of the moon long ago designated by astronomers as the Apennines. The height of some of these mountains shown in the photograph ranges up to 20,000 feet. The sun was shining on one side of the mountains, from the right, when the photograph was taken and long shadows stretch away to the left, much like those thrown from the high Sierras of California in the late afternoon.

In the space to the right of the Apennines are three circular "craters." The largest of these is called Archimedes. Just below it, across the great plain, is the oval "crater" Plato. Some of the mountains in the section of the moon shown in today's Times would resemble the Sierra Madre range of Southern California if our own hills could be seen from a point high above them.

The photographs are beautiful to behold, giving as they do the closest "close up" yet obtained of a neighboring member of the universe. But it is, sorrowfully enough, a dead planet, a world without life, regardless of what its past may have been. The moon to astronomers is therefore interesting, but not important, except to throw light on what the earth is some day coming to—a dead planet, with life extinct.

REAL, LIVE WORK.

Earth dwellers, therefore, have a very vital interest in the discoveries made at Mt. Wilson Ovservatory. All the knowledge gathered there is not secured merely to be filed away in huge tomes in a scientific library, but those facts are the livest kind of knowledge, bearing on the origin and development of the stars and the earth, or in other words, on answering the riddle of the universe.

Approaching the work done at Mt. Wilson, therefore, from the public-interest point of view, one is not surprised to find in charge of the work men whose hearts and

GREAT MARITIME FUTURE IS OURS.

Eleven New Steamship Lines from Los Angeles Harbor to All Parts of the World Established and in Contemplation; Vessels Already in Sight.

BY HOWARD C. KEGLEY.

Los Angeles Harbor now has one trans-Pacific freight steamship line and one Mexican West Coast freight steamship line.

Plans for a fast passenger line between Los Angeles and San Francisco have been made and two crack vessels are available.

The Standard Oil Company is sending a fleet of ten oil tankers to the harbor.

The Norway Pacific Navigation Company is sending a string of ten vessels here.

California perishable fruits and vegetables probably will soon go East through the canal in refrigerator boats.

Direct ocean freight and passenger service between Vladivostok, London, Brest, Boston, Philadelphia and Los Angeles is being considered by London and New York capital.

Queensland, Australia, plans to establish combination freight and passenger service direct to Los Angeles.

The largest navigation company in Japan has representatives here considering the establishment of direct shipping connections.

Service on the three direct water routes already established here will begin about the first of January.

One of our harbor's biggest assets is its open-shop policy and traditions. Where the longshoremen's strike tied up the San Francisco water front and sent vessels here to be unloaded, dock work went ahead at Los Angeles uninterruptedly, in spite of the strike.

With steamship companies which expect to sail freight and passenger vesels to all parts of the world springing up here over night, not in small numbers, but in flocks, Los Angeles Harbor is visualizing a new era in which her geographic importance in maritime affairs will be world-recognized

Already a trans-Pacific line of freight steamers, a Mexican coast ocean freight service, and a line of fast coastwise express and passenger boats have been established by Los Angeles business men. Not to be outdone by Southern Californians in the matter of business development, interests lying at great distances from here are planning the establishment of at least seven more navigation lines which will recognize Los Angeles Harbor as a home port, with two others as probabilities.

While all these surprising developments are taking place the harbor finds itself in the position of a youngster who suddenly begins to outgrow his clothes, and there would be no immediate relief in sight were it not for the fact that the people of this city recently exercised the sound judgment to vote a bond issue of $4,500,000 which is to be expended in building new docks as soon as the government widens the channel. More than a mile of new docks will be constructed shortly after the first of the year, the Harbor Commissioners say.

EYES TO THE WEST.

The fact that America purposes to carry out plans which call for a world-beating merchant marine is evident from the active interest which is being taken in the relation of Los Angeles Harbor to world shipping. The eyes of navigators in many countries have suddenly turned this way, and this interest is crystallizing in the form of a great fleet of merchant vessels which will bring Southern California into closer and constant touch with the world's oldest and greatest seaports.

Steamship companies which have either been established here or are under serious consideration will shortly make it possible for Southern California to make important trade connections with great cities on all the continents of the world save Africa. A great stimulus to business is bound to be the consequence.

Los Angeles business men deserve credit for the establishment of the first trans-Pacific steamship line operating direct from this harbor to great shipping centers of the Orient. This line is that of the Los Angeles-Pacific Navigation Company, and is purely a local enterprise. It has already sent one big cargo vessel to the Orient, and is planning to inaugurate a monthly service beginning about January 1.

On the heels of this company's establishment, John F. Craig and several of his business associates in Long Beach and Los Angeles organized the California and Mexico Steamship Company which has offices in both cities. This concern will operate such vessels as the Mazatlan and Mocorito in a coastwise Mexican trade, ranging as far south along the Mexican coast as Mazatlan and touching at many intermediate points. Sailings will start about January 15, according to J. McMillan who is general manager of the company.

At present local capitalists are seriously considering the establishment of a fast coastwise express and passenger service between Los Angeles and San Francisco. Navigation men say this line is certain to materialize in the course of a few weeks, and in the event that it does it will be operated with the steamships Nopatin and Manhattan, which were recently purchased from the Navy Department. The boats are 320 feet long, steel built, twin-screw propulsion, and speeded up to twenty-three knots. They would run in competition with the boats of the Admiral line which has its headquarters in San Francisco.

With the arrival of the George Washington from Christiania a few days ago came the announcement that the Norway-Pacific Navigation Company, a new enterprise which already has three big cargo vessels in the trans-Pacific trade will soon be sailing ten, has decided to make Los Angeles its home port on this side of the Pacific Ocean.

The George Washington is the first of a string of ten big steel freighters which will be operated by this company. All of the boats will be equipped with the latest type of Diesel oil-burning engines. They will be kept busy with bringing boat-loads of nitrates to this country for agricultural purposes and will load for the return voyages with canned fish, canned vegetables dry beans and oil.

The coming of these Norwegian steamers to Los Angeles Harbor is at least an indirect result of the MARKET BASKET POPULAR AGAIN.

Shopping by Telephone Here is Hit by Army Store.

Service Food Bargains Bring Four Thousand Daily.

Housewives' Rush Shows the Big Continued Demand.

The telephone as a shopping medium is losing its popularity and the old-fashioned market basket has come into its own once more. The thrifty housewife of Los Angeles takes it on her arm or in her automobile and avails herself of the opportunity to cut down her household expenses at the Army Retail Store. Beans and canned fruit at cost and bacon at prices undreamed of since long before the war are well worth waiting in line for, even though that line extends down the street and around the corner for two blocks, or often more.

HOW A PERSON FEELS WHEN PASSING THE INSPECTORS WHO WATCH TO PREVENT ANYBODY FROM ELOPING WITH A CASE OF TOMATOS WITHOUT PAYING FOR IT.

At the Government's Army Retail Store Here.

Parking space on Fourth street is at a premium, and, like the line of waiting customers, the rows of waiting machines overflow into Los Angeles street, for the rich man is as much in evidence as the poor man, and no limousine, however splendid, is too haughty to make room for its owner's share of corned beef, brooms, ash cans or other bargain goods.

In the line of waiting shoppers, Milady, expensively gowned, converses freely with a Swedish girl with her head wrapped in a yellow silk shawl. A staid, retired capitalist discusses the problems of the day with a laboring man, whose saving effected here will mean much to him. The crowd keeps cheerful and smiling as it moves slowly toward the door, always ready to make the most of any amusing incident.

TRAFFIC MEN'S TROUBLES.

The traffic officers detailed to keep the crowd in order have their own troubles. The pedestrian who is in a hurry wisely keeps to the opposite side of the street, for in spite of the repeated instructions of the officers to keep to the right, the line spreads and covers the sidewalk.

Strange requests are made of the traffic officers. "Will you please hold my place in line for me?" asks a woman, "my little girl wants an ice cream soda."

Informed that she must hold her own place, she turns her attention to quelling the demands of her small daughter, who has become vociferous. Nor is the habitual shopper missing.

"Madam," says the officer to a woman who is trying to enter without having gone through the formality of joining the line, "you'll have to get in line."

"But I'm not going to buy anything," she protests, I'm merely looking around."

"Are they selling automobiles in there?" asks a man who has not yet joined the line. Assured that they are not, he remarks sadly: "Oh, I'm sorry; I hoped they would."

ARMY MEN CLERKS.

The line shoves slowly but steadily, for the clerks in the store are all ex-army men, skilled in the swift and efficient methods of army commissary service. Within a very few minutes after the customer has entered his demands are satisfied and he has passed through the hands of the checker and out the side door to the street. An average of 4000 persons served daily at the store is maintained. In one day more than 9000 pounds of bacon were carried out, while a record quick turnover was established when more than a ton of canned tomatoes, disposed of in small lots, went in less than twenty minutes. Daily sales have averaged more than $10,000 since the removal into the new store.

Four trucks are constantly bringing stock from the warehouses to the big storeroom at the rear of the store, where the cases of canned goods are broken open.

ARTICLES GO QUICKLY.

Almost as fast as the goods arrive from the warehouse they are sent out to the salesroom, where they disappear with equal rapidity. In an adjoining room prunes, beans and flour are weighed out in five and ten-pound packages, tied and sent out to the salesroom.

Capt. Joralemon, superintendent of the store, is always busy, but never too busy to listen to any complaint a customer may wish to register. Often enough, when he has a moment to spare, he goes out to the waiting line and asks for any criticism or suggestion for improvement which the customers may have to offer.

Having discovered that the demand of the public centers on the foodstuffs, he plans to limit the clothing counters to smaller space and to increase the amount of space available for the sale of food products by half. To satisfy the constantly increasing demand, the store will be kept open hereafter until 9 o'clock Thursday evenings, as well as Tuesday and Saturday evenings.

TRIAL WEDLOCK FOSTERED BY LAW

Veritable Matrimony Test System is Result of Many Void Marriages and Annulments; Judge Blames Ignorance of the Public and Suggests Cures.

BY CHARLES S. CRAIL,
Divorce Judge of the Superior Court.

When does a divorce decree become final? And why are there so many illegal and void marriages?

Until the laws are changed, it is important that the newspapers herald far and wide the answers to these questions.

There has been an alarming increase in the number of actions brought in Los Angeles county to annul marriages.

Definite statistics are not available, for the reason that these cases are grouped and indexed with divorce and separate maintenance cases. However, Court Clerk Thomas K. Hughes, who for years has kept the minutes in the divorce department, tells me that ten years ago an annulment proceeding was rare, occurring not oftener than one in a month. At this time a day seldom passes that we do not have such a case; some days two or three.

While there are six causes given under Section 82 of the Civil Code for annuling marriages, 90 per cent. of such actions are brought upon the second ground, i.e.: "That the former husband or wife of either party was living, and the marriage with such former husband or wife was then in force."

Curiously enough, such cases become grist for the divorce court mills by Section 61 of the code, which declares that "In no case can a marriage of either of the parties during the life of the other be valid in this State, if contracted within one year after the entry of an interlocutory decree in a proceeding for divorce."

There are two trifling exceptions to the above, but in these exceptions the marriage is valid only until its nullity is adjudged in court.

WHEN ARE THEY FREE?

Section 132 of the code provides that when one year has expired after the entry of the interlocutory judgment, the court may enter the final judgment granting the divorce, and such final judgment shall restore the parties to the status of single persons and permit either to marry after entry thereof.

The parties to a divorce proceeding are restored to the status of single persons and permitted to marry again when the final judgment of divorce is entered. But, when is the final judgment entered, and how do these innocent-looking provisions cause so many illegal and void marriages?

Let me set down the history of the ordinary divorce case in this regard. The case is heard in court on a certain date. The attorney of the successful party is directed by the court to prepare an interlocutory decree for signature. In the course of one to ten days, sometimes weeks later, the attorney presents the decree which is then signed and filed. Thereupon the judgment clerk proceeds to enter the judgment at length, which takes from three to ten days, depending upon how nearly caught up he may be with the work. One year thereafter either party may have a final decree signed and entered; but here again it may take from three to ten days for the clerk to enter the decree after it is signed and filed.

THAT EXTRA MONTH

Thus it is clear that the parties are divorced, not one year after their trial, but one year and a month, possibly longer, after the trial.

Now, the only personal contact the parties have had with the case was at the trial. Naturally, they begin to count the year from that date. They do not know that an additional month will be consumed by their attorneys and the judgment clerk in making the record.

They do not know that their attorneys may never present the final decree for signature and entry.

This frequently happens, for the attorneys receive their fees in full on or before the day of trial. Thereafter, a year is a long time for many of them to keep their clients' business in mind.

This results in a void marriage, because people who pay the expense of a divorce usually have in mind a new marriage. Off with the old, on with the new is the rule.

UNCOMPLETED CASES.

Accurate figures can be given in this regard. In 1917 there were 1585 interlocutory decrees entered by the court. The following year there were only 1378 final decrees. In other words, there were 207 cases in one year which were not completed. There were approximately 400 people in this one item who were walking toward the pitfall of a void marriage.

In addition, there were the hundreds of others who were waiting, patiently or impatiently, to be restored to the status of single persons, erroneously counting their year from the day of the trial, counting each day of the year, perhaps, like the beads upon a rosary.

In the ranks of the above are not included the hundreds of others who deliberately enter into the marriage state with third parties, without waiting even for the expiration of the year from the date of the trial, but who are equally entitled to the annulment of their marriages under the rulings of our Supreme Court, whether innocent or guilty.

TRIAL MARRIAGES.

The whole situation results in a system of trial marriages in this class of cases, for it is amusing even if amazing, how soon after a family jangle people, so married, learn that their marriages are void. "Married in haste, to repent at leisure," wrote Congreve. Those lines are out of date when applied to such marriages. "Sprouted too soon, to die from the first ill wind," would be up-to-date.

The great advantage to the litigants of an annulment over a divorce is that the marriage is declared void from the beginning, and there remains no necessity of waiting a year before again entering into the marriage state. Annulment proceedings are not protected by the statute requiring corroboration, a year's residence in the State, and other safeguards which are thrown around divorce cases.

SUGGESTED CURES.

What are the remedies?

First—Make divorces final automatically at the expiration of the year.

Second—Make the year period commence on the day of the trial in court.

Third—Make marriages which are void, solely because thus prematurely entered into, valid and binding at the expiration of the year period, provided the parties have freely cohabited as husband and wife for any time.

Fourth—By statute, give to annulment proceedings the safeguards surrounding divorce cases.

Some objection has been entered to making the divorce decree automatic at the expiration of one year. The claim is made that people who have received their interlocutory decree sometimes reconcile their differences; and thus the law would automatically divorce people who were living together as husband and wife.

NOT GRAVE RISK.

Reconciliation after divorce is very rare, but where it does occur, the parties always inquire the way to a legal adjustment of their status. They both know that an interlocutory decree of divorce has been granted and that something must be done. In any event, the trouble is confined to one family and is of their own making. But, if the hypothetical instance should happen, it would be far better, time for time, than the present outcome in which innocent parties are dragged into illegal marriages, while the occasions would happen not oftener than once in a hundred of the present ratio.

For people who enter upon marriage before the full expiration of the year with full knowledge of their guilt, prosecution for bigamy is the remedy. It is a poor remedy at best. Prosecutions for bigamy are frequent in our county. The stories have little news value. They are not featured by the papers and our people are not informed thereon.

Until the laws are amended, publicity is the only solution. Our people should be informed of the situation now existing.

TELEGRAM LATE, HE SUES.

Alleged failure to deliver to him in time, a telegram offering him a contract to supply music for an Oregon county fair, resulted in V. A. Centrone yesterday filing suit against the Southern California Telephone Company and the Western Union Telegraph Company, for $700 damages. Mr. Centrone asserts that the delay in receiving the telegram caused him to lose the contract.

HEARTS NEED TOUCHING.

So Maternity Cottage Chief Tells of Cases in Hope Rich May Help.

In the hope of touching the hearts of the wealthy for the sake of the newborn babes of the poor, and also for the sake of the mothers, Mrs. William Baurhyte, president of Maternity Cottage, today made known a series of cases which have been taken care of at the institution the directors of which are waging a campaign to raise a building fund so that the capacity of the hospital may be increased from twelve beds to twenty-four or more. They are only asking $15,000 but—

"The hearts of people with money are still cold to the unconscious appeal in the wailing voices of the newborn babes at Maternity Cottage," Mrs. Baurhyte said yesterday. "I cannot think that anyone could know of our work there and not want to help all they can."

The hospital is conducted for wives of men who receive small wages or salaries—women who, were it not for the hospital, would face perhaps fatal neglect upon the advent of their babies.

ELEVENTH BABY.

Here is one sample of the good done at Maternity Cottage, according to Mrs. Baurhyte's statement:

One woman 45 years old entered Maternity Cottage to give birth to her eleventh baby. She was so tired, she said—so very tired and she needed courage. They gave it to her there and "you could feel that bed—how it rested her." Mrs. Baurhyte said in describing the case. The woman got the finest medical care, food and cheer, so that when the eleventh baby was placed in her arms she regarded it with glad eyes, instead of with glances dimmed by weariness and lost hope.

Another case was that of a baby which weighed less than three pounds on birth. It was placed in an incubator and cared for until it was able to be put with the other babies. Later this child was adopted by a wealthy family in Santa Barbara, as its mother was unable to provide for it.

"When we don't have room enough for the cases that want to come to Maternity Cottage it means that a woman must have her baby under terrible circumstances," Mrs. Baurhyte said. "Frequently those circumstances consist of one room with two or three other children around, and no warmth or food. In the instances where the family has a better income, and is able to ward off actual poverty, we stand between it and financial calamity often. For how can a man on a $75 a month salary, with several children already, pay the usual hospital bills for his wife, and continue to buy food and clothing for his family?

SUBSCRIPTIONS SLOW.

"It doesn't seem much that we are asking—$15,000—but for some reason the sum has not yet been subscribed. We are so full of hope that Los Angeles will want to help us in our work, and that within the next few days the entire $15,000 will be subscribed.

Contributions to the fund are being taken at The Times office, as well as by all officials of the institution. These officials are: Mrs. Baurhyte, president; Mrs. Foster Elliot, vice-president; Mrs. G. W. Grimes, recording secretary; Mrs. Bissell, corresponding secretary; Mrs. A. S. McKevitt, auditor; R. Morgan Galbraith, treasurer.

Donations, as follows, are reported by Mr. Galbraith: Mrs. Isabelle A. and Jacob Borstelman, $10; Elsie A. Martin, $25; C. H. Ruhl, $5; "A Friend," $1; Thomas Ewing, $4; Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Howard, $250; Mrs. A. M. Davidson, $10; Mr. Sidney Budgett, $2.50; Miss Anna L. Bartlett, $10; Mrs. Cordelia Kirkland, $10; F. E. Garnsey, $25.

HELD TO GRAND JURY ON LIQUOR CHARGE.

United States Commissioner Long yesterday held L. A. Varian and C. M. Shaw to the Federal grand jury in bond of $300 each, for violation of the war-time prohibition law, by selling liquor to various persons last July 19.

The defendants were before the city courts for violation of the Gandier ordinance, but were acquitted.

It is understood that a well-known motion picture star will be a witness before the grand jury when the matter goes to that body for investigation. Varian and Shaw operated in the tea-room of the Lankershim Hotel.

HE DOESN'T NEED WIFE.

Harry P. Dale told his wife, Mrs. Belva L. Dale, she related to Judge Crail in divorce proceedings yesterday, that he did not need a wife. She said he stayed downtown after office hours. He was away from home at meal times. Shortly before he left, he said he was going to take part of the furniture and move downtown, she declared. Judge Crail granted Mrs. Dale a divorce.

WIFE BLAMES DRINK.

Mrs. Lenna V. Seidel was granted a divorce from Emil E. Seidel, resident manager of an eastern concern, by Judge Crail yesterday. Mrs. Seidel testified that her husband at a dance was very disagreeable to her until she finally persuaded him to go home. She related the quarrels they had which resulted, she said, from his drinking.

Baumgardt, first vice-president o
the Southern California Academ of Sciences, has evolved this sy tem of star map-making while con ducting his work as curator of th
W. A. Clark, Jr., astronomical ob servatory, at Cimarron and We Adams streets.

"For many years," said Dr Baumgardt, yesterday, "I ha thought and dreamed of an illum inated map of the night sky. Final ly came the idea of employin radium. I used radium bromide an mixed with it zinc sulphide, accord ing to the degree of brilliancy o the star I wished to reproduce. Th prepared material I then cemente to small celluloid discs of varyin diameters and mounted in their re spective places on black maps. With little study of these maps, the well-known stars and the constellation can be readily located in the heavens."

The first of these star maps, which one looks upon in deep amazement, so startling is it to see what is apparently a portion of the heavens in miniature there in one's hand, was made last year and will undoubtedly find a place in a museum some day as the initial step in this development of star maps, which, while simple, are yet beyond description in charm and absorbing instruction. A display of 155 maps, of which several dozen are now completed, is being prepared.

FOR STUDENTS.

The value of these maps to school study is inestimable. Taking one of these illuminated maps—measuring fourteen by seventeen inches, a convenient size—out into the night, you may there discover its original "mural decorations," and then by comparing with the key map, you find the names of the constellations and stars and all other interesting information pertaining to that part of the sky.

Young William A. Clark III, a student at St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H., has one of the radium star maps made by Dr. Baumgardt which is of intense interest to his classmates. W. A. Clark, Jr., also keeps one of the star maps with him. From father to son and on to grandson, this interest in astronomy has apparently been handed down in the Clark family.

Dr. Baumgardt is also making a large plaster of Paris model of the moon in his laboratory at home. By projecting lantern slides of the moon onto this globe with a stereopticon, absolute accuracy is obtained.
Then, using certain dental instruments, Dr. Baumgardt carves out the contour of the moon. It is an enormous task, since there are many hundreds of craters, not to mention the mountains and valleys of the moon.

With this plaster of Paris moon, and by aid of a powerful electric light, it will be possible to give an exhibition showing the geographical details and presenting the actual appearance of the lunar landscape.

MORE MOONSCAPES.

Dr. Baumgardt plans to make numerous larger models of the lunar regions and then mount them in exhibition chambers down a hall. These moonscapes will be placed in proper setting, just as stuffed birds, animals, etc., are placed in appropriate setting in the

RADIUM STARS TWINKLE UPON WONDERFUL MAPS.

Amazing Charts of the Night Skies are Made by Curator for the Unique Clark Observatory Display.

BY HENRIETTA BOECKMAN.

No longer is it "Twinkle, twinkle little star, how I wonder what you are." Now we may hold a map, like a piece of the sky itself, on which twinkle the constellations and where glows the Milky Way, there to continue this activity for at least 2450 years. Dr. Mars F. Baumgardt, first vice-president of the Southern California Academy of Sciences, has evolved this system of star map-making while conducting his work as curator of the W. A. Clark, Jr., astronomical observatory, at Cimarron and West Adams streets.

"For many years," said Dr. Baumgardt, yesterday, "I had thought and dreamed of an illuminated map of the night sky. Finally came the idea of employing radium. I used radium bromide and mixed with it zinc sulphide, according to the degree of brilliancy of the star I wished to reproduce. The prepared material I then cemented to small celluloid discs of varying diameters and mounted in their respective places on black maps. With little study of these maps, the well-known stars and the constellations can be readily located in the heavens."

The first of these star maps, which one looks upon in deep amazement, so startling is it to see what is apparently a portion of the heavens in miniature there in one's hand, was made last year and will undoubtedly find a place in a museum some day as the initial step in this development of star maps, which, while simple, are yet beyond description in charm and absorbing instruction. A display of 155 maps, of which several dozen are now completed, is being prepared.

FOR STUDENTS.

The value of these maps to school study is inestimable. Taking one of these illuminated maps—measuring fourteen by seventeen inches, a convenient size—out into the night, you may there discover its original "mural decorations," and then by comparing with the key map, you find the names of the constellations and stars and all other interesting information pertaining to that part of the sky.

Young William A. Clark III, a student at St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H., has one of the radium star maps made by Dr. Baumgardt, which is of intense interest to his classmates. W. A. Clark, Jr., also keeps one of the star maps with him. From father to son and on to grandson, this interest in astronomy has apparently been handed down in the Clark family.

Dr. Baumgardt is also making a large plaster of Paris model of the moon in his laboratory at home. By projecting lantern slides of the moon onto this globe with a stereopticon, absolute accuracy is obtained. Then, using certain dental instruments, Dr. Baumgardt carves out the contour of the moon. It is an enormous task, since there are many hundreds of craters, not to mention the mountains and valleys of the moon.

With this plaster of Paris moon, and by aid of a powerful electric light, it will be possible to give an exhibition showing the geographical details and presenting the actual appearance of the lunar landscape.

MORE MOONSCAPES.

Dr. Baumgardt plans to make numerous larger models of the lunar regions and then mount them in exhibition chambers down the hall. These moonscapes will be placed in proper setting, just as stuffed birds, animals, etc., are placed in appropriate setting in the Museum of Natural History in New York.

These striking features will only be an addition to the many scientific features of unusual interest already a part of the Clark observatory.

"They are too busy doing real work at the great observatories to bother with the public," said Dr. Baumgardt. "It is Mr. Clark's intention, as well as my own, to let the public know a little about astronomy without being bored by reading a great many books."

There are three floors and a vault chamber in the observatory, with each floor given over to displays relating to astronomy. The vault chamber is divided into two sections. In one is a large collection of photographic transparences, the finest obtained at the Mt. Wilson Observatory. These are framed and illuminated by electric lights prepared with special dies and reflectors, which is another idea worked out by Dr. Baumgardt. The photographs of the moon are shown with white light; those of the sun have a yellow tint and those of the nebulae, stars, clusters, spirals and comets have a soft blue light, thereby giving them their exact appearance as seen through a large telescope. Here, also, is a cabinet upon which are mounted three tereoscopes pre- are mounted three stereoscopes pregraphs of the moon, comets, meteors and other bodies of the heavens.

WONDERS OF RADIUM.

The other section of the vault chamber is devoted to the radium display. It is spectacular. The molecular bombardments are seen to wonderful advantage. Recently Dr. Baumgardt made a container of radium in which the bombardsouls are wrapped up in their labor of wresting from the stars their secrets for the purpose of aiding humanity. The many discoveries made on Mt. Wilson have brought gold medals, honorary degrees and other marks of distinction from all parts of the world to the members of the observatory staff.

In addition to having in its possession the largest reflecting telescope in the world, Mt. Wilson Observatory enjoys the distinction of being the largest and most perfectly equipped institution in existence for the study of the mysteries of the solar system.

Andrew Carnegie endowed the Carnegie Institution, Washington, with his millions and the Mt. Wilson Observatory, which is one of the departments of the institution, has had sufficient funds at its command to provide a powerful equipment. The late John D. Hooker of Los Angeles provided the funds to cover the cost of the optical work on the 100-inch telescope and the instrument is therefore called the Hooker telescope.

To create the mirror it was first necessary to import from France a great disk of glass, thirteen inches thick, which, in the rough weighed four and a half tons. It was then shaped, polished and tested by the most exacting methods, in the optical shop of the observatory, which is at the observatory offices on Santa Barbara street, Pasadena.

DIFFICULT HAULING.

The work of transporting the huge mirror, together with the great steel girders and framework, to the top of Mt. Wilson, was accomplished by means of automobile trucks over the Mt. Wilson automobile road, and a slow dangerous job it was. It is safe to say the members of the observatory staff were very happy when the mirror was at the top of the mountain, nearly 6000 feet above sea level. It took an entire day and much effort to get the reflector there from Pasadena, a distance of nine miles up the dangerous mountain road which was built by the Carnegie Institution when it was decided that the observatory should be built on Mt. Wilson as giving the best constantly available conditions in the world for the study of solar and stellar phenomena.

A large steel building, surmounted by a rotating dome, was erected for the telescope. The diameter of the metal dome of the observatory house is 100 feet and the dome is 100 feet high. Beyond it the shutter projects four feet. The lower twenty-eight feet of the dome is stationary and all above this level rotates.

A pier of hollow reinforced concrete was built for the telescope, the height of the pier being thirty-five feet, so as to remove the telescope from ground radiation. Forty massive piers of concrete, built in two rings around the main pier, provide footings heavy enough to withstand the severe wind and snow storms experienced on the mountain, 5000 feet above sunny Pasadena. No part of the dome is allowed to touch the pier or the wall, and the pier and the wall are placed on a bed of sand six inches deep, to prevent any vibration of the dome being felt at the telescope. A metal wall rising nine feet from the fifty-two-foot floor at the top of the pier prevents air currents from the top and bottom of the dome reaching the telescope. Constant temperature is maintained for the mirror by a system of tanks and pumps within the pier.

The difficulties of transporting the framework of the telescope are seen when it is stated that the yoke that holds the telescope is built in four sections, two of which weigh ten tons each. The moving parts of the telescope weigh 100 tons. In order to rotate this huge mass of metal, an elaborate arrangement permits the telescope to float in cylinders of mercury.

The actual diameter of the mirror is 101.2 inches, or 8.4 feet. It is 12.75 inches thick at the edge and weighs about 9000 pounds, or four and a quarter tons.

Mirrors of this size are sensitive to changes in heat and cold, and consequently an elaborate one-inch cork board chamber is built around the mirror, which with other apparatus, including pipes and coils and fans, keeps the temperature as desired.

Everyone knows that looking-glasses become tarnished, and this means that the mirrors must be resilvered. Resilvering a 9000-pound giant mirror on the top of a mile-high mountain is not an easy job, but once more by a most intricate system of wheels and cogs and a giant screw, the entire mirror and its parts, weighing in all fourteen tons, can be lowered into the top room of the pier on which the telescope stands, and the mirror can be resilvered, even in winter, while it is swung there in a huge fork.

The dome and the telescope are controlled by electric motors from a deck on the pier, forty motors being used, with more than thirteen miles of wiring.

Heath Unit Tile Used In Construction

Heath Unit Tile is without doubt the most popular building material on the market today. Lots of reasons why—low insurance rate, needs no repairs, does not depreciate in value, makes a home warmer in winter and cooler in summer.

If interested in building, you should see our new display room—the most complete west of St. Louis. Here are displayed in a most attractive manner, samples of Hollow Tile, Roofing Tile, Mantel and Quarry Tile and beautiful Face Brick in a wide variety of colors and textures.

Surpassing in wonders the magic of Aladdin's Geni
The NEW EDISON

WHAT the genius of Thomas A. Edison has wrought has no counterpart in the lore of fabled genii.

—the master mind that turned night into day with the electric light; that gave the wings of lightning to the words of men and brought the farthest corners of the earth within instant reach, has performed no more amazing feat nor accomplished no greater good for humanity than in the creation of the NEW EDISON.

Through this marvel of science, the heaven-sent gift of music in its highest form has been spread like an hallowing influence in every home, to uplift, to inspire and brighten.

Who can calculate the value of such an achievement? —who can doubt the truth of Thomas A. Edison's own assertion that the NEW EDISON is his greatest accomplishment?

CAN HAPPEN.

A woman broke three ribs over a washboard the other day. If she had done it dancing the shimmy she would have gained notoriety. As it is, she only achieves fame.

MOVING THINGS.

It would be a good idea for Trotzky and Lenine to mount their country's capital on a motor truck. Then, with an army cot to sleep on, they would know where they were whenever they knew where they were.

OUT OF THE DEPTHS.

If Senator Moses will drop over to the White House some afternoon he may learn of something to his disadvantage. A man who "will never more be a factor in public life" might care to whisper something in his shell-like ear.

PACKED QUARTERS.

It is said that because of the crowds people are sleeping in bath-tubs in London. It is not so very long ago that a bathroom was something of a novelty in the British capital and now they are using them for snooze cabins. But this is a progressive world.

THE WRONG IDEA.

Now they are urging a Fair Price Commission as an addition to the forty-odd fat commissions with which the State is already cursed. There seems an excuse for a commission of the character indicated and the hint is all that the politicians want. It suggests at once a group of three or more commissioners at about ten thousand bucks per each; also a high-priced staff of secretaries and assistants and trips all over the State. People who want lower prices will never secure them through the appointment of a political commission. Furthermore, relief must be national, not State or local. There need be no duplication of costly machinery. Men and methods for relief are already available if they can only be prodded into activity. Whenever the State has a new ache or pain it is not necessary to call into being a costly commission to doctor it. Let some of the public servants we now have work overtime once in a while.

THE YELLOW SHADOW.

All over the world there is comment on the relations existing between the United States and Japan. Some European journals say that just as during the decade before 1914 the shadow of the coming world war deepened over Europe, so today the same notion of inevitable conflict is suggesting itself in regard to the United States and Japan and based on the same terrible realities of economic and race interests.

America and Japan must work together to change that feeling. A war between them must not be. It has been averted before; it can be averted again. It will require astute diplomacy to drive away the troubles which have raised the cloud between the two nations, but it will be managed.

Thank heaven that just at this perilous time the League of Nations is coming into being. Japan has already approved the covenant without reservations; the United States Senate cannot now long delay action. With the two countries members of the league it would be simply ridiculous for them to go to war.

The question of immigration is, of course, at the bottom of the trouble. The Japanese, who for centuries closed their doors against immigrants, know full well that the present American policy cannot be changed peacefully and they must realize how absurd it would be to attempt to force themselves upon a people who do not want them and who are determined that they shall not be allowed to overrun this country.

THE RIGHT TO STRIKE.

Unionists in Los Angeles have sought to work up sympathy for the United Mine Workers, who are losing the coal-mines strike, by asserting that the Federal government is interfering with the right of the men to strike. Atty.-Gen. Palmer has knocked that argument flat with his punchy statement showing that the general right to strike is not an issue in any sense whatever in the present situation. The government, fighting on the side of the people, has taken the stand that this strike is illegal and that is why it is opposing it so vigorously.

The Attorney-General proves, in fact, that the strike is flagrantly illegal and "was ordered in a manner, for a purpose and with a necessary effect which, taken together, put it outside the pale of the law." It is in direct violation of the Fuel Control Act, a war measure which is still in force. Moreover, it is an outrageous instance of the infringement of a solemn contract entered into between the miners and the operators.

This being the case there can be no question as to "the right to strike." Men cannot legally strike when they have made an agreement to work for a definite period at a definite wage, and the agreement has been kept on the other side. So the loud lamentations heard around Labor Temple are but efforts to secure sympathy on false pretenses.

A DEFEAT OF SOVIETS.

No other event of recent months has given so much encouragement to the supporters of constitutional liberty as the triumph of Gov. Coolidge and the anti-strike flag in Massachusetts. His opponent boldly espoused the principle of sovietizing American industry. He was opposed by the State Federation of Labor of Massachusetts and the American Federation of Labor. For weeks before the election reds thronged to Massachusetts from all parts of the country. Historic Boston Common suffered from them, as from an attack of cooties. It was the first time that a soviet candidate had stood for election in an American State; and Mr. Taft characterized the campaign as "a battle to the life or death of the most cardinal American principles."

No other State election since the beginning of the war has been so bitterly contested. The candidate of the soviets was a multimillionaire shoe manufacturer whose views concerning constitutional government were about as intelligible as those of Henry Ford. He was a veritable soviet angel. He declared that the dismissal of the striking policemen was a crime against government, and that Gov. Coolidge was the arch-criminal. He said that, if elected, the policemen would all get their jobs back. His soviet challenge was so plain that it could not be misunderstood; and the foes of law and order trusted to the naturalized foreign vote in the great industrial districts of Massachusetts to encompass Gov. Coolidge's defeat.

But the plans of the sovietists, from Gompers down, went badly awry. Gov. Coolidge received 50,000 more votes than were ever before cast for a candidate for Governor in Massachusetts. He defeated the champion of the soviets by a majority of about 150,000. This great anti-strike victory was rendered all the more notable because the soviets failed to carry even the industrial districts. At least a million dollars of money was back of their campaign; but the loyal citizens of Massachusetts could neither be bullied nor bought. "Massachusetts—God bless her"—again and amen!

PERSHING VERSUS BAKER.

Testifying before a joint Senate and House committee in Washington, Gen. Pershing made a strong plea for limited universal military service in this country. Referring to the war he said that "Our success was not due to forethought or preparedness, but to exceptional circumstances which made it possible to train after we had declared war. It is my belief that if America had been adequately prepared our rights never would have been violated, our institutions would never have been threatened."

Gen. Pershing is not an advocate, however, of large standing armies in time of peace or of two and three years of military service. He expressed the opinion that the regular army should be only large enough to protect us against unexpected attack, suggesting that a force of 300,000 men would be ample. He fixed the term of compulsory military training for citizen soldiery at six months. He would have a small, well-equipped, mobile army that could move on short notice for expeditionary service, especially on the American continent; and he would have this supported by a trained citizen reserve. He said that the expeditionary force may be necessary to meet our international requirements.

America could have won the war in 1917 and brought about an armistice a year sooner if we had begun preparing when the war clouds threatened. Such is the opinion of the commander of our expeditionary forces; and no one was in better position to judge. Much of the testimony given by Gen. Pershing failed to agree with the policy outlined by the War Department in the bills which it has introduced in Congress. He regards that policy as contemplating an unnecessary expenditure. He disagreed with the Secretary's contention for a standing army of 500,000 men. In fact, the gist of his testimony shows that he either was not consulted or his suggestions were almost wholly disregarded when the budget of the War Department was prepared. It is just possible that the same bee has been buzzing about the cap of Gen. Pershing and the derby of Secretary Baker.

LIBEL ON BANK MANAGERS.

A foreign correspondent of the Associated Press informs the world that Gen. Von Hindenburg, wearing his "civies," looks like a bank manager. He then proceeds to state that the burly general wears a short, rough coat, a Panama hat and not very well-cut trousers. That may be a good description of a German bank manager's outfit, but not of the head of an American bank. Among the best-dressed men in Los Angeles are the bank managers. They believe in Shakespeare's advice and go in for as costly clothes as their purses can buy. They are never seen in their banks with "not very well-cut trousers." That kind may do for Von Hindenburg, but the tailors who make the trousers of Los Angeles bankers pride themselves on their cut.

Further examination of the Associated Press dispatch makes it evident that some "bloomin' Englishman" must have filed it. The story passes on to portray Frau Von Hindenburg and she is described as a person who "might be the wife of a country parson." Why? Because she has flat hats, wears her skirts long and smiles often. That may be the correspondent's true idea of the wife of an English clergyman, but it's far from mirroring the wife of an American pastor. Mrs. Rev. So-and-so in this country is as up-to-date as her husband, even if he is like unto the Los Angeles pastor who sometimes gives his congregation a treat by appearing in all the glory of white flannel. Pancake hats and skirts that sweep the pavement are not the kind worn by the wives of American ministers. The Associated Press should warn that correspondent—he dates his stuff from London—to be more apt in his comparisons.

HOW ABOUT PROHIBITION?

We are suffering from underproduction, but at the same time we have about the biggest crops of corn, wheat and other grains that ever happened, without any slump in the breadstuffs market. It must be that production will have to work all along the line before it is made to count.

PRESIDENT AND SENATE.

Every textual amendment to the peace treaty offered in the Senate has been beaten. The Johnson amendments, Lodge amendments and Fall amendments have been cast into the discard. President Wilson has triumphed over his enemies; the discomfiture of those whom he termed "little Americans" is complete. But he has not yet triumphed over his own pride and prejudices. The way is cleared in the Senate for early ratification, provided the President will agree to accept interpretative reservations which a large number of persons, both within and without the Senate, believe are necessary. On Friday the President received Congressman Hitchcock for a half hour's conference to discuss the treaty. At its conclusion the administration leader said:

> Our intention, then, if the reservations are in their present form, is to oppose the resolution of ratification. Some Democrats, of course, probably will not line up with us on that, but I am confident that we have enough votes to defeat such a resolution of ratification, because a two-thirds vote will be required. We will then offer a resolution of ratification ourselves, which may be defeated. . . . The President approved heartily the plans of the friends of the treaty to bring about a deadlock to negotiate a compromise. . . . He indicated that any compromise which did not destroy the treaty might be acceptable to him. . . . But he said the reservations prepared by the Committee on Foreign Relations are "destructive."

The Times is disappointed that Congressman Hitchcock did not find the President in a more conciliatory mood. Mr. Hitchcock admitted that the reservations prepared by the Committee on Foreign Relations would receive a majority vote in the Senate committee of the whole. He says that "some of the Democrats" will not join the administration in opposing them; but he hopes to rally enough votes to keep the reservations from receiving a two-thirds majority. The President says the reservations are "destructive" and he cannot accept them. In other words, the President is willing to compromise, provided the Republican Senate majority does all the compromising; and he is willing that peace shall wait until the majority veers around to his opinion. The Times cannot escape the conviction that there is more egotism than statesmanship in such an attitude.

Almost a year has elapsed since the signing of the armistice. The military autocracy of the Central Powers has been humbled. The thrones of the Hapsburgs and the Hohenzollerns are in ruins. New nations have been formed and republics have been established on the debris. Flowers have bloomed and withered and the fallen leaves of two autumns have drifted over the graves of the American dead in the Argonne and Flanders. Britain, France and Italy are at peace with Germany. America alone is hanging back. America alone is declining to make peace, not with the enemy, but with her own allies—with those who held the line until our gallant troops were trained, transported overseas and thrown into the fray with a vigor and a fury that compelled success.

II.

MONTHS ago the Peace Conference passed into history. The President was a commanding figure in that assemblage. The essence at least of the greater part of his famous fourteen points is written into the treaty. He has been hailed on two continents as the paladin of the free peoples of the world. Surely there is enough glory in that to suffice for a single man and a single lifetime. After having won so much the President can surely afford to be generous enough to concede something to those of his own country who are not willing to follow him to extremes.

Right or wrong, a majority of the members of the Senate believe that certain reservations concerning the extent to which America is willing to co-operate in guaranteeing the peace of the other peoples should be made. The President would do well to reflect on the comment of another great Democrat of another day that it is "a condition and not a theory" that confronts him. The world is a-hungered for peace. Herbert Hoover has graphically described the misery and suffering, the starvation and degradation of twenty peoples by reason of a continuance of war conditions. By making limited concessions to popular opinion, within the Senate and without, the President can alleviate much of that misery. By saying the word he can remove the blockades and permit the free distribution of the foodstuffs of the world.

The Times has had occasion to apply to the President what was said of Erasmus: "He would have been greater if he had consented to be less." As a leader of free peoples the President's place in history is assured; but as a dictator the President never has been, and never will be, a success. Like Mohammed addressing the mountain, he has commanded the Senate to approach; and the Senate has not moved. Where he might have reasoned he has ordered; and his orders have not been obeyed. "With the advice and consent of the Senate" the President is authorized to negotiate peace treaties. He declined to accept the advice, and he has failed to receive the consent.

In his opposition to treaty amendments which would have necessitated resubmission to the other signatories the President was supported by the Senate and the country. But the reasons for rejecting those amendments do not apply to reservations which deal only with the part that America shall play in the concert of nations. The Senate is ready to approve the treaty in so far as it relates to the relations between the other nations concerned. Britain, France and Italy have accepted it. They have agreed to assume all the obligations which the league covenant imposes. If they are satisfied, this country will not formally object, although the Shantung award was a bitter disappointment to millions of Americans who would like to see all the wrongs of European diplomacy righted in a single document. Our allies bore the brunt of the fighting against the Huns and there is no desire on the part of loyal Americans to rob them of any of the merited fruits of victory. In this the President and the country were in full accord.

III.

BUT when it comes to a question of protecting the Monroe Doctrine, of limiting the extent to which America will participate in the quarrels of nations beyond the seas—on these questions the President and the country hold conflicting views. President Wilson is undoubtedly sincere in his belief that our interests are fully protected by the treaty as it is written. But, in his own country, the President has proved a poor diplomat. He declines to regard the members of Congress as his peers. He considers himself above them, alike in intellect and authority. Where he might win through persuasion he fails in seeking to command. He is the first war President to be repudiated through the election of an opposition Congress. During the last two months he has sent two veto messages to the present Congress, and Congress has promptly overridden both. He failed to control a majority of the votes of his own party, while the Republican vote was almost solidly against him.

Under existing conditions it must be plain to the President that he is not in position to dictate, either to the Senate or to the country. He lost the confidence of the country as an executive officer by reason of the appalling extravagance and waste of his administration. He is in no position to make an appeal to the Republicans; for they have not forgotten his ingratitude in urging the election of Democrats after the Republicans in both houses of Congress had called a truce on partisan politics during the war. He should remember the fate of Caesar, who won notable victories abroad, but fell in a conflict with his own Senate. Statesmen no longer fight with daggers; but there is more than one Caesar in the Senate who has asked, "On what meat doth this our Caesar feed?"

IV.

THE TIMES has observed that there are two Wilsons. The Wilson of the Peace Conference was not only a logician, but a master diplomat. He knows how to conciliate, to bring harmony out of discord, to subject his own opinions to modifications suggested by his confreres. It is now known that but a single section of the covenant of the League of Nations was accepted in the form the President drafted; yet the President championed the covenant in its amended form and did yeoman service to secure its adoption.

But the diplomat of the Paris conference seems to have failed to book passage for home. The Mr. Wilson in Washington is very much an autocrat. He has lost his conciliatory mood. He assumes towards the Senate the attitude of a professor correcting the theses of his class. He regards the controversy as that of petty intellects harassing a master mind; and he clings to the idea that they will finally submit to his dictation. The Times regrets exceedingly to see the President carry the colors of the free peoples of the world in so magnificent a race, only to stumble at the last hurdle. It sincerely trusts that he will find a way to accept the reservations, without which it is now plain that the treaty cannot be ratified at all.

GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP IN AUSTRALIA.

Hon. J. M. Hunter of Queensland, Australia, now in Los Angeles, talks in glowing terms of government ownership of cattle ranches and butcher shops in the state of Queensland, declaring that the high cost of living has been greatly reduced thereby.

The writer has recently returned from Australia and if the prices then prevailing were so marked a reduction on previous conditions, one can only surmise to what dizzy heights prices had soared before. Living is not cheap in Australia. It is true that both meat and bread are apparently cheaper than in the United States, but since the workingman's wages, notwithstanding his penchant for weekly strikes in that country, are considerably lower than in similar trades here, his comparative advantages are nil. Moreover, the whole standard of living in that so-called "workingman's paradise" is far lower than our own.

The effect of government ownership and control in Australia has been to drive private enterprise out of the field, with the very natural result that almost all manufactured articles are imported. Australia is a great wheat and cattle country; these are its main natural products; and during the war export trade was almost at a standstill. Mountains of wheat and frozen meat accumulated in the warehouses, so that the government had small difficulty in taking over and marketing those products cheaply at home. But whenever the government essayed to go into the manufacturing business it was a dismal failure and, outside of meat and wheat, prices were and are prodigious. What the government made on the swings it lost heavily on the merry-go-round, as it were, and actually the average cost of living in all departments equalled when it did not exceed those of this country—coupled with a very evident lack of efficiency, hygiene and general service.

Labor strikes in Australia are of daily occurrence, government ownership and control, compulsory labor arbitration courts, et al., apparently acting more as an irritant than a pacifier. Yet the government there is composed largely of labor-union leaders—the state of Queensland in particular being completely under labor-union control. But when the labor unionist is working for the government he strikes rather more frequently. When his employer is the government his votes act as a lever; he usually gets his rise or his shorter hours—and any deficits come out of the taxes. Taxes in Australia are sky high and, as the population numbers but five millions all told, the national debt comes to about $800 per head, an unproductive debt for the most part, since Australia is always a borrower, never a lender.

It must be small consolation indeed for the Australian to be able to purchase cheap meat, largely owing to a lack of export facilities, while paying nearly twice as much as this country for almost all other household products, imported from necessity. But actually the Australian does not regard his meat as cheap. Small comfort to know one's meat is a few cents cheaper than elsewhere if one is shy a larger percentage of cents to buy it with. Moreover, when Australia's export trade in meat and wheat resumes its pre-war basis it will take a good deal of increased production and government genius to maintain the home prices now prevailing.

RIPPLING RHYMES.

THE FROSTY MORNING.

The world outdoors is white with frost at morning when I leave the hay, and I, regardless of the cost, put up a glad and brave hooray. The frost is gleaming on the hills and glittering along the vales; the doc should put it up in pills, the druggist weigh it in on his scales. I praise it in the highest terms; it is more precious than our rolls; for it's the stuff that kills the germs and makes the microbes hunt their holes. A mortal loses all his pep when blistered by a summer sun; he toils along with weary step and feels as though he weighed a ton. A slight exertion makes him groan, he's always in a grouchy mood; in every sinew, every bone, he feels a beastly lassitude. But when the autumn frost appears, and eager winds his whiskers nip, he rolls his shirtsleeves to his ears and looks for someone he may whip. The languor of the summer time, the weariness of sizzling heat, no more oppress him when he'd climb around the town on busy feet. In August I am beastly old, as old as graybeards ever are; but when the frost lies on the wold I'm younger than a movie star. WALT MASON.

THE LANCER.

That New York Johnny who pointed out our little provincialisms was subtly complimentary. He obviously expected us to exceed New York in metropolitan sangfroid and was astonished to find we didn't quite. It just shows what a bully reputation we have back East, eh, what? Maybe, while houses are so scarce, it is just as well. The whole country would flock here in a bunch if we hadn't a few faults.

Personally I like a few human weaknesses. They are much easier to live with. Ever tried living with supersophistication for any length of time? It's very wearing.

However, anent that little snick regarding our attitude towards royalty—we really thought we were emulating New York. New York has her past in the matter of visiting royalty. However, we'll let bygones be bygones. We have frequently blushed for dear old New York in the days gone by—but we took it philosophically, not expecting quite such lofty standards of her as we demand for ourselves.

Quite a rumpus at the Athletic Club on Halloween. It appears the club is properly imbued with its moral duty and, like the penny dance hall, keeps a purity person on the premises to curb its members' dancing manners. He's a paid official of the accepted mien and he was duly shocked at the frisky light fantastic as exhibited by a rather prominent man about town. So he called him out with stern rebuke. And said prominent citizen has been boiling with wrath ever since.

Still, it is jolly to think that a club that harbors the frisky uplifters, who rather pride themselves in shedding the stuffy conventions when they sally forth to other pastures, maintains a private purity squad for disciplinary purposes at home. It's so human.

And now it is the Better Films Committee reproving the public taste. Its chairman issued an ultimatum to the effect that if the public did not adequately support its first picture play, "Surprising Carlotta," it was obvious that the demand for better films was not sincere.

That's not fair. The public does want better films—and much better films—than "Surprising Carlotta," which lacked so many "better" qualities that it was incredible that a company of bright women should have offered it as a shining example of the great modern art. More things than mere mushy sentimentality, glossed with tame respectability and oozing cheap little bromide subtleties, go to the making of a "better film."

Perchance it is a better Better Films Committee and better "Better Film" scenario writers and producers that the public sincerely wants.

Mrs. T. N. R. Cama, a little Parsee lady from Poona, India, told the Philanthropy Club some curious phases of Hindoo philanthropy. She said, for instance, that they won't allow mad dogs to be killed, but stoop to every kind of intrigue to protect them from the cruel health authorities, secreting them in their homes, keeping them fed and allowing them to propagate. The Hindoo, it appears, has the same protective consideration for the soldiers' friend, the cootie, and has him duly herded in young farms, where any worthy patron may earn sixty cents a night for the loan of his person.

However, as the president of the local club announced, this department of philanthropy will not be undertaken here for the present.

A Pasadena lady who dresses in sumptuous gowns of oriental persuasiveness and has her house curtains to match asked me if I had ever felt "the consciousness of the cosmos." I was awfully embarrassed. That seems to me a very delicate and personal question to have hurled at one at a party. I told her I didn't like to say, it was too intimate a subject.

I positively refuse to have my consciousness of the cosmos dragged out in public. However, she assured me that if I went in for her kind of curtains and maybe the right patterned silk shirt I should know exactly what she meant. That was, of course, if I had an attuned soul.

I have a bed quilt made by a worthy lady out of the remains of twenty years of silk dresses and that's all the cosmos I can stand at present.

And now the lady musicians are on the warpath, bringing charges of sex discrimination and all that. The men say it doesn't look nice to have women in an orchestra. One of them pointed out that in the bird world the female never sings.

The idea is perhaps that lovely woman is to be wooed and won by music, but it isn't fair to reverse the proceeding.

I am not at all sure that the prohibitionists should not get after music next. It is very emotional either way. Lots of people admit that they can become quite intoxicated with music, while others it merely makes mad. And most any wife will admit that a musical husband is more hectic to live with than any ordinary convivialist. Of course, they call it temperament when a musical enthusiast gets heady, but the effect is often quite as alarming.

Prof. Rugh says all school-teachers should first take a course in matrimony and motherhood.

Oh, tush, professor! When one sees what a hash the average mother makes of her own lambkins it is too awful to think of giving them the exclusive teaching rights. If it wasn't for the counter-influence of the unbiased spinster in the schools it is ghastly to imagine how some of us would grow up.

The agitators have not yet got the old U.S.A. by the tail.

There is no such thing as an off year in politics any more.

It is reported that up in Ventura county thieves entered a place and stole $70,000 worth of liquor. That must have been at least three gallons.

There is so much criticism concerning the management of the great war that about the only redeeming feature is the fact that it was won.

14 Days to Prepare the Home for Thanksgiving

Barker Bros. will be closed all day Tuesday, Nov. 11. (Armistice Day)

—but that is ample time when you remember you have the helpfulness of this great store to draw upon.

Getting the home in readiness for Thanksgiving and the Holidays isn't at all a picnic for the housewife, with her multifarious cares, her family's needs to look after, and her social obligations to meet.

It is at this point that the helpfulness of Barker Bros. is most welcome. She cannot think of her home being other than immaculately tidy on Thanksgiving—of her table linens being other than the nicest—of her dinnerware and table appointments being other than charming — so, she must rely on the helpfulness of her home-furnisher to "set the stage for happiness" just as she relies on her caterer to serve the delicacies.

For a great many years this store has acted in an advisory capacity for housewives at their wit's end to know how best to prepare the home for Thanksgiving and its attendant joys.

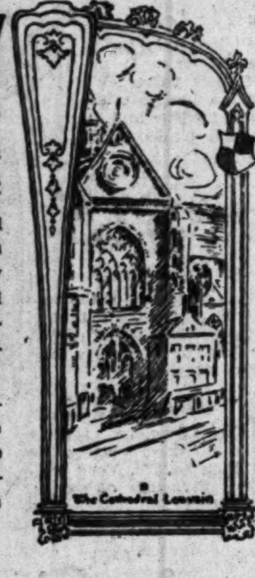
Being essentially furnishers of successful homes, we offer you a complete home-furnishing service based on sound judgment, merchandise of irreproachable quality, and fairness of prices.

Banish all thought of uneasiness and fear of not having everything "shipshape" on that glad day. Let us carry the burden of your home preparation problems.

In this one great store alone, you can attend to practically every home preparation requirement of Thanksgiving and the Holidays, and with dispatch.

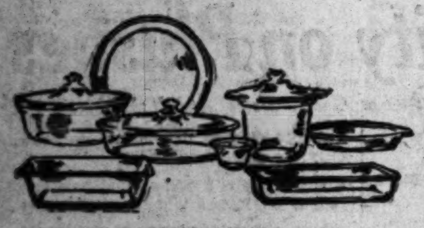
LOUVAIN

—a new 1847 Rogers Silverware Pattern in an imperishable name



Handsome Silverware is an adored possession and if you are in need at this particular time of this very necessary requisite for the beautifully-appointed dining table, then, the new Louvain pattern will persuade you that it should become yours.

This timely design typifies sturdy, inflexible character in its Flemish outline and graceful decoration. Made in one quality—the best—same as all 1847 Rogers Bros.' Plate. See our other designs in this tableware.



PYREX

Ideal Thanksgiving Baking Ware.

The flavor and nutrition of food is retained only when foods are properly cooked. These two important features, so important in culinary achievements, have meant that Science has perfected the means whereby food may not only be cooked in such a manner that none of its delicious flavor and nutriment is lost, but sanitation, less labor and less fuel are paramount virtues of the PYREX FIREPROOF BAKING DISHES.

Every practical shape and size for baking is made in Pyrex. They never discolor, rust, craze, dent or chip—EVERY PIECE IS GUARANTEED.

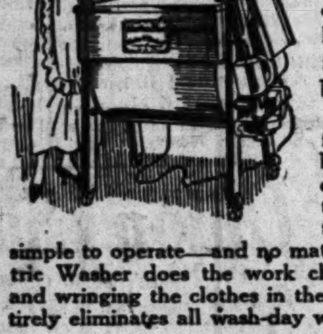
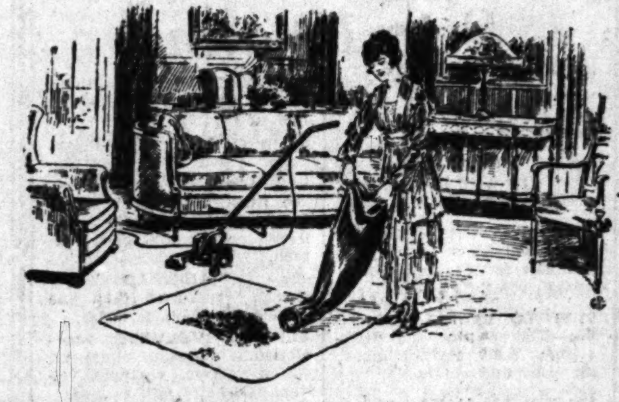
You Will Have Real Cause for Thanksgiving When You Own an Electric Washing and Wringing Machine.



Just imagine having your washing all done and on the line by 10:00 or 10:30 in the morning! Sounds almost too good to be true, doesn't it? But such is the delightful experience of hundreds of housewives who are the happy owners of Electric Washing and Wringing Machines bought at Barker Bros.

An Electric Washer will pay for itself in one year in laundry bills saved, besides assuring longer life to your clothes. It washes the heaviest garments as easily as the lighter ones and is so easy and simple to operate—and no matter how large the wash, the Electric Washer does the work cheerfully and efficiently, washing and wringing the clothes in the most approved manner, and entirely eliminates all wash-day worry.



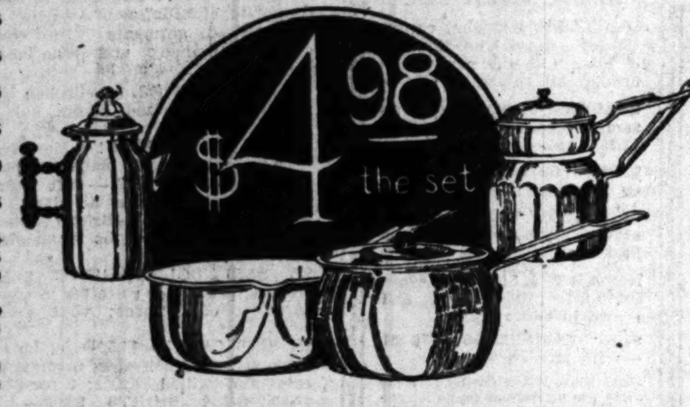
Thanksgiving Preparedness

With an OHIO-TUEC you can make your house all spick-and-span in short order without worry or fatigue.

Vacuum cleaners are as different in mechanical design and quality as are sewing machines. The OHIO-TUEC is a thoroughly reliable and efficient cleaner and it is built to last a lifetime.

The OHIO-TUEC brush is not electrically driven at high speed to beat, pound and wear your carpets, but depends for its superior efficiency on greater suction power.

When you buy an OHIO-TUEC at Barker Bros., you get a double guarantee with it— the makers guarantee it and we guarantee it also, and for one year will keep it in repair for you free of all charges. FREE DEMONSTRATION IN YOUR OWN HOME ANY TIME. Call Pico 1840 or 10423.



A Thanksgiving Suggestion—4-Piece 99% Pure Aluminum Sets—100 of them—at $4.98

The set comprises: One 6-cup percolator, one 1½-qt. rice boiler, one 6-qt. convex saucepan and one 4-qt. lipped saucepan—all 99% pure aluminum—utensils which if purchased individually would cost fully two-thirds as much again.

Compare the price of this set with like utensils of the cheapest enamelware and you will be all the more appreciative of the value.

Thanksgiving and New Linens Are Inseparable

If you ever want your table to look nice, it's at Thanksgiving, the one time of the year when you should have a new tablecloth. Barker Bros.' tablecloths are beautiful as are all of this store's table linens.

Don't forget that Barker Bros.' Linen Department is Headquarters for Christmas Shoppers, who seek Gifts of Unusual Character.

Nothing in a Home Can be a Source of Greater Joy and Comfort than a Good Fireplace.

For the fireplace we have a great variety of useful fixtures, andirons, basket grates, fire sets, screens, etc.

Here, also, are gas logs that so closely resemble real logs that it's difficult to discern the difference.

Then, there are fireplace heaters, coal vases, coal hods, log rollers, fuel boxes and other fireplace accessories.

Let Barker Bros. attend to your fireplace fixture needs.

LAST SUMMONS BY RED CROSS.

Only Two More Days Left in Membership Campaign.

Everybody Must Have Button by Armistice Date.

Woe Awaits Those Who Fail in Patriotic Duty.

Have you enrolled in the Red Cross for 1920?

Where's your Red Cross button?

These are the questions that are going to be asked tomorrow and Tuesday by 5000 ex-service men, members of the American Legion.

They will be in all parts of the city, downtown, at the parks and at the special Armistice Day celebrations, with keen eyes for the citizens who are not wearing Red Cross 1920 buttons. They know what the Red Cross did to help win the war. They know that the Red Cross has still a big duty in this reconstruction period.

After today, only two more days remain in which to enroll in the third Red Cross roll call for 1920. Armistice Day is the last. Scores of expert salesmen from the larger industrial organizations have also volunteered to help the Red Cross tomorrow and Tuesday. These men will be given districts where enrollments have not come up to the Los Angeles standard, and will wage a clean-up campaign.

MANY RECREANTS.

"Yesterday on the streets downtown, thousands of people were noted without 1920 Red Cross buttons," was the comment yesterday of Chairman Sylvester L. Weaver of the roll call.

"Are you one of them? If so, do not let another day go by without taking your dollar to a Red Cross booth, to headquarters, or to one of the precinct workers. Exchange it for a Red Cross button and membership for the coming year. It is the only call the Red Cross will make for funds. Upon its success depends entirely the issues of the Red Cross work for the coming year. Problems confronting the home service department alone call for these funds. These are problems that you as a citizen of Los Angeles will have to face later on unless the Red Cross is able to cope with them. They deal with the home conditions of the dependents of ex-service men and other citizens who are unable to meet the present-day conditions of living. They are problems upon which the futures of thousands of children depend."

IN THE CHURCHES.

Today the majority of the churches of Los Angeles will make another call for Red Cross members. Buttons and Red Cross window emblems will be sold by church committees, and many pastors will ask their congregations to make their enrollments 100 per cent.

Tuesday the Red Cross volunteer workers will attend every Armistice Day celebration, morning, afternoon and evening, and will watch for the citizens who are celebrating the event that Armistice Day represents, and who are not wearing the Red Cross honor emblem.

At the ball to be given at the Shrine Auditorium Tuesday night by the American Legion, a special part of the programme has been set aside to honor the American Red Cross. Red Cross girls will stage a tableau, depicting conditions as they were in France, and Chairman Roy Jones of the Los Angeles chapter and Mrs. Emma Goldman of the home service department will receive the special service flag that will be awarded to the organization.

Up to 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon the total number of memberships reported to local headquarters was 51,208.

SEEKS TO SET ASIDE HER HUSBAND'S GIFT.

NOT ENOUGH ESTATE PROPERTY FOR ALLOWANCE CONTRACT, WIDOW ASSERTS.

In a suit against the estate of her husband, Cassius M. Gay, a wealthy manufacturer, Mrs. Julia I. Gay, yesterday, set up the provisions of an agreement under which she was to receive $100 a month. Because there is not sufficient property to maintain the allowance, she asks that property her husband transferred to his son, Norman H. Gay, and others, be held in trust subject to her claim.

The alleged agreement was made in 1914, after Mr. and Mrs. Gay separated and a suit for divorce was filed, it is said. The suit was dismissed after the agreement was made. One clause of the agreement was in effect that Mr. Gay would provide in his will for the continued payments to his wife.

Mrs. Gay alleges that before his death, her husband transferred property to the son and others, leaving in the estate property that was not sufficient to pay the allowance.

CHARGES NEGLIGENCE.

Coroner's Jury Blames Pace for Fatal Auto Accident.

Criminal negligence on the part of W. A. Pace, a butcher, was charged by a Coroner's jury at Glendale yesterday after an investigation of the death of Mrs. Zenaide Poirier of this city. The jury returned a verdict that Mrs. Poirier came to her death as the result of "a fracture of the skull, caused by criminal negligence on the part of Mr. Pace, owner of the Ford car on wrong side of the road."

According to officers who investigated Pace turned his car so that it was across the road. Mr. Poirier crashed into it. The accident occurred on La Canada boulevard, near Montrose, on Wednesday.

Pace was represented by Attorney John L. Richardson and the prosecution by Deputy District Attorney Glover. Pace has already been accused of manslaughter and driving an automobile while intoxicated.

HOME NURSING CLASSES.

Home nursing classes for women are being organized by the Y.W.C.A. and will be held at headquarters, 944 South Main street, instead of at the association building as heretofore. The course consists of fifteen lessons. Morning and afternoon classes are given on Tuesdays and Fridays and night classes on Mondays.

SALE OF BOARD SHIPS ADVOCATED.

Marine Authority Says the Government Should Withdraw from Merchant Fleet Field and Outlines the Problems of Prices and Sea Insurance.

[The following information is furnished by a national authority on the subject of ocean shipping and may be depended upon as official and authoritative.]

On July 31, 1919, the tonnage of ocean-going ships owned and the tonnage to be received from the enemy aliens and distributed to the various Allied and associated powers was as follows:

	Deadweight tonnage.	Proposed distribution D.W.T.	Total.
United Kingdom	25,650,000	6,240,127	31,890,127
United States	9,150,000	....	9,150,000
Japan	3,225,000	106,078	3,331,078
France	2,550,000	542,445	3,092,445
Italy	1,620,000	538,426	2,158,426
Other allies	2,865,000	368,056	3,233,056
Total	45,060,000	7,795,132	52,855,132

Of the United States-owned ships 10 per cent., or 1,000,000 D.W.T., are wood, and roughly 9,000,000 D.W.T. are steel. The United States has under construction, and to be constructed under the present programme, 6,500,000 D.W.T., of which approximately 350,000 D.W.T. are wood.

When the present programme is completed, under the United States flag there will be roughly 16,550,000 D.W.T. ocean-going ships, of which the Shipping Board will have 12,830,000 D.W.T., less such sales as may have been made during the completion of the programme. Sales to date aggregate approximately 500,000 D.W.T.

NO INCREASE IN YEARS

While the world's tonnage, as shown by these figures, is approximately the same as on August 1, 1914, and while with the regular factor of increase added the tonnage would have been approximately 12,000,000 D.W.T. above the figures quoted, and while it is difficult to determine whether the world's need for tonnage is as great or greater than it would have been had the war not intervened, yet this factor is of very great importance.

While the ocean-going tonnage of ships is as great as on August 1, 1914, it is accepted that it is not more than 70 per cent. as effective as the tonnage of 1914; this, because of the treatment of the ships during the war, the very great need of repairs of the ships that have been badly used, and because of the unsettled labor conditions in the harbors and in the repair yards, resulting in slow turn-around and in repair delays.

Under the war emergency, wooden ships and small steel coal-burning ships were constructed in this country which were not suitable for the trans-Atlantic service of the United States, but are entirely effective vessels for small seas and coastwise traffic, and these ships should be sold for foreign account.

EXCESS OF "TRAMPS."

Another result of the emergency construction was the building of a number of larger steel vessels of slow speed and of the so-called tramp type, in excess of the needs of this country for that type of ship, and a part of this tonnage also should be sold for foreign account, where there will be a proper and satisfactory use of the same.

Of the small steel coal-burning vessels and the larger slow-speed tramp type, a tonnage of approximately 3,500,000 D.W.T. should be sold, which would leave under the United States flag approximately 13,000,000 D.W.T. suitable for general cargo business. In lieu of the ships so to be sold as indicated, the proceeds should be applied to the construction of a lesser number of the larger, faster and more completely-equipped ships of the passenger and cargo liner type, which should be oil-burning or Diesels.

The inability of the government, or any one organization, to successfully and satisfactorily operate any such tonnage of ships as that held by the Shipping Board has been proved beyond all question, and there is practically no disagreement on this subject.

The government should at once set up a definite plan for the sale of all ships—the low-speed, small ships for foreign account, and the remainder of the ships to American owners and operators, to remain under the American flag. To this end, the government should immediately make a complete schedule of prices of the different types and sizes, taking into consideration time, the conditions under which the various ships were constructed, the length of time in operation, availability for the particular service and proposed trade lines. The programme should contemplate completing sale of all the ships within five years.

PRICE FACTORS.

The three principal factors in determining prices at which the ships should be sold to private ownership and operation are:

(1) The present cost of construction of similar vessels.

(2) The charter rates—that is earning power—of similar vessels.

(3) The market price of similar vessels, as shown by unrestricted and unconditional sales of similar types of vessels in the world market.

The sale to private American owners should be made on terms that, while protecting the government, should make it possible for concerns other than the present American operators to purchase the same; that is to say, on terms that would encourage the establishment of new concerns in the ownership and operation of ships, and, in this connection, a plan has been submitted to Congress which contemplates the amortization of any possible high prices for the ships to the purchasers on the following lines:

The Treasury Department has fixed a depreciation, which is allowed in determining profits and taxes, of 5 per cent. This was based on peace conditions prior to the war and at a time when ship construction was at a very low cost.

The war conditions have brought about throughout the world apparently high costs of construction and the rapidly changing conditions of ocean traffic might in the near future result in a reduction of any ship values that would be very much in excess of the depreciation allowed.

AMORTIZATION FUND.

Just what amount of additional depreciation should be allowed in determining excess profit and taxes would be very difficult to determine, as no figures are available. The suggestion has been made that in addition to the depreciation of 5 per cent. the operator be permitted to charge as a part of his operating cost an amortization of 10 per cent. per annum for three years, that the amortization so set up be free from profit taxes and be treated as a fund, the operator either to apply a sum equivalent to such amortization in the purchase of ships under construction in American yards, or to the laying down of new ships in American yards.

This would mean that ... where a purchaser paid $200 per D. W. T. for a ship acquired from the Shipping Board, the same would stand on his books at the end of three years at $110 per D. W. T. World construction costs are generally, at least, equal to and in many instances higher than in the United States yards.

Thus the purchaser would have a ship, at the end of three years, at an estimated cost that would be fair under all conditions, and also in competition with ships constructed or purchased in other countries. This is based on the theory that at present the approximate average cost of steel cargo vessels runs from $165 to $180 per D. W. T. and that contracts can at present be made in British yards for eighteen months' delivery at $140 per D. W. T. with the provision in the contract, however, that the same is open on the question of shipyard wages and the cost of steel.

OPERATION COSTS.

A great deal of misinformation has been disseminated in relation to the cost of operating ships under the American flag. Attacks are made on the Seaman's Act and especially against the wage and living condition phase of the Seaman's Act. Andrew Furuseth, who was the real author of the bill, has always maintained that in its operation the seamen's and engineer's wages throughout the world, with the possible exception of Japan, would be brought to practically the same level. This has proved to be substantially correct. It is not generally known that wages are a comparatively small part of the operating cost of a ship and run from 7 per cent. to 14 per cent. of the total. Of the actual operating cost fuel is the largest item and the next largest is marine insurance.

The marine insurance of the world is almost entirely British controlled, now that Germany is out of the game. The ship owners, the inspectors, the ship registry concerns and the marine insurance concerns are all so interrelated, both in personnel and in ownership, that one organization is used for the benefit of the others, depending on just how HUGE IMPROVEMENTS AT HARBOR ARE OUTLINED.

Board Plans Extensions to Meet Estimated Growth; Vast Possibilities for Expansion Indicated.

Estimating that shipping at Los Angeles Harbor will develop within the next five years to a point where it will represent hundreds of millions of dollars, the Harbor Commission is already looking forward to early improvements and extensions which, it states, will require the expenditure of at least the $4,500,000 provided at a recent bond election.

Among the improvements will be the construction of 6000 feet of docks reaching from a point just north of the Southwestern Shipbuilding Company's plant to the yards of the Blinn Lumber Company. The Salt Lake line has a 1000-foot franchise in this region, and a new dock will be provided for it. These docks will be built as soon as the government widens the channel in that vicinity.

The Harbor Commission says that immediate requirements of commerce demand the deepening of the main channel and turning basin to a depth of thirty-five feet, and the development of the west basin. Extension of the breakwater will also be needed long before it can be provided, the members assert.

BIG OIL SHIPMENTS.

It is the opinion of the Harbor Commission that coast-to-coast commerce within the next five years will amount to more than 500,000 tons, valued at from $150,000,000 to $200,000,000. It has been pointed out that exports of oil from Los Angeles Harbor for the year ending last June were valued at $25,640,589.

Another oil company, which is building a refinery at the harbor at a cost of $2,000,000, says it will export 2,000,000 tons of oil a year if given proper facilities. These shipments would be worth $20,000,000. The value of the cotton crop of the Southwest this year is $43,000,000, and an agricultural survey of California indicates that 15,000,000 acres can be adapted to cotton culture. This gives some idea of the expansion possible in this one line, and forecasts the possibilities for cotton shipments.

The Harbor Commission estimates that the Goodyear Rubber Company will import to Los Angeles each year $32,000,000 worth of raw rubber. Citrus and deciduous fruit shipments amounting to 1,000,000 tons per year may be shipped by water to eastern markets. In addition, there are countless other products of the great Southwest which will move to market out of Los Angeles Harbor, and all of these opportunities, the Harbor Commission says, call for numerous improvements at the harbor in the near future.

Los Angeles Harbor is owned by the City of Los Angeles. It is free from anchorage or compulsory pilotage charge. The outer harbor is connected with the inner harbor by a channel 600 feet wide and twenty-nine feet deep, which passes through a turning basin 1400 feet wide and twenty-nine feet deep. It has a tidal range of five and one-half feet.

The anchorage consists of 500 acres, protected by a two-mile breakwater. There are twenty-five docks and wharves, fourteen being owned by the city and eleven by private interests. Twelve are covered docks and eleven are open wharves. Nineteen are on the inner harbor and six on the outer harbor. The total length of dockage on the water front is 33,460 feet. This amounts to more than six miles of operative dockage. The storage capacity amounts to 9,746,000 cubic feet. The railroad facilities are unequaled, the water front having a loading capacity of 716 freight cars, with dock trackage capacity sufficient to accommodate 2399 cars.

Three steam railroads and an interurban electric line reach the harbor. They are the Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Salt Lake line and Pacific Electric. Their combined freight yards are capable of storing 25,518 cars. All four roads have direct and interchangeable dock, warehouse and track connections throughout the harbor district, with facilities for loading or unloading from shipside to car.

establishment of the big sardine-canning factories here in recent years. The Nielson and Kittle Canning Company at the harbor is said to be the largest fish cannery in the world. It has a capacity of 7000 cases a day. There is another large sardine cannery at Long Beach. Norwegian capital is said to be extensively interested in fish-packing operations here.

REFRIGERATOR SHIPS.

Another shipping plan which is being actively considered here is the idea of establishing refrigerator lines with which to carry Southern California perishable fruits and vegetables to the Atlantic seaboard markets. This proposition has been under consideration by the California Fruit Growers' Exchange for several months, and it is something which may develop within the next twelve months, in the opinion of Earl Dezell, assistant general manager of the exchange.

The shipment of perishable California fruits to the Atlantic seaboard in refrigerator steamers, by way of the canal, is a matter which can be argued on several sides, fruit shippers say. It has the disadvantage of not making it possible for the distributor to lay the cargo down at intermediate points, such as Pittsburgh, Indianapolis, Chicago and Omaha, but on the other hand it may offer cheaper rates by water, with the possibility of laying cargoes down in such ports as Philadelphia, Boston and New York. Special dock equipment would be needed to handle precooled fruits and place them where they could be sold by auction in the usual manner. Such steamers, it is believed, could lay the fruit down on the Atlantic seaboard in about thirteen days, which is practically the running time of the Fruit Express by rail to New York or Boston. Shipping by water, the exchange would avoid the possibility of having cars caught in snow blockades during the winter. Hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of oranges and lemons have in the past been destroyed by freezing in this way.

Fruit distributors assert that such a line of steamers as New York navigation men propose to establish here would be capable of moving a good share of the citrus shipments in the winter and spring, and could take care of apricot and peach shipments in the summer, as well as the Yucaipa Valley and Watsonville apple crops during the fall months. In short, it could be made an all-the-year-'round refrigerator boat service direct to Atlantic Coast cities. The capital is ready to establish the service and is calling upon the citrus distributors to sign up for sufficient space to justify securing the necessary vessel.

TO AUSTRALIA.

The recent visit of Sir J. McEwan Hunter, agent-general of Queensland, Australia, to this city developed the fact that there is a strong probability that a direct-to-Australia combination freight and passenger boat line will be established, with home offices here. Hr. Hunter says that the shipment of a cargo of wheat to England by way of Los Angeles Harbor during the closing months of the war proved that Los Angeles is nearer to Australia than any other port in the United States. He points out that passenger travel from Australia to England is bound to be heavy during the next few years, and that a majority of the people would prefer to travel via the United States and avail themselves of an opportunity to visit Grand Canyon while making the trip across the country by rail to New York. He lays stress upon the importance of the raw materials of Queensland to the industries of the United States, and expresses the belief that some sort of direct navigation service between here and Brisbane, Australia, can and will be established within the next year.

Among other possibilities are prospects for the establishment of direct connections with the largest Japanese navigation company in the world. Representatives of this line have been here recently looking over the prospects, being particularly interested in cotton business, it is reported.

English shipping interests are talking of establishing two lines—one from Great Britain and another from some European port direct to Los Angeles Harbor by way of the canal. There is talk of another line to run here from Vladivostok, with still others to operate between here and Boston and Philadelphia. Altogether, there are not less than ten or a dozen live prospects, with four already established.

TO THE ORIENT.

The United States Shipping Board has already allocated to the Los Angeles-Pacific Navigation Company the West Mingo and the West Mintop, two 8800-ton steel freighters which are in course of construction at the plant of the Los Angeles Shipbuilding & Drydock Company. Both boats will be delivered before the middle of next month, and at least two other vessels will be allocated to the navigation company in the very near future, making a monthly sailing to the Orient possible the year 'round. The company instituted its service to the Orient several weeks ago with the sailing of the West Cajoot.

The Los Angeles Pacific Navigation Company was organized in December, 1918, by a group of prominent Los Angeles business men. L. D. Sale, former president of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, is president of the company; Paul Shoup of the Southern Pacific Railway, is vice-president; the directors are Willis H. Booth, Stoddard Jess, Gen. M. H. Sherman, Oscar Mueller, Leo Chandler, Edward Casey, William M. Garland, Reese Llewellyn, George I. Cochran, Fred L. Baker, Marius de Brabant and Dan Murphy.

EXPERT FORECAST.

Walter S. Wheaton, traffic manager for the company, who left for the Orient Tuesday for the purpose of establishing a string of important branch offices with American agents in charge, says that Southern California is experiencing the dawn of a new era which identifies her, not as the heart of a rich citrus-growing belt, but as an important industrial community with a harbor which is destined to play an important part in the shipping world.

"The outlook for marine business, so far as Los Angeles is concerned, is as good as that of any other Pacific Coast port," says Mr. Wheaton. "There is already a big shipping business here. Cargoes sufficient to load vessels for months ahead are already assured, and with such immense manufacturing enterprises as the Goodyear Rubber Company locating here we may expect to see ocean freight business develop miraculously during the next year or two.

"It is important to consider that 90 per cent. of the ocean freight going out of the port of Seattle originated from points east of the Rockies. That business can just as well be shipped out of Los Angeles Harbor, because the railroad mileage in many cases would be less, and the shipper would be insured against delay resulting from snow blockades and strikes, both of which we are free from, owing to favorable climatic conditions and open-shop principles. Los Angeles Harbor ought to be getting a big share of the shipping now enjoyed by Seattle, Portland and San Francisco."

This company will operate a fleet of 8800-ton steel merchant vessels in direct trans-Pacific trade, plying from Los Angeles to points in the Orient. Heretofore the Southern California manufacturer desiring to ship goods to the Orient has had to send them to San Francisco or Seattle by freight and incur heavy railroad charges in order to get them to the boats. The Los Angeles Pacific Navigation Company is booking cargoes to and from points in the Orient, and contiguous territory on through bills of lading. The principal ports of entry are Kobe, Japan; Shanghai and Hankow, China; Singapore, Strait Settlements, and Manila. Subagencies will be established at Bangkok, Siam; Iloilo, P. I.; Batavia, Dutch East Indies; Darien, and all the other leading centers of the East.

The outbound cargoes of this company, according to Mr. Wheaton, will consist mainly of kerosene, gasoline, cotton, iron and steel products and general merchandise. This will enable the exporters and importers in Southern California, Arizona and contiguous territory, particularly, to do a direct business with the Orient.

"The opening of the port of Los Angeles as a world shipping base offers to the American trade at large a new opportunity to increase trade by avoiding congestion and delay in transit. The birth of trans-Pacific shipping here will make possible the great trade expansion which this country will shortly require," is the way Mr. Wheaton puts it.

FROM FAR EAST.

He states that cargoes coming here from the Orient will be made up chiefly of crude rubber, dammar and copal gums used in the manufacture of varnish, rattan, burlap, jute, hemp, sisal, tea, matting, tin, silk, hides, tropical fruits, copra, raw sugar and the many unusual and peculiarly oriental finished products.

Other trade lanes he points out, will naturally be mapped, and are even now in process of development. For example, a service to Oceania, which is so located geographically that it is closer to Los Angeles Harbor than to any other world seaport of consequence.

"The establishment of direct service to Europe by way of the Panama Canal has already been partially accomplished," officials of the company say, and with this will come the opportunity for sales of cotton and other commodities peculiar to Southern California and Arizona, in quantities almost beyond comprehension.

STATUS OF WORLD SHIPS.

the pendulum is swinging at the time. The insurance on ships flying the American flag is so largely in the hands of British companies that the actual amount of really American controlled marine insurance is almost negligible, though it is a fact that marine insurance is the combings of the profits of the ship industry, and the foreign controlled companies handle the business through brokers' offices in such a way that they neither carry reserves nor pay anything to the State or Federal governments because of the business done in this country, and hundreds of millions of dollars now go and will continue to go to our British competitors unless American marine insurance is established on as strong a footing as that of Great Britain.

INSURANCE NEEDS.

If the United States is to have a merchant marine, the marine insurance must be American, at least the American merchant marine insurance must be on a footing where its competition with British insurance is actual and not camouflage. In order to make it possible to maintain a merchant marine, the marine insurance must be put on a very strong basis.

As a part of a properly operated marine insurance, it is obvious that the American Register Association must be put on an equally sound footing, and this is being done with very great rapidity. This is, of course, necessary because it is, after all, the heart of the marine insurance business.

The present mortgage law is not satisfactory to bankers or investors. A bill is now pending for the amendment of the law which, if passed, will give proper protection to bankers and investors. No real opposition now exists against the proposed amendment to the mortgage law. With this law passed the investment bankers and the investing public of the type that has in the past invested in railroad (both steam and electric) and hydro-electric securities, must be shown that investments in ship mortgage securities are in every respect as satisfactory as those in the other transportation and in power and light developments.

Many of the port cities and even cities away from the water are interested in maintaining definite lines for the distribution of products, made either in their respective communities or in their vicinity. It is believed that with a proper schedule of prices and proper terms of payment established with the bankers, and the investing public alive to the value of ship securities, the residents of the various cities of the country where products are manufactured for foreign shipment will immediately, in order to protect themselves, become purchasers and operators of ships.

All Sorts of Products are Made by Newcomers.

In one year new industries have been established in Los Angeles sufficient in number to make a small city and to supply the greater part of its needs, according to a compilation completed yesterday of the establishments starting business since November 11, 1918.

There are 216 new firms and they represent almost as many commodities. Figures have not been completed on the amount of capital invested, but this will be large, as many of the establishments got under way fully equipped in large factories and with scores of employees.

A large number of these industries were located in the Los Angeles metropolitan district directly through the efforts of the industrial department of the Chamber of Commerce, which, since the close of the war, has been waging a campaign to build up the output of manufactured goods in Southern California. Many of the new firms, constructed buildings of their own and in doing so, provided ample room for extensions which they believe will be necessary in the future. The list of new industries does not include additions to existing plants or increases of output, which have been numerous following the close of the war.

ALL ARE PRODUCERS.

It is significant that the list is not composed of prospective industries, but those which already have established themselves for business. Large enterprises like the Goodyear plant, which will not be ready for business for months, are not included among those listed for the past year, but will be in those of next year, after they are prepared to produce.

A check made by an enthusiastic member of the manufacturers' committee at the Chamber of Commerce yesterday, indicated that a citizen of Los Angeles could start from an empty house in the morning, without breakfast and without clothing, and soon equip himself with practically all the average man needs from the new industries of the past year alone. He could obtain any kind of clothing from the costumes worn in the days of the Pharaohs to the modern dress suit. For breakfast he could have cereal, coffee, home-made doughnuts, all sorts of canned fruits, mineral water and canned fish and meats.

EVERYTHING NEEDED.

He could ride to his office in any of several kinds of auto trailers, which he could lubricate with a number of different greases and oils. He also could add to his trailer practically everything in auto accessory equipment.

If his office needed attention he could purchase desk, chairs, new-style flooring and fancy furniture.

For luncheon he could have tamales, pastry, candies, various soft drinks, bread, cake and numerous other products of the delicatessen, followed by a new Los Angeles-made cigar.

If it happened to be his wife's birthday, he could order a phonograph sent to her home or new dustless flooring, silk underwear, a fine dress or suit, a machine for sealing cans, by-products of citrus fruits, a trunk, or violin, kitchen equipment, an automatic water heater, furs, jewelry, or marshmallow cream.

LIST A LONG ONE.

He could find breakfast foods, candy specialties, hardwood veneers, crullers, laundry blueing, buttons, cloak, statuary, cake, silk shirtwaist, fancy glassware, hats, picture frames, canned goods, sheet-metal products, toys, hospital supplies, suit cases, traveling bags, reed and rattan furniture, canned fish, chocolates, floor lamps, rubber heels, auto engine parts, safety gate latches, store fixtures, sport apparel, macaroni, spaghetti, face cream, chiffonier, draperies, upholstery, tents, gas engine, ladder, ironing table, tea, furniture polish, ice cream, aprons, middies, jellies, extracts, potato chips, calcimines and photographic chemicals.

Should the man be able to acquire an old auto chassis, he can have it outfitted with equipment of several varieties. He may prepare himself for any eventuality. If he should unsuccessfully try to beat a Pacific Electric train across the track, the latest embalming fluids and coffin styles are obtainable by his friends and he may ride to his last resting place in a new and improved hearse top.

RARE BOOKS GIFT TO UNIVERSITY LIBRARY.

HOFFMAN COLLECTION INCLUDES VALUABLE WORKS ON ART AND OLD PRINTS.

A collection of rare books, many of which are now out of print, has been presented to the library of the University of Southern California by Francis A. Hoffman of 2722 La Salle avenue. The books are now being arranged in the main library of the university and are attracting much attention.

Several of the volumes date back to 1640 and many of them include rare book-plates. The collection includes valuable books on art, particularly a complete set of Landseer's works, "Masterpieces in Industrial Art and Sculpture," the latter set having appeared at the International Exhibition in 1862. Several valuable old volumes on Greek and Roman statues are also included, the art department of the university being very fortunate in receiving these books for reference work.

The collection includes 130 bound volumes of the New Monthly Magazine and Literary Journal from 1821 to 1865, and the Edinborough Review.

Mr. Hoffman is a veteran of the Civil War, and was a well-known attorney in Illinois before coming to Los Angeles. His father served as Governor of Illinois.

Mr. Hoffman has always been devoted to books. His library of 20,000 volumes was destroyed by fire several years ago, and his present large collection of books and rare paintings has been made since that time.

ANOTHER FILM COMBINE HERE.

Ince, Neilan, Dawn, Sennett and Tourneur will Join Forces Next Year.

Thomas H. Ince, Maurice Tourneur, Allen Dwan, Mack Sennett and Marshall Neilan will be associated in the motion-picture business beginning next September 1, according to an announcement made yesterday. Rumors to that effect had been current some days.

The producers stated that they will not divulge details of their plans at present, but added that they will confine their efforts to "superproductions." It also was hinted that their method of distribution will be an innovation.

BIG TELESCOPE "MAKING GOOD."

telescope, when it is arranged for work at the upper end of the tube, sits on a movable platform, which travels along a track on the face of the main arches of the observatory dome. The platform also moves up and down, like an elevator.

DRIVEN BY CLOCK.

For the purpose of making the telescope follow the stars in their apparent motion from east to west across the heavens, a great driving clock is used. Not an every-day clock, however, as one may well expect in this observatory of big things. The clock is six feet high and is driven by a massive weight of one and a half tons.

The Mt. Wilson observatory was established for three objects:

(1.) The study of the structure of the stellar universe—the positions and motions in space of the stars and nebulae.

(2.) The discovery, by study and observation of celestial objects, of facts throwing light on the question of the origin and life history of the stars. Where did the stars and planets come from? How were they formed? To what condition will they develop?

(3. By laboratory experiments creating conditions as to heat, for example, which will aid in explaining spectrum observations of solar and stellar phenomena. In this way the temperature and pressure in stellar atmospheres and the nature of the magnetic fields in the sun can be determined.

TESTING "RED" STARS.

An instance of the work of this nature done is seen in the discovery at Mt. Wilson observatory and laboratories of the composition and reduced temperature of the so-called "red" stars. It had long been agreed that the stars appear red because they are cooler than the sun; that some of them are old stars, in fact, which are cooling off. Proof was needed, however. The spectra of the light from these stars were photographed at Mt. Wilson. Then in an electric furnace at the laboratories, the same metals observed in the stars were examined at various temperatures. Finally, it was found that the characteristic features of the spectra of these red stars can be produced only at comparatively low temperatures. The stars are thus shown to be cooler than our sun, which is itself a star.

Thus the laboratory experiments interpret the stellar life as caught through the telescope, and there is laid before the dwellers of the earth the growing army of facts concerning the stellar universe and the solar system in which we live.

Director Hale in his book, "Ten Years' Work on a Mountain Observatory," explains that the astronomers on Mt. Wilson, as everywhere else, are seeking to make discoveries that will assist in answering such questions as: "What was the origin of this earth on which we live? The earth is one of several planets moving about the sun, but how was the earth formed? How were its constituent parts separated from the great vaporous mass which, as most astronomers believe, once united the planets and the sun? By what process, extending over millions of years, have the intensely hot solar gases condensed toward a center, leaving behind those rotating and revolving spheres, the planets and their satellites? What is the nature of the central sun, on which our lives depend? What is its relationship to other stars, and what part does it play in the universe? How is this universe organized, what bodies does it comprise, what is its structure, and what are its bounds?

"If processes of creation and evolution are still at work within it, may we not expect to find existing examples of the various stages through which our own solar system has passed? And may we not hope, by learning the relationship of stars in moving groups, and by tracing these groups back to their former positions in space, to reconstruct a picture of the universe as it was long before the solar system had taken form?"

These are but a few of the expressions which go toward making up the ideal set by the astronomers at Mt. Wilson. And is it not possible, with the success of the world's largest telescope now assured, that giant strides will be taken in solving some of these problems, and that millions of stars now beyond reach will be recorded in the outer boundaries of the stellar universe?

SWIMMING POPULAR.

Many Girls Learn in Month at the Y.W.C.A. Classes.

A total of 1612 women and girls learned to swim in the plunge at the Y.W.C.A. Building during October, a report yesterday revealed. A new course in the gymnasium now being organized includes twenty-four lessons in gymnasium work and twelve lessons in swimming.

Club classes have been interested in swimming. A group of sixteen to twenty girls form a club and receive instruction in swimming at a reduced rate. These classes may be formed at any time and appointments made for lessons.

Children learn to swim on Saturday. The plunge is full and overflowing for three hours Saturday mornings, with children.

When the Dining Room's on Dress Parade

—on Thanksgiving Day, for instance—the question of the dining-room furniture takes on an aspect of unusual importance.

And there's hardly a feeling more exhilarating than the sense of knowing that your dining-room furniture is a tribute to tradition and a correct interpretation of your ideals.

How much difference between the pride of ownership you feel in a dining suite of inartistic age and mediocrity and that inspired by such a suite as we have pictured here!

It is of walnut, with one of the correct new draw-board tables, a superbly simple, lovely sideboard, serving table and chairs of satisfying comfort.

One beauty of this pattern is its graceful suitability to dining-rooms of limited size; another is its moderation in the matter of price.

There are so many new creations in Dining-Room Furniture now—so many you will love that we're very eager indeed to show them all to you—before Thanksgiving!

Color is Vibrant in New Fibre Furniture

The prettiest Fibre Furniture by far that we have ever had the pleasure of displaying in our ever-fascinating Reed Department!

There's a dream of a wee magazine stand in pearl gray and gold that would be an exquisite gift for a dainty lady. A certain day bed is all frosted blue with gold shining through and cushions of lustrous damask in the very same colors.

There are sets complete in two-tone gray or blue; there is everything imaginable in frosted brown, including a luxurious chaise longue with mulberry velvet cushion. There's a gay little tea wagon in purple, touched up with clear, pale green.

Indeed, you'll be enchanted with all the new Fibre Furniture at Barker Bros.' now!

Since it's the Furniture that Plays the "Leads" in your living-room, why not dress it for the part and throw the spotlight there?

Perhaps you have already. Perhaps yours is one of those exquisite living-rooms that have soft, neutral-toned and yet responsive paper on the walls—floor-covering blessed with a plain, warm, unpatterned surface—and furniture that sings!

Let's half close our eyes and imagine coming into the room sketched above. The wall paper is putty-colored, with a faint gold glow. The rug is rich, dull taupe in shade. The lamps and pictures and drapery are—whatever you choose.

But the davenport is wine-red velvet—and the smaller chair is cushioned in a blending tone of blue with background of dull gold—and the tall wing chair is covered in an interesting hand-woven tapestry, subduedly colorful.

Our long, intense experience in planning inviting, satisfying living-rooms makes us appreciate the effectiveness of a responsive but unobtrusive background, high-lighted with furniture that sings its beauty and smiles its invitation to rest and comfort.

Barker Bros.' own-make overstuffed furniture offers you infinite promise of restfulness and allows the widest, most fascinating latitude for personality and character in its coverings.

RADIUM STARS ON MAPS.

Wonderful Charts of Night Heavens Made by New Plan of Scientist Here.

ment of the alpha particles of radium can be seen many feet away, a wonderful sight to behold. Most of the radium today is found in Colorado and Utah. Some of its tremendous power is grasped by the visitor to this finely-equipped little observatory, upon reading the notes placarded above the radioscopes, as for instance: "It has been calculated that in one gram of radium there is sufficient energy to lift 1,000,000 tons through a height of 900 feet, or, in other words, forty United States battleships, each weighing 25,000 tons, 900 feet into the air. However, it takes at least 2450 years as a minimum estimate for the radium to give off this amount of energy."

On the first floor of the observatory is the largest meteorite west of Chicago. It weighs 357 pounds and was found near Canyon Diablo, Arizona. Here also are fragments from that greatest known meteor, brought by Admiral Perry from Cape York, Greenland, and now deposited in the National History Museum, New York City. On this ground floor is also neatly shelved a large and valuable geological library.

On the second floor are 500 photographic prints covering many departments of astronomical work and more than 1100 lantern slides. Many of the slides were made at the Clark institution, but there are also the finest results from the Mt. Wilson, Yerkes, Lick, Lowell and Harvard observatories.

MINIATURE WORLDS.

Suspended from the ceiling on this second floor of the Clark observatory are models of the eight planets of our solar system made to scale with a circular ring upon the floor, almost forty-one feet in circumference, which represents the sun. The larger models are of wood, the smaller of brass, and all have been painted by Dr. Baumgardt in precisely the way the planets appear through a good telescope.

Beneath on the platform is a planetarium, illustrating the weekly positions of the planets and demonstrating many astronomical facts relating to the earth, sun and moon, their positions and motions.

On a large map of Los Angeles, that hangs on a wall in this room, Dr. Baumgardt has worked out a plot which gives a most comprehensive idea of the relation of the planets to the earth. With the Clark observatory representing the sun, Neptune (seven inches in diameter in the model) would be located at Glendale or Playa del Rey, both places about twelve miles from the observatory. Mars (one-half inch in diameter in the model) would be located either five or six blocks from the observatory, as this planet varies in its distance during its rotations.

MORE MECHANISMS.

On this second floor also is the Maltick Ellurian mechanism which shows the model of the moon, sun and earth in their revolutions, a superbly accurate machine.

Another invention by Dr. Baumgardt is a mechanical contrivance which shows the revolutions of the double-double or the four suns in the constellation Lyra.

On the third floor is the six-inch refracting telescope, with its driving clock. With a telescope of this size many of the most important astronomical discoveries in the past have been made. This telescope stands on a structural steel foundation embedded many feet below the ground in a concrete block twelve feet square, and not the slightest vibration is experienced, although the West Adams-street cars run not 200 feet away. The accurate and beautiful mounting of the telescope can be easily operated from the eye-end. Accessories to this telescope include a finder with an unusually large field of view, eight eye-pieces, a diagonal reflecting prism for use when observing objects in the zenith, and two polarizing eye-pieces for gazing directly at the sun without smoke-glass eye-pieces.

When Senator Clark is in Los Angeles, he spends many of his evenings in his son's remarkable little observatory.

Museum Gets "Thoughts of the Sea," Winner at Art Exhibition.

The Museum of History, Science and Art has purchased the first-prize picture from the California Art Club's tenth annual exhibition, which was held in the main gallery of the museum in October. "Thoughts of the Sea" was awarded the first Clarence A. Black prize of $150 offered for the best painting in the exhibition, and the artists and critics as well as the general public have been unanimous in its praise. Satisfaction will be expressed that it is to belong permanently to the people of Los Angeles county.

Mr. Cahill is well known in California as well as in New York, having come from the latter place about five years ago. He has won numerous other honors besides the present one, among them the William T. Evans prize at the Salmagundi Club in 1912, the Vezin prize at the same club in 1913, the J. S. Ackerman prize, California Art Club in 1917, and figure prizes at the Sacramento Exposition in 1917 and 1918. Last year he was associated with the University of Kansas as instructor in the art department, but has returned to Los Angeles to make his home here.

FOUR-STRIPE MAJOR

Maj. Alvin J. Bayley, Medical Corps, United States Army, who went to France with the Twenty-eighth Infantry, one of the first American organizations sent to Europe when this country entered the war, is in Los Angeles visiting his father, A. A. Bayley, 2610 West Avenue 31. The major is a native of California, having been born and raised at Wilmington.

He went to Europe with Gen. Pershing, with the first 1000 Americans sent over. He was a lieutenant at that time, but was later promoted to the rank of captain and subsequently received his majority.

When the Twenty-eighth Infantry was sent to the front, Capt. Bayley was placed in charge of an ambulance detachment of 150 men, and he established the first ambulance station in the Toul sector.

During the two years he was in France the major had many exciting experiences. He was in danger of being captured several times and was exposed to numerous artillery attacks and airplane bombing expeditions by the enemy.

Maj. Bayley received his education in this city. He graduated from the Los Angeles High School and later attended the University of California, where he graduated in medicine. He practiced his profession a short time in this city, then took the examination for entrance to the Army War College at Washington. After graduating he was made a lieutenant

Emphasizing All the Sentiments of the Holiday Season
ARMISTICE DAY commends SINCERITY in CHRISTMAS GIVING

A LITTLE over a year ago our homes were threatened, the lives of our sons were in jeopardy, our very liberty was at stake.

Then, through the magnificent efforts of our people, backed by all the resources of this nation and those of our Allies, the Armistice was signed November eleventh, nineteen-eighteen.

In it we were given guaranty of the possession of our homes, the safety of our sons and the liberty of our institutions.

Whereas, before this date everything was in darkness and in doubt, the signing of the Armistice brought assurance and light.

And so, whereas we have, for 143 years, celebrated the Fourth of July as the liberty day of the people of the United States, we shall now celebrate the Eleventh of November as the liberty day of the world.

And although we shall still rejoice to celebrate the last Thursday in November as Thanksgiving day for the people of the United States, next Tuesday will be a day of Thanksgiving to God in the name and for the sake of all the people in the world.

So Armistice Day is bigger than all those holidays that are merely national—a day for larger gratitude and greater joy.

Barker Bros.' store, warehouses and factories will remain closed all day Tuesday, November Eleventh.

[Signed] W. A. Barker.

[Signed] Chas. H. Barker

To give from the heart is easy when the heart is full—of gratitude and happiness and love.

Armistice Day, Thanksgiving Day, Christmas—so the holidays ascend the scale, gathering strength from each other and joining in the climax, December Twenty-fifth.

Because, after all, what has made the festival of Christmas live and what has made it worth-while all through the years and never "an old story" is the SPIRIT of Christmas—the spirit of brotherly-kindness, the spirit of sacrifice, the spirit of peace and joy and thanksgiving.

And that same spirit animates the holiday that marks the first anniversary of "Peace Day" as well as the holiday we call "Thanksgiving."

So the beautiful "Christmas spirit" is already abroad and will control the choosing of gifts in all these days.

That GIFTS FOR THE HOME are gifts of supreme sincerity nobody can deny—and that Barker Bros.' immense institution of furniture and everything contributive to happy home-making is a wonderfully satisfying place to find joy-bringing home-gifts is something we think you'll delight in finding out.

First Aid to Movers is Our Exchange Department

It takes the things you don't want and applies them as part payment on things you do.

The furniture that doesn't "fit" your new home is welcome in Barker Bros.' Exchange Department—someone else may be glad to get it.

Please let us help you "weed out" the uncongenial furniture in your home. Phone our Exchange Department Manager and we will call upon you.

Who Likes Stories?

Whoever does will want to come to Barker Bros.' STORY HOUR for boys and girls—free to all our little friends each Wednesday afternoon at 2 and every Saturday at 11 in the morning.

Beautiful as Any Art Exhibit

—"and stacks more understandable"—is the way we've heard our MODEL HOMES described by beauty-loving twentieth-century home-makers. One strong charm is their hominess—another is their practicability. You are cordially invited to visit them at your pleasure.

A Better Mattress to Put You in Trim for the Holidays —is a very good "start-off" for the strenuous weeks of shopping and festivity now beginning.

Barker Bros.' own-make Mattresses have gained a popularity which, in spite of the good reasons we know for it, is so great it honestly amazes us.

But our immaculately modern factory is pledged to supply all the Mattresses our customers demand—we want everyone to have them.

If you haven't slept on a Barker Bros.' Mattress, let us tell you.

The supremacy of any Barker Bros.' Mattress is its perfect, ineffable COMFORT—the quality of comfort inseparable from restful sleep.

Barker Bros.' own-make Box Springs have virtues exceptional, which we can easily explain when you come in to see them.

Twinklim!

FOR THOUSANDS OF YEARS TWINKLIM RODE THE STARS, laughing and pranking his way through space. Then it happened, not so very long ago, that TWINKLIM ran into another star, breaking it in many pieces that whirled down, down, down to the Land of Never.

"See what thou hast done!"—chided Old Mother Moon, "thou shalt ride the stars no more."

"Alas," cried TWINKLIM. "What may I do to atone?"

"Go thou to the planet called Earth. On it live many little children. Go then, choose thy day and bring happiness to them. In this way shall you atone."

The Christmas Season, the Star-time of the year, was chosen by Twinklim for visiting the Earth. He found so many little children in so many different cities that he decided to visit but one city every Christmas.

"Whichever I find to be the most beautiful city, that city shall I visit first. And in that city shall I place the Real Toyland."

So he came to Los Angeles — your town, little girl, and your town, little boy. And where do you think he set down the Real Toyland?

In a wonderful, fine, big store called Barker Bros.'

He sprinkled star-dust on all the toys that they might talk to him in his own language.

He talked to the big Baby Doll, the dearest, cuddliest baby doll you ever saw; he took a stroll with the Walking Doll, who walks just like a real child; he played with the Little Girl Doll with the pretty soft hair and eyes that close, the one who wears such pretty dresses.

"I never saw such lovely dolls," TWINKLIM whispered to Santa Claus, "why they are just what little girls want. I have been all over Los Angeles and I have found no others so squeezable and so lovable as these."

Then TWINKLIM went over to the books—but he will tell you about the books in another story—and also about the cunning Teddy Bears that squeak when you pinch their furry ears — and about the wonderful tool chests with real tools in them—and about the doll beds and doll trunks and autos and express wagons and choo-choo cars.

TWINKLIM will be waiting for you in Barker Bros.' Real Toyland tomorrow afternoon between 1 o'clock and 5. He's already whispering to the toys and telling them all about you. For he knows you well. Many times has he played with you in your dreams though you may not remember. His real name is the Prince of Fun. Twinklim is waiting now for you to come and find him—

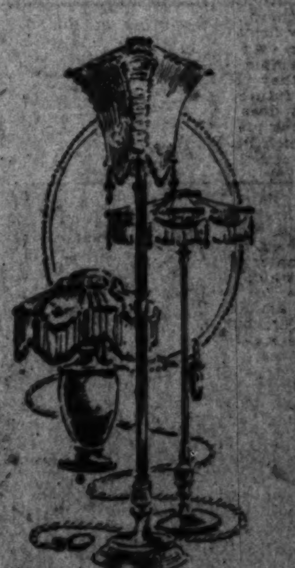
A Luminous Christmas —gifted with Lamps



Light belongs to Christmas—starlight and firelight and lamplight.

And so Lamps are sure to be agreeable Gifts, happily received.

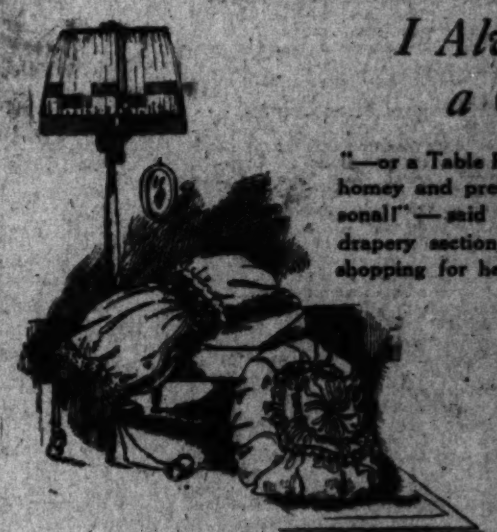
Lamps are like flowers in the home—glowing, inspirational. Only Lamps do not fade and die with the day, but renew their radiance every evening and make dusk and darkness something to look forward to.

So we are rejoiced to tell you that our Picture and Gift Department is simply bursting and brimming over with lamps of originality, personality and unimagined beauty!

There are Floor Lamps in new designs, "piano" size and of three-quarter height; Davenport or Reading Lamps with smart flat shades; parchment shaded Iron Table Lamps; metal Table Lamps with glass shades; enchanting little Lamps, for desk, bedside table or console. An Iron Torchere with mellow parchment shade may be placed in a corner of a room or a pair may flank the fireplace and lend picturesque Old World atmosphere to the whole dwelling.

Oh, there is such a wonderful wealth of ways to make this a luminous Christmas in your home and the homes of those you love—you'll see for yourself in Barker Bros.' Art and Gift Department, where the thoughtful choosing of moderately priced offerings is already well under way.

"When in Doubt I Always Choose a Cushion"



"—or a Table Runner or something else that's homey and pretty and feminine and yet personal!"—said a lady visiting Barker Bros.' drapery section on an errand of Christmas shopping for her own particular friends.

It's a hard thing to analyze and diagram in cold print, but somehow Christmas seems more like Christmas to a woman when she has lots of those beautiful gifts that are sensible and usable and yet just a bit foolishly frivolous, too. An extra silver tassel or two on a Table Scarf or a few more frills than are exactly necessary on a fluffy big Cushion mean Christmas completeness to a feminine woman—just as the very greatest number of ruffles on her party dress or the very longest possible stems on her debutante roses mean "coming out" completeness to a feminine young girl.

The Cushions now so fascinately plentiful at Barker Bros.' are the sort women will adore to get as Christmas gifts. They are colorful, chic, whimsical, appealing—they are round and oval and square and triangular; wasp-shaped and imitative of saddle-bags—they are of all sizes and of all fabrics, to fit all rooms, all tastes, all moods!

And the Table Runners and Scarfs and Covers of all types are equally diversified and will prove equally alluring—to the seeker after Christmas gifts that cannot fail to give a woman Christmas bliss!

We Are Exclusive Selling Agents for Beverly Hills—The Largest and Most Beautiful High Class Residential Subdivision in California

In Beverly Hills there is absolute protection against the apartment house and other business buildings now encroaching upon so many other splendid districts which a few years ago were styled "strictly residential." Here building restrictions are iron-clad and they cover the period to 1940.

Sewer, water, electric light, gas, paved streets, sidewalks, curbs, street lights, broad parkways bordered with palms and flowering shrubbery are all installed and paid for. The lots are from 80 to 100 ft. wide and from 150 to 350 ft. deep to 20-foot alleys. All wires for telephones and electric lights as well as service to residences are confined to alleys.

A Beverly Hills homesite at the present price of lots, which is less than any other subdivision of like character in or near Los Angeles, is one of the best purchases of the present day. Lots 80x182 within 2 blocks of the hotel for $2200. A few choice villa sites of several acres each are still available. Substantial discount where building is started within 60 days.

GISH COMPANY MAKES ENTREE.

Wild Scramble for Homes Features Arrival.

Two Striking Successes by Los Angeles Men.

Griffith's Western Ready for New York Premiere.

BY HARRY CARR.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Thirty-five members of Dorothy Gish's company, very homesick for California, arrived in New York yesterday and straightway began a wild scramble for houses to live in.

Miss Dorothy arrived just in time to greet herself on Broadway, so to speak, her comedy, "Turning the Tables," being the attraction at the Tivoli this week.

Miss Gish will begin work in about a week. She has a few outdoor scenes to take on a new comedy called "Mary Ellen Comes to Town."

Dorothy claims to have solved the house-hunting problem for the Gish family and all other families. She says the way to do is to live in the subway. For about 75 cents daily you can keep riding around all night and all day. Her schedule includes three stops at Childs eating houses.

Cecil de Mille, Gloria Swanson, Bebe Daniels, Tom Meighan and other members of Mr. De Mille's company also arrived in New York yesterday. They are here to take some scenes for Mr. De Mille's picture.

Frank Bacon will shortly celebrate the five hundredth performance of "Lightning" at the Gayety Theater. This is one of the most extraordinary triumphs in the history of the stage. Most Los Angeles theatergoers will remember Bacon as a ham actor in one of the old Burbank companies. For years he was struggling in small parts through the hick districts of California. He had tried ranching, newspaper reporting and acting. He never seemed to get along very well in any of the jobs. Then, all of a sudden, nearing the age of 60, he tips New York up on end with a quaint play that seems good for another year as one of the crowning successes.

ANOTHERN WESTERN WINNER.

Another Los Angeles man who has won honors in New York is Edward Saulsbury Fields, of whom you never hear except in connection with some smashing success. His new play, "Wedding Bells," is soon to be produced in New York.

I remember him as a languid, indifferent youth in my High School days. He was very charming and happy-go-lucky, but was about the last boy to be suspected of flaming success.

Raymond Hitchcock celebrated his ninetieth birthday anniversary the other day with a big spaghetti party on the stage after a performance of "Hitchy Koo." He said he had been worried for a long time about not being able to give a proper presentation of his ninetieth natal for reasons of death or other inconveniences, so he had decided to do it now. One of the features of the party was a spaghetti-eating contest between some of the illustrious of the bright lights.

The Ziedfeld Follies will soon close the most successful season of its history, and go out on the road. It could undoubtedly stay on indefinitely in New York, but road contracts compel a start on the way. The great feature of the Follies this year is a series of living pictures arranged by Ali Ben Hagan. They are superb groups with the most gorgeously beautiful lighting effects.

NEW GRIFFITH FILM.

D. W. Griffith's big film story of early California will be seen next week at the Rivoli Theater in Times Square. One of the central figures in the story is Joaquin Murrietta, the celebrated bandit who harried and pillaged California in the days of '49.

One of the interesting events of next week is to be the first appearance of Lenore Ulrich as a star in her own right. Miss Ulrich is perhaps the most glowingly beautiful of all the younger actresses on the stage. Her play will be "The Son and Daughter," a drama of new China by George Scarborough. It will be produced by David Belasco.

Members of the theater guild, an aggregation of refined highbrow young actors who live for art and such and make money at it, have a "mad" at each other. When it was announced last week that Rollo Peters, the inspiration of the guild, had taken his doll rags and gone home, there were excited rumors. The general belief was that some mean rich people who were subscribers to the guild became incensed of some of the sarcastic lines in Masefield's "The Faithful," reflecting upon the idle rich. But the truth now stalks forth. They had a grand row because of the dramatization of William Dean Howells's "The Rise of Silas Lapham," which it was proposed to stage. Mr. Peters and others thought the novel impossible as a play and so the highbrow rough house began. There was also trouble because James J. Hackett had been engaged as an outsider to play a role in the play. Although the theater guild was started as a sort of mutual affair, for displaying the talents of the members it is announced that hereafter there will be outside talent imported upon occasion.

Margaret Leeraas, the young Norwegian dancer of whom nobody ever heard before, but who will be the premiere danseuse of the Chicago opera company this season, is slightly mixed up, nationally. Her husband is Ivan Tares, the famous Russian dancer, and she makes a specialty of Spanish dances.

DON'T BELITTLE YOUR THEATER.

So Says Clever Director Who Would Bring Big Drama to the Masses.

BY JAMES M. WARNACK.

"The possibilities in the field of dramatic art are endless, and the methods and ideals of producers will continue to grow with the mental and spiritual advancement of the theater-going public. Furthermore, the lover of drama is not an exclusive individual—he belongs to the hut as well as to the palace, and, because this is true, the theater of the future will not be a 'little theater' in any sense, but it will be a big theater to which 'the man in the street' will go, along with the professor and the 'high-brow' critic, to enjoy the classics of Shakespeare, Shaw, Ibsen and other members of that shining aristocracy."

These were some of the opinions voiced yesterday by Miss Willamene Wilkes, who is responsible for the staging of a series of some of the most finished dramas ever offered by a stock company, at the Majestic Theater. I found Miss Wilkes busily rehearsing her players in "Saturday to Monday," a farce on the suffragette question, which is to hold the boards at the Majestic this week.

"I'm really too busy to talk to you about the future of drama," smiled Miss Wilkes, "because, you see, I'm engaged in preparing the presentation of a drama of today. However, I will take time enough to say that I'm sick and tired of this talk about 'high-brow' drama and of 'little theaters.' Why, in the name of all that's sane and wholesome, should we scare people away from a playhouse by labeling a good production 'high-brow'? The good, the true and the artistic is appreciated by everybody—not in the same degree, perhaps, but to a sufficient extent to guarantee its kindly reception when exhibited anywhere at any time.

"When I put on Shaw's plays in Detroit a few years ago, thousands of people, many of whom had never heard of Shaw, came to see them and enjoyed the entertainments just as much as they would 'Mary's Ankle,' while at the same time they were being given something a little better than a vulgar farce.

"If, in stock releases, one can occasionally slip in a Shaw, a Pinero, a Moliere or a Wilde, at the end of the season he will have played to many more people—both 'high-brows' and 'low-brows'—than the little theaters reach. I believe in good plays, of course, but not in the little theater.

"Why be little? Why be exclusive? My desire is to reach all of the people, not a select few—and certainly you can't point the better way to the average person by separating yourself from him. Call me a Bolshevist of drama, if you will, but I insist that the stage, like the government, the church and all other social institutions, must grow more democratic, more popular, more inclusive as time goes on—or else the stage deserves to die.

"In the meantime, while we work and wait for the day when all men and women will delight in the highest, purest, best drama, let us seek to make our mediocre plays as fine, as educational, yes and as entertaining, as possible. The stage director cannot create a scene so beautiful that the audience will not like it."

STUDENTS GIVE PROGRAMME.

Marion Warde, teacher of dramatic art in Blanchard Hall, presented several of her advanced students in two interesting programmes the past week; one for the soldiers at Fort MacArthur, another for the Hermosa Beach Baptist Church. Those taking part on both programmes were the Misses Sara Peyton, Ruth Tweedy and Bessie Reitz; the Messrs. J. Newton Thompson, Murray Tweedy and Kenneth Chryst, in character readings and a one-act comedy. Baby Lillian Whiteford entertained with clever songs and impersonations. Miss Billie Hilton and Little Doris Evans, students of the silent drama, in Miss Warde's school, are both playing in films.

ORPHEUS CLUB PLANS.

The first concert by the Orpheus Club will take place at Trinity Auditorium, the evening of December 4. "The Star," a new work for male voices by Protheroe, will be given its first rendition. This work depicts the trials, suffering and final victory of the men at the front, and the Orpheus will doubtless do it justice, as 86 per cent. of the club was in the army and navy.

THE SUB-DEB OF FILMLAND.

Mary Miles Minter Tells Her Aspirations.

Loves the Irish, but Would Like to Spank 'Em.

Interview with Bright Star Who is All Girl.

BY GRACE KINGSLEY.

There is a very big little girl in our midst, I'll have you to know, and her name is Mary Miles Minter. She's going to be bigger yet, too; in fact, she's going to be one of the most famous stars of her age in the world, or I miss my guess. And in this work of making Mary Miles Minter a great star, the Realart Corporation is going to have all kinds of help from Mary Miles Minter herself.

"Oh, we know Mary Miles Minter," you say. "She used to romp through comedy dramas for the American, with the light shining through her hair!"

Ah, my dear, those marsh-mallowy offerings never gave you any more idea of the real Mary than a motion-picture of Gen. Pershing eating breakfast gives you of what Gen. Pershing really is.

Just offhand, I should describe Mary as a sort of super-subdeb, if you know what I mean; a wonderfully interesting young lady who shows a curious combination on the one hand of quick wit, good sense, brilliant powers of observation, an impressive and really keen interest in all deep questions of the day, a faculty of going right to the heart of a subject, and on the other hand, a love of life and humanity and a girlish naivete that are thoroughly delightful and disarming.

I got my first really illuminating glimpse of Mary in her dressing room at the Morosco studio the other day, with her flaxen hair and her deep blue eyes that sparkle and dance at some bit of humor of her own or yours, making a ravishingly lovely picture against the white-and-blue taffeta draperies.

Most pretty girls of Mary's age and profession cultivate a sort of suave and hypnotic charm. Mary doesn't. She's as direct and sincere and straight-from-the-shoulder as a geometrical proposition. And so lovely, let me add, that she can get away with it.

MARY'S LUNCHEON.

Lunch was about to be sent in.

"You are now going to see," laughed Mary, "one whom you may have heard spoken of as alabaster and soft-scented snow fallen to the level of eating wieners! I always have miles of them when mother isn't around! Now that sounds like something I ought to say, doesn't it? But, oh, if I told you a lot of things I think about, the world simply wouldn't believe me! So what's the use?" she exclaimed, with the air of a misunderstood princess.

"As what?" I asked.

"Well, things about the economic unrest and subjects like that." She was very serious. And I'm not going to tell you her views, because maybe you wouldn't agree with her, and next time you saw her on the screen, you'd say, "Oh, that girl believes so and so!"

There's another subject she's much interested in and that's the wave of spiritualism which is sweeping over the country.

"But spiritualism is for the chosen few," remarked Mary sagely. Then she smiled that roguish smile of hers, "but we all think we're the chosen few, don't we?"

"Are you Irish?" I asked suddenly.

"Just enough Irish to make me love 'em and want to spank 'em good!" retorted Mary. "Seems to me people like to dig up every drop of every other kind of blood except American that they have. Of course, 'digging up drops of blood' is a mixed metaphor, isn't it. Really I'm American through and through. But I remember dimly my father, who was part Irish. He had big blue eyes and black wavy hair and I always remember him smiling at me."

All her short life of seventeen years, Mary has been a sort of hermitess and she is more so now than ever.

NEVER LEARNED TO PLAY.

"I'd give anything to know a lot of girls of my own age and do the things they do," she said. "Do you

Dedicated to Better Homes

The Joy of Living

One of the most significant compliments that can be paid to man, woman or child is that he or she is fond of home.

Fondness of home indicates an interest in those things that are elevating and refining. The real joy of living centers in the home. It is the shrine of affection—the haven of rest from the turmoils of the day—the sacred circle in which the choicest memories of life are given root—the theater of hospitality where precious friendships are developed and enjoyed.

And love of home depends in a large measure on the attractiveness of home itself—not necessarily on its elegance, but on that subtle, inexpressible environment which breathes welcome, comfort and good cheer, and which is made possible in even the humblest home by the application of good taste and correct judgment.

The "California" seeks the opportunity to co-operate with home lovers in creating within their homes—be they modest or pretentious—that atmosphere which contributes to love of home and to the joy of living.

This co-operation is a part of the service rendered to every patron by the "California". It adds nothing to the cost of any home furnishings you may select here.

Very unusual selections in correct furnishings for the living-room.

BIG FEATURES HOLDING OVER.

"Flame of the Desert" and "Youth's Eyes" Stay.

Charlie Ray Plays Villain in New Film.

Dalton, Reed and Mildred Chaplain Plays Shown.

Holdovers and repeats are in evidence along the picture Rialto this week, owing to the success of recent features. However, the programme contains many entertaining new specials, and affords a wide variety of subjects. If Charlie Ray is your pet star you're going to have a chance to see him in the rather unusual role of a crook—at least for a few reels, until he reforms. He portrays the country boy who goes to the city in search of adventure. Florence Reed, Dorothy Dalton and Mildred Harris Chaplin are the headliners among the women, each in a new play.

The racing days are to be revived in the presentation of a film version of "Checkers," the stage success. Another unusual feature will be "A Scream in the Night," described as a story of a feminine Tarzan of the Apes. More cave-woman stuff is promised in "The Combat," starring Anita Stewart.

Still on at local theaters are the productions of "Flame of the Desert," with Geraldine Farrar, which opened Friday night; "Eyes of Youth," starring Clara Kimball Young, and "The Miracle Man," which continues to emulate Tennyson's brook. Dorothy Phillips is playing a return engagement in "Paid in Advance."

Grauman's.

Charles Ray comes to Grauman's Monday in "Crooked Straight," written by Julien Josephson. Ray enacts the role of a young country boy, who after visiting a metropolitan city and, being relieved of his bank roll, in desperation joins a band of thieves and ultimately becomes very proficient himself. His inner struggle after a series of complications to regain his lost self-respect is said to allow Ray a freer and broader range for his emotional abilities than any other photoplay he has appeared in.

Margery Wilson plays the leading feminine role and others in the cast are Wade Butler, Gordon Mullen and Otto Hoffman.

Mack Sennett will contribute another of his typical burlesques, "His Last False Step," a comical version of the slightly naughty husband plot, featuring Ford Sterling and Phyllis Haver.

Sid Grauman promises a spectacular act in which the thirty usherettes will appear on the stage in musical numbers, in conjunction with a mystery feature.

Grauman's Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Arthur Kay, will play the overture to the opera, "Il Guarany," by Gomez, the Brazilian composer. C. Sharp-Minor will offer another of his musical satires, and Milton Charles will use during the morning organ recitals "Katinka," by Friml and the popular "Just for Me and Mary."

Tally's Broadway.

Florence Reed, star of the stage and screen, will be seen at Tally's Broadway in her latest film success, "Her Game," beginning tomorrow.

This cinema is said to stand alone in its class, for the sequence of episodes in the life of the heroine is pictured with an almost uncanny mechanical effect. The story deals with a southern girl who, after her father's financial ruin, sets out to New York to revenge herself upon the man responsible for the collapse. With a series of exciting and, to her, shameful adventures, taking her ever away from her allotted task, she finds herself in love with a man who, in her life, has proven a mystery. Miss Reed is supported by Conway Tearle and others.

Outing-Chester, "Going to See in a Riskishaw" together with the latest news views, and a musical programme under the direction of C. Percival Garratt, completes the new programme.

Clune's Broadway.

A unique character is said to have been created by Dorothy Dalton in her picture, "L'Apache," which begins a week's run at Clune's Broadway today. She portrays a French dancer in the Apache quarters, as "the Carmen of the Apaches." Her partner is her Apache husband, whom she hates with all the fury of a down-trodden woman.

By a freak of fortune she encounters her double, a rich American girl who has fallen under the power of a profligate millionaire. This part is also played by Miss Dalton.

The story has dramatic climaxes, thrills and a well-sustained love plot.

Miss Dalton is supported by Robert Elliott, and others.

Augmenting the Dorothy Dalton feature are a comedy, "Her Winning Way," with Gertrude Selby and Harry Depp as the principals; a Burton Holmes travalogue, "In Formosa" and a Pathe News picture.

Palace.

The demonstration of how a woman reared and trained all her life amid culture can apply the primitive instincts of a cave-woman, defending her mate, forms one of the thrilling scenes of Vitagraph's new picture, "The Combat." This production, in which Anita Stewart is the star, will be shown at the Palace, beginning today.

Miss Stewart, playing the role of Muriel Fleming, a young woman who is compelled to marry secretly the man she loves against the wishes of her widowed mother, figures in the end as the young tigress. Muriel personifies the character of the timid, blushing society creature, swayed and controlled and utterly governed by social necessities throughout the early part of the picture.

But as the story nears its climatical close she reverts to the type of full-blooded person, following instinct. At the finish, when the man she loves, the secret husband whom she has believed dead, is locked in deadly combat with a treacherous slayer, the girl grabs a gun and kills the assassin.

California.

"Flame of the Desert," Reginald Barker's production, with Geraldine Farrar the international favorite as star, which has the distinction of being chosen to open the California Theater Friday evening under the direction of S. L. Rothapfel of New York City, will continue as the attraction all this week, including next Saturday. Hereafter a complete new programme is to be offered every Sunday instead of on Monday, as heretofore.

The story of the film is flavored with the enchantment associated with the great Sahara Desert. Miss Farrar has Lou Tellegen, that romantic figure of the screen, as her leading man, and others in the cast include Alec Francis, Milton Ross, Edythe Chapman, Casson Ferguson and Macey Harlam.

Mr. Rothapfel offers many distinctive features beside the photoplay, including the concert orchestra of forty men under the direction of Carli D. Elinor; a vocal chorus, a number of soloists, including Darrell Cole and Florence Midgeley. A Briggs comedy, "When a Feller Needs a Friend," a new Mutt and Jeff cartoon and other novelties, including unusual scenic and lighting effects, add to the presentation.

Tally's Kinema.

"Eyes of Youth" will enter its second and last week today at Tally's Kinema.

The story of the play is unusual in its development, comprising the experiences of a young girl under three entirely separate conditions, stretching over a period of many years. Yet the entire action of the play takes place during one evening. The girl's journeys take her to various parts of the world, and the problem of choosing her future remains the medium holding the attention of audiences.

The prologue shows a scene in the courtyard of an East Indian palace, with its dancers, instrumentalists and crystal gazers holding the spotlight.

Garrick.

"Paid in Advance," Allen J. Holubar's cinema conception of James Oliver Curwood's story of the frozen north, "The Girl Who Dared," starring Dorothy Phillips, will be the attraction at the Garrick, starting today. "Paid in Advance" tells of the North when the gold fever was at its height, and affords the star a role similar to that in "Hell Morgan's Girl," her first big screen success.

The plot centers around an innocent young girl, who is lured into one of the dancing dives of Alaska through the promises of a gambler to secure her the position of a nurse. How she struggles through the murk of vice without staining her lily white soul, and finds true love among the rough gold miners, form the narrative.

Supporting Miss Phillips are William Stowell, Lon Chaney, Joseph Gerard and Frank Brownlee.

"Paid in Advance" will be shown for one week only at the Garrick, as D. W. Griffith's "Broken Blossoms" will be given its second run, beginning next Sunday.

Symphony.

"The Miracle Man" is to be held over for a second seven days' starting today, at the Symphony, according to announcement made by the management of that Broadway playhouse late last night. It was first intended only to play a week's farewell return engagement of the George Loane Tucker master drama.

"The Miracle Man" has shattered attendance records at the theater every day during the past week, not excepting those made by the biggest attractions on their premiere at the Symphony.

EVERY home should have a silver dinner or tea service. Its cost can only be considered as an investment, for whether it be of Sheffield plate or other good plated ware, or of Sterling silver, it can reasonably be expected to last a lifetime.

Today the most exquisite patterns of the masters are as readily available in Sheffield and other plated ware as in Sterling, so that those who do not care to invest to the extent of the cost of solid silver need sacrifice nothing in effect or service in buying the less costly Sheffield.

Our stocks are very comprehensive in both flatware and hollow ware in the highest grade plated wares and in fine Sterling. Every requirment for the correct and complete setting of the table is here, and the variety of patterns from which to choose is very extensive.

Representations being made by District Attorney that the girl not been taken away against will, and that it was conse-quently not a case of kidnaping, the judge discharged Steve John. Pretty 18-year-old Bakouche Mark and Rosa Mark, who had been held in connection with the case, were also released.

"I want to go back to my father," said the girl in court.

She said that following her marriage her mother-in-law sent her to Oregon City to tell fortunes, and that she made $15 a day, which was appropriated by Mrs. Mark.

The girl said that her youthful husband was lazy and that she was tired of living with him. She said she wrote a letter to her father and asked him to come and get her and take her away from a life which had proved unhappy.

There were other witnesses, however, who asserted that the fact that Steve John had discovered a suitor at Sacramento who was willing to pay $2000 for the girl which had led to the kidnaping.—[Portland Oregonian.

NEGRO REPUBLIC.

Liberia is a negro republic on the west coast of Africa, founded in 1820 by liberated American slaves under the auspices of the American Colonization Society, and recognized as an independent state in 1847. It has an area of 35,000 square miles, with a population of 2,000,000. The climate is tropical; the chief crop is coffee; other exports are palm oil, ground nuts, caoutchouc and ivory. The climate is very unhealthy for Europeans. British weights, measures and money are mostly used. The English language is used among the governing class, and schools and churches are amply provided, and civilization is making rapid strides among the natives. The population consists of some 60,000 immigrants from the United States and their descendants and 2,000,000 natives. The capital is Monrovia and the government is a republic modeled after that of the United States.—[Indianapolis News.

Lon Chaney have the principal roles in the film drama.

New comedy and news reel features will be offered for the second week.

Alhambra.

The Alhambra Theater is offering, starting today, the first picturization of Henry Blossom's racing story, "Checkers." It is a story of the good old days when horse racing was in its glory. It will bring memories of the bedecked grand stands the pounding of hoofs on the turf, the bark of the bookmakers and a thousand and one other thoughts of the past.

Other attractions will accompany the main feature.

Victory.

"Vamps of the Jungle" will be seen in person at the Victory this coming week in conjunction with the showing of "A Scream in the Night," a story of a feminine Tarzan of the Apes, which is the melodramatic attraction of the week.

The jungle vampires, clad in the leopard skins of the forest, will appear at the Victory in an Orang-outang dance number, by special arrangement with the Select Pictures Corporation, which is sponsoring "A Scream in the Night."

The photoplay is based on the Darwinian theory that man is descended from the anthropoid ape. A mentally unbalanced college professor kidnaps a beautiful young girl in her infancy and has her raised in the Amazon jungles with apes as foster parents.

There comes a terrific climax when the girl is brought back to civilization, and is locked in a cage alongside a fierce orang-outang, with only bars of flimsy wood between them.

How with a twenty-two caliber revolver, containing only one cartridge she saves her life, furnishes the denouement.

Superba.

Mildred Harris Chaplin, star of Lois Weber successes, comes to the Superba this Sunday in "Forbidden," a new Lois Weber creation.

"Forbidden" is the story of a small-town girl, who marries a big-town man, and when she comes to the city to make her home, she is filled with an unholy desire to see the wheels of gilded vice go around. She is inclined to play with fire, and loves to bask in the Bohemian haunts of the underworld, although innocent enough in so doing. The problem of how to save her from being dragged into the whirlpool of seething vice confronts the husband, and he works out a solution in a most unusual manner.

A Rainbow comedy, "A Popular Villain," and the latest Universal news weekly completes the bill.

FAVORS DRESS SUITS.

University of Indiana Dean Believes in Formal Dances.

When a college man dons a dress suit should he appear ill at ease, search for pockets he cannot find, shift weight from one foot to another, and pull at the tie which refuses to hang in any but a vertical angle? Or should he feel as much at home in one as in one of those natty glove-fitting arrangements being worn now?

Dean Agnes E. Wells of Indiana University, believes in formal dances—dances with spike-tailed suits light-reflecting shirt fronts, white gloves and all other accessories.

"It means a great deal for a university student to be able to appear at home in a dress suit," she said, in making public rules regarding university dances. "It means as much for him as it does for him to talk correctly and intelligently. I once knew a university graduate—in fact, he was the head of a department in a university—who appeared in a dress suit at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. He was the only man present who was inappropriately dressed. To make matters worse, he was the center of attraction at the affair."

Dean Wells has removed the restrictions on formal affairs. Each organization on the campus may now have one dance in the Student Building and another in its fraternity or sorority home. Each organization may give two dinner-dances each semester to last from 5:30 until 10 p.m.—[Indianapolis News.

SOCIETY.

BY VIRGINIA WOODS.

Los Angeles Folk in Gotham.

At a gay and elaborate luncheon at the Hotel Plaza in New York the other day there assembled a company of prominent Los Angeles folk who form a congenial California colony just now in Gotham. Among others present were Mrs. Edward Laurence Doheny, Mrs. Jotham Bixby, Jr., Mrs. Arthur Letts and her friend, Mrs. Badger; Mrs. Adna Chaffee and her daughter, Mrs. William Howard (Helen Chaffee;) Mrs. Charles H Sharp, Mrs. Edwin T. Earl, Mrs. Godfrey Holterhoff, Jr., Mrs. Silsby Morse Spalding of Los Angeles, and Mrs. Stanley Morse-[illegible] of San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. Doheny do not expect to be home for Thanksgiving, but do anticipate being here in time for the Christmas holidays. Mrs. Sharp and Mrs. Earl are already on their way home, but will stop in Kansas City for a few days. Mrs. Letts is expected home shortly and Mrs. Bixby will probably remain in New York until after Christmas.

By Mrs. Dockweiler.

Mrs. Isidore B. Dockweiler was a luncheon hostess on Friday in honor of Lieut. Bertin, who is on his way to Paris from Tokio, where he spent a year, having been sent over with the French commission. He is an intimate friend of Henry Dockweiler, who is in Tokio as a member of the American Embassy. Two other French officers and the wife of one joined Lieut. Bertin yesterday, and Mrs. Dockweiler is entertaining them all. Mr. Dockweiler left during the week for Washington, and will be gone indefinitely.

By Mrs. Hoyt.

Mrs. Albert Sherman Hoyt is making elaborate plans for the first of a series of morning music receptions that she is to give at the Alexandria throughout the winter. It is set for Tuesday morning, November 18.

She is to have a group of prominent society women, all patronesses of the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra, of which she is the head, assist her. At the first affair she has asked Mrs. Howard Huntington, Mrs. [illegible] Smith, Mrs. Oscar Trippet and several others. Mrs. Huntington is now in New York, but will be home in time for this affair.

Mrs. Hoyt is to give her guests a musical treat, as a number of artists of national and international note are to be on the programme. Among the guests will be leaders of Los Angeles and Crown City society.

For Capt. Revnar.

Mr. Edward Doran Ulrich is entertaining an interesting visitor, Capt. L. R. Revnar of the City of [illegible] and on Thursday evening [illegible] a small supper and dancing [illegible] in his honor. Last evening Capt. Revnar was also honor guest at a dinner at which Mr. Ulrich was [illegible]

Capt. Revnar is a member of the [illegible] family, wealthy importers [illegible]. The family originally came from England, but has lived [illegible] for almost a century. Capt. Revnar is a godson of the late [illegible] Diaz, but is himself a [illegible] American citizen and has [illegible] in the American army for [illegible] years. He was two years in [illegible] part of that time having [illegible] transferred to the staff of a [illegible] general. For a time he was [illegible] attache in a foreign country. During his stay here Mr. Ulrich [illegible] to give several other dinner [illegible] and both are to be among [illegible] at the big tea dansant [illegible] given by Admiral Rodman [illegible] his staff on board the New [illegible] next Saturday.

[illegible] Mrs. Burns.

[illegible] of the most elaborate affairs [illegible] week were the luncheons given by Mrs. James P. Burns of 3528 [illegible] boulevard yesterday and [illegible] before. The first one was [illegible] to Mrs. Charles S. [illegible] of Charleston, W. Va., who [illegible] her daughter, Mrs. For[illegible] [illegible] were set for Mmes. Peyton, C. Q. Stanton, Forrest Q. Conaty, Mrs. Andrew McNally and Mrs. M. A. C. Griffith.

To Wed in New York.

Society is quite a bit excited over the coming marriage in New York of Hobart Glassell Brown of this city and Miss Frances Creevy of the former city. Mr. Brown is a son of Mrs. Eleanor Brown of this city and a brother of Mrs. Sidney I. Wailes and a nephew of Mrs. Hancock Banning. The wedding will take place on Wednesday and the couple will make their home in this city. Already several affairs are planned for their welcome.

At Series of Dances.

Misses Thelma and Helen Wolf of West Ninth street were hostesses at a series of dancing parties during the week, entertaining twenty-five guests each evening. The dances were on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. The house each time was decorated in pink asters and potted plants.

By Mrs. Linnard.

Mrs. D. M. Linnard of Pasadena was hostess last evening at a brilliantly appointed dinner-dance at the Hotel Maryland in honor of Miss Jessie McCament, who is soon to marry Mr. Rex Braley.

The table was set in the palmroom and was elaborately decorated with large basket of flowers surrounded by smaller baskets filled with roses and mixed flowers. Plates were arranged for forty guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Bullock.

After an extended wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. John Gillespie Bullock, whose wedding was an October society event in Detroit, are now en route to Los Angeles where they will be at home to their friends after January 1 at 627 South Ardmore street.

Mr. Bullock's daughters, Miss Margaret and Miss Helen Bullock, who were bridesmaids at their father's wedding, have returned home, Miss Margaret re-entering Occidental College and Miss Helen the Westlake School for Girls.

Mr. and Mrs. Bullock will be accompanied by Mrs. Bullock's son, Edwin Wallace, a graduate of Pawling, and her daughter, Miss Ruth Wallace, who will immediately enter the Westlake School for Girls.

Mr. and Mrs. Bullock will be much entertained both formally and informally by his many friends and Miss Margaret Bullock is planning several social affairs in honor of Mrs. Bullock's son and daughter.

By Mrs. Hughes.

Mrs. West Hughes was hostess at a delightful picnic luncheon on Thursday given at the country home of her sister, Mrs. Edwin T. Earl in La Canada.

For Two Visitors.

Mrs. Jack Stewart and Mrs. H. Armstrong, daughters of the late Judge Elkins, are interesting visitors here from Philadelphia and on Tuesday were honor guests at a luncheon at which Mrs. James W. Dunham was hostess, at the Los Angeles County Club. Plates were set for Mrs. Arthur Letts, Jr., Mrs. Malcolm McNaghton, Mrs. Harold Janss, Mrs. Raymond Bradford, Mrs. Kenyon Lee, Mrs. Louis Tass, Mrs. Paul Nourse, Mrs. Jack Herbert, Mrs. Ralph Young, Miss Josephine McAllister, Mrs. Don Dawson, and Mrs. Katherine Harrigan.

Week-end Party.

Mrs Fred A Hines and her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Marshall Newman, with Mrs. O. A. Vickery, Lieut. D. Robinson Lauck and his mother and grandmother motored down to San Diego on Friday, combining a business and pleasure trip which will keep them until Wednesday. They are at the U. S. Grant Hotel.

To Reside Here.

A welcome bit of news is that Commander and Mrs. Frank Grosse (Elizabeth Hicks) are to make their home in Los Angeles. He has resigned from the navy and expects to go into business. They are busy hunting a house and until a suitable one is found will stay with her mother, Mrs. Frank Hicks. For two years Commander and Mrs. Grosse were in the Philippines.

By Mrs. Keller.

Mrs. William E. Keller of 543 Shatto street is planning a series of social affairs. The first is to be a bridge luncheon for Wednesday November 19. Another will be given Saturday November 22. Mr. and Mrs. Keller recently returned from New York, Chicago and Sleepy Hollow Country Club on the Hudson River.

By Rev. and Mrs. Randall.

Rev. and Mrs. Aaron F. Randall were hosts at an elaborately-appointed dinner party on Wednesday evening at their new home at 2932 Wilshire boulevard and had as guests the rector of St. Thomas's Episcopal Church, Hollywood, and members of the advisory board and their wives. The tables were adorned with a handsome center piece of pink and white carnations arranged in a silver bowl. Plates were set for Rev. and Mrs. Frank Roudenbush, Mr. and Mrs. A. V. F. Vibert, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Voigt, William R. Rathbun, Miss Lucy Rathbun, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Howell, Mr. and Mrs. William B. Ogden, Walter F. Entz, Miss Maria Entz, Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Hovey and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Barron.

Reynolds-Groves Nuptials.

A wedding in which a large number of friends are interested is that of Capt. Fred Reynolds, a nephew of Gov. Stephens, who on Wednesday claimed Miss Reba Groves as his bride.

The ceremony was performed at 1 p.m. at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred G. Groves of 552 North New Hampshire street, Rev. Daugherty, pastor of the First Christian Church, officiating.

Among the guests were Gov. Stephens and Mrs. J. K. Wilson, an aunt of the groom. Capt. Reynolds served six months abroad in the American army, but was discharged and came home soon after the armistice was signed. He is the son of Mrs. Sue Reynolds of 2718 Eagle street, who recently gave a dinner at which announcement of the engagement of her son was made.

Tonight she is to give a dinner party in honor of the young couple and the handsome lace centerpiece and doilies are those her son brought her from Bordeaux. The table and the rest of the house is decorated in pink and white chrysanthemums and at the table will be five young officers who were in France at the time the armistice was signed.

For the Lauders.

Sir Harry and Lady Lauder are to be honor guests tomorrow evening at a smart affair at which Mrs. A. La Mont Swobdi-Meade is to be hostess. She will first assemble her guests at a box party at the Harry Lauder performance at Clune's Auditorium and later will entertain them at a midnight supper at the Alexandria. Her table is to be handsomely adorned with Los Angeles rose buds and ferns and there are to be corsage bouquets at the plate of each lady.

Covers are to be marked for Sir Harry and Lady Lauder, Mr. and Mrs. Lucien Gray, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Munson, Col. and Mrs. B. K. Stanton, Mr. and Mrs. Le Roy Anderson, Mrs. E. Case Vermaas and Mr. D. Scott Chisholm. Col. and Mrs. Stanton are visitors here from San Francisco and the Andersons are from Prescott, Ariz.

Hatch-Vigneau Wedding.

Miss Evelyn Hatch and Paul Vigneau were married at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Hatch, 1101 West Forty-sixth street, by Rev. M. S. Brown, October 16. Mr. Vigneau is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Vigneau of Alhambra. Miss Florence Brown was maid of honor and Mrs. Helen Wetherby was matron of honor. Russell Hatch was best man and Vivian L. Hatch the other groomsman. The bride wore a gown of white satin with a long veil and her shower bouquet was of white roses. Her attendants were also in white. Miss Lillian Woodmansee sang "O Promise Me" and Edgar Vance played "Annie Laurie" during the service and presided at the organ for the wedding march. The house was decorated in potted plants and carnations. The groom is a graduate of the Southern California College of Pharmacy.

By Mrs. Thomas.

Mrs. Frank Thomas is to give a bridge luncheon on Tuesday at the Silent ranch. The guests will all motor there.

Capt. and Mrs. Mel.

Capt. John Mel and his bride, who was Mrs. Margaret Gaffey Ward before her unexpected marriage a week ago, have been noticeable figures at the Hotel Belvedere, Santa Barbara, where they passed part of their honeymoon. Mrs. Mel is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Gaffey of Los Angeles Harbor. Capt. Mel is a retired naval officer at the Submarine Base there. Capt. and Mrs. Mel are continuing their honeymoon trip to Del Monte and San Francisco, where they went Thursday.

Junior Bachelor Ball.

One of the charming affairs of last week was the junior bachelor ball held at Kramer's studio. The chaperones were Mmes. J. C. Thomas, W. M. White, Guy C. Richards, W. A. Barnes, F. D. Mannoccir, Nicholas M. Nilbank, Lita Atkinson, Charles G. Stivers and E. G. Howard.

The young girls there were Misses Mary Milbank, Marjorie Thompson, Dorothy Daniels, Dorothy Knapp, Katherine Cole, Mary Logan, Pearl Jacobs, Hildegarde Stivers, Florence Nichols, Doris Young, Lady Jane Lawler, Marie Marlow, Katherine Howard, Charlotte Johnson, Helen Whipple, Hope Drown, Margaret de la Mott, Katherine Burgner, Emily White, Virginia Eccles, Geneva Eckelberry, Mildred Moir, Ruth Toosley, Frauline Hart, Dorothy Catlin, Dorothy Strausberg, Lucille Hunt, Ann Wishman, Earnestine Kneeley, Pearl Orth, Lucile Newmark, Mabel White, Norma Shott, Nita Warwick, Dorothy Miller, Helen Tousley, Janice Smurr, Helen Brown, Gwendolyn Witherspoon, Frances Foster, Elizabeth Ten Eyke, Frances Park, Dorothy Van Cleek, Gladys Sprouse, Ella Hibner, Elsie Baird, Geraldine Williams, Ruth Ritchie, Charlotte Raymaker, Nell Wilson, Prudence Castle, Charlotte Chisman, Elizabeth Radmaca, Billie Doran, Lillian McConnell, Julia McConigle and Marjorie Luke.

Home from South.

Mrs. B. A. Stockard and daughter, Miss Margaret Stockard, who have been visiting in Chattanooga, Tenn.; Atlanta, Ga., and Birmingham, Ala., for the past four months, will arrive home tomorrow at 2214 Eighth avenue.

Told in Placentia.

Announcement of the engagement of their only daughter, Miss Esther Newell, to Mr. Erin Lamhofer is made by Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Newell of Placentia. Mr. Lamhofer is the only son of Dr. and Mrs. E. Lamhofer of Fullerton and has just returned from overseas service with the Marine Corps. Both are college graduates and have many friends in Orange county, as well as in Los Angeles, which is to be their home.

Miss Davis and Miss Lister.

Mrs. Howard Davis of Hollywood was hostess at a jolly dancing party given last evening at the Hollywood Woman's Club House in honor of her daughter, Miss Mildred Davis, and her guest, Miss Florence Lister, daughter of the late Gov. Lister of Washington. A number of the ladies from the Woman's Club assisted in entertaining.

By Dr. and Mrs. Taylor.

Dr. and Mrs. F. W. Taylor were hosts at a dinner given at the Merritt-Jones Hotel Tuesday evening in compliment to Dr. and Mrs. Arnold E. Saverein. Dr. Saverein has just returned from a long service with the United States Navy and is resuming his practice of medicine. Plates were set for Dr. and Mrs. Saverein, Dr. and Mrs. Ben Frees and Dr. and Mrs. Wallace Dodge. After dinner the party danced at the Ship Cafe.

Officers' Armistice Ball.

What is expected to be one of the brilliant social affairs marking the celebration of the anniversary of the signing of the armistice will be the commissioned officers' ball and supper-dance to be given in the ballroom of the Alexandria Tuesday evening.

Frank M. Bering is secretary of the Commissioned Officers' Association and Maj Charles H. Doke is chairman. Other chairmen of the ball committees are Col. C. H. Decker, Maj. Joseph C. Fegan, Maj. E. E. Kirk, Lieut. C N. Burgar, Capt. R. B. Parks and Maj. David C. Brady

The patrons and patronesses include many persons prominent in local society and military circles, and are Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. Connell, Maj. and Mrs Frederick B. Downing, Maj. and Mrs. J. C. Fegan, Lieutenant Commander and Mrs. C. A. Harris, Maj and Mrs. J. B. Hyams, Col. and Mrs. A. C. Knowles, Lieut. and Mrs. C. H. Lowell, Lieutenant-

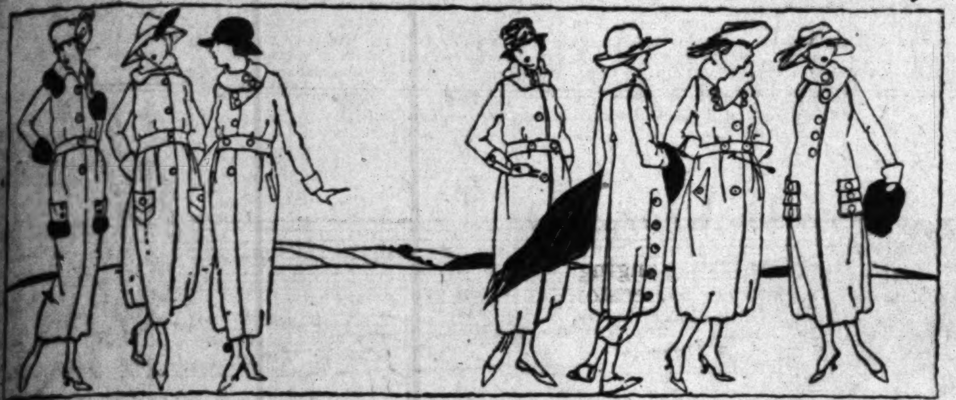
Women's Coats, Dresses Monday at 19.50



—The illustration gives you only an idea of their charming styles—it cannot do them justice for it cannot show you—

—The Materials—meltons, diagonal weaves, velvets and novelty coatings—so protectingly warm and comfortable;

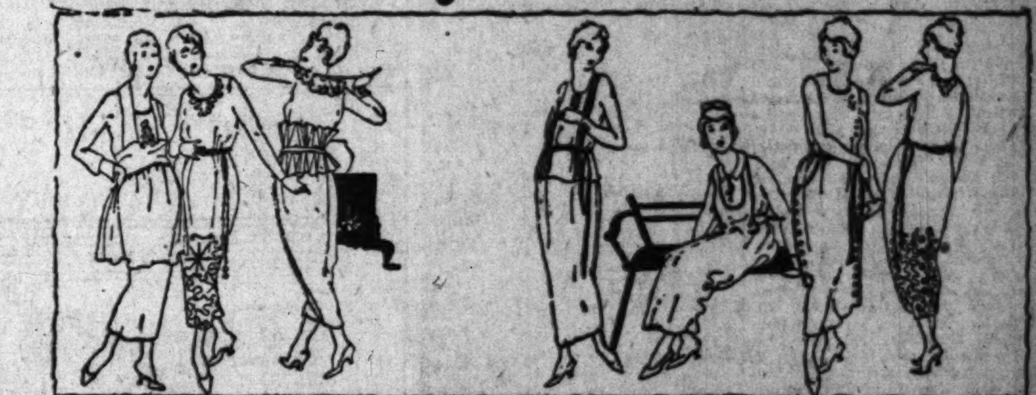
—The colorings—the prettiest used in Coat-dom in many a season; a refreshing change after the somber shades of war-time days.

—The trimmings of beaver or plush—contrasting beautifully in shade and texture with the coating woolens. You'll call them marvel-values—at 19.50!

—Another of the great "garment days" that have brought interested women in crowds and throngs to the apparel departments of the Downstairs Store!

—Another selling-event that makes for Hamburger's many new customers, deepens the confidence of the old, establishes more firmly than ever the value-giving precedent of the Great White Store.

—Yes, coats and dresses at 19.50—styles that have won the approval of fastidious Miss Autumn; colors that represent every phase of the changing season, from the soft gray of her raincloud to the browns of her forest leaves—all here, tomorrow, at 19.50.



—Serges and satins and taffetas in bewildering profusion—Monday dress-seekers will find in this lot at 19.50 all that Fashion has proclaimed good in frock-styles for Autumn!

—The simple straight-line effects so becoming to every type of feminine figure; bolero styles, too, and the cunning high-waists for the woman or miss of petite stature.

—Braids, silk embroidery and buttons, applied with all the art of the fashion designer; colors that win your instant approval with their harmony and good taste—gray, Copenhagen, shades of green, taupe, navy and black. You'll love to choose—Monday—at 19.50!

Mr. and Mrs. George Blamer of Independence, Iowa, who have been visiting at the home of Mr. Blamer's mother, Mrs. Thomas Blamer of Wild Rose avenue, left on Tuesday for their home. They plan to stop at San Francisco for a short stay before going on to the Middle Western State.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Schilling of East Lime avenue had as their guests on Sunday Dr. and Mrs. H. E. Neelands and their son of Seattle, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pallenger of Los Angeles. The Neelands, old friends of the Schillings, are spending the winter in Los Angeles.

Miss Mabel Alvord of North Myrtle avenue returned on Monday evening from a pleasant three months' visit with friends in the New England and Middle Western States.

After a delightful sojourn of a fortnight at Long Beach, where a number of good times were enjoyed, Mrs. F. A. Bliss and Miss Amy Thomas are again at the Bliss home on Wild Rose avenue.

Mrs. Thomas Neville entertained with a prettily-appointed luncheon on Tuesday at the Sunset Tea Room, the guest of honor being Mrs. C. J. O'Connor of San Francisco, who was a college chum of the hostess. Halloween decorations were used, with tiny black cats marking places for a number of intimate friends of Mrs. Neville. Following luncheon the group enjoyed an informal afternoon at the Neville home on North Ivy avenue. Mr. and Mrs. O'Connor are house guests of Arthur F. Skeele at Monroe place, motoring down from the north recently. Mr. the home service department of the the home service department of the Pacific Coast division of the American Red Cross.

Miss Florence Jacobs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Jacobs of East Olive avenue, was united in marriage on Tuesday to Thomas H. Wessels of Los Angeles. The ceremony took place in Los Angeles and the young people will make their home in that city. Mr. Wessels recently received his honorable discharge from the army balloon school at Arcadia.

SIERRA MADRE.

One of the crowning social events of the season was the masquerade dance given at the Woman's Club House last Friday evening. The regular jazz orchestra furnished music for the occasion. Prizes were awarded to couples wearing the most unique costume. Many clever make-ups appeared on the dancing floor. The auditorium was prettily decorated by members of the Woman's Club.

On Wednesday, November 12 Mrs. J. T. Mason of West Central boulevard will entertain the Dickens Fellowship organization.

After spending five weeks at the seashore, Mrs. F. J. Sokol is again at her home on West Highland avenue.

Before a large gathering in the Congregational Church, Miss Nina Kellogg, daughter of Charles Kellogg, and George Norris, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Norris, were united in the holy bonds of wedlock last Saturday evening. Rev. George A. Andrews of Los Angeles, assisted by Rev. C. C. Wilson, pastor of the Congregational Church, officiated. The bride made an attractive figure gowned in white georgette. Her bridal veil was festooned with orange blossoms, while she carried a shower of bridal roses. Samuel Meredith Echwartz, a rosy-cheeked urchin of 3, followed the bride as ring-bearer, while Dicey-Jane Lynch, a petite miss of 5, scattered rose petals along her path. The maid of honor was Miss Grace Pyle in a gown of georgette with hat to match and carrying pink roses. The bridesmaids were the Misses Yerda M. D. Appleby, gowned in blue; Marjorie Sweezy in green. Annie Kehlet in yellow. Margarita Platt in orchid, Alice Kellogg in coral and Leila Kellogg in lavender. Raymond Huston acted as best man. The ushers, wearing uniforms of the U.S.A., were Raymond Andrews, Bob Clark, Victor Hill, Byron Butler, Bryant Essick and Gale Williams. Immediately after the ceremony the bridal couple attended a reception at the home of Miss Grace Pyle in Pasadena. The bridegroom recently returned from overseas duty, where he served in the ambulance corps.

A masked dancing party was given Friday evening at the Woman's Club House by Miss Gladys Walker. The decorations were in the Halloween colors, while cornstalks, pumpkins, black cats and owls adorned the rafters and stage.

for the dancing was furnished by the college orchestra and prizes were given for the prettiest and funniest costumes. The prize winners were Miss Helen White, in fairy costume, and Miss Ruth Bennett, in hobo costume with derby hat.

The same evening the students of the Claremont School for Boys were hosts at an elaborate dance in the social hall of the school, when about twenty couples enjoyed the hospitality of Headmaster W. E. Garrison and Mrs. Fannie M. Carvin, matron of the school. Wesley Henzie's orchestra furnished music for the dancing and there were elaborate refreshments in keeping with the Halloween season.

On Saturday evening Miss Beatrice Pike entertained about eighteen lower classmen of the college with a masquerade party, which featured the usual games, stunts and refreshments.

Members of the freshman class of the High School were guests of Miss Katherine Palmer, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Palmer of Indian Hill boulevard.

Nine young women friends of Miss Marie Fox entertained at a farewell dinner in her honor at the home of Miss Marjorie Woodford, 639 Yale avenue, shortly before Miss Fox's leaving for Los Angeles, where she will make her home for the present. Table decorations were in the autumn colors and places were marked for Misses Fox, Woodford, Margaret Johnston, Rowena Taylor, Louise Stover, Marvel Wire, Frances Ryan, Virginia Dearborn, Amy Pefley, Mrs. F. R. Daggs of Upland, Miss Louise Jewell and Mrs. Ruth Powell.

Mrs. Albert Richmond, who has been here for the past month from Washington, D. C., left Friday with her daughter, Mrs. Charles Burgess, for a visit at the latter's home in Davis.

The Hon. H. Sheridan-Bickers, English playwright and politician, is the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Jordan Smith, Eighth and Oak place. The distinguished visitor was formerly sergeant-major with the Canadian Expeditionary Forces in Siberia and is an editor and author of note.

Mrs. Oscar A. Russell,

Who, as the wife of Lieut.-Col. Russell, is one of the patronesses of the Armistice Day ball to be given at the Alexandria Tuesday evening.

News of the marriage of Rexton Reed, only son of Mrs. Lida Reed of Bakersfield, to Miss Gwendola Daley of Berkeley, has been received here with much interest. The ceremony took place in Stockton after which the young people returned to Berkeley. Reed is a student at the University of California and comes from a prominent Bakersfield family.

Mrs. Elmore King and children have returned from several months spent in San Francisco.

Mrs. Thomas J. Crawford entertained at her home on Oleander avenue, announcing the engagement of Miss Gladys T. Richards to Lester W. Fesler. Cards were the diversion of the evening and were followed by a delicious supper. Miss Richards is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Richards of Bakersfield. Mr. Fessler is also well known here.

Guests at the home of Mrs. W. B. Lyons this week were Mrs. G. Gerard, field representative for the Red Cross civilian relief service, and Mrs. E. B. Perrin of Williams, Ariz.

Mrs. E. Eaton was honor guest at a charming party given by Mrs. Guy McKinney at her home on Kentucky street. Mrs. Eaton will leave soon to make her home in Long Beach.

DELANO.

Announcement has been received here of the marriage in Los Angeles of Eleric Waits, son of Mrs. A. M. Waits, to Miss Hazel Curtis, a sister of Mrs. Lawrence Waits. After a short honeymoon in the south the young couple will return here to make their home on the groom's ranch, south of Delano.

Mrs. M. D. Golden has arrived from Los Angeles and will spend the winter with Mr. Golden at the Golden ranch, in the Radnor district.

Miss Julia Allen is home from a visit with her sister, Miss Helen Allen, who is attending school in Los Angeles.

Mrs. A. M. Waits spent the week in McFarland visiting her daughter.

About ninety guests enjoyed a delightful affair at the home of George Scott here, the occasion being the welcome home of William B. Scott, who recently returned from service with the United States forces in Germany. Dancing was the chief diversion of the evening. A delicious supper was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Smith have arrived in Slater, Mo., after a delightful motor trip across the continent.

POMONA.

The men of the young married peoples' class of the Presbyterian Church proved themselves to be royal hosts Tuesday evening when they entertained the women of the class in a manner which the latter had to admit was much more than could be expected of "mere man!" The delightful affair took place at the Minnetonka ranch, a bountiful repast being served on the spacious lawn and a mirth-provoking programme being given in the house. The men had prepared well for the occasion and nothing was wanting. The affair was in the nature of a Halloween party and the house was decorated to carry out the idea. Emmet Clark, class president acted as master of ceremonies and no end of amusement was gained from a debate on the subject, "Is it better for a man to come home and find no meal ready than for a woman to prepare the meal and have the man fail to show up." The affirmatives won the debate. Dr. H. C. Kettelle had charge of the programme while J. D. Ewart and T. B. Gow arranged for the refreshments. W. R. Coon was in charge of transportation.

An interesting session of the Ebell dramatic section of Pomona was held on Wednesday afternoon at which Miss Marjorie Walker was named curator and Mrs. A. S. Craker, secretary and treasurer. Mrs. W. R. Hall was made keeper of the section properties. Mrs. Guy Runnels gave a splendid reading of "The Feats of the Holy Innocents," written by a member of the Wisconsin Dramatic Club. That club has progressed so far that it has sent out a number of the works of its members. Miss Thresa Cogswell also addressed the club on matters dramatic, giving them many useful ideas for work in their own club.

As a unique farewell compliment to Mr. and Mrs. John Ruether of 337 Lincoln avenue, who are to return to Anaheim after having made their home in Pomona for the past year or more, a "rube" party was held Monday evening at the pretty ranch home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur B. Marshall at Grand and East End avenue. One of the large barns had been cleared for the occasion. With the walls and ceiling lined with corn stalks among which pumpkin jack-o-lanterns twinkled there was a very appropriate and a very proper setting for the "way down east" costumes in which the participants appeared. A steak barbecue accompanied by cider, pumpkin pie and all the other requirements to appease the appetite of a husky "farmer" furnished the bountiful refreshments of the evening. Pumpkin ping pong, dancing, music and recitations furnished no end of amusement.

There is no more hospitable host in Pomona than is H. H. Newcomb, 810 South Gibbs street, as a merry coterie of young women who were his guests on Tuesday evening can testify. The ladies are all associated with Mr. Newcomb in business and enjoyed an informal evening at his home. Various games and fortune telling whiled away the hours. Mr. Newcomb, himself, being victorious in winning the prize for the most artistic efforts in portraying a cat. The fun lasted until a late hour, the host serving dainty refreshments before good-bys were said.

Of the many jolly Halloween parties of the season there were none, perhaps, which were more thoroughly enjoyed than that at the the home of Mrs. Jennie Metier at 501 East Phillips boulevard when a number of friends appeared well masked and attired in strange costumes in keeping with the Halloween spirit. Witches, black cats and all the other "fixings" which add to the weirdness of the occasion were used with excellent results. As the fun got well under way the hostess announced that there would be a prize offered to the guest who would guess the names of the largest number of the other guests while they were still masked. When it came time for the unmasking it was found that Mrs. Stella Donalson had won the honor. During the evening, music, dancing and games were enjoyed. Refreshments in keeping with the occasion were served.

Mrs. May Barnes, 835 North Gordon street, entertained in honor of the first birthday anniversary of her little grand-daughter and namesake, Shirley May Barnes, Wednesday evening. The little lass and her grandmother, celebrated their anniversaries on the same day. A birthday cake bearing one tiny candle, graced the table for the 6 o'clock dinner which was served to members of the family.

VENTURA.

Complimenting Miss Myrtle Clay and Harold Dudley, whose engagement was recently announced, Mr. and Mrs. William Olsen and Mr. and Mrs. James Dunn entertained with a five hundred party, Tuesday evening.

Miss Leila Taylor spoke before the Casa de Rosa Club on war times in Italy, Tuesday of this week. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. E. C. Canet, with Mrs. Robert Clarke as joint hostess.

Mrs. L. S. Beckley was hostess to the Shakespeare club this week at a meeting to which members invited friends.

Mrs. Ole Borgstrom extended hospitality to the Wednesday Afternoon Club this week at their regular monthly meeting.

Mrs. Charles Barnard was hostess to the Tuesday Club this week. Mrs. E. M. Sheridan acted as programme chairman. The club is making a study this year of early California history.

In compliment to Mrs. W. S. Towne, who is leaving for Monrovia, to make her home, Miss Fanny Harkey and Mrs. A. E. Wilson tendered her a farewell reception on Tuesday afternoon, at the beautiful Harkey home.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Brakey, residents of Ventura since 1887, celebrated their golden wedding on Tuesday of this week. Children and grandchildren who gathered around the board at a fine turkey dinner were: Mr. and Mrs. John Brakey of Ventura, Mr. and Mrs. William Hill and daughter, Dorothy, of Taft; Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Hayes and children, Tedd and Ruby, of Glendora.

Miss Gertrude Willis and Miss Helen Sheehan were hostesses at a barn dance at the Willis ranch to a crowd of Oxnard and Ventura High School folk Monday night. Twelve couples were invited, and

Thanksgiving

"Let good digestion wait on appetite and health on both"

THE well-appointed table gives zest to the holiday dinner. And the head of the house wears a contagious smile of satisfaction when he picks up a set of carvers which he knows may be depended upon, and proceeds to dissect the well-browned, succulent bird.

Brock and Company's carvers, fashioned in the famous Hepplewhite silver—one of the firm's exclusive patterns—are unexcelled. Other artistic and exclusive carvers are here in infinite variety.

Salad Bowls, Platters, Gravy Bowls, Flower Center Pieces, Vases and Candlesticks, Double Vegetable Dishes, Bouillon Cups and Saucers, and Other Pieces, Beautifully Wrought in Silver; Gold-mounted and Etched Glassware in Finger Bowls and Stemware, add to the Attractiveness of the Thanksgiving Table.

the girls wore gingham aprons and the boys overalls.

Mrs. George Daly was hostess to her bridge club on Tuesday of this week.

Among the nice affairs given for Miss Myrtle Clay was one in which she shared honors with Mrs. Frank A. Dudley, a recent bride. Mrs. B. W. Dudley was the hostess.

Mrs. J. Q. Gastrich of Fillmore spoke before the Avenue Club at its meeting, last week.

Mrs. John Newby was hostess to the Progressive Club at its last regular meeting.

SAWTELLE.

A jolly Halloween dancing party was enjoyed, Saturday evening, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Turner, 760 Santa Monica boulevard, in honor of their daughter, Miss Louise, who has but recently returned from Washington, D. C., where she has been for the past two years engaged in the government war work. Decorations appropriate to the Halloween season added pleasantly to the occasion, and the guests were en masque.

Mrs. Ellen French Aldrich was hostess, last Friday, at a luncheon at her home on North Tenth street. It was given in honor of Rev. and Mrs. Harry Shoemaker of China, who are missionaries on the same mission field with Miss Hazel French, daughter of Mrs. Aldrich, who went to China several years ago.

SAN LUIS OBISPO.

Halloween was the occasion for many festivities, the largest affair being the Halloween masquerade given by the Elks. The affair was invitational, but several hundred guests enjoyed the evening. There were many pretty and original costumes, and dancing was kept up until the small hours. At midnight a supper was served in the grill room.

Mrs. C. X. Cherrie and the Misses Dorothy and Stella Cherrie have returned from a motor trip to Los Angeles.

Miss Stella Martin, who has been spending several weeks here visiting old friends, has returned to her home in Miami, Ariz.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Cunningham have returned from Santa Barbara, where they have been spending the week.

Miss Bessie Kirkland of Watsonville was the week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. William Westendorf.

Mrs. A. J. Dutton is spending several weeks with her mother in Anaheim.

Little Miss Dagmar Goold was hostess to a number of her young friends at a Halloween party Thursday evening at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Goold, 1512 Mill street. The affair was in the form of a masquerade party, and games and fortune-telling helped pass the evening pleasantly. Supper was served in the dining-room, which was appropriately decorated in Halloween figures.

Mrs. Walter Grigsby is entertaining her cousin, Miss Bertha Forbes, who recently arrived from Canada.

Mrs. F. M. Smith was hostess at a delightful Halloween party on Friday evening. Games and fortune-telling occupied the evening, refreshments being served later. "Spook" stories were told at midnight, after which the guests departed. About fifty persons enjoyed the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. William Groundwater entertained a number of their friends at a Halloween dinner at their home in Buchon street Friday evening. Covers were laid for fifteen at the prettily-decorated table.

The regular meeting of the Music Club was held at the home of Mrs. F. L. Butts, 1225 Garden street, Monday evening. Mrs. Bland read the paper of the evening, on "Carpentier."

A spooky Halloween party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Havermale in Monterey street Thursday evening, when about sixty guests participated in all the time-honored Halloween mysteries.

Mrs C. L. Day entertained Thursday afternoon at her home in Pismo street in compliment to Miss Helen Goodrich, whose engagement to Roy E. Nicholson was recently announced.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Merrifield are enjoying a brief stay in San Francisco.

UPLAND.

A number of Upland society women were hostesses at a supper-dance of Halloween appointments Friday evening at the Hotpoint Club, Ontario. The ballroom was appropriately adorned for the occasion. The evening was spent at dancing and cards and a light supper followed.

Miss Marion Maurer was hostess Saturday evening to a number of friends at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Harold C. Moore, on Euclid avenue. A number of unique games occupied the early hours of the evening and refreshments followed.

Miss Anna Wilson entertained a coterie of friends at cards Friday evening at her home on Washington boulevard. Autumn shades predominated in the decorations.

Mrs. Everett Hampton Fuller entertained with a bridge tea Thursday afternoon at her home on Euclid avenue. The guests numbered Mrs. Harold Clarke Moore, Mrs. Glenn Dickinson Smith, Mrs. James H. Black, Mrs. Charles H. Wimpress, Mrs. Robert Nash Leahy, Mrs. Harlow Scott Wilson, Mrs. Charles Eugene Grier, Mrs. Royal Bumstead, Mrs. Torrens Pratt, Mrs. George Winter and Mrs. Horace Little.

Little Paul McMullen entertained a party of small friends Friday evening with a Halloween party at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred McMullen on Ninth avenue. After a group of merry games, a three-course supper was served. Present were the Misses Nell Norton, Lavon Kronmeyer, Ruth Clark, Elva Woodruff, Melva Ward, Ruth MacPherson and Masters Ralph Jackson, Louis Jackson, Alden Wisly, Marvin Duley, Harold Horack and Paul McMullen.

WILLOWBROOK.

Entertaining with a farewell surprise, members of the Parent-Teacher Association were hostesses Thursday evening in the home of Mrs. Grace Caples and Miss C. Fish, who moved to Compton a few days later. Light refreshments and a social evening were enjoyed.

Mrs. J. M. Koerner was hostess at luncheon Wednesday, as a courtesy to Mrs. P. D. Gibbons of Los Angeles, in her home on Burton avenue. Guests included members of the Parent-Teacher Association.

Having spent several months here in the homes of her daughters and families, Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Mills and Mr. and Mrs. William Miller, Mrs. M. J. Seany left Wednesday for Denver.

Miss Georgia Ward was hostess to a coterie of friends Saturday evening in the home of her grandmother Mrs. E. B. Knight. Miss Marguerite Gautney was a guest of honor, others being the Misses Pauline Wolf, Georgia and Gladys Martin, Bessie Owen, Sally and Prue Dryfus, Effie Edwards, Georgia Ward, Dale and Tourist Moser, George Warburton, Gordon White, Ralph Owen, Frank Glick, Ted Ward and Mrs. K. Ward. The thimble, button, ring and penny hidden in a large cake were drawn by Prue Dryfus, George Warburton and Effie Edwards, the latter procuring both penny and ring.

Miss Leah Davis and Miss Evelyn Wetmore, a duet of small hostesses, entertained with a jolly masquerade party Saturday evening in the home of Mrs. Nellie Collins, 332 Diller street. It was a Halloween affair, with decorations games and refreshments in keeping. At the stroke of midnight, a typical witch put in appearance and told the children's fortunes.

ARLINGTON.

Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Beach spent a few days with their daughter, Mrs. Harry Stoltz at Long Beach.

Misses Hazel and Bessie Harris were home from Los Angeles to attend the Halloween festivities.

Charles Hale of Manhattan Beach was the guest of his cousin, Mrs. Jennie Wilkins.

The Ladies' Aid of the Methodist Episcopal Church held a meeting Wednesday afternoon to arrange for a bazaar which will be given the first week in December.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ormsby have returned from Newport Beach where they have been spending several weeks.

The Arlington Parent-Teacher Association held a business session Thursday afternoon at Liberty school. The next meeting will be held on Thursday, November 20.

Rev. G. K. Berry who has been the pastor of the Arlington and Corona Christian churches for the past two years has accepted a call to Tucson, Ariz., and will leave next week to take up his work in that city.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bliss and daughter, Edna of Los Angeles are guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Goodreau.

COACHELLA.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Henry of the Moreno Valley visited Thermal a few days last week.

Mrs. Joe Rossonne of Los Angeles was the guest last week of Mrs. William Decker at the Overholtzer ranch.

A merry crowd gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Fabian Wednesday evening to help them celebrate their seventeenth wedding anniversary. Many good wishes were extended to them in a few well chosen words by Rev. Ferguson in behalf of their many friends. Refreshments of cocoa and cake were served.

Miss Agnes Sill of Perris, is visiting her sister, Mrs. V. B. Ward.

Mrs. E. P. Carr returned home a few days ago from the East, where she spent the summer with relatives.

J. F. Hayes and family spent the week-end in Los Angeles, accompanying Mr. Hayes' mother to her home.

The Coachella Ladies' Aid met at the church Thursday afternoon and held a business and social meeting.

WATTS.

"Just married, gone to Arizona, forgive us!" was the contents of a telegram received Tuesday evening by Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Shultz, 312 Compton avenue, from their daughter, Miss Wanda Shultz, now Mrs. Sneed Daggett. It is believed the young couple are with his parents on a ranch in Arizona. Mr. Daggett has been in Watts but a few months, since having received his discharge from the navy. Another wedding of interest was that of Miss Ida Shattuck, who was married Sunday afternoon to Morton Meeker in the home of the bride's sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. George Tait, 320 East Tajauta avenue, Rev. J. H. Maddox of the Christian church, officiating. Only the immediate families were present. Mr. and Mrs. Meeker will make their homes in Palm Springs, Riverside county, where Mr. Meeker is in business.

And last though not least is the wedding Friday afternoon of Mrs. Ethel Wilson of Watts and Earl Benson of Los Angeles, who were married in that city. After a brief honeymoon in Long Beach, Mr. and Mrs. Benson will reside temporarily in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Perkins, 233 Diller street. Mr. Benson is a postal clerk in Los Angeles, where they will make their home.

SEAL BEACH.

The Chamber of Commerce Halloween dance was one of the most enjoyable events ever given in Seal Beach. Large numbers came from Santa Ana, Anaheim, Orange, Fullerton, Brea, and other places in Orange county, besides many from Los Angeles. The decorations were in the Halloween motif, the large pavilion being made to resemble a witch's den. The orchestra was stationed at the entrance to a cave on the stage, and this was one of the novel features of the affair. The Chamber of Commerce proposes to make the Halloween dance an annual event.

rived from Oklahoma City to spend the winter in Seal Beach. He is taking a post graduate course in optometry at a Los Angeles college.

Bert St. John, manager of Clune's Auditorium Theater in Los Angeles, with Mrs. St. John and Mr. and Mrs. Hal Stephens, spend the week-end at the St. John cottage on Third street.

ALHAMBRA. More than eighty-five guests and their friends sat down at the luncheon at the clubhouse, Wednesday, enjoying the delicious repast that was provided by the Hospitality Committee. The long tables in the sunny dining-room were gay with yellow daisies in brown baskets and tall yellow candles in brown candlesticks. After the luncheon the guests listened to a convincing talk by Mrs. Herbert W. Cable Junior Past President of the district, who talked on the subject "When Women Vote." Following this the meeting was adjourned to the clubrooms where the Hon. George Cartwright talked on Americanism. Next week Lillian Burkhardt Goldsmith will have charge of the club programme.

One of the most charming parties of the Halloween season was the dancing party under the auspices of the Woman's Club. at the clubhouse, last week. The rooms were decorated with yellow and green and music was provided by the Municipal Band. Mrs. Clarence Van Graham was in charge of the door, and other committees had charge of the punch bowl and other arrangements. The guests came in costume.

Honoring Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Gurley were the guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Clapp for dinner, after which the guests went to the dance at the clubhouse. Mrs. Clapp's guests were Mr. and Mrs. Gurley and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Van Graham.

Following the dancing party about fifteen were invited to the home of Mrs. A. O. Truelson, where a surprise party for her was arranged by her daughter.

Mrs. C. E. Graves of South First street bade a number of her friends to a jolly Halloween celebration last week. The evening was devoted to cards, prizes being awarded to Mrs. J. D. Ross, and Mr. Roy Graves, Mrs. Ernest Detrich and Mr. Telford. Refreshments were served, all carrying out the Halloween suggestion. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Ross, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Graves, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Detrich, Mr. and Mrs. Telford Fischer, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Van Stone Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Stinebaugh, Mrs. Evan Phelps, Mr and Mrs. Dan Arling, and Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Graves.

The first social meeting of the season was spent by the Round Table Club, as the guests of Mrs Allen, who was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. Liversidge. The rooms were characteristically decorated with yellow chrysanthemums and greenery, and numerous black cats added mystery to the scene Mrs. Goudge read a ghost story Refreshments were served in the dining-room assisted by Miss Agnes Goudge and Miss May Cairns. Miss Mabel Rice of South First street will be the hostess for the next meeting of which Mrs. Zella Dodge will have charge.

A number of young friends enjoyed the hospitality of 10-year-old Drew Hartung at a Halloween party recently. Games and refreshments suggestive of the season were indulged in. The following were the guests. Dorothy Cato. Anita Robinson. Jessie Patterson. Freda Hassel, Sarah Eckert. Alfred Barstow, Jr., Gerald Zeiger. Frank Stafford, Ronald Gleason and the host.

Another kiddy party was that given to celebrate the first birthday of little Gioia Buttress, to which eight of her friends were bidden. In the center of the table was a birthday cake with one candle and favors of cats, dogs and rabbits were given. The little guests were Norman Little, Mildred Moggis, Bruce Wallace Gladwin DeVaughn, Jane Washburn, Alvin Toner. Eloise Yelland and Janice Merchant. Their ages ranged from ten months to eight years.

PERRIS. The mothers and teachers of the Ethanac Union School have organized a Parent-Teachers' Association. The following officers were elected: president, Mrs. J. Hayes; vice-president, Mrs. Arthur Brown; secretary, Mrs. J. Holme; treasurer, Mrs. Otto Hanzlik; press correspondent, Mrs. William Guthridge.

Chloride Walker of Perris, who enlisted in the navy on January 10, 1919, has now graduated from the radio school of the United States Navy at Great Lakes, Ill., and has been transferred to Key West, Fla. Walter is now an electrician third class and is fully qualified as an expert.

Mr. and Mrs. James Coburn, who left home in Perris last Monday night on an extended visit to Colorado and Minnesota to visit relatives, spent five hours en route in Salt Lake City where they were entertained at the Perry Hotel by Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Alkire. They enjoyed a delightful motor trip, visiting different points of interest. Mr. and Mrs. Alkire are former Perris residents.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Willis Higbey have as their guest for a few days. Mrs. Higbey's mother, Mrs. Dallas of Bryn Mawr.

Mr. George C. Hibbard, who has been confined to his home for several weeks by illness, is rapidly recovering and hopes to soon be able to attend to his business.

Mrs. H. W. Akin and daughter entertained as their guests Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Silas Gray and children of Casa Blanca.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Bartlett and family spent the week-end in Pasadena at the home of Mr. Bartlett's parents. Saturday was the sixtieth anniversary of the marriage of the senior Bartletts and also the birthday of the daughter. A family reunion was held, at which the sons and daughters were all present.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Holloway and son Robert, and Mrs. Holloway's sister, Mrs. Edward Stahl, returned to Perris Monday evening, after a couple of weeks' absence. Mr. and Mrs. Holloway motored to San Francisco, where Mr. Holloway atended sessions of the grand lodge Masons. Mrs. Stahl and Robert Holloway accompanied them as far as San Luis Obispo

Peg o' Los Angeles goes buying

Every woman who appreciates the unusual charm and style of Isabel, Phipps and Burgesser hats will be surprised and delighted to know that the exclusive house of [illegible] will make an exception to their rule this week by making a special offering of these hats this week. Having a limited number on hand they will offer fifty $25 and [illegible] hats at twenty and fifty $20 and [illegible] hats at fifteen! Such a rare opportunity! 733 South Hill, south of Alhambra Theater.

What's the value of music in the home? Ask anyone who has a family of children and a player piano! Some of them are not musical, but love music—some play a little—but the classics. The player piano fills all needs. You can have real musical evenings, dances too and keep the kiddies at home, if you have a player. I noticed some new ones at the Smith Piano Co., Ninth and Grand—their payment plan is interesting, too.

Too fat? Too thin? Not exactly well? You can be brought to normal weight and measurements and greatly improved in health by the [illegible] system — without drugs or [illegible]. It's intensely interesting. [illegible] Title Guarantee Building, [illegible] West Fifth. Phone 67815.

Sport gloves are great favorites this season.

Picot hemstitching is done for [illegible] cents a yard by the Peerless Hemstitching Co., 232 O. T. Johnson Building, corner Fourth and Broadway. Their new embroidery machine does the most beautiful work.

Why be fat? Take it off where [illegible] without effort, diet or drugs and have the figure of Hebe. Relieves rheumatism and constipation. Improves circulation. Weight Reducing Company, 413 Brockman Building.

[illegible] gloves, so popular for [illegible] wear are found in all the [illegible] shades at the Ville de Paris. These are fastened with [illegible] and come in gray, white, [illegible], tan, and dark brown. The [illegible] Wash-Rite glove is a practical one and very satisfactory as it wears well. I noticed [illegible] gloves for children here.

[illegible] School offers a splendid opportunity for a girl to increase her [illegible] and incidentally her salary at the modern Business College. Gregg shorthand, speed and [illegible] classes, are conducted by [illegible], the principal, and the [illegible]-Graham classes by Mr. Con[illegible], Superior Court Reporter. Byrne Building, Third and Broadway.

[illegible] are certainly good this [illegible].

Don't throw away your clothes. Dye them yourself with Lee's Dye-[illegible]. A few drops in the rinse water does the work. It's not a soap, so there's no rubbing. It works equally well with wool, silk or cotton; does not injure the most delicate fabric and does not stain the hands. What more could you wish? Ask for it at any store.

Let I tell you about the new [illegible] for finishing velvets at the [illegible] Dye Works, 1369 West Washington. These folks certainly are [illegible] and turn out some unusual [illegible] work. Phone 25109. They have a special department for out of town work.

Why not take that favorite hat to the Original Make-over Hat Shop? They give you individual attention and turn out some stunning hats. There are always charming new ones to choose from, too. 688 Alvarado, across from Westlake, with plenty of room to park your car!

[illegible] M. Bergeron is a teacher of beauty and health, who believes in the cultivation of the best possibilities of every woman. Physical culture, including face and neck muscles, the removal of dark, [illegible] spots, freckles and that withered condition of the skin is her specialty; also the removal of superfluous hair, warts, moles and birthmarks. A personal interview will tell you better than I can that her reputation has been well earned in eighteen years in Los Angeles. [illegible] floor, Haas Bldg., corner Seventh and Broadway.

Aren't you glad you learned to do making your own frocks with the help in finishing is an easy [illegible]. This help is given you at the [illegible] Button Co., 603 Title Guarantee Bldg., 220 W. Fifth. Is it something you want or wool embroidery? They do it beautifully. Also hemstitching, picoting, plaiting, in fact all kinds of machine stitching and button making. Out-of-town orders filled.

[illegible] such piquancy mark [illegible] corsets at the Blackburn [illegible], 818 W. Seventh, and did you know that you could build your figure with the aid of an expert corsetmaking teacher. The [illegible] tailored corsets made here are receiving much attention.

No, you can't cook your own dinner as they do in Grace's Garret, New York, but you can be delightfully at home at the Russian Tea Room, 631 S. Grand. Anyone can take a turn at the piano, sing a song, dance and make merrie—so folks have formed a habit of having parties there—it's a most charming place. Between times the young man continues his wonderful zither music. Sunday dinner will now be served from 1 to 2:30 and from 5 to 7. Reservations can be made now for Thanksgiving. Phone 62458.

Those French flannels are the loveliest materials! They are in such a variety of sport colors, which can be used for smocks, middies, sport skirts, tams or most anything which you'd want bright and warm. Then there are the charming pastel shades, they'd make such enchanting negligees and things. Robinson's will be glad to have you see them.

A corset with stays of woven wire, the Barcley Corset, is famous for its lovely lines, conforming to one's figure, and yet having that tailored appearance. An expert corsetiere will fit you in these, also tailored brassieres at 736 W. Seventh. 66862.

A permanent wave is so satisfactory, especially if made on the famous Nestle machine. Mme. Lillie Koschat is the only certified Nestle work—she is the only certified Nestle operator here who has studied with Mr. Nestle himself in New York. The waves put in by Madame Koschat are gaining a wonderful reputation for themselves and for her. These are in all sizes and can be made in blond or white hair, successfully. On the eighth floor of Brack Shops, in the Nestle Shop, you can get facial massage, scalp treatments, hair dyeing, manicuring and marcel waving, done also by experts. Phone 63333. A water wave and hairdress is given free with each wave.

The Assembly Tea Room offers you a joyous good old New England Thanksgiving dinner — served as only a New England woman knows how! Hours will be 1 to 3 and 6 to 8. You'll be wise to make your reservations early by calling 13857. Fifth Floor, Brack Shops.

Well, we just must have clothes—but it is a problem how to get them. Ella Mason Dean has solved it by opening that most unusual Everywoman's Shop, where women who cannot pay the uptown prices, can buy smart clothes for a mere song! It's at 448 S. Alvarado, just a door from W. Sixth street. There's no sign. Call 558983 for further information.

And now we have the most delightful toys of yarn—hula dolls, dogs and cats and many others, at the Yarn Shop, 716 S. Grand, across from Robinson's. You should run in to see them and they'll show you; also their new line of designs and materials for stamping. Special sale of 2-oz. balls. They now carry embroidery cotton and silk here and in the Pasadena Shop, 388 E. Colorado, where instruction is given from 10 to 4 o'clock.

Diamonds, loveliest of gems, give us many a thrill of delight—if we wear them—but, packed away, kept out of sight, they are practically useless. Holidays are at hand—what about turning your old diamonds into money by selling them outright to Mr. Hambright, who will gladly pay top prices for them. You'll find him at 301 Title Guarantee Bldg., 220 W. Fifth St.

I dropped into Hudgen's Permanent Wave Shop yesterday. All five of their big machines were going, and they only had time to say "Hello!" They have both the Nestle & Frederics machines, are licensed Nestle operators and make any kind of a wave that can be made and have the oldest waving concern on the Coast. Entire front, fourth floor Brack Shops, 7th and Grand. Phone 62863 for appointment.

Gowns for afternoon are sometimes made entirely of brocade.

Gray hair won't show if you have it tinted in any lovely shade you like. Lois Hardin has had fifteen years' of experience, and does the tinting from $5 to $7. Her new Beauty Parlor is 306 Haas Bldg. Phone 62715.

The Mary Louise Tea Room is already reserving places for Thanksgiving dinner for those thoughtful folk who always plan ahead. Dinner will be served from 1 to 2:30 and from 5 to 8. There are several delightful rooms for private parties, which may be had for Thanksgiving or the regular evening dinners and luncheons. Top Tea Room Brack Shops.

Never was the brushed wool scarf more voguish.

When do you want your fur remodeled—in time for Thanksgiving? Well, then, take it to the Vogue Fur Shop by Wednesday this week and you'll get it at 746 South Hill. It will be exquisitely made in the most up-to-the-minute style. Evelyn Myers (formerly with Colburn's) proprietor of this smart little shop, offers 50 per cent. discount on made-up furs this week. Among them are foxes, squirrel scarfs, Korean mink coatees and capes.

Facings of fur on coats are very smart.

"Crooked-Straight"—sounds paradoxical—but there's so much good in some criminals, that we can't help wondering—Charles Ray at Grauman's this week gives us one of the finest interpretations of his career and Sid Grauman's "Revelation," showing the inner workings of this wonderful theater, will prove wonderfully attractive to movie fans.

Dora Dean gives a fine scalp treatment, which dissolves and removes dandruff, with shampoo, one dollar, or with this notice, only 50c. 331 W. Eighth, at Zan's.

What joy to snuggle into such a fur wrap as the one I tried on at Ormond's, 728 W. Seventh. (I can't resist trying them on.) This one, my dears, was of Hudson seal, made with drooping flaring back, with large crushy collar, cuffs and bands forming pockets, all of skunk. And would you believe it—that wonderful collar was detachable and could be used on evening coat—or anything!

Most exclusive stamping patterns, largest assortment in the city is to be found at Angelus Art Shop, 315 Byrne Bldg., 3rd and Broadway. Designs for linens, babies' outfits, monograms, initials, etc., in most artistic styles.

Galvanic and Fardic muscle strapping restores youthful looks. A $2 astringent mask for $1 this week. Manicuring done also at Bordeaux Beauty Salon, 227 Title Insurance Bldg., 458 S. Spring.

Yes, I've commenced my Christmas shopping. And let me tell you if you're looking for beauty boxes, vanity cases, over-night cases or canteen bags, I found a perfect riot of these at that wide-awake Indestructo Luggage Shop, and the very newest is the sedan case, smart and nifty, containing all of those mysterious conveniences so appreciated for charm's sake! These lovely fitted cases come in vachette, Morocco and ecrase, and can be had from $7.50 to—well as high as you wish to pay. Remember, 224 W. Fifth, adjoining the Alexandria.

Did you know that your ostrich plumes can be changed into the glycerined fancy and then can again be returned to its original texture. In this way you can have so many changes of trimming at so small an expense. Vallely & Vatcher, 640 Broadway, 6th floor, opposite Bullock's, will tell you how they do not only this, but many other wonderful things with your old ostrich feathers. They will remodel your marabout cape, also.

Eyelashes and eyebrows dyed permanently by a harmless process which can be used at home. Call or write Mrs. L. M. Smidt, 822 West Seventh. Phone Main 647.

Spotted fur coats trimmed with fox are becoming popular.

Why be worried with superfluous hair? Follicide will painlessly and permanently destroy even the most stubborn hair growth and can be successfully used at home. Call or write Mrs. L. M. Smidt, 822 W. 7th st. Phone Main 647.

If you wear Williams-Wear tub frocks about your work you won't mind at all if folks come in unexpectedly. They are for sale at 734 S. Hill.

Lovely curls are made by Orda M. Ovem on the permanent wave machine. They're as natural as can be—eight for $5. She does all of the work herself, and gives each curl special care. Markham Beauty Parlors, tenth floor Brack-Shops. Phone 14363.

If your face hurts—it needs attention! At this season you should take special care of your skin. You won't know yourself after taking a few scientific facials from Ora M. Deere, 806 Hollingsworth Bldg., 6th and Hill. She also removes superfluous hair without scars, as she is an expert electrolysist.

Your old fur remodeled will be stunning! Nora Hutching (formerly with John Klein) does expert work and will call and estimate cost if you phone 19966. You can see her at 569 S. Fremont.

The Betty Sloan Sample Shop, 8th floor, Brack-Shops, will have a special sale Monday of the smartest new street dresses, in velours du laine, basket weave and tricotine, and afternoon dresses of satin, Georgette and moire silk at $35, $45 and $55.

Embroidery is used as much as possible on everything.

Do you want some shopping done? Miss Kipp will do it for you—she knows where to find just what you're looking for. If you live out of town for Christmas shopping, write to Bureau of Personal Service, 1106 Title Insurance Bldg., 5th and Spring. She will plan parties or trips, take charge of the kiddies, help you select furnishings or rent you a home—in fact, do the thousand and one things you're too busy to do. Phone Pico 227.

Brocaded silk and velvet are in great favor for shopping bags and vanity cases.

Don't think I'm saying shop early, because I've a habit of saying it—I really want each one of you to have a choice of the best, and Desmond's is such a delightful place to shop—it's a comfortable, homey sort of store—it has a boys' shop and a woman's shop within the man's store—why you can buy real practical presents here for the whole family. The woman's shop offers such a charming line of silk lingerie, hosiery, gloves, sweaters, purses and smart tailored hats and sports coast in camel's hair, leather, Tweed o' Wool. You know the conditions this year—so make sure of your gifts! Spring, near Sixth.

Leather and suede coats are smart.

Any woman would consider it worth while to look ten years younger. In one week this can be accomplished by the Barber treatment, which is not at all severe, does not even keep you at home, but removes freckles and old brown skin, eradicates wrinkles, fills out hollow places and gives your skin the glow of youth. Mrs. Barber, complexion specialist, Brack-Shops, fifth floor.

Mr. Kruger says it's really best to order your tailored suit as early as possible if you want it before the rush season. You know he has a penchant for putting a dashing effect to down-to-the-minute styles, that only an experienced artist can accomplish. He's at fourth floor, Brack-Shops. Phone him, Main 8987.

Camels' hair coats and capes are very popular.

Melvin H. Sykes, famous Chicago photographer, offers to make one dozen beautiful photographs of children from 7 months to 2 years for $2. Take this notice to him before November 23. He is also making some lovely Christmas booklets which will contain your own picture and also be souvenirs of California. Majestic Theater Bldg. Phone 63740.

Your army overcoat can be dyed beautifully at the Talbert Dye Works, 1223-7 West Washington. Browns take unusually well. They are dyeing a lot of jerseys and ostrich plumes now, too. If you take your things to them you get a discount. Phones 24036 and West 536. Out-of-town orders receive special attention.

My but those pumpkin pies are good—and mince pies, too! The Vanity Fair Tea Room says order them early—everybody wants 'em! Have you ever lunched or dined there—it's a most charming little place for a friendly dinner and chat. One dollar and twenty-five cents for dinner. 937 S. Hill.

Monkey fur is having an unprecedented vogue.

If you wish to have some photographs taken which will look exactly like you and done with most exquisite finesse—see Mr. Robbins, seventh floor, Brack-Shops, and please don't wait too long if you want them for holidays.

A tip! See the line of artistic gifts on display in the Art Shop of Bernays Co., 315 W. 3rd st., ordered for early Christmas shoppers and offered at prices that are astonishingly reasonable in this day of high costs.

You'd never believe me if I told you the prices—so go and see for yourself—those smart, nifty gowns, frocks and suits at Seymore's Clothes Shop, 804 S. San Pedro. In these days of high prices you'll appreciate these very reasonable ones. Some very charming hats are offered—no higher than $3.

Laugh and grow thin—you can be as jolly as you like if you take the Kellogg Bergonie treatments. It's a scientific method of putting on or taking off flesh, which is simple and easy, for you let your muscles exercise while you sit back and look on, as it were. This treatment has been used with great success at Battle Creek Sanitarium, so it's worth looking into, for general health's sake, if nothing more. At 801 Merritt Bldg., Broadway at Eighth. They also have a scientific method of restoring youth and charm to the face by building up sagging muscles.

Transparent hats for afternoon and evening dances are much worn.

It's really true — you can buy the most adorable dresses at the Unique this week from $59.50 to $79.50. Now, that's luck—as you know this store always carries most exclusive models. There'll be smart tricotines, charming georgette frocks and clever ones of satin—all most excellent values. It's a pleasure to shop here, 725 S. Broadway, as one always receives such courteous treatment.

This is just to tell you about the special prices the Oriental Art Co., at 928 S. Hill street, will make on picture frames this week. And also to advise you to see their Japanese hand-painted pictures, old prints, calendars and butterfly trays.

Don't neglect your hair! Mae Martin does marvelous things for scalp and hair, relieving all bad conditions. She has had years of experience. See her at 509 Consolidated Realty Bldg., Sixth and Hill. Pico 866.

EDUCATIONAL.

Princeton had an enrollment of 1583 undergraduates on October 15, the largest in the history of the university. The largest previous enrollment was in 1914-15, when 1457 students were in attendance. Indications are that there will be more than 1600 undergraduates when all of the students are classified. There are at present ninety-eight graduate students, bringing the total enrollment at Princeton up to 1681. The entering class numbers 423. The largest previous freshman class was 428 in 1913-14.

With an enrollment close to 7000, the University of Wisconsin has broken all of its previous records. It has this year one-third more students than it ever had before.

Announcement is made by the National Research Council that some of its fellowships in physics and chemistry are still open to qualified men.

The new courses in military science at Harvard have so far enrolled 118 men. Further additions to the equipment of the department are being made.

As a memorial to the late Prof. George Holmes Howison, teacher and philosopher, certain friends, many of whom were also his students, have donated $6271 to the board of regents of the University of California to establish in the university a lectureship on some topic within the field of philosophy to be given annually at the university, and to be known as "The Howison Lectures in Philosophy."

As a memorial to ten Princeton graduates killed during the war, scholarships in Princeton University have been established, the income from which will be used to defray the expenses at Princeton of needy students.

Three out of a total of seven appointees of the National Research Council in chemistry have selected the University of California from among the collegiate institutions of the United States for their scientific research. The remaining four will study respectively at Harvard, Copenhagen, Chicago and Columbia.

Tabulations in the office of the registrar show that the fall registration of students at the University of Arizona is made up of representatives of thirty-six States and five foreign countries, in addition to those from the home State of Arizona.

A general student organization to be known as the Yale Union has been formed by seniors at Yale. Modeled on the Oxford Union, it will hold meetings every two weeks open to the public, at which any member of the university, Bolshevik or capitalist, may voice his opinions on the question of the hour.

The most popular of all courses, judging by the preliminary enrollment, that the Johns Hopkins University is offering, is "Principles of Merchant Marine Administration and Operation." This is an absolutely new course of thirty weekly lectures, which will be given by William M. Brittain, general manager of the Export and Import Board of Trade, and the recognized shipping authority in this country.

JAPANESE GAIN IN HAWAII.

A steady gain in the Japanese population of the islands through the excess of the number of births over that of deaths is shown by official figures, compiled by the Japanese Consulate, made public recently. According to these figures 397 Japanese were born and eighty-three died in the islands in the month of September, showing that the number of the births was nearly five times larger than the number of deaths. The net gain in the Japanese population for September was, therefore, 314. Of the 397 births, 222 were males and 175 females. During the month twenty marriages and five divorces were reported to the Japanese Consulate.—[Pacific Commercial Advertiser, Honolulu.

GEORGIA'S IDLE ACRES.

Georgia contains 12,000,000 acres agriculturally unoccupied and unused—nearly one-third of its whole area; 8,000,000 of these acres are in the coastal plain.

These and similar lands of the South are now universally recognized as the only remaining lands of this country best suited to the further development of the cattle industry. They offer unsurpassing advantages for all forms of live-stock production.

The idle cut-over pine lands of the South is the range land of the immediate future.

The unused lands of Middle and North Georgia are the dairy and sheep lands of tomorrow.—[Atlanta Constitution.

Iowa Banishing the Barberry.

Iowa cities and towns are practically free of the barberry, as the municipal residents have co-operated actively in exterminating this wheat pest. Hundreds of barberry plants have been destroyed on Hawkeye farms as a result of a systematic search for these menaces by experts of the United States Department of Agriculture college. This drive against the barberry has been under headway in twelve other upper Mississippi and Lake region States. Experiences in Iowa indicate that the barberry has been a prolific spreader of black stem rust, as wherever barberry bushes were found subsequently the neighboring fields were badly infested with rust.

That Film on Teeth
See How They Look Without It

All Statements Approved by High Dental Authorities

Free
A Ten-Day Tube of Pepsodent is sent to any interested person. Send the coupon for it. See for yourself what it does.

Your teeth are not clean. You can feel a slimy film. Probably the film has dimmed them—some tartar may have formed.

Your present methods of brushing do not end film, and that is the teeth's great enemy. Now we ask you to try a new method—try it at our cost—and compare results.

Film Can Be Ended Now

Most tooth troubles are due to that film.

It is film that discolors—not the teeth. It is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

The film clings to the teeth, enters crevices and stays. Brushing does not end it. No ordinary tooth paste can dissolve it. Night and day it may do a ceaseless damage. And millions find, as a result, that ordinary brushing does not save the teeth.

Now dental science, after many years, has found a film combatant. The facts have been proved by convincing clinical and laboratory tests. The method is today approved by leading dentists everywhere.

For home use this method is embodied in a dentifrice called Pepsodent. And we are mailing 10-Day Tubes to all who ask, to let everyone see its effects.

The Pepsin Method

Pepsodent is based on pepsin, the digestant of albumin. The film is albuminous matter. The object of Pepsodent is to dissolve it, then to day by day combat it.

Science has found a harmless method of activating pepsin. The usual method is an acid harmful to the teeth. So pepsin long seemed barred.

Now pepsin can be constantly applied—can be left to linger between the teeth. Now you can every day combat this film in a simple, dainty way.

Millions of teeth are being cleaned in this new way. You can see them everywhere—white, glistening teeth.

Send this coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the slimy film. See how the teeth whiten as the fixed film disappears.

Learn what clean teeth mean—see how they look. Then decide for yourself between the old methods and the new. Cut out the coupon now.

Watch Them Whiten
As the film disappears. You will know then what clean teeth mean.

The Times Literary Page Books and Their Makers

BY THOMAS F. AND LILLIAN C. FO

"LIGHT," BY HENRI BARBUSSE.

An Amazing Novel Describing the Horors of War and Offering an Impossible Solution of the Problems of Peace.

Henri Barbusse, the amazing author of "Under Fire," that story of the trenches written during the war and intended to paralyze effort and so sicken mankind against war as to cause a general collapse, has written in "Light" (Dutton,) a fitting successor to his first great success.

In "Light" we find all this French author's rare ability in morbid description, in laying bare the mean and ugly, in gloating over the sensual in the life of man.

The work narrates in the first person the story of Simon Paulin's life. Life it is supposed to be, but in fact it is mostly amours. The implication is that to this man, called a typical Frenchman, life is only lust and its gratification.

In the first chapter he ruminates: "No doubt Antonia is still tempting when she is present. There is a reddish fever in her eyes and her slenderness sets you on fire. But I am hardly in harmony with the Italian. She is particularly engrossed in her private affairs, with which I am not concerned. Big Victorine, always ready, is worth a hundred of her; or Mme. Lacaille, the pensively vicious; though I am equally satiated of her, too. Truth to tell I plunge unreflectingly into a heap of amorous adventures which I shortly find vulgar. But I can never resist the magic of a first temptation."

Then comes Marie, the pretty, gentle cousin. She holds him for a time as no other of his loves has been able to do. Their passion is laid bare in graphic paragraphs. The French realist conceals nothing. But the power of description, the devilish ability of the man makes these passages shine like jewels in the night.

"Oppressed by a common languor, we at last sat down side by side on the step. There is no sound in the building under the one round window bending over us. We lean on each other because of the stair's narrowness. Her warmth enters into me; I feel myself agitated by the obscure light that radiates from her. I share with her the heat of her body and her thought itself. The darkness deepens round us. Hardly can I see the crouching girl there, warm and hollow like a nest."

But even, even in these first passion crammed pages, the author reveals the bent of his mind toward society and the new order of which he is the exponent. Thus he pictures the hopelessness of the life of the French worker: "I've no time; or rather I've no strength. At nights when I come home I'm too tired—you understand, to be happy, you see. Every morning I think I shall be, and I'm hoping up till noon; but at night I'm too knocked out, what with walking and rubbing for eleven hours; and on Sundays I'm done altogether with the week. There's even times that I don't wash myself when I come home. I just stay with my hands mucky; and on Sundays when I'm cleaned up, it's a nasty one when they say to me, 'You're looking well.'"

Brisbille, the blacksmith, drunk half the time and philosopher all the time, who growls incessantly against organized society, prepares us for the bold enunciation of the plan for a new world order which fills the last chapters of the book.

In these chapters, which follow a remarkable series of vivid pictures describing his experience at the front, Paulin becomes the mouthpiece of the author in his advocacy of "the republic of republics" in which is to be vested "the common control in broad daylight of all external affairs, of community in the laws of labor, of production and of commerce."

"So long as a single republic does not cover the world, all national liberations can only be beginnings and signals."

"This universal republic" is the inevitable consequence of equal rights in life for all. Start from the principle of equality and you arrive at the people's international. If you don't arrive there it is because you have not reasoned aright."

This internationalism, Utopian though it is, does not coincide with Bolshevism, for in it "the individual property of the living is to stand, though inheritance is to be abolished," "for it is right," he says, "to enjoy what you have clearly earned by your own work."

Nationality is not the only evil against which this radical rails. The church, the courts with their hateful complexity of judicial procedure, schools as they now exist, all institutions are to be swept away. "Everything is to be remade on simple lines."

With this conclusion the argument of the book answers itself. If the experience of mankind has proven any one thing, it is surely that progress can come only step by step, along the paths of evolution—that everything cannot be remade in a single jump.

France, it is said, is taking "Light" very seriously. So much so that a society of many chapters has been formed to promulgate the teachings. "La Clarte" has thus become the slogan of a part of the radical element in France, but it is doubtful if any lasting structure can be erected on a platform of such sweeping generalities.

And yet the book is stimulating for the active-minded, for it is packed full of meat, even if some of the cuts are not altogether savory. The translation is a very satisfactory one.

Stop! Stop Right There.

A Few Words About

Archibald Marshall

¶ The question: "what makes a book sell?" is not always given the same answer, but it is generally accepted that the most effective force is "word-of-mouth advertising." Certain it is that the wide and ever-increasing popularity of Archibald Marshall may be traced to that form of publicity.

¶ Archibald Marshall is a realist of innate skill who writes in a leisurely and highly entertaining fashion of contemporary English life. His characters live and, as one critic has said, to know them is "to meet and to associate on terms of happy intimacy with delightful, well-bred, clear-minded men and women."

¶ Mr. Marshall's earlier books are read as widely as his later ones. This in itself is proof of the permanent value of his work.

¶ SIR HARRY, a new long novel from his pen, will be ready in November.

¶ The works of Archibald Marshall already published are:

CHILDREN'S BOOK WEEK.

Beginning tomorrow morning and continuing throughout the week ending November 15, the American Booksellers' Association will co-operate with retail booksellers throughout the nation in calling the attention of the elders of the land to the desirability of placing in the hands of children good books. The week has been designated "Children's Book Week."

Book stores, book departments in the big stores, and all old-book shops will take part in this week of books for the youth of the country. Artistically arranged displays of juvenile books will be made so that the attention of all who are interested in the placing of good books in the hands of the children will be given the opportunity to make the choicest selections.

Los Angeles book stores and shops are planning on making this an epochal week in the book trade for the benefit of the children of the city and the very best and most popular editions of children's books will be available for examination.

In this connection a word to intending purchasers of books for holiday gifts is timely. The chaotic condition of the printing and publishing business in the East, due to the strike in the printing trades, renders it wise for all who can do so to make their book purchases now, for each week makes the securing of shipments from the publication centers more and more difficult, so that booksellers generally fear that unless there is a marked change in the situation there may be a scarcity of books for the Christmas trade.

REAR-ADMIRAL FISKE'S STORY.

Into a stately tome that is packed from cover to ocver with a wealth of exciting adventure and amusing incidents Rear-Admiral Bradley A. Fiske has set down his reminiscences under the title "From Midshipman to Rear-Admiral," published by the Century Company. He has told a story that reads like the best fiction, but is, nevertheless, a valuable technical contribution to the literature of our navy.

It is in fact a moving picture of life in the navy as lived by a man who for over forty years took an active part in its growth, development and achievements. Rear-Admiral Fiske has served in all grades of his exacting and important profession and aside from his actual achievements as an active fighting man, he has contributed a number of valuable inventions that have influenced the growth and expansion of the great navies of the world.

He was cited for "eminent and conspicuous conduct at the battle of Manila and his account of that battle will live as one of the best bits of descriptive and dramatic detail of an important and historic event.

Into this book he has poured the contents of a richly ornamented memory. The story is told with vigor and clarity and is a delightful bit of narrative that grips the reader's imagination and gives a vivid picture of life, not only in the navy, but in the far places of the world where the author has lived at different times in the course of his official duties.

The author's controversy with Secretary of the Navy Daniels is told in detail and all the official documents in the case are reproduced.

The book is well bound and richly illustrated. The type is large and easily read.

"Artemus Ward."

America has produced no more picturesque character than Artemus Ward (Charles Farrar Bowne.) The tering the field of letters through the then beaten path of the composing room of a small newspaper he rapidly rose in his chosen profession and before he was himself aware of it he had become famous.

In a biography just written, entitled "Artemus Ward," by Don C. Seitz, and published by Harper & Bros., we get a picture of the humorist who made the whole nation laugh over fifty years ago and whose fame spread across the Atlantic to England, where his brief but meteoric career was closed by death at the age of 33.

As a humorist, lecturer, journalist and showman Ward may be classed with any of the big men of his day. This gentle jester's whole strength was in his personality, for much that he said on the lecture platform, if transferred to paper, would lose its humorous appeal.

The biography is a readable book and the author's ability to enlist his reader's sympathy is one of the strong points of the work.

In his foreword the author says: "The plan of writing a life of the gentle showman has long been in mind. The delay of getting it under way was due to the hope of securing several hundred letters written to Charles A. Shaw of Boston. He died in 1908. Mrs. Shaw survived until 1916 but after her death, though diligently sought, no trace of the letters could be found. I write, therefore, belatedly and to a new generation more for the purpose of adding to the annals of American literature than of reaching a wide circle, and of giving to present-day readers some record of the life and personality of the gentle jester at whose outpourings their fathers and grandfathers laughed so uproariously."

The book is handsomely bound and profusely illustrated with photos, sketches and reproduced letters of the humorist.

The Paris of the Novelists.

Where stood the tavern at which Thackeray found the bouillabaisse that inspired him to song? What is the precise locality of the house whither Maupassant's Georges du Roy went to visit Mme. Forestier? Where was Balzac living when he brought into being Pere Goriot—and who lived 'round the corner, and what did it all have to do with Pere Goriot, anyway? These, and a hundred others like them, are the questions Arthur Bartlett Maurice answers in his book, "The Paris of the Novelists" (Doubleday, Page & Co.)

The people of "Monte Cristo," "The Three Musketeers," "Trilby," all the books of Paris you ever read and loved, take on new life in these pages and move again for your delectation. The trails of British and American writers who have invaded Paris through their stories are also picked up and traced out for you. Kipling, Richard Harding Davis, O. Henry, Booth Tarkington, Harry Leon Wilson—all these have at one time or another turned the steps of their plots Paris-ward. Just where and when and how and what came of it all Mr. Maurice knows and tells you in this intimate, chatty, gossipy highly informal volume. The result is more than merely a book of literary reminiscence and anecdote. It is a delightful travel book, a study of French manners and a guide to the heart of the "world's capital" as well.

RECENT FICTION.

"The Black Drop."

The latest novel of Alice Brown, entitled "The Black Drop" (The Macmillan Company) depicts with rare skill the experience of a typical New England family of culture during those trying years before the United States entered the world war and after it had become plain that only a miracle could keep us out of the conflict.

Miss Brown thinks that all "men of mind and decency," even as early as 1916, were anxious that the nation should throw in its lot with the Allies and thus bring the Hun to terms. Whatever difference of opinion there may be on that score, there can be no question as to the conduct of those pro-Germans described in "The Black Drop." Of these Charley Tracy had the least excuse He was a member of a thoroughly loyal, notably high-minded American family, a family cherishing high ideals and living sound lives, yet he had no standards; for money he became the agent of Germany in a network of propaganda designed to keep America out of the war, and even went so far as to help plan and direct the blowing up of munition plants in various parts of the country. In him there was "a black drop" which made him an alien and an outcast.

The events are stirring enough to hold the interest, but the author's keen character delineation, combined with a rare distinction in style, renders the book one that deserves more than passing attention.

The Tracy family, with the tragic exception of Charles, is a peculiarly admirable one, displaying the sound common sense, the tested ideals and, with some exceptions, the humor that is typically American.

In Norris Tracy Miss Brown has depicted a literary man who can on occasion become a man of action. The subtle analysis of this man's feelings over the character and conduct of his son Charles and the method he takes to nullify the harm this son is bent upon alone make the book worth reading.

Norris Tracy's wife Emily, who never wastes a word, never becomes excited, is always quietly self-restrained, and yet is a bulwark of strength in the family, is a character that amuses and challenges at the same time.

If Helen, the sadly disillusioned wife of Charles Tracy, is a thought too remote and exalted, we can at least understand and enjoy her boyishly frank sister, Jessie Leslie.

This compelling group is made up of those "lame ducks" led by John Tracy who work heart and soul for what they believe is the honor of

THEODORE ROOSEVELT—A BIOGRA

William Roscoe Thayer's "Theodore Roosevelt—An Intimate Biography," published by Houghton Mifflin Company, is not in the strictest sense a biography, but a eulogistic appreciation by an intimate friend who has permitted his admiration for his subject to carry him far beyond critical appraisement.

That few men have filled so large a place in American life as Theodore Roosevelt, no one can deny, but at this date, to characterize him as the greatest, or to place him beside the greatest Americans, is both premature and hazardous on the part of a writer who aspires to be considered a master of the art of biographical writing.

The career of Roosevelt as President, soldier and world-wide traveler and explorer was as spectacular as the rush of a fiery comet across a moonless midnight sky. But to go the lengths Thayer does in his eulogy disguised as biography weakens the book.

That the author realized that his overweening admiration got the better of his judgment is revealed in the preface when he says: "In finishing the last proofs of this sketch, I perceive that some of those who read it may suppose that I planned a deliberate eulogy of Theodore Roosevelt. This is not so."

In this biography we get a highly colored picture of Roosevelt in which all his acts are lauded to the sky. His mistakes are carefully glossed over and whenever he came into conflict with other great Americans, regardless of who they were, the author at once beclouds the issue by attributing ulterior motives to all his subject's opponents.

The book follows closely the line of Roosevelt's autobiography, and deals with the events of his life in about the same sequence. There is little that is new in the work, as Roosevelt made such an impress on his times that the outstanding events of his career are still fresh in the minds of everyone.

The work recounts how Roosevelt plunged into the muck and moil of New York State politics as a young man; his vigorous opposition to the men who controlled the well-oiled, smooth-running political machine; of his fight for civil service reform and his standing pat when the Mugwump movement, in which he was one of the leaders, broke from the Republican party and encompassed the election of Grover Cleveland. The glossing process is utilized in dealing with his later escapade in heading the Progressive ticket and defeating Taft for a second term, and of his abandoning of the Progressives in the last campaign. No attempt is made to explain these apparent inconsistencies, which the author justifies by his own ipse dixit.

How, while President, he Kaiser built the Panama practically took Russia and their necks and, speaking, shook them signed the treaty of which ended the Russo-J is graphically recounted.

The author tells us of a made by John Morley wh tinguished Englishman at the White House in discussing his impressi velt he said: "The tw America which seem to dinary are Niagara Falls dent Roosevelt."

Boy Scouts Year Book.

"The Boy Scouts Year Book" (Appleton) edited by Franklin K. Mathiews, is a prize among boys' books. It boasts a dozen or more enlivening stories; articles on airplane travel, fishing, hunting, camping, canoeing and other subjects dear to the hearts of boys; messages by President Wilson, Gen. Pershing and other famous leaders among men; and some jolly special features thrown in for good measure.

All this makes a bulky volume, which the publishers have taken pains to make attractive. There are some fine color plates and many illustrations.

"Hop-o'-My Thumb."

"Hop-o'-My Thumb" by Clifton Johnson (The Macauley Company) is one of a series of the Bedtime Wonder Tales made up of favorite stories taken from the folklore of all nations.

The selections are intended for children from 8 to 12 years of age. They will also be welcomed by parents who are seeking stories to tell the younger children.

The stories are entirely free from tragedy, pathos and all distressing or unpleasant details.

"Wigwam Wonder Tales."

An excellent collection of myths of the Indians of the Northwest has been assembled at first hand by William Thompson and Pliny Earle Goddard of the Natural History Museum and published by Scribners under the title "Wigwam Wonder Tales."

The illustrations by Carl Michel are truly fascinating, worked out as they are in black and white in a way that is full of suggestion but too elusive to tell the story.

Some of the legends herein retold are "The Giant Bullfrog and the Moose," "Wactu, the Animal Trainer," "Why Dogs do Not Talk" and seven others equally interesting.

Indian Legends.

"Indian Legends Retold" (Little-Brown) by Elaine G. Eastman is a collection of legends from a half dozen Indian tribes scattered over the continent. They are stories which have amused Indian children and their elders for generations and have a vitality not always to be found in stories for children.

Included are tales from the Pimas, the Cherokees, the Choctaws, the [illegible], the Tsimshians and the [illegible] tribes.

"When I was a Girl in Mexico."

This is the tenth title in "Children of Other Lands Books," published by Lothrop, Lee & Shepard.

It is the account of a happy girlhood in Mexico, depicted as one of the oldest and richest of all countries. The book will do much toward correcting many wrong ideas generally entertained of our southern neighbor. Miss Mercedes [illegible], the author, now a resident of the United States, is exceptionally qualified to tell of the most attractive and less known side of Mexican life, as she is the daughter of a prominent Mexican diplomat.

The games, festivals, holidays and ways of Mexico are entertainingly described, the attractive [illegible], parks and streets of Mexico receive attention, as do the [illegible] of the country and many [illegible] activities. A special chapter is devoted to the home life of [illegible].

Burgess Bird Book.

This is a book for children who love birds and for those less fortunate ones who would love them if they knew anything about them. It is by Thornton W. Burgess and published by Little Brown & Co. The book is intended to introduce the children to birds; to teach them the ways of these feathered folk, many of which inhabit the [illegible] regions as well as the forest and fields.

Peter Rabbit is introduced into the story and does most of the talking, and many children will meet an old friend again and many others make his acquaintance for the first time and also learn much that is interesting about birds, for Peter is a wise old rabbit.

"For the Little Folks."

A group of stories by Isa L. [illegible], published by Houghton Mifflin Company intended for children learning to read and as stories to be told to the little tots by parents and friends. Among the titles are "Sonny Boy," "The Garden of Blue Bells," "Little Prince [illegible]," "Little Water Drop's [illegible]" and many others equally interesting for children.

"The Little Freckled Person."

This is a book of charmingly [illegible] verse by Mary Carolyn Davies (published by Houghton, Mifflin Company,) which is written in a style that children can appreciate and understand. Verses under such titles as "The Cockatoo," "The [illegible] Bee," "The Littlest [illegible]" and a wealth of others make up the book.

"John Martin's Big Book."

The annual publication of "John Martin's Big Book" for little folks (Houghton Mifflin,) discontinued during the war, is out, the present volume being number three of the series.

This is a treasure house for the children, containing as it does fairy stories, history stories, rhymes, puzzles, songs and many other features that appeal to both boys and girls from 4 to 12 years or over.

The illustrated rhymes are especially jolly, vying with the cartoons in their attractiveness. This big book is no doubt destined to make many a heart rejoice when it appears on Christmas or other anniversary. It is full of good things to supply amusement for [illegible]

Miss Brown has won a place in the forefront of American fiction writers; "The Black Drop" serves only to more firmly establish her right to sit among the highest.

"A Woman Named Smith."

A readable story with a romantic and historic background is "A Woman Named Smith," by Marie Conway Oemler (The Century Company.)

Under this commonplace title Mrs. Oemler has succeeded in combining three qualities that make for readableness—mystery, tragedy and romance.

Sophy Smith and her charming little friend Alicia, with her dancing Irish blue eyes, at once enlist the sympathy of the reader, for they are first and foremost real human beings that live and laugh and love and betimes endeavor, and mostly succeed, in doing good.

These two typical Yankee girls are suddenly transplanted from the whirl and noise and grime of busy New York to an old southern manor house at Hyndsville, S. C. Into a typical southern community where the prejudices of generations have built up solid walls of caste and tradition that shut out the outsider, they come to live in the house willed to Miss Smith by her vitriolic and crusty old aunt by marriage.

Alicia, with the imagination of her race, immediately sees in this old house wonderful commercial possibilities and the girls set to work with vigor to reclaim the ancient pile, with its priceless relics of family history and period furniture, with the idea of "taking a few distinguished guests at prices that stop just short of highway robbery."

Attracted by the advertisements sent out there comes to this house of romance and mystery a noted author who is one of the literary lions of the hour. A famous artist also appears as well as do one of the leaders of the suffrage movement and a prim old lady from Boston with a spiritistic mania. There is also a full quota of millionaires drawn thither partly by curiosity and partly by the lure of exclusiveness.

Then there is Jelnick and Dr. Geddes, both kinsmen of the Hynds family. Jelnick is the rightful heir to the old place, but he prefers to live in a secluded cottage near the old family house, his object being to unravel a mystery concerning the disappearance of the old family jewels many years before. It is the solution of this mystery that gives added spice to the story and renders the final chapters, in which the age-old secret is finally unravelled highly dramatic.

The mysticism of the East; the romance and caste prejudices of the South, and the breezy care-free spirit of the girls from the North all combine to make a good story chock full of action cleverly developed and well told.

H. C. L. What?

Fleeing to America from the high cost of living is a topsy-turvy statement, but that is what has brought to this country Herbert Adams Gibbons, author of "The New Map of Europe," and Helen Davenport Gibbons, author of "A Little Gray Home in France." They arrived in New York recently with their children and set about finding a home to live and work in. New York prices, especially for food, sounded to them like tremendous bargains after Paris. Over there, Mr. Gibbons said, the family bill for the last month's supply of milk, butter and cheese was over a hundred dollars. A luncheon for three at a Versailles restaurant cost about forty dollars.

Harold MacGrath in Old Haunts.

Harold MacGrath, whose last book, "The Private Wire to Washington," was published last spring by the Harpers, lately revisited the Knickerbocker Presseditorial department at Albany, N. Y., where he broke into the newspaper game again for a few moments. Several of the men who were on the staff with Mr. MacGrath in his reporting days treated him as an honored guest at a dinner which they afterward gave for him. Mr. MacGrath lately finished a new novel, which will shortly be published by the Harpers, having for title "The Yellow Typhoon."

"After Thirty," Going Strong.

"After Thirty," Julian Street's first book of adult fiction, has called for a second printing before publication, it is announced by the Century Company. Like Rupert Hughes, Mr. Street has early juvenile fiction to his credit—a story called "The Goldfish."

Childhood in Brittany.

A new book by Anne Douglas Sedgwick, author of "Tante," is announced for early publication by The Century Company. It is called "A Childhood in Brittany Eighty Years Ago." In it Mrs. Sedgwick recreates, it is said, a period, a section of country, a group of people rich in those interesting elements we call, for lack of a really good word, "picturesque."

POETRY CLUB ORGANIZED.

The Halcyon Society, a poetry club, has been organized in Berkeley by students of the university who were members of the class in verse writing conducted during the last semester by Witter ("Hal") Bynner. The society will devote itself to the study of poetry and particularly to the carrying on of the principles and methods taught by Bynner.

Charter and honorary members of the society include the following: Ruth Comfort Mitchell, Stella Benson, the English poet and novelist; Prof. S. J. King-Kang Hu, Haniel Long of the Carnegie Institute, Pittsburgh; W. W. Lyman, Jr., Moon Kwan, Hildegarde Flanner, Eda Lou Walton, Genevieve Taggard, Mary Lannan, Idella Purnell, Elvira Foote, Ellsworth Stewart, Clarence Greenhood, William Garrett, Wheaton Brewer, Robert Hyde, George Acheson and Don Gillies.

BOOK NOTES.

Wells's Criticism.

Dr. S. Parkes Cadman pronounces H. G. Wells's "The Undying Fire" as Mr. Wells's "most complete and illuminating book." "It should be read," he says, "by those who desire a closer acquaintance with the problems which have engaged the best minds from the first. I especially commend it to ministers and students of religious and ethical questions. There is in it the stuff of a thousand homilies and none needs to be trite or commonplace."

Women in War Time.

"Wage Earning Women in War Time: The Textile Industry" is the title of an amazing article by Florence Kelly, general secretary of the National Consumers' League, which appears in the October number of the Journal of Industrial Hygiene.

The facts which Mrs. Kelly presents bearing on labor conditions during the war as they affected women, and touching upon such problems as housing, hygiene, hours of labor, are food for thought, to say the least.

"Modern Lovers."

"Modern Lovers," the fascinating novel of up-to-date complications by Viola Meynell, is being published in a new edition by the Four Seas Company. Miss Meynell is the author of "Lot Barrow" and a newer book, "Second Marriage."

Japanese Like "Pollyanna."

"Pollyanna" is the year's greatest success in Japan, with "John Halifax, Gentleman," a close second, according to a report received by the Interchurch World Movement of North America, whose national headquarters are in New York City, from American missionaries in the Orient.

"A Woman's Man."

Marjorie Patterson, well-known as an actress and an author, has completed her third book, "A Woman's Man," which was published recently by George H. Doran Company. Miss Patterson wrote her first novel, "Fortunata," when she was 17. It came as the sequel to a brilliant winter in Rome where she was presented at court. This novel was favorably received and was followed by "The Dust of the Road," which, in a few weeks, went into a second edition. The larger part of her third book, "A Woman's Man," was written in France, but it was finished at Woodland House, Delhi, N. Y., the old country place which has been in Miss Patterson's family since its erection by her grandfather, Samuel Sherwood.

Children's Verse.

"For Days and Days, a Year-Round Treasury of Verse for Children," by Annette Wynne (Stokes,) is a distinctive addition to modern child literature which will be welcomed by parents and teachers for the rare quality of its verse, and by the children themselves because of the irresistible magic of its rhymes.

Authoress Returns.

Mabel Potter Daggett, one of the foremost magazine writers in America, has returned to New York. Mrs. Daggett had been in France since March, where she has made a study of the woman condition which she intends to embody in a series of sketches at home. Her latest book, "Women Wanted" (Doran) is considered one of the best books of the year as it deals so sanely with the new position of women due to the war.

Haig's Dispatches.

"Field Marshal Haig's Despatches," published by E. P. Dutton & Co., has been announced for publication the latter part of November. It has been edited, with notes, by Col. J. H. Boraston, Earl Haig's private secretary, and will contain a preface by Field Marshal Earl Haig and a foreword by Marshal Foch. The work will contain, in addition to the preface, foreword and notes, almost four hundred pages of dispatches, portraits of the field marshal and of six other generals, twenty-four sketch maps, and a case containing ten full-sized linen-backed military maps, produced under the supervision of the field marshal himself, and a large scale map of the position of the British armies on September 25, 1918.

A "TENDENCY."

Labor Dictates Cut of Men's Garments, Merchant Says.

"You desire to know what is stylish?" asked the men's clothing dealer with a shrug of his shoulders. "I can tell you the tendency of the styles."

Who ever heard before of the merchant not knowing what style was good and what one was out of date?

"Why not a style instead of a tendency?" he was asked.

"Ah, let me explain," he began. "The laboring man is on a spending spree, desiring only the best in apparel. But at the same time his fellow laborer who makes the clothes wants more money, too, and makes fewer clothes. Production is not up with demand, so the manufacturers are centering more on production and less on style. "Hence"—he said in triumphantly—"we have a tendency instead of a style."

"You mean everything in your shop, if not actually stylish, has a tendency toward style?" he was asked.

"This is not funny, young man," he reproved. "The public needs all we can furnish."

"If everything is to be a tendency, give me a few of the latest," the questioner requested with resignation.

"Brown is the popular color this season in men's clothing," said the merchant. "Greens also are good. And, of course, the usual gray and blue staples sell well.

"More men and young men are wearing double-breasted suits than ever before. Whether single or double-breasted, the best and newest tendency is toward a high waist line, something like the woman's Empire effect in dresses, with a fairly long skirt. Lapels are wide and rolling. The latest thing in sleeves is a slash at the cuff fastened together with links like a shirt cuff. Trousers are fairly snug."

"And overcoats?" he was asked.

"About the same color arrangements," he replied. "Top coats are knee length and almost form fitting. Double-breasted coats are more popular, while the single-breasted ones have fly fronts, hiding the buttons."

The hat man did not talk so much of tendencies.

"Caps," he said, "never were so popular as now. To be right, they must have one-piece tops. They are mostly in plain colors. The latest is a camel's hair cap, selling at $9."

He said also that silk finishes, beavers and velours would be worn in soft hats.

"The newest hats have more roll to the brims than formerly," he said. "Shades of brown and bronze are the new colors. Derbies will have crowns a trifle lower than usual."

A men's furnishing expert, however, was not so independent of tendencies.

"Scarfs are supposed to be narrow this year," he said mournfully. "But we cannot get enough narrow ones. You see, labor—"

"Another tendency?" he was asked.

"Scarf makers say narrow ties are harder to stitch than wide ones," he said sourly, "hence many of them won't make narrow ones."

The maximum price for a scarf would be about $7 in the spring, he said. The scarf which, in the early fall cost him $7.75 a dozen, he pointed out, is priced at $9 for late fall, and will bring the maker $12 a dozen in the spring.

Neither the clothing man nor the furnishings dealer knew when tendencies would pass and styles return.

So a man can say with a blase air that "my suit has a tendency to be stylish." And who can gainsay him?"—[Kansas City Star.

What Kind of Blood Have You?

Thin, Pale and Watery—Keeping You Weak, Nervous and Run-Down—Or Rich, Red, Healthy Blood With Plenty of Iron In It To Give You Strength, Energy, Power and Endurance

Physician Says Iron is Red Blood Food

Plenty of Iron makes rich, red corpuscles like these.

Highly magnified drop of blood of anaemic woman, showing lack of healthy, red corpuscles.

Explains How Nuxated Iron — Master Strength-Builder of The Blood—Helps Give Renewed Vim and Energy to Men and Puts Roses Into The Cheeks of Women.

If you tire easily, if you look pale, haggard and worn, if you feel generally weak, nervous and rundown it would probably astonish you to look at a drop of your own blood under a powerful microscope and compare it with a drop of pure, healthy blood—rich in iron. Actual blood tests show that a tremendously large number of people who are weak and ill lack iron in their blood and that they are ill for no other reason than lack of iron. Iron deficiency paralyzes healthy, energetic action, pulls down the whole organism and weakens the entire system.

There are thousands whose bodies are ageing and breaking down at a time when they should be enjoying that perfect bodily health which cries defiance to disease simply because they are not awake to the condition of their blood. By allowing it to remain thin, pale and watery they are not giving the natural life forces of the body a chance to do their work. Yet others go through life apparently possessing, year after year, the elasticity, the strength and the energy of earlier days, through their bodies courses the energy and power that comes from plenty of red blood—filled with strength-giving iron. Iron is red blood food and physicians explain below why they prescribe organic iron—Nuxated Iron to build up the red blood corpuscles and give increased power and endurance.

Commenting on the use of Nuxated Iron as a tonic, strength and blood-builder by over three million people annually, Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Depart.,) New York and the Westchester County Hospital, said: "Modern methods of cooking and the rapid pace at which people of this century live has made such an alarming increase in iron deficiency in the blood of American men and women that I have often marveled at the large number of people who lack iron in the blood—and who never suspect the cause of their weak, nervous, run-down state. Lack of iron in the blood not only makes a man a physical weakling, nervous, irritable, easily fatigued, but it utterly robs him of that virile force, that stamina and strength of will which are so necessary to success and power in every walk of life. It may also transform a beautiful, sweet-tempered woman into one who is cross, nervous and irritable. I have strongly emphasized the great necessity of physicians making blood examinations of their weak, anaemic, run-down patients. Thousands of persons go on year after year suffering from physical weakness and a highly nervous condition due to lack of sufficient iron in their blood corpuscles without ever realizing the real cause of the trouble. But in my opinion you can't make these strong, vigorous, successful, sturdy iron men by feeding them on metallic iron. The old forms of metallic iron must go through a digestive process to transform them into organic iron—Nuxated Iron—before they are ready to be taken up and assimilated by the human system. Notwithstanding all that has been said and written on this subject by well-known physicians, thousands of people still insist in dosing themselves with metallic iron simply, I suppose, because it costs a few cents less. I strongly advise readers in all cases to get a physician's prescription for organic iron—Nuxated Iron—or if you don't want to go to this trouble then purchase only Nuxated Iron in its original packages and see that this particular name (Nuxated Iron) appears on the package. If you have taken preparations such as Nux and Iron and other similar iron products and failed to get results, remember that such products are an entirely different thing from Nuxated Iron."

Dr. H. B. Vail, formerly Physician in the Baltimore Hospital, and a Medical Examiner says: "Throughout my experience on Hospital Staffs and as a Medical Examiner, I have been astonished at the number of patients who have vainly doctored for various diseases, when in reality their delicate, run-down state was simply the result of lack of iron in the blood. Time and again I have prescribed organic iron—Nuxated Iron—and surprised patients at the rapidity with which the weakness and general debility was replaced by a renewed feeling of strength and vitality. I took Nuxated Iron myself to build me up after a serious case of nervous exhaustion. The effects were apparent after a few days and within three weeks it had virtually revitalized my whole system and put me in a superb physical condition."

Dr. T. Alphonsus Wallace, a physician of many years' experience in this country and abroad, says: "I do not make a practice of recommending advertised medicinal products, but I have found Nuxated Iron so potent in nervous, run-down conditions, that I believe all should know it. The men and women of today need more iron in their blood than was the case twenty or thirty years ago. This because of the demineralized diet which now is served daily in thousands of homes and also because of the demand for greater resistance necessary to offset the greater number of health hazards to be met at every turn."

MANUFACTURERS' NOTE: Nuxated Iron, which is prescribed and recommended above by physicians, is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated and does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed in this city by Boswell & Noyes Drug Co., Dickinson Drug Co., R. & B. Drug Co., Chambers Drug Co., Sun Drug Co., and all other druggists.

Rheumatism.

A Remarkable Home Treatment Given by One Who Had It.

In the Spring of 1893 I was attacked by Muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism. I suffered as only those who have it know, for over three years. I tried remedy after remedy, and doctor after doctor, but such relief as I received was only temporary. Finally I found a remedy that cured me completely, and it has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted and even bedridden with Rheumatism, some of them 70 to 80 years old, and results were the same as in my own case.

I want every sufferer from any form of rheumatic trouble to try this marvelous healing power. Don't send a cent; simply mail your name and address and I will send it free to try. After you have used it and it has proven itself to be that long-looked-for means of getting rid of your rheumatism, you may send the price of it, one dollar, but understand, I do not want your money unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it. Isn't that fair? Why suffer any longer when relief is thus offered you free? Don't delay. Write today.

GEORGE ELIOT'S CENTENARY.

BY JAMES MAIN DIXON.

Over the English-speaking world, reading people are remembering the gifted woman who did so much to raise the intellectual status of her sex.

It will be just 100 years November 22 since Mary Ann Evans, or Marian, as hse wrote the name later, was born in the Warwickshire midlands, the home of Shakespeare, from whose villages and country houses both drew the inspiration that gave to the world the characters of "As You Like It" and of "Middlemarch," that most Shakespearean of the lady's creations. Born in a conventional age, at the very time Bowdler was publishing his immortal expurgated edition of the Elizabethan bard—the pages of which were warranted not "to draw a blush to the cheek of innocence, or plant a pang in the heart of the devout Christian"—Mary Ann Evans received a strict religious training under a father of a fine type. But, in her later intellectual development she found strict Evangelical theories of inspiration and the theology of Oxford and Cambridge doctors of divinity, would not stand the limelight of modern investigation; and she revolted with her whole heart against a smug acceptance of religious doctrine which was a cheap way to social influence and reputation. "Where is that Goshen of intellectual mediocrity," she exclaims in a scathing attack upon a popular divine of the day, "in which a smattering of science and learning will pass for profound instruction, where platitudes will pass as wisdom, bigoted manners as holy zeal, unctuous egotism as Godgiven piety?" These words were written when she was on the staff of the Westminster Review, in London, then the exponent of extreme Positivist views, and in close touch with French thought.

It is remarkable that two noted women of the nineteenth century, one French and the other English, should both have taken masculine pen-names, by which they are known to posterity, and both have formed liaisons with leading literary men of the time; also that they both chose the personal name of George—George Sand and George Eliot. But while the French woman associated the adoption of the name with Bohemian ways and masculine attire, the Englishwoman remained almost shrinkingly feminine, dressing in feminine shawl and long skirts; and confining her masculine proclivities rigidly to the domain of mind. Hurt by the arrogant attitude to women in general displayed by very mediocre men, she became intensely assertive on this point of intellectual equality, and as a challenge to the world brought forth her early stories under a man's name. Everybody thought that the writer, who made such a hit in Blackwood's sixty years ago with her "Adam Bede," was a man. The publisher himself was under the mistaken idea that she was clergyman!

DICKENS SPOTTED HER.

The acumen of Charles Dickens first saw through the mask, detecting feminine workmanship. In the fifteenth chapter of the novel, entitled "The Two Bedchambers," Hetty Sorrel is described as seated before the looking-glass as she disrobed. It was the evening of the day when Capt. Donnithorne had shown her attentions and had called her pretty. "She put down her brush and comb, and looked at herself, folding her arms before her, still like the picture (of the lady in Miss Lydia Donnithrone's dressing-room.) Even the old mottled glass couldn't help sending back a lovely image, none the less lovely because Hetty's stays were not of white satin—such as I feel heroines must wear—but of dark greenish cotton texture. Oh yes! she was very pretty; Capt. Donnithorne thought so. Prettier than anybody about Hayslope—prettier than any of the ladies she had ever seen visiting at the Chase. . . . And Hetty looked at herself tonight with quite a different sensation from what she had ever felt before; there was an invisible spectator whose eye rested on her like morning on the flowers. . . . The vainest woman is never thoroughly conscious of her own beauty till she is loved by the man who sets her own passion vibrating in turn." That is a woman's presentation, declared Dickens.

Mary Ann Evans was eager to win fame as a poet; yet this was not her field. Her creed-chant, "Oh, May I Join the Choir Invisible," written for the Positivist chapel in London, where the abstraction, "Humanity," was deified, suffers from the chilling substitution of abstractions for warm personality:

"O may I join the choir invisible,
Of those immortal dead who live again
In minds made better by their presence: live
In pulses stirred to generosity,
In deeds of daring rectitude, in scorn
For miserable aims that end in self,
In thoughts sublime that pierce the night like stars,
And with their mild persistence urge men's search
In vaster issues."

The process of George Eliot's career is from a life based on religious belief—as found in the finest of her woman characters, Dinah Morris, the devout Methodist—whose prototype was her own aunt—to an "intellectualism" that lost itself in abstractions and evaded the final issues of life. In fact, she was no metaphysician, possessing but ordinary talents in this field. The Cambridge poet and scholar, Frederick Myers, who has done so much to probe into the bases of immortality, his magnum opus being his "human personality and its survival of bodily death," tells us in one of his essays how once at Cambridge he walked with the novelist in the Fellows' Garden of Trinity, on an evening of rainy May. "She stirred somewhat beyond her went, and taking as her text the three words which have been used so often as the inspiring trumpet call of men—the words God, Immortality, Duty—pronounced with terrible earnestness how inconceivable was the first, how unbelievable the second, and yet how peremptory and absolute the third. Never, perhaps, have sterner accents affirmed the sovereignty of impersonal and unrecompensing Law. I listened, and night fell, her grave, majestic countenance turned towards me like a Sibyl's in the gloom; it was as though she withdrew from my grasp, one by one, the two scrolls of promise, and left me the third scroll only, awful with inevitable fate. And when we stood at length and parted, amid that columnar circuit of the forest trees, I seemed to be gazing, like Titus at Jerusalem, on vacant seats and empty halls—on a sanctuary with no presence to hallow it, and heaven left lonely of a God."

Timid, shrinking, the reverse of arrogant, George Eliot was yet a devotee of self-assertion, and was determined to make the most of her gifts and opportunities. On her thirty-fourth birthday, after she had become the mistress of George Henry Lewes, known best as the biographer of Goethe, she wrote as follows: "I begin this year more happily than I have done most years of my life. . . . We may both find ourselves at the end of the year going faster to the hell of conscious moral and intellectual weakness. Still there is a possibility—even a probability—the other way." "Moral weakness" would be to her more particularly a shrinking from the social ban that followed her unfortunate relations with the man whom she accepted as her intellectual guide." "Her union with him," to quote from a recent writer (C. H. H.) in the Manchester Guardian, "was entered on in a spirit of grave and resolute protest against the restrictions imposed upon her happiness by a 'diabolical' law; an antimonianism which however fully we may justify it, belongs to a lower spiritual plane than the lofty altruism and large social sense which pervade and inspire her creative work."

"CONDONE."

In place of the phrase, "however fully we may justify it," I would substitute "however completely we may condone it." The world has lately seen how a civilization built on enlightened selfishness, the development of the individual or the community with no respect in the last issue for written or unwritten law, leads to universal conflagration and cataclysm. Of this civilization Goethe was and is the high priest; and so far as George Eliot came under the influence of his tenets in the sphere of the highest morality, she went wrong. A distinguished Victorian, who has written a biography of George Eliot for the Great Writers' series—Oscar Browning—seems to glory in the novelist's "unconventionality," as if she lived under a superior code of morality, being a "genius." "Living art," he declares in the closing paragraph of his closing chapter, "must deal with the circumstances which environ it, with the deepest problems of advanced humanity, not only with the joys and sorrows of all human beings. To do this well and worthily is the privilege of the highest genius, and it was to this stupendous task that two of the greatest writers of this century set themselves in the maturity of their powers. The attempt to compass this, perhaps the partial failure, will link together indissolubly for future ages the names of Goethe and George Eliot." This statement is true only in a limited way, and as sanctioned by religion. Just as the sacred law of wedded life became a "scrap of paper" to George Eliot when it stood in the way of her artistic development, so did Goethe's Germany treat the sacredness of international law. But in the portrayal of character in her stories George Eliot remained true to the higher morality of her girlhood, as revealed by the Christian men and women among whom she loved and whom she has depicted with such Shakespearean ability. Goethe never was a Puritan, in art or in conduct; George Eliot only dreamed she had ceased to be Puritan. At heart she remained true to the inviolability of the law of God as entering every phase of life, social, artistic, national; and her characters can only be understood properly as adjusting themselves—or—and Tito Melela is an outstanding type—failing to adjust themselves to such a dominant law.

To quote again from C. H. H.: "The ethical passion which moves her does not crystallize into doctrinaire assertions of moral law, it becomes the organizing energy in a tragedy of degeneration, worked out with an amazing mastery, impossible without it, of the psychology of moral degeneration. This was not the way of the moralizing 'schoolmarm,' but of Greek tragedy, and it is by that example that we can best vindicate the 'high seriousness' in her which Aristotle extolled in it, a quality beside which the humanitarianism of Dickens seems childish, and the social satire of Thackeray crude, and which yet did not exclude a humor as genuine as theirs."

HER WOMEN.

None of the leading male novelists in English literature has succeeded particularly well in painting the characters of educated and cultured women. Scott's Jeanie Deans, Dickens's Sairey Gamp, Thackeray's Becky Sharp are not ladies: for such portraiture we must go to George Eliot. Her books, as they ought to do, dissect the human heart of her own sex more incisively than was ever done before. Her first essay in story-telling, the "Sad Fortunes of Amos Barton," is more a study of Milly Barton and the foreigner. "Janet's Repentance" is the analysis of a woman's trials and temptations. And even "Adam Bede," with its masculine title, sprang from a story that was originally wholly feminine. Her aunt, the prototype of the good Methodist, Dinah Morris, had described to her a long interview she had held with a poor criminal called Voce, condemned to the gallows for the murder of her infant child. After praying and dealing with her for a long time, she obtained a full confession from the girl, whom next day she accompanied to the foot of the scaffold. There was no sensational reprieve as in the novel; that was insisted upon by her adviser, George Henry Lewes, for "artistic" ends.

It is remarkable that the novelist, whose deliberate poetical efforts like "Jubal" and "The Spanish Gypsy" failed to add to her fame, sometimes breaks out in her impassioned prose into spontaneous poetic rhythm. It is so in the prayer made by Dinah Morris beside the doomed Hetty Sorrel, and with fine rhetorical effect: "Yea, Lord, see Thee, coming through the darkness, coming like the morning, with healing on thy wings." And the close of her "The Mill on the Floss," a story which owes its charm and force to the glowing reminiscences of her happy girlhood, she lapses into the same movement as she describes at the close the drowning of Tom and Maggie Tulliver; children no longer, yet, as they went down to death, they were not divided; it was as in the old days when they "clasped their little hands in love, and roamed the daisied fields together."

The French critic, Brunetiere, points out that George Eliot is really the founder of realism or naturalism in the English novel, giving it a new drift as Flaubert did to the French type. She took her stories as seriously as if they had been true histories. Her novel, "Romola," is actually an expansion of an article on Savanorola, a character that had strongly impressed her. "Romola" is not a history, yet we must approach it with the same mental attitude as we would approach a history. It is a bit of imagination, a psychological study of a creative kind, but we feel all the time as if the characters were masquerading. The novelist put an immense deal of research work into the book; she is said to have held up her narrative for days until she could determine the incidence of Easter in a particular year. Some five weeks were actually spent in Florence. Powerful as the study is, grasping the reader with its moral weight, it does not display George Eliot at her best, and those who really know Italy declare it is not a study of Italian character at all, and find it unreadable. The Englishwoman's miscropic insight into character was dulled by the change of clime and morality.

HER PESSIMISM.

Her finest study was in her own home surroundings. The period during which "Romola" was written covers that in which Silas Marner was evolved. It was a time of intense thought and eager research, and of remarkably low spirits. We see the pessimism, which darkened the close of her life, growing on her. Women as a rule are less sanguine than men; while possessing on the average more tenacity of life, they have seldom the same buoyancy or evenness of spirit outside of the home. They do not bear transplanting as men do; they suffer in the process. Possibly this may explain in some measure the strange sadness that hangs like a mist over the later life of this wonderful woman. At heart a believer and full of reverence, she had allowed her intellect to unroof the structure in which she had once dwelt in happiness, and it became uninhabitable. But her new home, swept and garnished, she never seemed to love. What came to her as Truth demanded the change; yet her heart refused to acquiesce.

Unlike her previous stories, and like those of Dickens and many of Thackeray's, "Romola" came out seriously in Cornhill; and the strain of bringing out the monthly parts told severely on her. Tito Melema is another Arthur Donnithorne, but without the Englishman's reality; Romola is another Dorothea in her intellectual nobility, her clinging sympathy, her desire to find a masculine leader and obey him, her disillusionment.

"In "Silas Marner" we find George Eliot again at her best. Here comes reminiscence with its glow and fascination which she could clothe so well in words. As a girl she had seen such an old man as Silas Marner, and his physignomy had haunted her. The "long, long thoughts" that are so peculiar a mark of her whole personality and literary treatment hovered around the mental picture, until out of it was created the history of the misanthropical, prematurely aged weaver, won back again to life and hope by the endearments of a little foundling child. As a story it is perfect in proportions, idyllic, complete. At one time it was the author's intention—or at least she believed it would have been more effective—to evolve the story of the weaver's new birth in the measured accents of verse; but happily this method was not adopted, and we have what we have and are grateful.

"The joke is on you," he asserted, chuckling. "I've just paid a large bill sent by a lawyer for aiding me to fill out my income tax schedule. A month ago my landlord raised my rent. "White Man Lie Too Much," a White Visitor Quotes Them as Saying.

"When I come to New York from the Flordia Everglades, I wonder whether I have not reached a prison," said Mrs. Minnie Moore Wilson of Kissimmee, Fla., who is visiting in New York City. "Every house here locked up; every door bolted; in the restaurants signs, 'Not Responsible for Coats and Hats;' the streets full and murder stories!

"In the picturesque palmetto camps of the Seminole Indians in the Everglades wilderness there are no locks, no doors, no murder, no lying, no cheating, no stealing, no private property.

"'Me no want be civilized,' said an Indian brave to me, as I tried to explain the charms and benefits of the white man's culture. 'By and by big sleep come. Me want to see Great Spirit. Me want to see my grandfather. Me no think white man find Great Spirit easy.'

"When I walk up Broadway," she added, "I understand the Indian's view-point."

Mrs. Wilson has been for many years admitted to the personal friendship of the Seminole tribe. She is the only white woman to enjoy this privilege. She was very active in the movement which, in 1917, resulted in a government grant of 100,000 acres of land to the tribe. She wore the other day a beaded vest of colored oak leaves, which she said had just come to her as an anonymous gift from some Indian maker. It was the more flattering because of the symbolism of the colors. The pink meant honor; the yellow truth; the white purity, and so on.

"It took me years to gain their confidence," she said, "in spite of the fact that my husband had known them from the time he was a little boy. They are very supicious of white men. They have a saying, 'White man no good. Lie too much.'"

The language, she said, is full of pithy and descriptive phrases. An Indian who had never seen an elephant before saw one in a circus parade. He christened it "e-po-lo-wa-kee"—(heap long nose.)—[New York World.

Rheumatism.

A Remarkable Home Treatment Given by One Who Had It.

In the Spring of 1893 I was attacked by Muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism. I suffered as only those who have it know, for over three years. I tried remedy after remedy, and doctor after doctor, but such relief as I received was only temporary. Finally I found a remedy that cured me completely, and it has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted and even bedridden with Rheumatism, some of them 70 to 80 years old, and results were the same as in my own case.

I want every sufferer from any form of rheumatic trouble to try this marvelous healing power. Don't send a cent; simply mail your name and address and I will send it free to try. After you have used it and it has proven itself to be that long-looked-for means of getting rid of your rheumatism, you may send the price of it, one dollar, but understand, I do not want your money unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it. Isn't that fair? Why suffer any longer when relief is thus offered you free? Don't delay. Write today.

GEORGE ELIOT'S CENTENARY.

BY JAMES MAIN DIXON.

Over the English-speaking world, reading people are remembering the gifted woman who did so much to raise the intellectual status of her sex.

It will be just 100 years November 22 since Mary Ann Evans, or Marian, as hse wrote the name later, was born in the Warwickshire midlands, the home of Shakespeare, from whose villages and country houses both drew the inspiration that gave to the world the characters of "As You Like It" and of "Middlemarch," that most Shakespearean of the lady's creations. Born in a conventional age, at the very time Bowdler was publishing his immortal expurgated edition of the Elizabethan bard—the pages of which were warranted not "to draw a blush to the cheek of innocence, or plant a pang in the heart of the devout Christian"—Mary Ann Evans received a strict religious training under a father of a fine type. But, in her later intellectual development she found strict Evangelical theories of inspiration and the theology of Oxford and Cambridge doctors of divinity, would not stand the limelight of modern investigation; and she revolted with her whole heart against a smug acceptance of religious doctrine which was a cheap way to social influence and reputation. "Where is that Goshen of intellectual mediocrity," she exclaims in a scathing attack upon a popular divine of the day, "in which a smattering of science and learning will pass for profound instruction, where platitudes will pass as wisdom, bigoted manners as holy zeal, unctuous egotism as Godgiven piety?" These words were written when she was on the staff of the Westminster Review, in London, then the exponent of extreme Positivist views, and in close touch with French thought.

It is remarkable that two noted women of the nineteenth century, one French and the other English, should both have taken masculine pen-names, by which they are known to posterity, and both have formed liaisons with leading literary men of the time; also that they both chose the personal name of George—George Sand and George Eliot. But while the French woman associated the adoption of the name with Bohemian ways and masculine attire, the Englishwoman remained almost shrinkingly feminine, dressing in feminine shawl and long skirts; and confining her masculine proclivities rigidly to the domain of mind. Hurt by the arrogant attitude to women in general displayed by very mediocre men, she became intensely assertive on this point of intellectual equality, and as a challenge to the world brought forth her early stories under a man's name. Everybody thought that the writer, who made such a hit in Blackwood's sixty years ago with her "Adam Bede," was a man. The publisher himself was under the mistaken idea that she was clergyman!

DICKENS SPOTTED HER.

The acumen of Charles Dickens first saw through the mask, detecting feminine workmanship. In the fifteenth chapter of the novel, entitled "The Two Bedchambers," Hetty Sorrel is described as seated before the looking-glass as she disrobed. It was the evening of the day when Capt. Donnithorne had shown her attentions and had called her pretty. "She put down her brush and comb, and looked at herself, folding her arms before her, still like the picture (of the lady in Miss Lydia Donnithrone's dressing-room.) Even the old mottled glass couldn't help sending back a lovely image, none the less lovely because Hetty's stays were not of white satin—such as I feel heroines must wear—but of dark greenish cotton texture. Oh yes! she was very pretty; Capt. Donnithorne thought so. Prettier than anybody about Hayslope—prettier than any of the ladies she had ever seen visiting at the Chase. . . . And Hetty looked at herself tonight with quite a different sensation from what she had ever felt before; there was an invisible spectator whose eye rested on her like morning on the flowers. . . . The vainest woman is never thoroughly conscious of her own beauty till she is loved by the man who sets her own passion vibrating in turn." That is a woman's presentation, declared Dickens.

Mary Ann Evans was eager to win fame as a poet; yet this was not her field. Her creed-chant, "Oh, May I Join the Choir Invisible," written for the Positivist chapel in London, where the abstraction, "Humanity," was deified, suffers from the chilling substitution of abstractions for warm personality:

"O may I join the choir invisible,
Of those immortal dead who live again
In minds made better by their presence; live
In pulses stirred to generosity,
In deeds of daring rectitude, in scorn
For miserable aims that end in self,
In thoughts sublime that pierce the night like stars,
And with their mild persistence urge men's search
In vaster issues."

The process of George Eliot's career is from a life based on religious belief—as found in the finest of her woman characters, Dinah Morris, the devout Methodist—whose prototype was her own aunt—to an "intellectualism" that lost itself in abstractions and evaded the final issues of life. In fact, she was no metaphysician, possessing but ordinary talents in this field. The Cambridge poet and scholar, Frederick Myers, who has done so much to probe into the bases of immortality, his magnum opus being his "human personality and its survival of bodily death," tells us in one of his essays how once at Cambridge he walked with the novelist in the Fellows' Garden of Trinity, on an evening of rainy May. "She stirred somewhat beyond her wont, and taking as her text the three words which have been used so often as the inspiring trumpet call of men—the words God, Immortality, Duty—pronounced with terrible earnestness how inconceivable was the first, how unbelievable the second, and yet how peremptory and absolute the third. Never, perhaps, have sterner accents affirmed the sovereignty of impersonal and unrecompensing Law. I listened, and night fell, her grave, majestic countenance turned towards me like a Sibyl's in the gloom; it was as though she withdrew from my grasp, one by one, the two scrolls of promise, and left me the third scroll only, awful with inevitable fate. And when we stood at length and parted, amid that columnar circuit of the forest trees, I seemed to be gazing, like Titus at Jerusalem, on vacant seats and empty halls—on a sanctuary with no presence to hallow it, and heaven left lonely of a God."

Timid, shrinking, the reverse of arrogant, George Eliot was yet a devotee of self-assertion, and was determined to make the most of her gifts and opportunities. On her thirty-fourth birthday, after she had become the mistress of George Henry Lewes, known best as the biographer of Goethe, she wrote as follows: "I begin this year more happily than I have done most years of my life. . . . We may both find ourselves at the end of the year going faster to the hell of conscious moral and intellectual weakness. Still there is a possibility—even a probability—the other way." "Moral weakness" would be to her more particularly a shrinking from the social ban that followed her unfortunate relations with the man whom she accepted as her intellectual guide." "Her union with him," to quote from a recent writer (C. H. H.) in the Manchester Guardian, "was entered on in a spirit of grave and resolute protest against the restrictions imposed upon her happiness by a 'diabolical' law; an antimonianism which however fully we may justify it, belongs to a lower spiritual plane than the lofty altruism and large social sense which pervade and inspire her creative work."

"CONDONE."

In place of the phrase, "however fully we may justify it," I would substitute "however completely we may condone it." The world has lately seen how a civilization built on enlightened selfishness, the development of the individual or the community with no respect in the last issue for written or unwritten law, leads to universal conflagration and cataclysm. Of this civilization Goethe was and is the high priest; and so far as George Eliot came under the influence of his tenets in the sphere of the highest morality, she went wrong. A distinguished Victorian, who has written a biography of George Eliot for the Great Writers' series—Oscar Browning—seems to glory in the novelist's "unconventionality," as if she lived under a superior code of morality, being a "genius." "Living art," he declares in the closing paragraph of his closing chapter, "must deal with the circumstances which environ it, with the deepest problems of advanced humanity, not only with the joys and sorrows of all human beings. To do this well and worthily is the privilege of the highest genius, and it was to this stupendous task that two of the greatest writers of this century set themselves in the maturity of their powers. The attempt to compass this, perhaps the partial failure, will link together indissolubly for future ages the names of Goethe and George Eliot." This statement is true only in a limited way, and as sanctioned by religion. Just as the sacred law of wedded life became a "scrap of paper" to George Eliot when it stood in the way of her artistic development, so did Goethe's Germany treat the sacredness of international law. But in the portrayal of character in her stories George Eliot remained true to the higher morality of her girlhood, as revealed by the Christian men and women among whom she loved and whom she has depicted with such Shakespearean ability. Goethe never was a Puritan in art or in conduct; George Eliot only dreamed she had ceased to be Puritan. At heart she remained true to the inviolability of the law of God as entering every phase of life, social, artistic, national; and her characters can only be understood properly as adjusting themselves—or—and Tito Melela is an outstanding type—failing to adjust themselves to such a dominant law.

To quote again from C. H. H.: "The ethical passion which moves her does not crystallize into doctrinaire assertions of moral law, it becomes the organizing energy in a tragedy of degeneration, worked out with an amazing mastery, impossible without it, of the psychology of moral degeneration. This was not the way of the moralizing 'schoolmarm,' but of Greek tragedy, and it is by that example that we can best vindicate the 'high seriousness' in her which Aristotle extolled in it, a quality beside which the humanitarianism of Dickens seems childish, and the social satire of Thackeray crude, and which yet did not exclude a humor as genuine as theirs."

HER WOMEN.

None of the leading male novelists in English literature has succeeded particularly well in painting the characters of educated and cultured women. Scott's Jeanie Deans, Dickens's Sairey Gamp, Thackeray's Becky Sharp are not ladies: for such portraiture we must go to George Eliot. Her books, as they ought to do, dissect the human heart of her own sex more incisively than was ever done before. Her first essay in story-telling, the "Sad Fortunes of Amos Barton," is more a study of Milly Barton and the foreigner. "Janet's Repentance" is the analysis of a woman's trials and temptations. And even "Adam Bede," with its masculine title, sprang from a story that was originally wholly feminine. Her aunt, the prototype of the good Methodist, Dinah Morris, had described to her a long interview she had held with a poor criminal called Voce, condemned to the gallows for the murder of her infant child. After praying and dealing with her for a long time, she obtained a full confession from the girl, whom next day she accompanied to the foot of the scaffold. There was no sensational reprieve as in the novel; that was insisted upon by her adviser, George Henry Lewes, for "artistic" ends.

It is remarkable that the novelist, whose deliberate poetical efforts like "Jubal" and "The Spanish Gypsy" failed to add to her fame, sometimes breaks out in her impassioned prose into spontaneous poetic rhythm. It is so in the prayer made by Dinah Morris beside the doomed Hetty Sorrel, and with fine rhetorical effect: "Yea, Lord, see Thee, coming through the darkness, coming like the morning, with healing on thy wings." And the close of her "The Mill on the Floss," a story which owes its charm and force to the glowing reminiscences of her happy girlhood, she lapses into the same movement as she describes at the close the drowning of Tom and Maggie Tulliver; children no longer, yet, as they went down to death, they were not divided; it was as in the old days when they "clasped their little hands in love, and roamed the daisied fields together."

The French critic, Brunetiere, points out that George Eliot is really the founder of realism or naturalism in the English novel, giving it a new drift as Flaubert did to the French type. She took her stories as seriously as if they had been true histories. Her novel, "Romola," is actually an expansion of an article on Savanorola, a character that had strongly impressed her. "Romola" is not a history, yet we must approach it with the same mental attitude as we would approach a history. It is a bit of imagination, a psychological study of a creative kind, but we feel all the time as if the characters were masquerading. The novelist put an immense deal of research work into the book; she is said to have held up her narrative for days until she could determine the incidence of Easter in a particular year. Some five weeks were actually spent in Florence. Powerful as the study is, grasping the reader with its moral weight, it does not display George Eliot at her best, and those who really know Italy declare it is not a study of Italian character at all, and find it unreadable. The Englishwoman's miscroscopic insight into character was dulled by the change of clime and morality.

HER PESSIMISM.

Her finest study was in her own home surroundings. The period during which "Romoia" was written covers that in which Silas Marner was evolved. It was a time of intense thought and eager research, and of remarkably low spirits. We see the pessimism, which darkened the close of her life, growing on her. Women as a rule are less sanguine than men; while possessing on the average more tenacity of life, they have seldom the same buoyancy or evenness of spirit outside of the home. They do not bear transplanting as men do; they suffer in the process. Possibly this may explain in some measure the strange sadness that hangs like a mist over the later life of this wonderful woman. At heart a believer and full of reverence, she had allowed her intellect to unroof the structure in which she had once dwelt in happiness, and it became uninhabitable. But her new home, swept and garnished, she never seemed to love. What came to her as Truth demanded the change; yet her heart refused to acquiesce.

Unlike her previous stories, and like those of Dickens and many of Thackeray's, "Romola" came out seriously in Cornhill; and the strain of bringing out the monthly parts told severely on her. Tito Melema is another Arthur Donnithorne, but without the Englishman's reality; Romola is another Dorothea in her intellectual nobility, her clinging sympathy, her desire to find a masculine leader and obey him, her disillusionment.

"In "Silas Marner" we find George Eliot again at her best. Here comes reminiscence with its glow and fascination which she could clothe so well in words. As a girl she had seen such an old man as Silas Marner, and his physignomy had haunted her. The "long, long thoughts" that are so peculiar a mark of her whole personality and literary treatment hovered around the mental picture, until out of it was created the history of the misanthropical, prematurely aged weaver, won back again to life and hope by the endearments of a little foundling child. Sheridan Bickers, leader of an (there being more than one) Irish party, who is at present touring the State giving lectures. Mr. Bickers is heartily in favor of the League of Nations, and he spoke feelingly of the post-war situations, having served himself in Russia, where he was in attendance at the first meeting of the Duma. He urged that we live up to the principles for which we have fought, and which he terms a "new spiritual democracy." He declared that President Wilson is looked upon by the world at large as the leader of this new democracy, and he exhorted us to have faith in our fellows.

L. N. Brunswig was a guest at the luncheon, and brought with him Father Georges Cabanel, a French priest, who was chaplain with the "Blue Devils," and who was many times decorated for services at the front. Father Cabanel was [illegible] in his pleas for a continuance of our union with France. He was warmly responded to by the club members. Miss Gertrude Darlow spoke on W. R. Thayer's book, "Democracy, Discipline and Peace."

At the meeting of the club, tomorrow afternoon, the speaker will be Prof. Regis Michaud, of the University of California, the Sorbonne, Princeton and Smith, a soldier, writer and editor. He will speak on "The Real Frenchman, as Expressed Through Modern French Authors."

Hollywood Woman's Club.

Prof. B. R. Baumgardt will deliver his lecture on "The Rebuilding of the Temple," at the meeting of the Woman's Club of Hollywood, Wednesday.

Preceding will be held the monthly luncheon of the literary department, with Miss Margaret Turnbull, an author of note, who is staying in Hollywood as the honor guest. New books of special interest will be reviewed by Miss Gertrude Darlow, Mrs. Hogbin, Miss Jessica Lawrence, and Mrs. Eleanor B. Jones will speak briefly of "The Story of a Little Man During Great Days," by Andeov, and will read his "Appeal to the American People."

At 10:30 a.m. the Browning study class will hold its second meeting, continuing the reading and discussion of "Paracelsus." The junior department will meet at 4 p.m., spending the time in sewing for the Los Angeles Settlement House.

Owing to Armistice Day celebrations, the music department will meet November 18 instead of Tuesday.

At the afternoon meeting, Wednesday, a large and interested audience listened to Maj. Puller's concise outline and explanation of the points for and against the League of Nations. This was followed by a piano programme by Helen Constance Morgan, after which came a delightful talk by Mrs. L. J. Selby on her experiences with the army in France.

At the art department luncheon, Mrs. Gavin Witherspoon spoke of the aim of the section during the coming year as being to further an understanding of art, and C. P. Townsley, the speaker for the day, speaking along this same plan, showed how all might create an artistic environment, regardless of apparent restrictions

Big Sisters' League

There will be a meeting of the Big Sisters' League immediately following the meeting of the Women's City Club at the Walker Auditorium, Monday at 2 p.m. The speakers will be Councilman Criswell and Dr. C. C. Selecman.

Sierra Madre Women's Club

The board of directors of the Sierra Madre Women's Club have established a drama section, under the leadership of Mrs. Lillian Burkhart Goldsmith of Los Angeles. The technique and direction of plays will be under the charge of Mrs. Goldsmith, who is at present curator of the drama department of the Matinee Musical Club, also chairman of pageantry of the Los Angeles Drama League.

The first meeting of the section will be held, tomorrow, when a study will be made of Lord Dunsany's one-act play, "Fame and the Gods," also Alfred Sutro's play, "The Open Door."

At the close of the season a pageant is to be produced by members of the club.

Ruskin Art Club.

The Ruskin Art Club will meet as usual, Wednesday, at 10 a.m. in the Black Building. The origin of the Rumanian nation, invasions by the Goths, Huns and Slavs, and the growth of Russian influence will be the topics for discussion. Miss Belle Smith and Mrs. Ralph Hartley will have charge of the programme.

Professional Women's Club

The Professional Women's Club will meet in the Marie Louise tea room on the eleventh floor of the Brack Shops, tomorrow at 6:30 p.m. The programme will be as follows: "A California Woman's Opinion of the East," Mrs. Oda Faulconer, and "Children's Dentistry," Dr. Minnie Proctor

Friday Morning Club.

Ralph P. Merritt, comptroller of the University of California and former Federal Food Administrator for California, will be the speaker at the Friday Morning Club, Friday. Mr. Merritt will speak on "Causes and Cures of the High Cost of Living." There will be no meeting of the Public Affairs Committee this week, because of its regular meeting falling upon Armistice Day. The Club committees urge all members to attend the celebrations to be held on that day.

Whittier Women's Club.

Former Senator G. W. Cartwright of Fresno, was the speaker before the Whittier Women's Club at its recent regular meeting. Senator Cartwright took as his theme the present-day labor conditions. The Whittier Women's Club will hold a special Red Cross bazaar on December 12 and 13, and committee reports showed satisfactory progress in preliminary arrangements.

Drama League.

Maeterlinck's five-act drama, "The Betrothal," a sequel to his famous fairy spectacle, "The Blue Bird," was read and discussed at the monthly, drama-study meeting of the Los Angeles Drama League Thursday evening on the tenth floor of the Public Library building. The meeting was in charge of Dr. Allison Gaw, head of the department of English of the University of Southern California.

Queen's Daughters.

The Queen's Daughters have opened their sewing-room in the Exchange Building, Third and Hill street, room 620, and they will hold meetings there daily, except Saturday and Sunday, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Their object is to make garments for the needy poor. Mrs. Mary Hickson will act as chairman.

The club now numbers 450 and each member is to give at least three hours a week to this work. Rev. Emmett Lucy will act as their chaplain.

The date of their regular November meeting has been changed from Tuesday to tomorrow, on account of Armistice Day.

The newly-elected officers of the club are: Mrs. Frank Chase, president; Mrs. Elizabeth Toole, first vice-president; Mrs. Edward Mullen, second vice-president; Mrs. Malissa A. Dorsey, recording secretary, Mrs. Harry Dranger, corresponding secretary and Mrs. M. A. Gillon, treasurer.

The board of directors of the Queen's Daughters consists of Mrs. M. E. Marsh, Mrs. W. H. Fields, Mrs. J. B. Palmer and Mrs. J. M. Watts.

The organization is one of those which comprise the Bureau of Catholic Charities.

Parent-Teacher Association.

Activities along the lines of Parent-Teacher work show gains during the last few months, as evidenced in the gathering of members of the City Federation, Thursday, in the Broadway Department Store auditorium. As usual, the president, Mrs. Charles F. Gray, adhered strictly to scheduled programme.

Reports of departments showed, among other things, that milk is being furnished by the entire federation at a cost of about $100 per month. Mrs. W. A. Chapman, chairman on day nurseries, reports as follows: Average daily attendance at five day nurseries, 146; 420 quarts of milk furnished, besides many boxes of crackers.

Mrs. W. K. Bowker, chairman on scholarship, reports nine children receiving $5 per week at present, who would otherwise be taken out of school. More will be taken care of if funds admit.

Mrs. Emil Kirchner of the public school dispensary reported much work done for children along the lines of dentistry, corrected vision, etc.

Under this department a child welfare station will soon be established for the weighing and examination of babies and older children, and advice given by competent physicians and nurses, the regular days and dates to be announced later.

Mrs. Harvey Trowbridge, chairman of the Juvenile Court committee, has done preventive work, with Dr. Miriam Van Waters and Orfa Jean Shontz as able coadjutors. Much of this work is necessarily confidential. Many other departments made complete reports.

Mr. E. B. de Groot gave a talk on "Our State Programme on Physical Education."

MARQUESANS ARE BEAUTIFUL.

Their Race Reported Now to be Fast Vanishing.

Social and Domestic Relations not Strictly Exclusive.

White Men's Visit a Trail of Disasters.

[John W. Church, in National Geographic Magazine.]

In the year 1595 a Spanish fleet under the command of Alvara Mendana, sailing from South America in search of gold, discovered Fatuhiva, the southern most of the eleven islands comprising the Marquesas group.

Those old Spanish chroniclers, Mendana, Figueroa and Quieros, were enthusiastic to the verge of vehemency over this discovery. To them the islands seemed nothing short of an earthly paradise—a Paradise marred somewhat it is true, by the cannibal tendencies of the fierce, cruel warriors who swarmed by thousands in every bay and valley; but the marvelous beauty of the women and the tropical splendor of the islands evidently outweighed the ever present possibility of becoming "long pig"—pua oa—the Marquesan's somewhat startling description of the human victim intended to grace his feast.

A "RAPE OF THE SABINES."

The brief visit of Mendana and his fleet had at best—or worst—a transitory effect upon these savages. There is an interesting tradition, still believed by the Hanavavans, that a number of Mendana's crew, enraptured by the physical pulchritude of the native women, deserted their ships, enacted a South Sea rape of the Sabines, braved the wrath of the cannibal warriors, and, taking with them a score or more of the most attractive maidens, fled over the mountain to an inland valley, where they lived happily ever after.

The story goes that from this adventure sprang a tribe of beautiful red haired women and fierce warriors, who for generations raided the bay villages of Hanavave and Omoo when they came from their inland fastness for salt water, there being no salt deposits on the island.

Of the existence of such a village there is no proof, but in Hanavave and nowhere else in the islands I saw several women and boys with a wealth of rich auburn hair. In appearance otherwise they were full blooded Marquesans. Of their descent, whether from the inland village or a less romantic source, they had no knowledge and evinced typical Marquesan indifference.

BEAUTY OF THE MARQUESANNE

To describe the dainty, graceful Marquesanne as she unquestionably was, will, I fear, lay me open to the charge of exaggeration. If so, I shall still be in good company. From Mendana to Stevenson, with Melville for good measure, her remarkable beauty was a source of surprise and admiration. Unfortunately, my personal observation has been restricted to a period fraught with sickness, misery and mixed blood, but today the few young women in the islands bear out the claim made for the beauty of their maternal ancestors.

When women possess beautiful, luxuriant hair, fine eyes, perfect teeth, a slender, graceful form, a skin of velvet texture and unblemished surface, and these physical attractions are combined with a vivacity of spirit and action, exaggeration becomes difficult; and unless all chroniclers of the islands have for several centuries agreed to deceive the world, such was the Marquesanne; and so she is today when sickness has not diminished her charm.

NOT ALLOWED TO WEEP.

Several well-established tapus existed in common throughout the group.

Without exception on any island, women might not eat "long pig."

Nor could they go in canoes, a provision to keep them from being captured by enemies lurking outside the bay.

And a tapu savoring of Solomon in its wisdom, women could not weep!

In the Marquesan language there were no words to express our conception of either love or jealousy, nor had these emotions any place in their lives. Their domestic relations have always been a very loosely-defined system of polyandry. Each woman or girl—they bore children at the age of 12—usually had two or more accepted "husbands," but there was an amiable custom of a temporary exchange of wives at any time without previous notice.

Quarrels and strife among families thus constituted were unknown, and, to revert again to the present, where the same custom still exists, there are no records of ank bickerings or killings over their women by the present-day Marquesans. Spiritual love, or even the desire for the exclusive possession of any woman, seems to have had no place in the philosophy of the Marquesan, nor was there any evidence of such a desire on the part of the woman.

COMING OF THE WHITE MAN.

The coming of Capt. Cook, in 1774, presaged disaster for the Marquesans. As a result of his previous voyages, Cook was more or less familiar with the life and habits of the Polynesians and found no difficulty in winning the confidence of the savages in this remote group.

They welcomed the white men to their shores and in return Cook brought them fruits and vegetables from other lands to add to their store of food. He introduced cattle, sheep and goats on the islands and made the warriors invaluable presents of iron and steel tools and knives. But, unfortunately, the crew of his vessel left behind them a trail of disease hitherto unknown.

That was 145 years ago and since then the history of the islands is the tragic story of a losing fight by a race of savages against a civilization represented in this instance by the, whaler, the trader and the "blackbinder."

MISS RATIFICATION, DEBUTANTE.

The Social Status of the Suffrage Family Today.

BY MYRA NYE.

The debutante's first season is at its height. California was hostess to her last Saturday at Sacramento, where she met with unanimous favor as was expected. Bouquets of every discription were presented to the young lady by State Senators and Assemblymen. Her progenitor, suffrage, was in close attendance as chaperon, adding much to the amenities of the occasion but actually de trop as a chaperon in a State where she has been in vogue for eight years.

Every State has not received ratification so cordially, though there has been little ill-will manifest. Gov. Stephens lately sent letters to seven neighboring States, urging immediate ratification concurrently with California. Nevada and Idaho approved of ratification but were in no hurry about it. Arizona will wait until next spring, Gov. Campbell signifying "ratification just now as not of enough importance to warrant expense of extra session."

Wyoming was one of the seven thus invited, but at the time of this writing has not ratified. Wyoming led the United States and all the nations of the world in the extension of suffrage to women in 1869. Of the twenty-one that have ratified, fifteen of them are not suffrage States. This is regarded as an indication of strong desire for national suffrage, as the States that have it regard the fact of possession as sufficient endorsement. Twenty-eight States now have full suffrage and only six of them have ratified the national amendment.

Last May national suffrage for women was indorsed by the House of Representatives at Washington by a vote of 304 to 89. Though twice defeated previously in the Senate, the amendment passed, June 3rd, with more than the required two-thirds majority. Constitutionally, it was then necessary to secure the ratification of thirty-six States. At once ratification made her debut. In July it came up at about the same time in New York and Georgia. New York was one of the first States to ratify. Georgia turned it down in the Senate by a vote of 37 to 12.

A meeting was held thus early in Los Angeles to stir up enthusiasm for ratification. The ardent desire of California suffrage leaders, the great majority of whom are Los Angeles women, was to have their State among the first to ratify. Opposition was expressed for only two reasons—expense of an extra session, and that California already had indorsed by granting suffrage to women. The League of Women Voters, nonpartisan and no-sectarian, with Mrs. Robert J. Burdette as organizer in California, has been chiefly instrumental in securing ratification.

Victory is as good as won. There is the confident hope that all women of the United States will have the privilege of voting in the next Presidential election.

Will H. Hays, chairman of the Republican National Committee, says: "The rapidity with which suffrage is winning is due to the Republican majority, and the overwhelming Republican vote for the measure speak for themselves. Women, coming more and more into the rights of their full citizenship, are most important factors for good in the situation today. I have no use for the man or woman who is 'too busy' or 'too good' to take part in politics. He has no just complaint to make whatever happens."

Authenticated figures vouch for Mr. Hays's statement. In the House 96 per cent. of the Republicans were for suffrage and 79 per cent. of the Democrats were against. In the Senate 86 per cent. of the Republicans were for suffrage and 46 per cent. of the Democrats were against it.

The first man to arrange for a committee hearing for suffrage was a Whig, forerunner of the Republican party, Senator James Harlan of Iowa. The first man to present a suffrage measure in Congress was Senator Aaron A. Sargent of California, a Republican.

In 1916 Justice Hughes favored Federal action in behalf of suffrage in opposition to Mr. Wilson.

Mary Garrett Hay, chairman of the Republican Women's Executive Committee, well known in Los Angeles among club women, is exerting her wide influence in behalf of ratification.

INSPIRED.

Author Thinks Constitution Was Divinely Directed.

I believe that that Constitution was as much inspired as parts of the Bible. You know they met for weeks, day after day, and had not written a single word or a single sentence, and on the morning of the fifth week, in the midst of a very heated discussion, they were about to adjourn and abandon the great purpose for which they had met—and what a difference it would have made in the history of this country and the entire world if that had happened!—but Benjamin Franklin, one of the wisest men, if not the wisest man, who sat in the Convention, arose - and, addressing George Washington, who was in the chair, said:

"Mr. Chairman, we have been groping for four weeks in the darkness searching for political truth and have found it. How is it that we have not invoked the divine guidance of the Father of Light upon our proceedings? The longer I live and the more I know the more I believe that God governs in the affairs of men, and if the sparrow cannot fall without his notice, is it probable that an empire can rise without his assistance? 'Except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain who build it.' I firmly believe this, and I also believe that without his concurring aid we shall succeed in our political building no better than the builders or Babel. I, therefore, move you that from henceforth we open our daily deliberations with morning prayer."

And from that moment they began to make progress in the framing and adoption of that fame-crowned old document.—[Harry T. Atwood in Motor World.

Impossible.

Someone says ninety per cent. of the men of this country work hard for a living. We can't believe it, remarks the Houston Post. Ten per cent. of the men simply couldn't do the loafing, striking, motoring, wind-jamming, agitating and other stunts in indolence now prevalent in the United States.

Jewel Masterpieces

Among the many very unusual and important jewel pieces shown by Feagans & Co. is a real man's ring of plain, massive platinum set with three square cut gem diamonds. The large center stone is of blue gem quality. The price is $4500.00.

Another wonderful piece for ladies' wear is a twin ring of exquisite beauty. The pair of large stones weigh 4.49 carats. They are of the absolutely perfect blue quality for which our house is famous. The mounting is of our own special modeling and contains nearly 100 small diamonds most artistically set. The price, $5500.00, is less than we can duplicate this wonderful ring for today.

Our diamond cases today contain some of the most beautiful and important diamond pieces it has ever been our privilege to offer. We shall consider it a pleasure to show them to you.

Specially designed remounting of Diamonds is a Feagans specialty.

People notice your fingernails

Every time you put your hand to your hair—Every time you powder your nose—Whenever you make a gesture your hands are conspicuous

YOUR tea cup poised in the air; the attention of the others centered on you—and then you caught a glimpse of your nails. The very memory of it still makes you flush.

You cannot put on your hat or fasten your gloves; you cannot give your clothes a tiny settling pat; you cannot make the least gesture without drawing attention to your hands.

People not only look at your hands—they judge you by them.

An occasional manicure may improve the appearance of your nails for the time being, but it will not keep them looking well. You must care for your nails regularly, and care for them by the right method.

When you cut the overgrown cuticle, you can't help cutting the living skin, too. The skin, in its effort to heal these ugly little places, grows quickly and forms thick, ragged cuticle that makes you feel self-conscious when people look at your nails.

But you can keep your cuticle thin, smooth, even.

The right way to do this is to First soften and remove the overgrown cuticle with cotton wrapped around an orange stick and moistened with Cutex. Whiten the tips with a touch of Cutex Nail White applied beneath them. Then give your nails a brilliant lustre with Cutex Nail Polish.

soften and remove the cuticle with Cutex. Just dip an orange stick (with cotton wrapped around the point) into the Cutex bottle. Then gently work the stick around the base of the nail, pushing back the dead cuticle. Carefully wash the hands, pushing the cuticle back when drying them.

The Cutex way keeps the cuticle always in perfect condition. Get it at any drug or department store.

THE NEW.

IN STORES AND HOMES.

NOVELTIES, IDEAS AND PRACTICAL SUGGESTIONS.

By Olive Gray.

Up-to-datest:

"Peg o' My Heart" gowns for boudoir wear: Adorable are these new one-piece dresses, for wear intime. Made from —but I shall elaborate elsewhere.

"Red sacques" of crepe de chine, of satin, of Georgette—confections when frilled with lace, decked with silken posies.

To possess at least one coat of leather, is a must-have of every complete, modern wardrobe, either masculine or feminine.

To register a vow that at least one new blouse shall be yours during that week given over, nationally, to blouses.

To "Buy-your-Christmas-gifts early!"

Now is the Time to Buy:

Blouses! National blouse week is being observed by stores all over the United States, by a concerted presentation of better values and special prices. Manufacturers have long been preparing for this event and there will be new blouse features, new combinations of materials, new trimmings, even new modes altogether, in these desirable garments. Especially wantable, in fact, are blouses now that suits are so integral a part of every self-respecting wardrobe.

Handkerchiefs! The holiday stocks are in and are already on exhibition in some of the leading stores. The beauty of these gifty articles is as great as it used to be "befo' de wah."

The handbag for yourself or for gifting. An offering of chiffon velvet bags in all wished-for colors, in exchange for a small bill is one not to be overlooked.

The suit, the coat, the evening wrap, the dress—in sales this week which say that "now," if ever during the present season, "is clothes opportunity knocking, at your clothes-press door."

Extra Discounting.

During the coming week, which is the fifteenth anniversary week of a leading women's specialty house, a clever plan has been adopted. In addition to the notable discounts given upon all garment prices, each fifteenth purchaser will receive an additional discount of 15 per cent. Seldom have such price opportunities been given as those presented by this house whose name rhymes with "seldom."

First and Last.

As a first resort in Christmas giving—the handkerchief! As a last resort—when all others fail and ingenuity is at its lowest ebb—the handkerchief!

Daintier than ever, more unique in decorative motifs and in loveliness of coloring, the handkerchiefs are already waving, in more than one—or at least in one very important section, of the downtown stores.

An early choice from among the samples now being shown, is to your advantage and to mine, if we would have what we want when we want it. The Swiss favorites are with us once again. We have missed them throughout the period of the war.

Peg o' My Heart.

They look just like their name! Adorables, they! Dresses intime, made from pompadour silks, made from panne velvets, made from corduroy, and even from soft woolen fabrics, such as albatross—the latter lined with soft China silk. Had the makers of these garments offered a prize for a description of them, I wonder who would have won? They seem to me indescribable, in their marvelous one-pieceness, which, without being "fussy," hangs so gracefully; in their simplicity which is not lacking in dressy effect; in their chic charm and their becomingness. "A Peg o' My Heart to comfort every hour of every day," might be the slogan of these lovable frocks, which furnish good looks and warmth, and also daintiness for home use, from early morn to dewey eve.

"Up-a-chimney-down."

In the workroom, at that popular store, I saw them making Christmas things from ribbons. Oh, such loveliness as was there being created! Among the novelties was a lamp shade, ribbon covered upon a frame which opened and shut—or closed and opened—"up-again-down-again"—exactly like a parasol. I think this an excellent idea, don't you The shade is graceful and pretty, too.

Shedding Star-dust.

"Once there was a naughty Star, and the Goddess of Heaven disciplined her by sending her to earth to work hard for a certain length of time, at sprinkling star-dust. Her task to first select the prettiest city in the world as the scene of her operations; there to choose the prettiest store and to begin at once. She chose Los Angeles as the prettiest city"—(for through her star-dusty eyes she saw already embodied our City Beautiful dreams.) Then, after due inspection, she selected a certain big furniture store on South Broadway, as the place of her operations; and during all the moonlit nights and the sun-shone days, she sprinkled star-dust over all the toys which were to go as Christmas gifts to little children: If you are endowed with star-dreaming eyes you may see, any hour of any day, for several weeks to come, the Star Child, Twinklim, busy at her heaven-imposed task.

If you do not believe me, just step in there and prove my truthfulness!

Think of a regular watch—a guaranteed watch from a 'pon honor jewelry house, for only $15! "Time to buy," either on cash or "tick"—is the exclamation sent forth by such a gift—for what is more opportune than a good watch as a Christmas present? Or to come!

• •

Stocking Up With Stockings Down.

When that house of quality makes an offering of anything at special price, every judge of quality sits up and takes notice and walks up and takes the goods. With silk hose so high-up in cost and so low-down in quality as they have sometimes proven themselves during the past few years, a special price offering just now will mean hoisery gifts for many friends as well as stocking up for ourselves.

Christmas Boxing.

The hollyed boxes so gayly gifty looking have appeared in the stores, bringing Christmas thoughts. "Buy early" applies to boxes even more than to the articles to be boxed. That last mad rush, when counters are banked with eager buyers—I was about to say "grabbers"—is an experience unenviable.

Fashion's Fiat.

Chenille dots are frequent in fashionable veilings.

Chemise frocks made with kimono sleeves are still smart.

A smart little frock of brown tricolette has orange pipings.

New white sweaters have broad borders of colored stripes.

Brocaded fabrics are an important feature of fall wraps

Wrapped effects are pronounced features among evening coats.

A wrap of black satin has a deep collar of ivory-tinted Irish lace.

Rooster tails and coque feathers are popular millinery trimming.

The evening gown is prone to exaggerate the distended hip line.

Tinsel embroidery is a very frequent feature among trimmings.

There is a new satin ribbon edged with fringe, which is used for girdles.

THE HELPING HAND.

"How far that little candle throws his beams!
So shines a good deed in a naughty world."

A charming story of Princess Mary's kindness to a little Highland girl is told by a Deeside correspondent of the London Graphic.

The Queen and her daughter were out driving when, as they neared the castle on their return journey, they noticed a child in the roadway who was weeping bitterly. Her Majesty had the carriage stopped and after some difficulty, got the little one to tell her what was the matter. She had been stung by a wasp.

Princess Mary, after pacifying the child, said, "come home with me, dear, and I will cure you," and so she did. When she arrived at the castle, the Princess applied one of the simple remedies for stings, and, after giving the baby her tea, sent her home cured and happy.

The War Camp Community Service "gather 'em as you go" stunt is working with big percentage results in industrial plant "sings" these days. The idea is to start a small group of singers through a big plant. As they hike through the various departments, they sing catchy songs and musically inclined employees join the procession. When time for the "sing" comes, there's a big crowd of singers, not to mention the others who like music with their work.

The idea went big in the shipyard of the Lake Torpedo Boat Company in Bridgeport, Ct. A. C. Breul, a War Camp Community Service song leader, was the Pied Piper of the occasion. He got together a round dozen of the best singers in the plant. After a brief rehearsal, they started through the plant, singing at the tops of their voices. Straight to the appointed singing place the group went, gathering recruits along the route. Results were great. And Mr. Breul organized a live-wire glee club among the employees.

Army hospitals have been authorized to accept for treatment discharged soldiers, sailors and marines. Any sailor, marine or soldier who has been honorably discharged since October 6, 1917, for disability incurred in line of duty and whose present condition is a reactivation of that disability or as a consequence of it, is entitled to hospital or sanatorium care under the provisions of the War Risk Insurance Act, either in a military hospital or in a local civilian institution, according to word received yesterday at the army recruiting offices here.

These figures concerning the work of the Red Cross in Siberia were made public at Red Cross headquarters recently by Lieut.-Col. R. B. Teusler, who has directed the relief work of the organization in Siberia for more than a year.

The headquarters of the commission are located in Vladivostok where two of the largest Red Cross hospitals are maintained. A number of American doctors and nurses are included in the personnel. New hospitals were established recently at Irkutsk and Chelyabinsk, the latter being one of the most important of the base hospitals now looking after the care of the wounded men of the Kolchak government forces.

WHAT OUR CONSULS SAY.

Almost every manufacturer in Ireland, it was stated at a recent meeting of the local Industrial Development Association, is overwhelmed with orders, and the quantity of raw material available is inadequate to meet the demand.

The Consolidated Mining & Smelting Co., of Canada is now planning to build big concentrators at Kimberley and Rossland, British Columbia, for treating the low-grade ore of the Sullivan mine and the milling ore of the Rossland camp, which will, if constructed, challenge anything on the continent for concentrating capacity.

An average import price of 5.3 cents a pound, an average export price of 7.3 cents a pound, and an average per capita consumption of 82 pounds in the fiscal year, 1919, contrasted with 2 cents, 3.6 cents and 89 pounds in the fiscal year 1914, are facts brought out by a study of official statistics of sugar imports and exports of the United States for these respective years.

Prior to the war the Netherlands obtained its feeds principally from European countries; Russia, Germany, and Rumania were the principal countries of origin. The war made Russia and Rumania commercially inaccessible and changed Germany from an exporter to a hungry consumer of feeds. Argentina, the United States and the East Indies, are the new sources of supply on which the Netherlands has learned to depend.

In Ireland, the cold and somewhat harsh weather late in June, followed by the drought in July and early August, unfavorably affected crops and live stock. Cereals have done fairly well. The drought has caused the straw, notably in the case of oats, to be short, and in some parts of the country it is stated the grain heads have not filled properly. Flax, too, though a fair crop, is likely to be short in some of the northern districts. It is anticipated that it will be difficult to find water for retting purposes. Potatoes have wanted rain, but the cases of blight reported are less numerous this year, especially in the north, than last year.

The growing of sugar cane and the manufacture of commercial sugar are two phases of an industry in the Philippine Islands which should be of great interest to American manufacturers. While the growing of cane is purely an agricultural question, it has come into great prominence in latter years since modern agricultural machinery has become more and more a factor in the sugar industry. Up to date, however, capital has been more profitably employed in the manufacture of commercial sugar, and at the present time more inviting opportunities are offered in his field than are held out in the sale of agricultural machinery.

In view of the necessity for improved methods of cultivation in Italy, considerable interest is being displayed in the possibility of utilizing some system of electric plowing on a large scale. In this connection trials were recently held in the vicinity of Rome of the apparatus designed and manufactured by Violati Tescari Brothers, at which the King of Italy, the Italian Minister of Agriculture and other prominent officials were present. It is reported that the results of these trials were very satisfactory, a triple plow being employed in the first instance, which operated perfectly, and in the second place a single plow, with which a depth of about twenty inches was reached in spite of the difficult character of the ground on which the trials were held.

FOUND FIRES OF HISTORIC NOTE.

Announcement of a proposal to employ airplanes in locating and fighting forest fires makes interesting a recent bulletin of the National Geographic Society relative to some notable forest fires of the past which have attained historical importance. In the fall of 1825 a fire occurred in New Brunswick during a season of great drought. Within nine hours that fire had burned over a strip of forest 80 miles long and 25 miles wide, destroying every living thing in its path. One hundred and sixty persons perished and nearly 1000 head of stock. Five hundred and ninety buildings were burned and a number of towns destroyed. Quantities of fish in the rivers were killed by the heat.

In the fall of 1871 a forest fire in Wisconsin swept over an area of more than 2000 miles and caused the death of between 1200 and 1500 persons. In the fall of 1894 a forest fire in Minnesota destroyed the town of Hinckley. Many small fires were suddenly merged, resulting in the destruction of not only Hinckley, but of the six other towns, killing 500 persons and making 2000 more homeless. The estimated loss was $25,000,000.

The latest big forest fire was in the Pacific Northwest in 1910. Electric storms set fire to many places in Idaho and Northwestern Montana. In three days the forest rangers put out nine fires set by lightning in the national forest. Trenches were dug around the fires and they gradually were confined to a small area. All fires seemed to be under control when, on August 20, a terrific hurricane made a gigantic wall of flame many miles long. Seventy-nine fire-fighters were killed. This season has been so wet that there has been little danger of serious forest fires. However, the nation is vitally interested in the tremendous loss occasioned by large fires, and State and Federal protection cannot be too vigorous.—[New York Herald.

THE STRAW "LID" IN FLORIDA.

Going back to the straws, which invariably show the turn of the wind in Florida and are not affected by the rustle of calendar leaves, it may be said that there are but a few months when a man may not safely wear a straw hat in this State. The last of the Panamas, Leghorns and other straws are put away a little before Thanksgiving Day—and down at Palm Beach they bring out new ones on New Year's Day. By Washington's Birthday they have crept up as far as Jacksonville, and may be said to be just about in full bloom all over the State about St. Patrick's Day.—[Jacksonville Times-Union.

Research by Airplane.

Air photography announces the great part which it is going in the future play in archaeological research by the revelation made by its means of a long forgotten city lying buried in the neighborhood of Samarrah. For long centuries the presence of this city has been undreamed of, until the day came when its detailed outline, with traces of wall, foundations, public gardens, was show in an air photograph, though not visible to anyone on the ground.—[Christian Science Monitor.

Creole Charm
Makes Youthful Years

THE aristocratic Creoles of Louisiana are famous for their beautiful masses of wavy, lustrous dark hair, a distinguishing mark of their pure French and Spanish ancestry. La Creole Hair Dressing, a favorite among them, preserves the natural youthful beauty and color of the hair to add charm even to the last years of life.

No Gray Hair If You Use La Creole

La Creole not alone prevents gray hair. La Creole and nature will bring back faded, gray streaked, or gray hair to its youthful color.

The color of the hair cannot be restored immediately. Only a dye can do that and La Creole contains no dye. The length of the treatment depends on the condition of the hair and scalp, usually two to five weeks. The color of the hair returns gradually but surely—then an occasional application of La Creole will preserve its healthy color—permanently. Refined people make no secret of the use of La Creole, though its use can never be detected, because it promotes the healthy condition of hair and scalp which nature intended. It makes the hair soft, fluffy and beautiful.

La Creole must not be confused with dyes—it cannot stain the scalp and there is nothing to wash or rub off. La Creole eliminates dandruff and is an excellent remedy for scalp troubles. A safe, delightful, healthful toilet requisite. Simple to apply—full directions with each bottle. Absolutely guaranteed to bring back the hair's color, or money refunded. Write for fascinating booklet, "La Creole," Hair Beautiful. Shows best hair dress for each face.

Another startling value—an exquisitely modeled conception in fine, soft, brown leather; welt sole; slim Louis heels. The same type in allover black kid at $8.50; in black kid with cloth top at $8.50.

Values such as we present here have builded the reputation and good will of this house.

In this era of ever-soaring leather prices, the low quotations on the above high-grade productions of America's leading bootmakers, may seem radical and inconsistent. The cause is quite simple.

Our experience and intuitiveness led us to early anticipate the wanted styles and leathers. We bought generously at favorable prices. Our good fortune is yours. The offering embraces not only the models described above, but a wide variety of other styles at equally low prices.

The People and Their Troubles

DOROTHY DIX TALKS

The Test of Love.

BY DOROTHY DIX.

A young girl of 18 asks me how she can tell whether a young man is in love with her or not.

Alas, this is a question that human wisdom has never been able to answer. A man's love is something that a woman has to take on faith, and faith has been defined as believing a thing that you know isn't true.

For the most part, a woman has to take a man's word for it that he is in love with her, but she can check up his vows by a few facts, so I would advise the girl who is trying to determine whether a man is in love with her or not to pay particular attention to the following points:

First, take note of his attitude towards you in his absence. Put no stress on a man's coming to see you five or six times a week when he is near you. He may do that because he wants a comfortable place in which to pass his evenings; because your mother is a good cook, or because he is bored or lonesome, or doesn't know how else to spend his time. It may mean something or nothing, but when he is away from you it is a different matter.

If he writes to you, if he sends you telegrams, if he remembers the little things that you like and are interested in, it is because he really cares for you and carries your image with him in his thoughts all the time. Never believe a man loves you who waits for you to write to him, or who doesn't answer your letters. Men never, never get pen paralysis until they have ceased to care for a woman. Nor does a man ever forget that Christmas and birthdays come to a woman while he is in love with her. It is only after he has ceased to take interest in her that he forgets anniversaries or has to be tipped off to what she would like as a gift.

If you ever have to remind a man of your existence, you may be very sure that your existence is of no importance to him, no matter what he says to the contrary.

Secondly, observe the man's manner to you when you are with him, and see whether it is tender and affectionate or cold and callous. This does not refer to kisses and holding hands and all that sort of confectionery stuff. That doesn't amount to a row of pins. Every man will kiss a pretty girl and hold a nice little hand if he can.

But note if the man thinks of your pleasure before his own; whether he is willing to sacrifice himself to you or not; whether he tries to protect you from every hardship that he can; whether he really cherishes you or thinks you a squaw to wait on him or a doll to amuse him.

If a man assumes the attitude of a lord and lays down the law to you on every subject under the sun, if he seldom takes you out to any place of amusement because he would rather spend the evening [illegible] than in any other diversion, and if when he does take you out he always takes you where he wants to go instead of where you want to go; if he makes you do all of the courting yourself and run after him instead of his running after you, and if he thinks that you should be flattered to death at the honor of getting him for a husband, why, you may be sure that he is not really in love with you. The only deathless passion he will ever experience will be for himself.

On the other hand, the man who finds his chief happiness in making you happy, who is willing to even go shopping with you to be with you, who grows white with sympathy when you look tired and fagged after a hard day's work, and who always turns up with an umbrella when you get caught in the rain, gives unmistakable indications of a love that can be relied on.

And last, take careful heed of whether a man assumes a proprietary attitude towards you. This doesn't mean whether he objects to your gadding about with other men, and his throwing fits of jealousy if you do. That is only hurt vanity.

But observe if when you go out with a man he lets you order lobster salad and ice cream for lunch, and if he admires your little patent-leather pumps, and thinks you look smart in a featherweight suit. If he does, he isn't in love with you and isn't counting on having to pay your doctor's bill.

One of the first honest-to-goodness signs of true love that a man gives is when he begins to urge roast beef and potatoes on a girl and tell her how much nicer her feet look in thick-soled boots with flat heels and to expatiate on the virtues of thick clothing in winter. When a man does that, it's as good as popping the question, because it's a never-failing indication that he has his eye on matrimony.

A final indication of whether a man is in love or not is the way in which he treats a girl's family. As long as he casts baleful glances at little sister and brother, and yawns in the midst of father's tirade about how he thinks President Wilson should conduct the war, there's nothing doing, but when he begins to cherish the twins and hang on mother's words and bring father cigars, it is time for a girl to begin deciding what sort of a wedding she will have.

REGENERATION.

BY HOMER FORT.

Could I but lift the cutain of my soul,
And show the sordid drama pictured there:
How hate and scorn are nursed with bitter care,
And help to murder faith to reach the goal;
How envy comes, so silent, like the mole
From darkened trails of underground despair;
While curses deep, with imprecations roll
Across my stage of life, all broken, bare.

I could not face a world of joy and truth,
Nor consolation find in ribald mirth;
But I would dream of rapture, hope and youth,
Regeneration in a heavenly birth,
Where duty, angel-robed, a star of night,
Would lead me up to ways of love and right.

Why She Left.

Tillie Clinger says she reason she had to leave her last job was because the boss asked her if she couldn't come down a little softer on the keyboard, and she asked if he couldn't come down a little stronger on pay day.—[New York Tribune.

Ask Burleson.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 31.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Being a visitor to this great city from the distant dominion of New Zealand I cannot help expressing my surprise at the tardy delivery of mails. Having occasion to write to a lady who resides in Hollywood, I posted a letter to her in a pillar box on West Seventh street about 8:30 p.m. on Tuesday night. At 5:30 p.m the following day that letter had not yet been delivered. In New Zealand, which in many ways is behind your progressive country, my note would have been received by the first mail delivery on Wednesday morning.

Another instance of the mysterious ways of the postal authorities, on Wednesday afternoon, while waiting for a car near my rooms, I observed a young man drive up in an automobile and ring several times at the door of the house I reside in. As he was coming away I went up to him and asked him if he wanted anyone there. He replied, "No!" When I got back that evening about 8 o'clock I discovered that he had left a note in the letter box saying he had tried to deliver a letter parcel for me! It was rather annoying to think that young man should have carried off that parcel without saying anything about it. I may say it has not been sent along again, although this is Friday morning.

Surely there is room for some improvement here. Hoping this will be taken in the spirit in which it is written.

W. F. KENNEDY.

The Real De Valera.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 31.—[To the Editor of The Times:] De Valera, president of the Irish republic, was born in Syracuse, N. Y. His mother was Irish and his father was a Spaniard.

The above statement was made by a Brooklyn judge at some convention in an Atlantic Coast town some time in August or September. Citizens' Union, a Republican paper which caters greatly to the Irish of Brooklyn, gave one and one-half columns to the expose, and the Brooklyn Eagle also reported it, the exposure came about the time De Valera was about to get a large amount from Brooklyn. However, they tried to hush the thing and the judge was condemned by Tammany.

J. E. EASTERBROOK.

Another Viewpoint.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 31.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I see that we are in for another tidal wave of indignation from the reformers (?) who are after the soulless landlords who bar children from their flats and apartments, and again they demand that the law shall forbid the discrimination. The wrath of these reformers amuses but does not anger me, since I am a deserter from their ranks, as any flat owner ("of whom I am which," as dear old Nasby would say) quickly becomes, after the situation becomes a condition and not a theory. But apart from the absurdity of not allowing us to build for that large class of tenants, who, having no young children of their own, object to being housed with children over whom they have no control, there is another angle to the situation that Citizen Fixit has overlooked. In a way it reminds one of the story, so old that it is new, of the family emigrating in the long ago, having to ford a stream. One child was put upon a pack mule, but the mule sank in mid-stream, the overload being too great for him. Fancy my feelings, said the sorrowing mother, in relating the tragedy, as I saw my child go down—and forever! But, madam, was the reply, fancy the feelings of the mule! Even so, there is an angle to the situation under discussion that is wholly overlooked by the theorists. What of the child's right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness in a flat with a man in the flat above that must sleep in the day-time, an invalid in the flat below, and across the hall a case of "nerves?" All the joy of life drowned in a sea of shouts. Even a "makins" of a temperamental cyclone since there is no overhead authority, and God made "the female of the species" not a calm and impartial judge, but a fierce partisan when her own darling is involved. When one hears as I have, a tenant, the mother of an eight-year-old boy that has been fussing with a tot less than 3, tell him: "If that young one does that again, take a hammer to him, or anything," one realizes that the problem is not wholly one of soulless landlords.

The whole question is one to be settled, not by law, but on the merits of each individual case. I know from present experience that there are children that fit into flat life and add to the joy of living of the other flat dwellers, but my advice on a general proposition to the mothers who contemplate taking a flat is the celebrated advice given by the English wit to those about to marry—don't.

SAVRA A. ALDEMAN.

The Divorce Problem.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 25.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I am glad to see that you have given the decision of Judge Taft in the case of Mrs. Beulah Booker O'Hara and Kenneth O'Hara such a prominent place. It is a satisfaction to know that there is one divorce judge who has a sense of justice. The alimony life pension is a soft thing for the thousands of parasites that we have in our midst. If there was a law made whereby a woman could not secure alimony before she was 40, and a mother under the same age could only secure alimony for the support of her children, unless she proved infidelity and secured direct evidence — a proof that the man has to have to secure a divorce—there would be less divorce, and especially "mental cruelty" cases; the only plea they can make against a man who leads a decent life. The vultures find it very easy to tantalize a man enough to get a divorce on those grounds. Furthermore, if such a law was made it would make better women, as the idea of marrying wealth would not be hammered into the heads of girls from the time they were out of their swaddling clothes. At 40 they would not find it so easy to marry again and they would be more liable to think before they took the step of deception. I have lived here in Los Angeles a long time and have seen your campaigns for justice do a great deal of good. A campaign against the lap-dog ladies certainly deserves a space in your sheet. They do not want to be deprived of their alimony or their ability to decrease the birth rate. You would certainly do the community a great deal of good if you were instrumental in ridding it of the alimony vultures.

A SUBSCRIBER.

Bring Them Home.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 27.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Contrary to the expressed wishes of more than 75 per cent. of the relatives of our dead heroes in France, an effort is being made to gather the bodies of our soldiers from 829 cemeteries and concentrate them in one general cemetery in France, and notwithstanding the government's promise to parents that their loved ones would be brought home.

Most normal-feeling persons want to be buried in their own home land, and among their own folk.

Congress should be guided, not by the War Department or the individual members of Congress who might in their cold calculation think best, but the government should be guided by the prayers and wishes of the parents and relatives—the mothers and fathers should determine the policy.

It would be a tragedy if those who made the supreme sacrifice for liberty must await the convenience of business or international sentiment before the government's promise is fulfilled.

A SORROWING PARENT.

Tips for Salesmen.

ROTTERDAM (Holland) Sept. 30.—[To the Editor of The Times:] In the course of my business in Holland I came in contact a few days ago with a very prominent and successful Holland merchant. Discussing Germany he made the following remark:

"When Germans sell to us they make us feel that we are conferring a favor upon them. When Americans sell to us they make u feel that they are conferring a favor upon us."

There is a great message for the American exporter in the terse statement of this wise old Dutchman. The German psychology of statesmanship and war is all wrong, but their psychology of commerce was right and is right, and they demonstrated it thoroughly before the war and they are going to demonstrate it again, and in this if in nothing else we can learn from the Germans. The American salesmen (and I have observed their methods closely in Europe) almost universally show every evidence of haughty pride and arrogance. They are selling goods today because nobody else has them to offer. But when world competition becomes normal again the American will wonder why he is unable to do business.

I urge the American exporter to drive home to the intelligence of the man he sends abroad to sell his merchandise the lesson that is contained in the statement of our Dutch critic.

AMERICAN TRADING CO.,
A. W. Lewis.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 4.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I wish that I might be permitted to make a suggestion to the city fathers sometime, in regard to the traffic. I wonder why they don't have big Bill McClosky, the traffic cop at Forty-second and Broadway, come out here, and give the traffic squad a few lessons on how to regulate traffic. I'll bet one of those iron dollars myself, that the very first thing he would say would be that there should be no traffic turn in, on, or off of Broadway, except at alternate cross streets. Let none turn off of Seventh street into Broadway, or off of Broadway into Seventh street. That particular corner is the most conjested and dangerous spot in the downtown section of Los Angeles. There should be a traffic cop to look after the pedestrians. There are many people who do not even know what the cop is doing out in the middle of the street. They don't have such things in Red Dog. To be a little more assured of getting safely to the other side, I cross the street in the middle of the block. By so doing I have only the traffic on wheels going in two directions to dodge, and when I start I can keep on going, no timid soul to back up and push me into a big black demon of a second-hand Ford driven by Sport Hicks, wearing a red necktie and with his mouth open, who is just driving around to see what he can see.

ANOTHER NEW YORKER.

Fix the Road.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 26.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Your article in today's Los Angeles Times will do good in calling attention to the need of good roads in the Owens Valley, but, I might venture to say, as one who often makes the trip by automobile from Los Angeles to Bishop, that the crying need is a good road between Bouquet Canyon and Mojave, and this stretch does not seem to be covered by any of the new road-building plans.

It seems rather absurd to have this particular connecting link left out of the chain, particularly when we consider that in wet weather it becomes quite impassable and that less than ten miles of road building is required to remedy the defect.

The trouble is that there are no private interests along the road between Mojave and Bouquet Canyon that are powerful enough to divert attention their way

The road over the Piute Pass between Bishop and Fresno will open up a magnificent scenic country, and I may say that the Wilshire Mining Company, whose mine is at the head of Bishop Creek, will be glad to do more than its share in helping the projected highway.

"Abused" Labor.

"Did you see the bunch of fellers parading for miles from 6 o'clock in the morning till 5 in the evening and then standing up for hours listening to speeches?" asked Mr. Rafferty.

"I did," said Mr. Dolan. "Who are they?"

"They're the lads who say they're totally opposed to working more than six hours a day."—[San Francisco Chronicle.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Q.: Has the average length of human life been prolonged during the last twenty-five years? T. G. B.

A.: Yes. In the year 1890 the average length of life was 31.1 years, while ten years later it was 35.2 years. At the present time it is estimated that the average age at death is 48.7 years.

Q.: How can I make the ten tons of coal in my basement last longest in the face of the present emergency? O. T. B.

A.: The Bureau of Mines has published a bulletin entitled "Saving Fuel in Heating a House." A copy of this bulletin may be secured by writing to the Washington Information Bureau of this paper for it and inclosing a 2-cent stamp for return postage. It gives very specific instruction in fuel economy.

Q.: Does it injure a pine tree to tap it for turpentine? J. K.

A: The forest service says that tapping of pine trees, to extract turpentine or rosin, if properly done, does not materailly injure the tree.

Q.: In what language have most important treaties of the last few centuries been written? H. G.

A.: Most of the important treaties and diplomatic documents of modern times have been written in the French language, which is the language of diplomacy.

Q.: Who wrote the words of the song, "Home, Sweet Home?" S. H.

A.: This song was written by John Howard Payne, and was introduced by him into the play "Clari, the Maid of Milan," which was later changed into opera. At the time of the writing of this lyric, Payne was almost starving in an attic in Palais Royal, Paris. Most authorites agree that the music of the song is a Sicilian air, adapted by Sir Henry Rowley Bishop.

Q.: Is the Washington Monument, at Washington, D. C., built of stones from different countries If so, what countries contributed? K. C. A.

A.: The Washington Monument contains stones contributed by various States and cities of the United States, and also by the following foreign countries: Turkey, Greece, Japan, China, Siam, Brazil and Switzerland. A stone was contributed by the Pope, taken from the Temple of Concord in Rome, but before it could be put in place it was removed at night by a band of unknown persons and sunk in the Potomac.

Q.: What was the first naval engagement between Great Britain and the United States? P. M.

A.: The naval battle between John Paul Jones on his ship Bon Homme Richard, and the British boat Serapis, was the first naval engagement with England.

Q.: Does New York outrank Wisconsin as a dairy State? A. F. N.

A.: No. The Department of Agriculture says Wisconsin is ahead of the Empire State in its production of dairy products. It is estimated that there are 1,8[illegible]3,000 dairy cows in Wisconsin.

Q.: How are bayberry candles made? M. V.

A.: In making bayberry candles the bayberries are gathered late in autumn and thrown into a pot of boiling water where the fatty or waxy substance floats on top, and is skimmed off. When congealed this substance is of a dirty green color, something between wax and tallow. It is again melted, mixed with a preparation of tallow, and then shaped into candles.

Q.: Who started the modern Socialist movement? L. A.

A: Karl Marx, who was born in 1818, in Treves, Germany, and who died in 1883, is considered the founder of modern Socialism

HERMAN MAKES PORT WITH BIG CARGO OF FURS

Rescues Arctic Trappers and Picks Up Members of Stefansson Expedition

BAD SEASON IN ARCTIC

Following the rescue of a group of Eskimo trappers, who had been icebound on Banks Land for three years, and the picking up of the two remaining members of the Stefansson expedition, who had been in the Far North almost six years, the whaling schooner Herman arrived in the harbor last night under command of Captain C. T. Pedersen.

Clipping from San Francisco Chronicle, Oct. 27, 1919.

CALIFORNIA women will be the first in the civilized world to wear furs from Bank's Land—that frigid and almost unknown island at the mouth of the Northwest Passage.

The "Herman," an H. Liebes & Co. ship, has returned to San Francisco after blasting its ways with dynamite through the ice fields around Bank's Land. By so doing she saved our trapping party, which was left there four years ago, from starvation and brought out a four years' accumulation of precious Bank's Land pelts from this absolutely virgin country.

And thus H. Liebes & Co. creates the world's newest Arctic frontier.

PHRASES OF SPORT.

Falconry Furnished Many Expressive Idioms that Still Survive.

Will the time come when our great American sport of horse-racing lingers only in the phrases it has impressed on our language? Will it follow, after long years, that we shall have forgotten even their origin?

The sport of falconry has been so far declined that we no longer know "a hawk from a handsaw," meaning the falcon from its quarry, the hernshew or heron.

We do not remember that a man "towers" above his adversary, not from stature, but as a bird circles in readiness to strike. Or that to "mew up" is to confine as they were "mewed" through the molt. Or that "crabbed" is snappish, because an irritable tiercel "crabbed" his companion when he fought with it, or "crabbed" when he caught tidbits in the air as they were thrown to him. Or that "calling off" was originally teaching the hawk to abandon his game and return at a call to his "lure," the decorative bunch of feathers which he had learned to associate with his regular feed.

In an excellent ornithology I find a note that among hawks the female is one-third larger than the male, but it nowhere mentions that the word "falcon" is as feminine as "cow." The male is a "tiercel;" a bird taken young from the nest is an "eyas," and one captured when mature the bolder, faster, more unreliable hunter, the "haggard."—[Kansas City Times.

Joke Was on the Officers.

In one of the regiments the rats had become such a pest that the officers took drastic measures to get rid of them. An offer was made that to any of the boys twelve hours' liberty would be given every time they brought in a dead rat. One day a soldier came into headquaters with a demand for five day's liberty. "Five days' liberty? Where do you get that stuff?" they howled at him. He produced a paper sack which, on being opened, showed ten young rats which he had found in one nest. The joke was on the officers and the soldier got his liberty.—[Unidentified.

THROUGH THE WIDOW'S LORGNETTE.

The Husband or the Job?

BY HELEN ROWLAND.

"Needles and pins, needles and pins!" hummed the Widow, letting the cream-colored wedding invitation flutter airily to the floor, from her sparkling fingers, "When a girl marries—"

"Her holiday begins!" interpolated the Bachelor, with unexpected promptness.

The Widow lifted her delicately-arched eyebrows.

"My! What mental agility!" she commented admiringly. "Perhaps—'her holiday begins,'" she admitted. "But it's astonishing how few girls appear to be looking eagerly forward to marriage as a life holiday, in these strange and wonderful days."

"You don't say!" The Bachelor turned eyes of child-like wonder upon her. "I thought they ALL regarded it as a vacation—"

"Instead of as a vocation?" inquired the Widow, sweetly.

"Exactly," agreed the Bachelor. "As a means of solving woman's economic problems, by getting a man to shoulder them for her."

"Of course you did." The Widow's tone was all sympathy. "And you probably thought that all men regarded it as a sacrifice rather than as a sacrament, and as an ordeal rather than as an ideal—and all that antique sort of thing. Oh, well, you are only ten or fifteen years behind the times, Mr. Cutting. You'll catch up with the modern girl some day—when you come out of your cave!"

"I don't want to come out of my cave," protested the Bachelor, "if there are no more sweet, old-fashioned women!"

"Oh, there are still a few 'sweet old-fashioned' molluscs, and 'marriage-profiteers,' who look forward to their wedding day as the beginning of a long series of Saturday afternoons," the widow assured him, consolingly. "There are even a few business girls, who think that success in business consists in finding somebody who will take them out of it. But such types are becoming as scarce as good housemaids and rarer than aigrettes. When a girl marries, today—especially a business girl—she marries for a good reason, not just in order 'to marry.' When she gives up her work, her position, and her identity as 'Our Miss Jones,' just in order to become 'Mr. Smith's wife,' she thinks seriously about it, and she soon discovers that she is up against the biggest, most vital problem of her life. It isn't easy to decide between a laurel wreath and a wedding ring, between a desk and a dish pan, and between a pay envelope and a home."

"From the way they act, they must hate to think about it," mocked the bachelor with gentle irony. "They lead you into dimlit conservatories—just because they love to watch the flowers grow. They hang on your arm and your words, and gaze up at you with that 'Aren't you the grandest-thing-in-the-world!' expression, and crochet you Christmas gifts, and write you little violet-scented notes, and call you up in business hours, and all that—just to humor you, the dear unselfish little things! They don't want to marry——."

"Of course, they want to marry!" broke in the widow, sitting up perfectly straight, and regarding the bachelor with frank challenge. "Every normal girl wants to marry—at least, once. Life without marriage is like a play without a hero——

"Or a motor car without a carburetor——" suggested the bachelor.

"Or a novel without a love scene. Wedding bells, and trousseaus and honeymoons will never lose their siren lure for a woman's soul. They are the sweetest things on earth, and always will be. The neatness of a bachelor-girl-flat will never make up for the loneliness of it, a latch key will never take the place of a cradle, and independence, however sweet, will never be as sweet as love and companionship. A woman simply must have something to pet and mother and worry about—"

"And a husband is more amusing than a poodle dog," scoffed the bachelor.

"Infinitely," agreed the widow, without hestitation, "and gives one so much more to worry about."

"Then, where does the 'problem' come in?" inquired the bachelor, "why not just snap us up when you get the chance, and—be happy?" and he looked at the widow meaningly through the haze of his cigarette.

"We do—mostly," admitted the widow with a rueful smile, "It isn't until after the honeymoon, and after all the novelty of learning to keep house, and buying mahogany and collecting the silver, and all that, has worn off, that the girl lawyer, or writer, or artist, or stenographer, or milliner, or designer finds herself tragically facing her great problem—the problem of 'the job or the husband!'"

"Humph!" grunted the bachelor, scornfully, "should think she'd decide that, once and for all, before leading an unsuspecting fellow to the altar!"

"She does—or THINKS she does," the widow protested earnestly. "Either, she decided to sacrifice her job, and be an ideal wife and housekeeper—or she makes up her mind to hold onto her job, and be an ideal chum and helpmate. And, whichever she does, nine times out of ten she wishes she had done the other."

"In short, she reverts to type—and behaves just like a woman!" commented the bachelor, flipping the end of his cigarette into the fire.

"If she tries to hold onto her job," pursued the widow calmly," she loses half the sweetness of home and marriage—and sometimes loses her husband. And if she gives up her work, and tries to hold onto her husband, she loses her identity!"

"Well? What of that?" inquired the bachelor cheerfully. "She soon acquires another 'identity,' doesn't she?"

"A reflected glory!" exclaimed the widow scornfully, "but it isn't that, which really matters—it isn't passing from the limelight of public life into the obscurity of marriage. It's going from the exciting and stimulating atmosphere of work and achievement into the calm monotonous round of home-life, which makes her so restless. Always doing little things instead of big ones, always doing the same things in the same way, and never getting anywhere, never accomplishing—that's what just seems to smother and choke a progressive ambitious girl, after a few years, no matter HOW much she loves her husband! And yet—"

"And yet?" repeated the bachelor, as the widow hesitated.

"And yet" she declared, "It's better than being a squaw-wife!"

"A—what?"

"Oh, the kind of wife, that goes out and plants the garden and chops the wood, and digs up the potatoes, and then comes back to the tepee and makes the fire and grinds the corn and cooks the dinner, while Big-Chief-husband sits in front of the tent and grunts and smokes," explained the widow. "The kind of wife, who comes home, after a hard day at the office, and provides dinner and sweetness and light and music and beef-stew for—"

"But, what's the matter with Big Chief husband?" broke in the bachelor, indignantly, "can't he go fifty-fifty, on the job and the housekeeping, too?"

"He can," sighed the widow, "but marrying a successful business woman is so apt to weaken a man's backbone, and his muscles, and his sense of responsibility. He gets used to having her do things for him, somehow. He can tinker around a motor car or clean out the garage; but when it comes to mending the egg beater and washing the dishes, and marketing for dinner he seems so sort of helpless and pathetic. There OUGHT to be some kind of a fifty-fifty marriage for the business girl. We shall have to come to it, some day. The economic situation demands it; but as yet, I have never discovered one. It's awfully hard for a business girl to give up her success, and her own money, and her individuality—but it's harder still for her to give up marriage and love, and happiness and home, and children. It will simply HAVE to be fixed, one way or the other. No woman can serve two masters."

"And, in the final struggle, which 'master' do you think will win?" inquired the Bachelor, "the job or the husband?"

The Widow shrugged her shoulders, and washed her hands of the subject, as she pulled the tea wagon toward her and filled the Bachelor's cup.

"Ask me something easy," she remarked, dropping two lumps and a piece of lemon in the delicate golden brew. "Ask me to solve the mystery of 'The Lady or the Tiger?'"

WIDOW-CISMS.

A woman will spend six or seven days hunting for a hat, before she buys it; and a man will spend six or seven months hunting for one, after he buys it.

Indifference adds to a woman's charm as much as rouge—and is sometimes just as cleverly "put on."

Economizing on clothes, cabarets and cab fares never killed love—but economizing on kisses, compliments and conversation will starve it to death, in no time.

ROLPH'S INNINGS.

Didn't Stand on Ceremonies in The Presence of Royalty.

Speaking of history, I must not omit the Mayor's part in all this historical ceremonialism. And there is a special reason why I should think of him when I speak of history, for I have just heard the story of the retort Mrs. Rolph made to Mrs. Zoeth S. Eldredge when the latter introduced her late husband, author of that scholarly and monumental work, "The Beginnings of San Francisco," to the charming wife of Mayor Rolph.

"As you doubtless know," said Mrs. Eldredge to Mrs. Rolph, in making the presentation, "my husband writes history."

"My husband," said Mrs. Rolph "makes history."

But to return to the Mayor, His Honor had his principal innings with the King when he took him sightseeing over the city and then to the Olympic Club for a swim. Mayor Rolph is too democratic to bother with the forms of etiquette. He introduced the King right and left, upstairs in the dining room, downstairs in the steam room to naked athletes, in the elevator, everywhere. The breezy informality of it may be illustrated by the words with which Mayor Rolph made King Albert acquainted with that much-traveled jurist, Police Judge Timothy I. Fitzpatrick:

"King, meet Tim Fitzpatrick."

At times this was varied slightly, so as not to become too monotonous to the King. Thus when Rolph presented the head of the Musto-Keenan Company, he put it this way:

"King, shake hands with Clarence Musto. Musto is our leading marble man."

The King had the pleasure of meeting some of our most prominent handball players, steam room athletes and office-seekers, and being inured to surprises, never once faltered under the ordeal. The fact is, he enjoyed himself hugely at the Olympic Club, at the Orpheum and at Pavo Real, where he saw Fanchon and Marco at their best.—[Clubman in Oakland Enquirer.

The news that a blind man was able Tuesday to find his way into a protected den where a crap game is always in progress is enough to make the police uneasy. HOW TO SAVE A COUNTRY.

Everyone Should Have a Pet Washington Correspondent.

BY TOM MASSON,
Editor of "Life."

For many years now I have been trying to find out what is going on at Washington. I do not know why I do this. Any American citizen ought to know better. But still I keep on.

Among other things I have read all of the Washington correspondents. I have discovered that when these gentlemen agree, they are invariably wrong. When they disagree the one who is right denies it the following day. And by the time I have discovered which one of them is right, it is too late to do anything about it.

Most people who have any regard for their country would by this time have given up the whole affair and left the Washington correspondents alone to produce their various lines of fiction. Most people, I have no doubt, would have devoted their spare time to the batting averages or the latest moving-picture announcements.

But I am queer in this respect. I have developed a curiosity about Washington and I determined to get at the fatal truth no matter what it cost. And so, regardless of expense, I hired a Washington correspondent of my own—one who had declared that he was a live wire, had once campaigned with Bryan, and therefore knew the history of his country from the ground up.

I am convinced now that every one should have a pet Washington correspondent. It does not cost any more than keeping a couple of cars or wives, and, after all, it is a delightful sensation to know what is going on in administration circles. When you meet a friend, you can slap him on the back and tell him how many airplanes have been made in the last decade, and about how much gold is left in the Treasury Department after the last edition of the Congressional Record has been run off.

"Lansing," you can say, speaking of the Secretary of State, "is a prime chap—no end of quiet fun in him, if you get it out. And there's Marshall and Lane and dear old Tumulty and sprightly Harry Lodge—all pals of mine. My private line and personal correspondent are on the spot. I rather like Josephus, although I must say his wit is very dry. Diplomatic circles, you can go on, are rather quiet this week, but I look for progress soon. King Constantine of Greece had to retire last night with an ice bag on his chest, but is looking up this morning and able to face his landlady once more. The Crown Prince has struck for forty-four hours and triple overtime, and wants a couple of soviets to hang around his neck as a charm. Paderewski is learning to play the hand organ as a recreation from his cares of state. Clemenceau was in bed this morning at 1—he says he has to go to bed early now, there being a shortage of war in his vicinity—though not elsewhere. Messrs. Krasynoy Selo, Krasnoy Gorka and Peteroff are fixing the plumbing in Gen. Yudenitch's winter bungalow. The Queen of Madagascar has a new sport suit of alfalfa cloth trimmed with sharks' fins. Lloyd George has been presented with a suit of pajamas by the Maharajah of Swatville, and Gabriele D'Annunzio has just written a poem for the Fiume Weekly Eagle, which will appear next week at the top of the editorial column."

This is the kind of thing, if you can afford a pet Washington correspondent, that will give you class in your own home town, and when you stroll down Main street the boys will look upon you as the prize village oracle.

My Washington man reports as follows: Washington, November 5 (slightly delayed in transit by Mr. Burleson's miraculous machinery.)—The President's doctors called on me this morning to report progress. They had a fight on the lawn before they came in, between two specialists from Philadelphia, a bacteriologist from Oskosh, and a laryngologist from East St. Louis, but they finally tossed up and came to some sort of temporary agreement among themselves. "We find," said the ringleader, "that all is well at present. The President is in splendid condition and was able to glance over the last report from the Carnegie Foundation without any febrile symptoms. There is nothing on earth the matter with him that we couldn't cure if we knew how. On the whole, we believe everything will be all right, but to be on the safe side, and in view of the reports from the Weather Bureau, we have sent for a couple of veterinaries from Boston, a political economist from East Angel and a diagnostician from Harlem. When they arrive we will give you something more definite."

I then saw Col. House. He was very busy listening to Lord Grey when I entered, but his lordship was gracious enough to rise and leave at once.

"Now, colonel," I said, plunging into the heart of my subject, "with regard to this League of Nations we hear so much about, and know so little about, as I understand it, Clause 14 not only requires reciprocal confidence, but we must have some sort of international sanction in order that Borah and I can do the right thing by everybody. I may say that Hiram Johnson and Ham Lewis both back me up. Would you, under the circumstances, consent to the most favored nation plan—with due respect, of coruse, to Mr. Fitzpatrick and Mr. Foster?"

"Be that as it may!" replied the colonel with a bright smile.

"In case Turkey should secede from the Union," I went on, "and Shantung should be moved over to Texas, would you annex Mexico at once, or if we have battleships on hand at the moment, would Clause 10 be operative, always providing—" I paused to let my full meaning sink in—"always providing that the late Claude Kitchin and Ferdinand of Bulgaria will conduct the financial system and Sam Gompers has a chance to cut in on the remains"

"Um!" said the colonel significantly.

I then withdrew, as he was becoming hoarse, and interviewed the chairman of the Greens committee of the House, a man high up in official circles, who requested me to withhold his name until he could telegraph his mother-in-law. "I am able to report," he said, "that several important bills are now pending. I have succeeded in securing an appropriation for the filtration of the Missouri River. I couldn't get as much as I wanted—I believe only ten millions, but this is a fair start. For some time several of my constituents who live on the banks of the Missisipi have been greatly annoyed at the discoloration of that magnificent expanse of water. After an exhaustive analysis, by means of the superb intellects who volunteered their services, we were able to trace the trouble to the Missouri. We found that the Missouri emptied itself into the Mississippi. This great work is now going on."

"How about the budget?" I asked.

He fixed me with his luminous Congressional eye.

"What budget?" he asked sternly.

I realized that I had made a faux pas. But I plunged on regardless of anything. "The national budget," I stammered.

"Young man," he said, "I don't know why you ask me that." His voice trembled. "That," he said, "is something I cannot speak of—that concerns the nation at large." And then he burst into tears. I don't know why, but his emotion did not affect me. There are moments when you even fail to pity a Congressman.

"And say, old man," I went on, recklessly, "how about the high cost of living—how about the dear old public—how about this blooming country, anyway? Do you love it?"

"I do, I do," he murmured. "I would do anything for my country, if I had about twenty-five years more. But time presses; and that Missouri River waits for no man."

This afternoon the Senate sent for me. They are always bothering me for advice and I suspected it was the same old thing this time. When we had all got seated, Borah—dear old soul—getting as close to me as possible—who is really the modest man I ever possible exception of —said:

New Hair Will Start Growing Today!

A Powerful Secret for Hair-Root Developing. Also the New Way of Positively Removing Wrinkles by Refining the Texture of the Skin.

By Valeska Suratt.

WHEN the proper materials are used, it becomes really astonishing what results can be produced in the growth of hair, and in its invigoration. There is nothing so satisfying as to be able actually to see a difference in the length of your hair, and a very pronounced difference in its appearance inside of a very few weeks. There are many cases where hair has stopped falling in only a few days' time by the use of the simple formula given here. This invigorates the hair cells and has a very beneficial effect on the scalp tissue. The result is a vigorous hair growth. Get a one-ounce package of lotaquinol at the drug store for about fifty cents, and mix it with a half pint of water and a half pint of bay rum. If you prefer you can use a full pint of witchhazel instead of the water and bay rum. Try this, it will not fail.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

EXPECTANCY—It is by no means necessary to wait many months for the definite improvement of the complexion. You can beautify the surface wonderfully by the use of the following simple formula. By making it yourself you get a beautifier far richer than you get ready-made in the stores. The results, too, will be more satisfying. Mix with two tablespoonfuls of glycerine in a pint of water the contents of a one-ounce package of zintone, which can be procured at any drug store for about fifty cents. This will give the skin a spotless tint in a short time, and you will be proud of your [illegible] complexion.

MRS. C. G. N.—You will nearly always find that soap makes the hair brittle and the scalp dry. What every woman should use is an article such as eggol, which dissolves all oily secretions on hair and scalp and leaves the hair in splendid, vigorous condition. It is wonderful for dandruff. It cleans out the pores and lets your hair "breathe" and grow vigorously. A teaspoonful of eggol in a half cup of water cannot be equaled as a head-wash. Enough for twelve shampoos or more can be obtained from a twenty-five cent package of eggol.

EMBARRASSED—You should never use anything which will irritate the skin while removing superfluous hair. Removing superfluous hairs now becomes a pleasure instead of a real dread if you will just moisten the hairs with a little sulfo solution which can be obtained from your druggist for one dollar. It leaves the skin as smooth, white and soft as before. There is no reddening or irritating, and it never fails to remove the most obstinate hairs with perfect ease. It is as pleasant to use as a lotion.

DESPERATE—You will make yourself look years younger if you will follow this suggestion. This formula makes the skin texture finer, it makes it firm and more plump in this way, and as a result, in a few days you see a very marked difference in your appearance. Wrinkles will seem to vanish. You will realize quickly that you have found a remarkably effective wrinkle secret, and tell your friends. Get from your druggist for about fifty cents a two-ounce package of eptol and mix with a tablespoonful of glycerine in a half pint of water. Use this cream liberally and often.

• • •

BLACKHEADS—Get from your druggist a package of neroxin, for about fifty cents, and sprinkle a little of it on a wet cloth and rub this on the blackheads. You will find they will disappear in a few moments almost magically.

• • •

MRS. G. F. D.—The best and finest face powder it is possible to get is called "Fresca Beauty Powder" which any druggist can supply you in white, flesh or brunette, for fifty cents. It far surpasses many imported products.

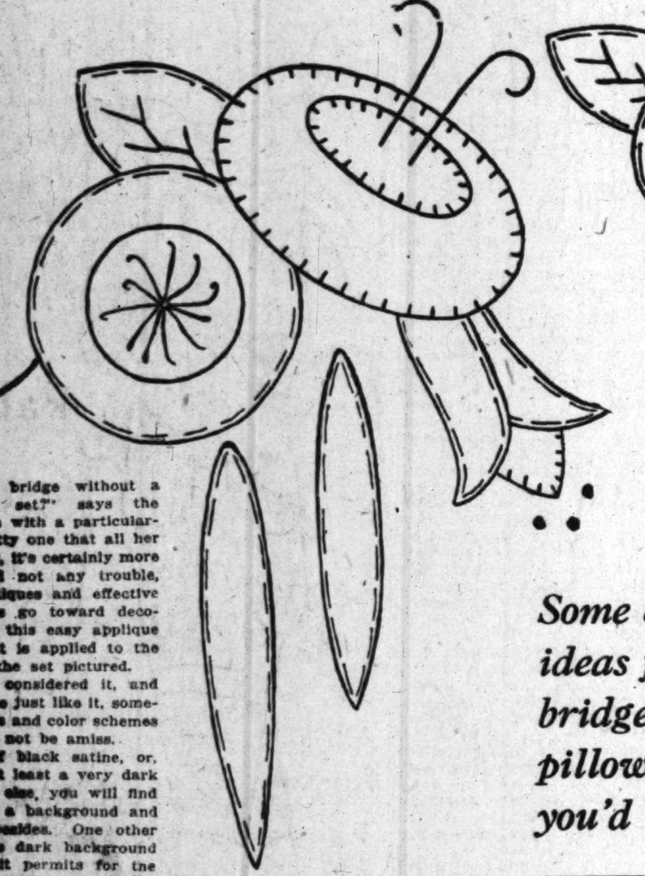
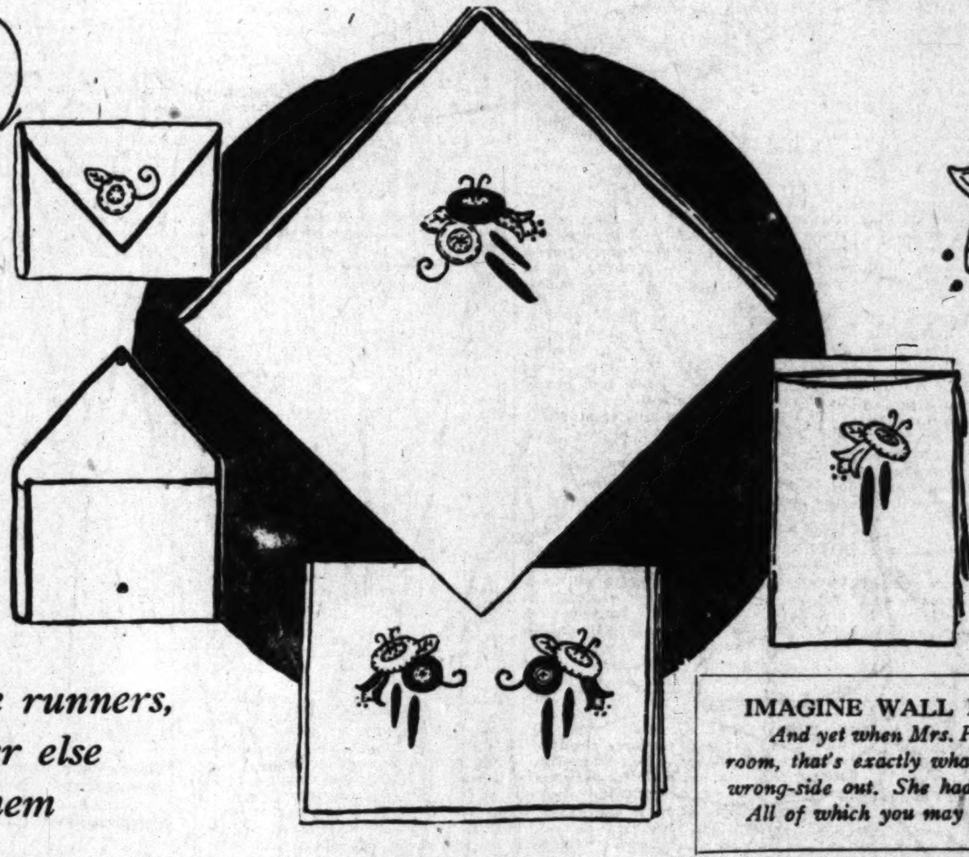
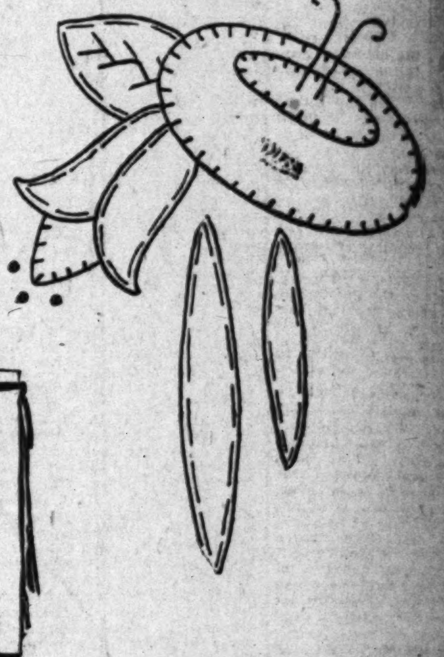
FOR THE INDUSTRIOUS NEEDLEWOMAN

BY ADELAIDE BYRD

WITH SCISSORS AND NEEDLE







Some easy applique ideas for the bridge set, for table runners, pillows, or wherever else you'd like to put them

"WHAT'S bridge without a bridge set?" says the woman with a particularly pretty one that all her guests admire. Well, it's certainly more jolly with one, and not any trouble, either, if vivid appliques and effective big colorful stitches go toward decorating it. Consider this easy applique idea and the way it is applied to the various articles of the set pictured.

And now, having considered it, and probably wanting one just like it, something about materials and color schemes and so forth, might not be amiss.

A good quality of black satine, or, if not black, then at least a very dark shade of something else, you will find good to look at as a background and ever so practical besides. One other advantage about the dark background is the color scope it permits for the appliques. Which appliques you will make of satine, likewise, or of felt or heavy silk, and which you will further treat to either heavy silk or wool stitchery.

If you choose to cut the design out of satine or pure silk, then the wool embroidery is suggested for the sake of contrast. If you prefer to make them of felt, then heavy silk embroidery makes the better choice, for the same reason—contrast.

The motifs you will cut directly from the page, using them patternwise. Lest, tho, you have difficulty in assembling them after they are separated, you might place the entire design down on your background first, and gauge your distances with the help of pins. Otherwise, take the smaller drawings as models, and arrange the separate pieces accordingly.

You will note that the largest design is used once on the corner of the table cover, the smaller ones on the flap of the playing-card envelope, and again on the front of the score pad. You will note, too, that an "extra" use of this fetching applique idea is suggested in a runner, where the biggest design is placed twice at each end.

Following the usual scheme of nature, you might make the leaves in a bright leaf green, stitching the stem and stamens in a matching green. Then the posies might be purple with yellow center, and rose with yellow center, and the remainder of the stitching black, for a dash of "nouveau art." Or you might try out an autumn scheme, using autumn-leaf brown with red stitching in the leaves, a yellow-green for stems and stamens, a marigold with center and stitching of a deeper shade, and a purple with yellow center for the flowers.

That very effective puckery effect of the centers results when you pleat your applique into position. Remember, tho, to allow for that pleating when you do the cutting.

And that is quite all that you need to be told about these cheerful little cut-outs, so easy of accomplishment are they.

IMAGINE WALL PAPER WRONG-SIDE OUT!

And yet when Mrs. Paynter started to transform her living-room, that's exactly what she did first, put the wall paper on wrong-side out. She had excellent reasons for doing so.

All of which you may read about on this page next Sunday.

The Covers in Your Bedroom

FOR bureau covers, covers for bedside tables, dressing table covers and all the sorts of covers which your bedroom furniture requires, use either organdie, swiss or voile. When the price of linen is so prohibitive as it is now, it is a comfort to know that these materials are even prettier than linen.

Always have all your covers match. Suppose you have a room in which there is walnut furniture and a rug in which you have a number of colors and you do not know which shade to use for the covers. Well, a blue, if it is brilliant enough, a bright yellow or rose would all be eligible for the chosen color. Voiles or swisses dotted with the chosen color or organdies would require merely narrow hems put in by hand. The telling power of them lies in their color, not in the needlework.

If you have gray furniture, chose either orange, greenish blue (peacock) or a rose with enough gray in it to make it go successfully with the furniture. Of course, you will have to be guided as to your choice by the colors in your rug so they will not clash.

With mahogany, yellow-dotted swiss covers finished with a narrow edge of yellow moire ribbon go beautifully.

With white furniture a number of colors may be used very well. There is delft blue, pink, rose and cerise. Can you see how bright a room furnished in white furnitrue with cerise covers would be?

If you happen to be one of the few lucky people who have a bedroom set painted in heliotrope, get pale blue organdie covers if you would have a perfect dream of a room.

Of course, if you are a very industrious needlewoman, you can use hemstitching, grosgrain or moire ribbon, tattings or narrow filet edges to finish these covers, but be sure that they do not detract from the color scheme. If you use lace, for instance, dye it to match the color of the scarfs. Of course, you could use white laces on the dotted swiss covers.

Don't you just long to get at your bedroom and make it over, simply by choosing the right color for the covers?

The Dress Up the Tailored Suit

THERE are times when the tailored suit seems not quite "dressy" enough and immediately we begin to wish we had not bought a tailored suit!

Do not feel that way about it, for tho the ways to make the tailored suit successfully look the part of the dress-up suit are very few, still there is one very good way which is probably the most effective way and it can be applied temporarily. It is the neck-touch.

Just as the stock collar labels the suit "strictly for business," so the satin collar of the sort shortly to be described labels it for dress-up wear.

The shops reveal a number of these collars. They are black satin and fit tightly around the neck with two smart ends which are only long enough to stick out straight in affectation of a bow and after the fashion of the small fur scarfs.

The piece which goes around the neck is as wide as the neck is high, of course. It widens out towards the ends. There is a satin bound slit near one end to slip the other end thru. The ends, by the way, are cut slant. Line the whole with white satin and allow it to show just the tiniest bit on the right side as a finish.

About the top of the piece which just fits around the neck have some royal blue ostrich. It need not be very thick, but it should be curled. When worn on a tailored suit or any other wrap upon which it will fit, this style of collar lends an air of chic.

If you have quite a good deal of ostrich in short pieces, you can use all of it effectively to make another sort of neckpiece which also would add the dress-up touch to your tailored suit. Fasten the flat pieces of ostrich together crosswise until they form a piece long enough to reach around the neck and to the tops of the coat lapels. Build it up close to the neck by using shirred satin of the color of the suit. Finish the ends of this neckpiece with flat bows as long as the scarf is wide, applied crosswise. The effect is very satisfying.

A Gift the School Child Can Make

A GIFT which will be most acceptable to child or grown-up is a painted ruler, and the school child can easily "make" it. Buy whatever sort of ruler you wish to use and then with regular oil paint, cover the ruler up to the little incline upon which are the figures with black paint. Then draw whatever little design upon the ruler, at intervals, that you wish. Three little triangles inside each other in old blue would look well. Or, you might make three lit rectangles inside each other, one of gold, one of a yellow-green and one of red—an old rose red.

Or you might like to draw little flowers on it. It need not be an elaborate design, you know. It should simply be colorful. You could use jade green, royal blue or Chinese red for these flowers. Purple works up well also. If you wish this gift to be thoroly appreciated, give it to some one who has a cretonne desk set.

PHILOSOPHY OF THE LACE CURTAIN

WHAT a beautiful thing a lace curtain really is if suited to the character of the room and the type of the window we have draped it with! But what a pitiable excuse of a curtain this very same "beautiful thing" has become since we have swung around to the barren simplicity of the curtain in vogue. For there is a simplicity which is artistic as there is one which is its decided reverse, as you shall see.

We all know "just the plain window curtain." We do not recognize any more the existence of a lace curtain. Let us be perfectly honest about our feelings. A lace curtain in the common acceptance of the word has become anathema to most of the minds of the housewives. Particularly is this the case with the Nottingham. If a woman wishes to give a particuarly bad name to a curtain she calls it a Nottingham. But a Nottingham stands really for more than its name. If, like all that is human, it has committed errors against good taste, or if it did not come up to the mark of its own high standard we ought to remember a few things. One of these facts is that these immense cabbage rose patterns we have objected to so violently and with every right under the sun, were the exact imitation of those designs worked into the genuine Dresden and Swiss curtain, costing hundreds of dollars and decorating the windows of the most exclusive homes. We must also take into consideration that the Nottingham stands almost for every machine-made curtain in the United States and in other countries.

The final product of the lace curtain industry is worth while knowing. For it is the result of the highest class of workmanship a weaver can produce. And to be a skilled weaver takes time, patience and natural talent. This new kind of a lace curtain represents the realization of the dream of talented designers, the outcome of study from many clever brains. It represents high ideals and ambitious aims of all these men combined. It is not the objectionable Nottingham any more. That one has passed out of the realm of things that are. It has developed into the American, with its wonderful varieties of a thousand patterns, weaves and character.

Personally, I would rather hang up a good American machine made in the very best of homes than a real heavy imported lace curtain with its pretentious richness. To my mind those costly genuine lace curtains have their own distinctive place of fitness and that is one of great scarcity. Usually such a curtain jumps into your eye and makes you forget that you are primarily in a home for your personal comfort and not because you like signs of your financial success displayed.

You want a curtain because it gives you privacy and also because it makes a bare window less distasteful. That is why a curtain ought to form part of the room, not a thing apart from it. Once we have learned this lesson we shall have taken a long stride toward beautifying our homes and appreciating what the lace industries are trying to do for us. And for those who are anxious to have better homes I shall quote a few of those many varieties.

There is the filet curtain, plain, dotted, striped, bordered, with allover lace patterns and perfectly sheer. It comes in coarse, medium and fine texture, by the yard or lace material, and in a well-finished ready-made curtain. Nothing could be tidier, better made, than the latter, with its trim edge of cluny and doubled hem meant to last forever.

Next comes a curtain with shadowy background, softness of texture and attractive natural designs in bird, flower and plant motifs. This is the curtain for the woman with a decided preference for an artistic and fine curtain.

Follows next a curtain with a strong and clear filet and consequently characteristic designs.

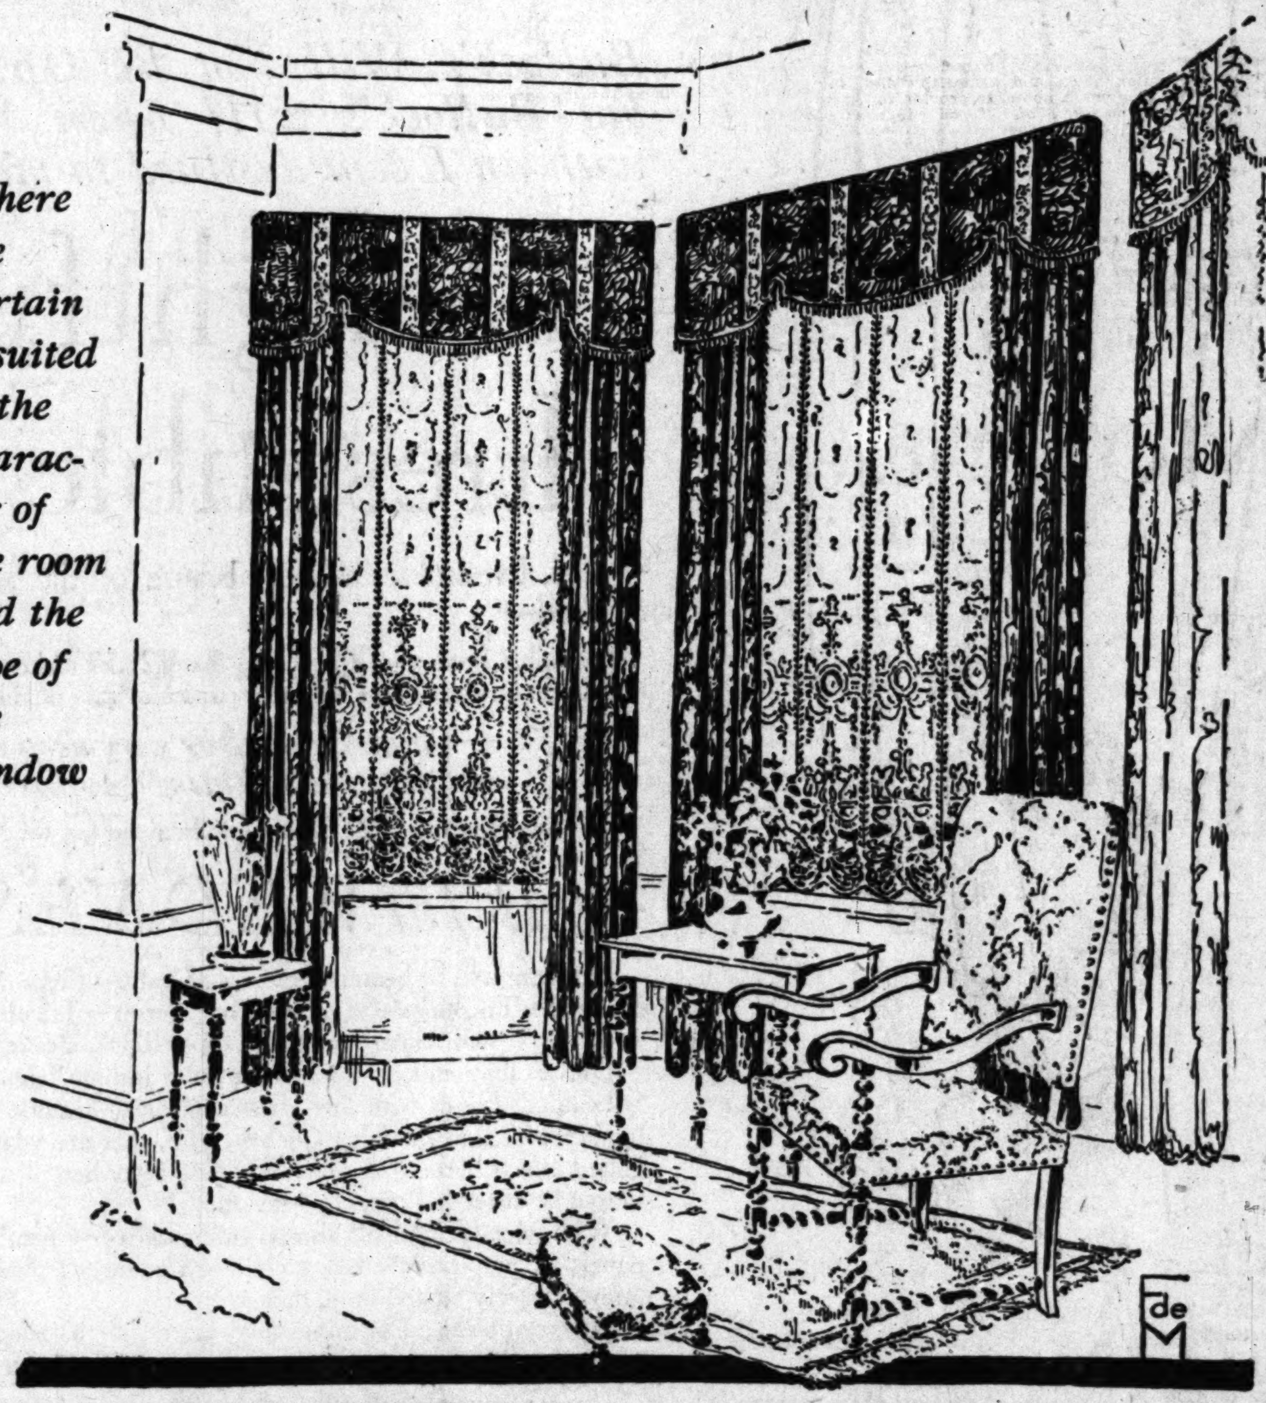
And not to forget the bobinet, the old standby, with its octagonal mesh and its lacey appearance.

And finally there is the lever-machine curtain, different from all the others thru its strong resemblance to the lace we are wearing for our personal use. There the design differs again from all others, owing to the character of the weave, mostly medium and appealing to the feminine sense of all that is delicate and pretty.

For the practical-minded woman there is the curtain which must appeal directly to her idea of a simple and yet decorative curtain. That is a curtain which may be cut any width, woven in intersections which allow dividing without destroying the pattern. Furthermore, it needs very little fullness, if any at all, for its design is mostly in architectural lines. And that means economy of material.

And, lest we forget, there is the daylight curtain. A curtain which may be rolled up, out of sight, dust, rain and what not, and yet appears unruffled and smooth when you wish to shield yourself against the sunlight. It really is nothing more or less than a panel curtain on rollers, which will look very attractive against the dark roller shade.

Windows form a most important part of our homes, and the material which covers them either improves them or destroys their appearance. They may be transformed into something beautiful, even if their architecture is not, simply by draping them with transparent and well-designed curtains.



Where the curtain is suited to the character of the room and the type of the window

A Pincushion That Is a Joy Forever!

IF ONE can believe that a thing of beauty is a joy forever, then one will find this doll pincushion a joy indeed!

You have seen those dolls, which one cay buy in almost any needlework department of any large store, with the wire frame bodies, haven't you? And you have seen how they have been covered so that they look like dear little old-fashioned ladies, with hoop skirts, only to masquerade as lamp shades?

Well, they can be put to another use. Cover the frame with several thicknesses of wool wadding—say about six. Then proceed to drape the doll.

If you have some of an old Persian taffeta sash remaining, use that for her skirt. Or you can use a plain taffeta. Use the color which you have used elsewhere in your room. Trim it with festoons of lace—[illegible] narrow cream or gilt. Use the same lace to make the little bodice by gathering it on a foundation of the taffeta. Give her flowing sleeves of taffeta with lace-trimmed edges, and then Milady Doll is all ready to have your pins stuck into her skirt!

This pincushion is one which will accommodate hat pins as [illegible] as smaller ones, and it is one which you will never want to hide. Instead, you may want to use it to hide some practical but unbeautiful member of your dressing table—as, for instance, a jar of cold cream. Well, simply set the little doll lady over it and she will very perfectly hide it from view.

Woman's Love Compels Man to Excel in Life's Work.

By Jane Dixon.

A man's talents.

The woman who makes or mars them.

What part does a woman play in the drama of delivery, in the crys-[...]ation, the propagation, the ripening and harvesting of the talents of [...]?

Some part she must play.

The irrevocable touch of sex must color, must shade and shadow all [...]man creation.

In all the world there is no prismic glow so subtle, so strong, so steady as the inner fires of sex. Sex is Nature. Nature rules the world.

You are a woman.

Which of the six colors of the spectrum do you reflect on the work of the man with whom you have chosen to mate?

Is it the bright, the ecstatic rose of hope; the clear cerulean blue of truth, the verdant green of an ever returning spring of fair promise?

Or is it that other and consuming color, that flaunting crimson hot orange, sultry yellow, dull purple fluttering its death message on the closed doors of arid ambition?

Is the man you love, the man with whom you are [...]ing the tangled maze of earth's pathways better or worse for having [...] you?

A solemn question.

In its answer rests the weight of a human scale; whether the scale shall be filled with the priceless gems of talents multiplied and multi[plied] again, or "faked" with the useless dross of wasted wanton effort.

If you, a woman, are eager to know in a purely abstract way how [muc]h you mean to man in his work you can not do better than to sit you [down] some rainy brooding afternoon and read, cover to cover, "A Woman's [Man]."

The book is a novel, a ruthless analysis, a vivisection of an artist who [...]es his talents on the eternal quest of evanescent woman.

To quote from the frontispiece:

"At the outset of his career De Vaucourt is possessed by purer ambi[tions]. Throughout his life, by fits and starts, they reassert themselves, [on]ly to be engulfed and eventually perish by reason of his eternal in[...]tion.

"[T]orn between his passion for art [and] his obsession for women, vain, [wea]k and weak, De Vaucourt is in [stron]g contrast with the figure of [Berna]dette, his wife, a beautiful [Madon]na-like presence whose exist[ence] is a joy and who comes into [the st]ory like a scent of lavender in [old g]ardens."

[Thi]s "diabolically clever" study of [the h]uman spirit, a man-spirit dis[...]ed and gorged out of all sem[blanc]e to humanity by continual [feed]ing on self, was written by a [woman].

[Th]e name of the author is Miss [Marj]orie Patterson.

[Mi]ss Marjorie Patterson, in her [early] twenties. How can she have [plumb]ed the depths of sacrificial [love o]f woman, the lengths to [which] the selfishness, the egotism [of art]istic phantasy can fall?

[I as]ked her.

[The] culprit smiled. She pushed [back] the curls of her bright red [hair—r]ed, mind you, not Titian. [Her cr]own of flame is clipped short. [It is] rebellious like the shock of [a sma]ll boy. From beneath the [...] it her dark eyes are as changeful in their moods as the coat of a chameleon cast upon a square of plaid. Brackish intellectuality is lost in buoyant health, in the fragrant charm of the intensely feminine. Marjorie Patterson is a woman, a student of life, a mental magnet with a capacity for hard work. It is this capacity, coupled with an unerring feminine instinct, that has brought her to the gates of success.

"How did I learn so much of life?" she echoed. "Experience and observation. They are the only true teachers. Live and learn; see and learn."

Miss Patterson, it develops, is a real cosmopolite. In loyalty she is 100 per cent. American, one might even say 100 per cent. plus. She is very proud of having been born a Baltimorean, and is firm in her conviction Maryland is the first State in the Union.

And she has managed to keep this loyalty untarnished through a long period of absence beginning away back in earliest school days, which were spent in France, and extending on down athwart a theatrical career of distinction in London.

"I've lived here, there and everywhere—for a little while," confesses the American gypsy-authoress. "I even tried the desert of Sahara, camped there for a winter. A strange place. All places are strange. When they stop being strange I stop stopping in them. Except, of course, my home. Home to me means Woodland House, Delhi, N. Y. My grandmother lived here, and my mother, so you see it is really home in the sweetest and tenderest sense of the word."

"Do you believe, as you have written in "A Woman's Man," a woman can make a man, or unalterably mar him?" I asked.

"I believe just that," was the answer given in the deep voice of conviction. "I have seen it done, both ways, any number of times. So have you if you will take the trouble to search out your pages of observation, the causes and effects registered there.

"What I write of De Vaucourt, the artist, in my book, is true of every man, in his way. A stonemason is a better mason for the influence of the right woman."

I quoted a passage from Miss Patterson's story:

"The completion of the artist is through love, reciprocated love. The artist is made by the woman who loves him. She may be ignorant, tongue tied, dumb to beauty, but if she loves wholeheartedly enough she will teach her lover all he will ever know of his art. This sounds like sentimental cant to you. You'll find out some day that a woman, when she is loved by you and loves you, knows how to say even, 'Good-by, I'll see you tomorrow,' in such words as to set your brain ringing with poetry all night. Why? Because what she says rings true. She speaks from the heart."

"Is the same thing true of a man out of the artistic sphere?" I questioned. "Does the love of true-hearted woman help a broker to know more of his market?"

Miss Patterson shook her coppery curls affirmatively.

"Surely," she said, "it helps a broker to know more of his market. It teaches a bank teller the quickest and surest way to total his figures. It shows a shoemaker how best to make his shoes. The love of a woman, the right woman, is the open sesame to man success."

"And the wrong woman, the sensualist, the materialist in love, what of her?" I urged. "Does she stultify talent, dissipate ability?"

Miss Patterson pointed out to me another excerpt from her book. It had to do with the wrong woman of the story.

"Little by little she took from him all that once was his, all he ever had worth the taking. She took the faith of his youth from him, his high ideal of art, she clipped the wings of his spirit, she sapped him body and soul and fired him with unwholesome fires, with an unholy and consuming flame. For her sake he strove after popularity rather than self-expression; for her sake he wrote for money—and to write more grossly, more in the popular vein, more as Mammon dictates, he drank.

"He lost his birthright for her sake—his home and all the ties that bound him there, and insistently kept tugging at his heart, he broke . . . . Into her hands he surrendered his soul."

The young woman author stopped. She shook her head slowly, this time negatively.

"What happened to De Vaucourt happens to every man who thinks to safeguard his work in the claws of the tiger," she continued. "Unholy love, love with its roots implanted in the things of the flesh, is as unhealthy, as poisonous, as destructive as the parasite plant of the tropics that flares for a day in hectic brilliancy and tomorrow is a stark and ugly skeleton, its tendrils entwined tenaciously around the trunk it would crush." How many a De Vaucourt is today shambling along in the wreck of his own possibilities, snatching at the hem of a skirt, the ghost of a painted smile, the curve of a sauve shoulder, a promise in pagan eyes? The lotus lover, the man who drifts fatuously on the tide of desire, of passion, of torrid infatuation, is a weakling, a spineless nobody, a vain and silly fool, who sooner than he thinks will reap the fool's recompense.

"I have heard a lot of empty chatter about marriage interfering with the career of a man," remarked Miss Patterson. "An artist, for instance; an actor, a musician appeals more romantically to his public, more especially his woman public, if he remains a possibility as a lover.

"This is, of course, the crassest sort of pose. I have no sympathy with the man who uses his art, his work, as an excuse for his own vainglorious self, his fleshly whims and inflated egotism."

I bethought me of another of Miss Patterson's expressions, via the novel:—

"There is good stuff in that brain of yours; it is going to waste. What you need is some one to bring the best out of you—a woman who believes in you.

"Your affair is a wife, the right wife necessarily, to keep you to regular hours and a healthy diet, to give you a home, to provide for and to be proud of. If you had a wife and children you would find yourself. You are no Baudelaire, my poor boy, no Bacchic genius, you will never create masterpieces on alcohol and the aphrodisiac regime.

Pshaw, marriage will not hurt your genius. It did not hurt Dante's. He had a wife, so had most of the great men of the Middle Ages. They were all married except Michelangelo and a very few others, mostly monks. The best work is done in the solidarity of family life."

You are a woman.

You are in or hope to some day be in the solidarity of married life. If you hope otherwise you are not worthy the name of woman.

What are you playing, will you play, in the great man-drama of creation?

Are you a spur to the ambition, the work, of your man-mate, or are you a sponge?

A question worth answering. Some day at the final accounting of all things, you must answer whether you will or no.

Bernadette, the wife of Miss Patterson's "Woman's Man," knew the real answer.

LINCOLN AND DAVIS.

Numerous Coincidences in Their Lives Noted.

The recent encampment of the United Confederate Veterans at Atlanta, Ga., prompted the Atlanta Constitution to publish the following article:

Remarkably numerous were the coincidences in the lives of Jefferson Davis, first and only President of the Confederate States of America, and Abraham Lincoln, sixteenth and mârtyr President of the United States of America.

Mr. Davis and Mr. Lincoln were born within a year of each other—1808 and 1809—the President of the Confederacy being one year older than the President of the Union. They were born in adjoining counties in Kentucky and both removed from their native State about the same time, while quite young. Mr. Lincoln went from Kentucky to Illinois, while Mr. Davis went to Mississippi.

In young manhood Mr. Lincoln made law his profession, while Mr. Davis entered West Point. When the Black War came on in 1832, Mr. Davis was second lieutenant in the Regular Army, while Mr. Lincoln, as captain, led a company of volunteers he had raised in Illinois for that war.

After the Black Hawk War Mr. Davis and Mr. Lincoln began their political careers in the same year, each in his own State. That year Mr. Lincoln was a Presidential elector for Henry Clay, the Whig candidate, while Mr. Davis was a President elector for Polk, the Democratic candidate. Polk won, and that brought Mr. Davis of Mississippi, into political prominence. Mr. Lincoln, in his adopted State, continued a power to be reckoned with. Mr. Davis was elected to Congress in 1845 and Mr. Lincoln was elected a year later.

Mr. Lincoln was elected President of the United States in November, 1860, and was inaugurated in March, 1861, while Mr. Davis was elected President of the Confederacy in February, 1861, after six Southern States had adopted ordinances of secession, and was inducted into office at Montgomery the same month. Both served a full term of four years and both were re-elected for a second term, but neither filled out the second term, President Lincoln being assassinated in April after his second inauguration, while President Davis found himself without a government that same month.

At various times during their lives the two Presidents wore the same kind of whiskers. Mr. Lincoln was the first President of the United States to wear a full beard. Mr. Davis's last picture shows him wearing a full beard. At times both went clean shaven, as is shown by old photographs. There are also photographs showing each with a mustache only.

Both Presidents lost a son by death while occupying the Washington and Richmond mansions.

FOREST PRODUCTS ARE WASTED.

Mr. Buys, Forest Commissioner for Dutch East Indian Government, is not the first visitor to be impressed unfavorably by the apparent waste of our forest products. Forestry experts from foreign lands and tourists observing our methods have long deplored them, and have not failed to compare them unfavorably to the more careful systems in effect in other countries. We must, it is true, admit that there is some reason for this criticism. Our forest fires have been very costly, if not for us, for future generations. They will have to pay the bill, unless, as is not an impossible outcome, the various substitutes for lumber fill the construction gap caused by forest fires.

All of our critics, however, overlook one essential factor when they complain of our waste—the cost of labor. Mr. Buys, unconsciously, we think, makes plain the reason for the economy exercised in the forests of Java when he says that labor may be had abundantly there for 14 cents a day. At 14 cents a day the labor required for the utilization of all forest products is easily available. But at $5 and $6 a day, it is not possible to put men to work salvaging waste which will pay no proportionate return. A very good illustration of this point is the firewood that is abundantly rotting in the forests all around Seattle. In any European or Asiatic country such forests would be picked clean; but we know as a matter of experience that this wood, which may be had, in many instances, for nothing in the forest, cannot be laid down in our basement except at a cost which is nearly prohibitive. As a result it rots, while we are paying, with much complaint, high prices for coal.

Waste is an inevitable outcome of a high standard of living. A high standard of living means an economy of labor and a waste of material, because it is impossible to pay the wages which support the standard of living to utilize the economies. Economy involves slow and painstaking labor, and the standards of living which prevail in this country do not permit of this sort of labor. If we had labor at 14 cents a day, as Mr. Buys says they have in Java, firewood would be plentiful and cheap in Seattle; logging operations would be carried on with a watchful eye to details, and all that is now waste would be turned to a profit.

The American businessman is just as keen as any to see any saving and to utilize every possibility for making profit. Our packers have demonstrated this, and it has been shown in other industries. But where material cannot not be utilized at a profit, it is allowed to waste, and that is the condition in our forests, on our farms and in our mines. No doubt we will come to economizing in time, but not so long as our present standards of living prevails.—[Seattle Post-Intelegencer.

Birds and Men.

At the convention in Louisville of the International Association of Game, Fish and Conservation Commissioners it was suggested that the United States and Mexico adopt joint legislation for the protection of migratory game birds. This meets with our favor, but we would suggest that the treaty also include migratory Americans.—[Chicago Evening Post.

AND WHAT OF THE MODERNS?

BY JEANNE REDMAN.

If we of Los Angeles desire to make our city a music center, we must strive to attract the living composers, and we must demand so-called novelties for our orchestras. No matter how much we may love the classics, we must turn our faces toward the early dawn of this rebirth, and welcome, not stupidly or overexultantly, but welcome nonetheless this new great adventure in music. To say that modern music has, until now, been able to equal the classical composers would be ridiculous, and, per contra, to insist that we should wait to hear it until it has equalled them, is even more fatuous. By modern music I mean the music which is the development and evolution of the preponderating dissonance, as distinguished from the Italian school, whose immoderately overbalanced melody only serves to build up an edifice of saccharine sound, mind-lulling and emotion-attacking—an episodic illustration in sound, whose primitive appeal neither teaches nor elevates.

Beethoven, Mozart, Bach are neither the one nor the other. They make use of melody as a calm interregnum in an architectural structure, as a peaceful concord after the warlike interlay of counterpoint or homophony, and when we arrive at these oases of melody we feel a complete let-down, a permeating satisfaction, a happy ending, to use a literary term.

Their music is great because it is like life, seen by an omniscient impersonal mind to have no desire to glow over its struggles nor prolong its gentle moments. He sets it down as it is, never, however, losing sight of the perfection of the fundamental concord underlying all things, and this constant and ever-present preoccupation to construct compose, weld into a oneness of form every note, phrase and movement he handles is the ultimate perfection of man's ability.

This complete and final building of sound into an ensemble is what we can never surpass nor change, but the materials with which the building is made have changed and are changing.

EMOTIONAL CHANGE.

What used to be strange and unusual combinations of notes or instruments now sound almost hackneyed. What once brought an audience upright in their seats by its intriguing juxtaposition, now, through years of familiarity, lulls it into a light slumber. In other words, the minds and emotions of today demand a greater stimulation, and a more subtle and complex one than any fortissimo can produce or any unforeseen tempo changes and runs from bass to treble can give.

The artist, being as ever the first to scent the natural shifting of values, is impelled by his native genius to answer these needs. He is no longer purely lachrymose, he strives not to juggle with the musical conventions nor melodic banalities. He writes music that he conceives to be not only stirring to his imagination but which thrills to frenzied action his mind. He tortures himself with successions of discords, he imitates the elements by a fairy interpretation, he shadows forth the apparent waywardness and chaos of life's surface manifestations. But all the time he holds ever to the thread of continuity which relates his phrases, his motives, his inspirations. And withal he is building anew the structure of the masses, he is remaking the race after a different heart's desire.

Granted, he makes mistakes, false starts, he sometimes topples over scaffolding, but block by block, and driven by an unfathomable destiny, he is putting in place a new story for future generations upon the solid and indestructible pile of tradition. He is merely the tool of an epoch. He is inevitable. He is of ourselves, for he is expressing us, and although we may deny it, he is the pulse of his generation, and radiantly alive. His work is unfamiliar, and hence regarded with suspicion, but has any man with a message been understood?

We cannot avoid the tendency and drift of the moderns, for we are part of it, and to turn our backs on such a nucleus of a new plane of emotion is to admit to ourselves and to the world that our youth, which is simply an enthusiasm for life, has withered and left us a prey to the drabness of chronic self-satisfaction.

BULLET SHARPENS MAN'S MENTALITY.

Among the many interesting travelers who touched at Honolulu recently on the Royal Mail liner Makura none was more so than Capt. H. G. Nobbs of Toronto, who with his wife, two children and nurse, is bound for the Orient to establish a branch headquarters for his business.

Capt. Nobbs, now retired, is totally blind as the result of a wound received on the French front while he was a member of the Canadian Overseas Force. He was shot through the head by a bullet, the missile entering the right eye, completely severing the optic nerve. For two days he lay in a shellhole and finally was picked up by the Germans and operated on by German army physicians. Specialists who have since examined Capt. Nobbs pay high tribute to the skill of the Teuton surgeons and declare that the officer owes his life to the remarkable operation.

The oddest part of it is that in some unknown manner the injury has sharpened Capt. Nobbs's mathematical faculties to a remarkable degree and on the trip from Vancouver he entertained his fellow passengers by doing unusually difficult problems in mental arithmetic without the slightest hesitation or error.—[Pacific Commercial Advertiser.

THE LIMIT.

He strolled leisurely into one of those serve-me-quickly - for-I'm-in-a-beastly-hurry-don't-you-know restaurants the other day and sat in a corner, like the good little boy in the fable.

He was poor but proud and signalinv a faitress he surreptitiously showed her his worthy wealth, amountinp to four pence halfpenny, and asked her to supply him with the best possible dinner for the money.

The result was a hash of sausage and mash. While busy making inquiries as to the health of the pig that didn't provide the pork, he found himself trying to manipulate a piece of wood that got wedged in his biting apparatus and he called the waitress.

"I say, miss," he said, looking sadly at the remainder of the meal, "I don't mind the dog, but I certainly bar the kennel."—[Tit-Bits.

On Same Mission.

A Logansport minister was on his way to fill the pulpit of a church in Terre Haute a few weeks ago, and happened to overhear a prize fighter, occupying the seat in the train just in front of him, remark to his companion:

"I am going to Terre Haute to knock h—— out of ——."

The Presbyterian minister became interested and said to the pugilist: "Why, that is just the very thing I am going for."

"Why, you're not a prize fighter, are you?"

"No, I am a minister," was the reply, "but my business is to knock h—— out of people, and that is just what I am going to Terre Haute for."—[Indianapolis News.

HOW TO MAKE OVER FURS.

They Can Be Cleaned, Repaired, Dyed and Remodeled at Home—Every Little Scrap is Useful for Patching, or for Trimming Hats and Gowns.

[Any information regarding things illustrated or described on this page gladly given. Suggestions from readers are always welcome. Address all communications for this department to Retta Badger, The Times, Los Angeles.]

There is nothing deep, dark or mysterious about the making and alteration of furs, and many a job may be neatly done at home, with practically no expense, which no furrier would attempt for any moderate sum.

It would be idle to say that furs are easy to remodel. They are not for many reasons; the cleaning, tinting, stretching, etc., are rather hard and "messy;" the sewing, though not slow, is tiresome to the fingers, and the cutting with a knife is a trifle awkward for women, who are vastly more at home with the scissors.

But the saving is great enough to repay the effort and I have known many a job turned out in workman-like manner. One cape was altered a little, and satisfactorily relined at an expense of $2, for which a furrier had wanted $25; and I have actually known two women who cut over and remade seal-skin coats, but this requires great patience and determination.

One coat constructed by an amateur and trimmed with old seal, has the fur bound all around with bias pieces of the coat material. This gives a quite unusual and tailored effect. The bias edges were stitched into the fur without trouble by the use of an automatic machine.

The advice contained in this article is compounded of experiences actually known to the writer or has been assembled from most reliable sources, nevertheless, it is not guaranteed. In practically all cases where cleaning, starching or wetting and stretching has been suggested, it would be wiser to try the effect on some small worn pieces of the fur, before risking those parts of great value. Even after such experimenting, it is well to remember that small portions, requiring less time and strength, may yield better results than the larger heavier ones.

I have often heard it broadly stated by women who acquired some knowledge of furs when pioneering in Alaska, that all furs may be successfully washed with soap and water. To a certain extent this is probably true of fresh pelts, but so many furs now have been patched and reinforced with glue that washing would be utterly disastrous. Moreover old furs are often too tender to bear the weight which the wetness adds to the fur. They would tear disastrously and have to be abandoned in the midst of the process. Methods which are recommended for straight-haired furs do not apply to curly skins, also many dyed skins will not stand washing at all.

CLEANING.

Furs which are stout and in good condition, may first be laid on a woven wire mattress and beaten with a carpet beater; this removes all dust and livens up the hairs. After that they may be cleaned with white beach sand rubbed in hot and then beaten out. Mahogany sawdust is often used on dark pieces, also yellow corn meal, all of these being naturally more effective if applied hot or, at any rate, well-warmed.

White furs may be cleaned, if not too soiled, by using white corn meal, wheat flour, talcum or magnesia powder. Rub in any of these while warm and then, without shaking lay the fur away in a box for several days. Talcum has great effect in restoring the luster.

More seriously soiled white furs may be thoroughly rubbed with a paste of benzine and talcum, which is carefully beaten and brushed out after it has been completely dried.

Furs which are too much soiled to be cleansed with this dry process, should be washed with benzine and benzine soap after being beaten and brushed. Benzine is highly inflammable and great care must therefore be exercised in its use. Matches, which may have been left in pockets or linings are a great danger, and this work should really be done out of doors. Indeed all the processes to which fur is subjected for freshening and cleaning are greatly facilitated by air and sunlight. All pieces should be dried in the sun before trying the benzine bath, for this fluid will not act on wet material.

After washing thoroughly, rinse with fresh benzine and shake well. Then place upon a table and dry by rubbing in potato meal until the hairs are no longer damp and clammy. After allowing some time for the benzine to evaporate, the furs shold be well beaten and the hairs combed out. Do not comb curly furs.

The dirtiest furs of all must be washed, but this is rather a long and troublesome process, and will not be entered into here.

After benzining, as above, the furs may be worked about ten minutes in warm starch powder, which is one of the best dryers, for it gives a fine luster and pleasant "feel" to the furs. The starch is removed, after complete drying in the sun by a gentle, but thorough beating and a systematic brushing with soft brushes.

Ursel dyes are much used for tinting and dying furs, but they are highly poisonous, even to the extent of being irritating to the skin, therefore most thorough rinsing is necessary after their use. They are generally brushed or painted on. There are firms which sell dyes ready mixed and with directions for use; these would probably be best for an amateur to obtain.

REMODELING.

After the furs have been ripped, patched and cleaned, they are ready for remodeling. Tears, if the edges are strong, may be simply sewed up over and over on the wrong side, using a rather firm stitch, but not drawing it tight enough to cut through the skin; of course, a soft cotton or linen thread should be used instead of silk. Thin, worn places should be cut away and carefully matched pieces inserted. These are to be cut but the tiniest fraction of an inch larger than the opening for the over and over seam takes up little and the patch is almost better too small than too large. If the seam stands up rather stiffly, hammer it down.

All cuts in fur are made with a knife and from the back. First draw a line to follow, nail one edge of the fur securely to a board, grasp the other edge firmly with the left hand and, raising the skin slightly, cut along the line with a sharp knife. In this way, the hairs will not be cut but will be left as they should lie to cover the seam when made.

As one certainly has no fur to waste, even the merest scraps being valuable in these days, an exact cloth pattern should be cut, tried on and altered where necessary. From this pattern cut one of stiff paper, allowing barely an eighth of an inch for the main seams, but a good half-inch at all outlet edges. Then lay the paper pieces on a large flat board and chalk around each piece carefully. Wet the back of your pelts, evenly and thoroughly, and let the water soak in for five or ten minutes, then nail them securely to the board over the chalked outlines, letting the skin come well over the lines. (This, of course, is done, after your fur has been pieced and patched out to an adequate size.) The paper pattern is arranged on the skins after they are dried and chalked around. The skins are then cut, as described before.

Now come the sewing, and the flat-taping of edges and long seams to keep them from stretching, and to facilitate the insertion of linings, but do not forget to hammer down stiff seams until they are flat and pliable.

To explain the taping is a little intricate, but it will be very readily understood from a little study of the under side of the garment you have ripped up; a good lessoning in patching and piecing will also reveal itself from this often far from sightly under side.

The method of preparing and putting in linings, paddings and interlinings can be here observed also. But I feel that I must reiterate that the fur must run the right way in all instances, and portions must be matched as to markings and colorings, different parts of apparently even colored skins differing very much. Only by great care in this particular can good effects be secured.

Naturally it is with the most worn and shabby skins that you will most willingly experiment, and these often yield rather pleasing results. They may be strengthened for the cleaning process by basting them onto thin cotton cloth and portions of cloth, tape or thin skin-like old gloves might be darned down onto thin places or glued where the skin is too tender for sewing in patches. Such fur may be combined with velvet, chiffon, or cloth and "bluffed" as handsome pieces, or used in hats where trimming can be adjusted to hide blemishes.

Even very tiny scraps of fur may be inset in hats and fancy bags, which are especially designed to wear with your coat, muff, or neck-piece and these should be used with taste and ingenuity—never wantonly cast into the discard.

Linings must be carefully cut according to the paper patterns used in shaping the garment, with ample allowance for seams and edges to turn in. An interlining of thin outing flannel should be incorporated with the silk, edges should be turned up and double-run flatly, then blind-stitched to the tape which has been used to finish the fur.

In neck-pieces, a chiffon lining is often added also, with a puff or frill of chiffon around the edge.

Muffs can be fitted over forms which may be bought completely lined and finished. If you do not wish to pay the price for one of these, make a padding for your muff of a small down pillow, joining it together in a circle, push it inside your finished muff, insert the lining within and slip stitch it onto the tape with which the fur of the muff has been finished.

That Handy Tailors' Chalk.

Keep tailors' chalk in your machine drawer and sewing basket and you will find it so useful in many ways that you will bless the day you read this.

In sewing on snaps, always mark each side of the place they are to be sewed on with chalk. It is quicker than adjusting each side separately, and the chalk will easily rub out.

When making a hem in the skirt, have someone measure the desired distance from the floor with a yard-stick and mark every few inches with chalk. This is quickly done and insures a perfectly even skirt. In hemming, simply follow the chalk marks.

If there is no one present to mark the hem for you, here is a way to measure your own skirt. Rub plenty of chalk on a few inches of the edge of the kitchen table. Put the skirt on, adjusting it carefully. Stand close to the table and turn around so that every part of the skirt will be marked. Determine just how long you want your skirt, and then measure an even distance down from the the chalk mark to find the line of the hem.

PRACTICAL THINGS.

While I am wandering about in the stores loking at the new things I always think what really aceptable gifts the practical little kitchen helps would make. We all have housekeeping friends who would be delighted with something to make their work easier.

The Apartment Clothesline.

For instance, there is the little clothesline for those who live in apartments. The illustration shows how cleverly it works. The line is contained in a round metal case and runs in and out with a spring. The little case is screwed to the wall and the line left neatly rolled up inside of it when not in use. When you want to hang up the clothes just pull the attached line out and hook the ring over a nail in the opposite wall. With a box of snap clothes-pins, this could be done in a fancy box and made into a most attractive as well as very welcome gift.

For the Iron.

Then there is the asbestos pad to prevent your burning the end of the ironing board. You know every one does burn the ironing sheet at some time or other, if not all the time, and this simple little pad will save it. It is so flat that it is just as easy to set the iron down on it as on the board itself, and it is so light and easy to hang out of the way when not in use that it is a joy to own.

The Shopping Basket

Little parcels are a nuisance, and yet they are sometimes necessary in a morning's shopping, and a basket is the thing to get rid of the annoyance of carrying them. If a market basket why not an attractive one? Whenever useful things can be attractive, for goodness sake lets have them so, thereby adding to the general joy of life.

Hot and Cold Food.

Do you use a thermopak, that inexpensive arrangement of paper containers in a vacum case that will kep your food either hot or cold as you may desire? It is a wonderful thing for long automobile rides, for a hot lunch can be carried and served so easily. The waterproof paper cans are in three sizes, a quart, a pint and a half-pint, and you can either use the quart alone or the other two together. These thermopaks are so inexpensive that buying more than one is not a hardship, and two would enable you to carry both hot and cold things—for instance, hot coffee and beans in one, and salad and milk in the other. Being able to use two separate paper containers in each makes this possible. The paper containers themselves cost so little that they may be thrown away after being used.

RAISIN CAKE.

One cup of granulated sugar, ½ cupful of butter or Crisco, 1 egg, cream together, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, ½ teaspoonful of nutmeg, ½ teaspoonful of clove, a pinch of salt, ½ pound of cooked raisins. The raisins are cooked in water enough to make 1 cup of raisin water, to which add ½ teaspoonful of soda in the cup of hot water, add 2½ cups of flour with 2 teaspoonfuls of baking powder, cream the butter and the sugar; add the well beaten egg, then add spices; the raisin water and the flour with baking powder sifted together, lastly floured raisins.

Filling for the Cake.

One cup of powdered sugar, butter the size of an egg; cream with two tablespoonfuls of hot water, flavor with vanilla.

GAS SAVING TRICKS.

How much gas do you use when you are getting the Sunday dinner? You can find out by reading the gas meter before the cooking starts and after the cooking is done. If you do not remember just how to read it, ask the gas man to explain it to you when he comes around the next time. The habit of reading the meter once a week and comparing amounts used will help to keep gas saving in mind and make it possible to calculate your gas bill.

In the preparation of that dinner count the ways by which you could save gas. If you are one of the many who light the gas before the teakettle is filled and who forget to turn off the heat the minute the pie is baked, you will find those are good times to begin to save.

If you test the heat given by various kinds of flames, you will find that the short, stiff, clear, blue flame brings best results. It is a waste of time and gas to use the high, smoking, yellow flame, which results when too much air is mixed with the gas and which you can prevent by partially closing the air shutter. Never turn the flame so high that it is brought up close to the kettle and flares around it, for this wastes gas, makes the flame less hot and blackens the kettle.

Many gas stoves have at least four kinds of burners—including a giant burner and a simmerer—and a large part of gas economy consists in knowing which one to use, and when.

TRY THE SIMMERER.

If you consider the little simmerer burner on your range a mere ornament and of no real use you are underrating its value. It uses from one-fifth to one-sixth as much gas as the other top burners and will keep a kettle boiling after it has been brought to the boil on one of the other top burners. The giant burner uses from three to six cubic feet an hour more than the other top burners, so it should be used only when absolutely necessary. As soon as a kettle boils, see how far you can turn the gas down and still keep it boiling. The experimental kitchen has found that it will continue to boil with the burner turned down from one-half to one-third. Also, if that pan or kettle is large bottomed, the gas will be better utilized than if it is smaller than the burner.

KEEP THE BURNERS CLEAN.

The easiest way to keep burners clean, of course, is by the ounce-of-prevention method. Never allowing boiling over is the best way of keeping the burners clean, but if the accident should happen the burners can be removed easily and scrubbed in soap and water. A wire will assist in cleaning the holes if they still remain clogged.

The range oven requires much more gas an hour than one top burner does, so it must be used carefully if the gas bill is to be reduced. If you do much baking in small quantities you can save gas with a small removable oven to be used on the top of the stove.

REMOVABLE OVEN IN GAS SAVING.

The time required to heat the oven before baking begins also varies greatly in the two kinds. The small oven will come up to 500 deg. F. in five minutes, while the range oven requires twenty to thirty. Therefore, if the oven is to be used for only a short time the small oven would be a great advantage.

The small oven, nevertheless, has its disadvantages. A cake so big that its edges are rather close to the sides of the oven will not be well baked, because the heat at the sides will be much greater than in the center. Dishes requiring an even temperature, a very high or a very low temperature for a certain length of time, are not successfully baked in a small oven unless close attention is paid to the regulation of the heat. This is true because the temperature of the oven is variable. Its sides are thin and the bottom does not well retard the passage of heat. For the breakfast muffins or the baking powder biscuits for dinner, however, the small oven is excellent.

If one dish of the meal should require the range oven, plan to bake as much of the remainder of the dinner as possible, for in that way the heat will not be wasted. For instance, if the main dish of the meal is to be a big casserole of tomato, cheese and rice, it would be wise to choose baked potatoes rather than boiled, and a baked dessert in preference to a pudding made in the double boiler. If oven room permits, muffins or biscuits would add greatly to the meal and would require little extra fuel.

BOSTON BROWN BREAD.

Two cups yellow corn meal; one cup rye or graham flour; one cup white flour; two cups milk; one cup molasses; one-half teaspoon salt, three teaspoons baking powder; one cup raisins (may be omitted.) Mix well and fill well-greased molds two-thirds full. Empty pound baking powder tins make satisfactory molds. Cover tightly and put in a deep kettle with enough hot water to come half way up on molds. Do not let them tip over. Steam four hours, uncover and put in oven for fifteen minutes. When this is made with raisins in it, and sliced thin, cold, and spread with cottage cheese it makes a delicious and nourishing sandwich for any occasion.

Practical Gifts for Your Practical Friends.

CHRISTMAS SUGGESTIONS.

I know you are all accumulating things in that bottom drawer so that when the last few days before Christmas come you will not have to join in the mad scramble to get ready. You will find that you have much more love in your heart for the recipient of your gifts if you have not had to frazzle your nerves buying them. Here are a few of the things I have put away this week.

A Philippine Sandwich Tray.

This I consider my prize find of the week, for it only cost me 50 cents and it is charming. Of course everyone knows Philippine baskets and their distinctiveness, and when I found a sandwich tray of this fine weave, and at such an unbelievable price I bought several, for it is a gift that anyone would be glad to have, and one worth putting away even if you have no particular person in mind for it.

A traveling friend once brought me one of these trays from the Philippines and it has always been one of my favorite possessions. No matter what you serve in it—cake, sandwiches, fruit, candy—it always seems to have been made for that particular thing. And you do not have to worry about things being spilled in it, or its getting sticky, for it washes just like a plate, but, unlike a plate, it cannot be broken.

Glass Measuring Spoon.

This is a dandy little thing, this glass measuring spoon. It is just like a measuring cup, made of thick glass and marked off into the different levels of spoons. Of course, being transparent these marks are easy to find and follow. It has a very short handle so that all danger of breaking it is eliminated. This clever spoon is all done up in a fancy box and is something that would be decidedly welcome.

Cocoa Heart Brooms.

These are always good, and unlike most things used for as practical a purpose as sweeping a hearth, they are very good looking. They come in many shapes, and with different lengths of handles, but they are all excellent and they surely do the work well. The cocoa fiber is tough and strong and wears like iron.

The Tiny Hat Brush.

Have you seen those tiny hat brushes with the daintily-painted backs? They are small enough to slip into the smallest traveling bag, without taking up any room, and yet they have good bristles and are a real brush with a decidedly practical turn to their natures. They also come all done up in a nice box ready for mailing.

Traveler's Case.

These may be elaborate or simple as your pocket-book or your desire may dictate. You can make them, or you can buy them all ready made up and filled with all the accessories of the toilet. If you know the favorite color of the friend for whom you intend this comfort kit, you can select cretonne in accordance and have the daintiest sort of a be-pocketed case that will hold all the things that one finds necessary to have along when traveling.

JUST POTATOES.

There is a right and a wrong way of doing even the simplest thing. To bake potatoes perfectly select those of medium size, scrub thoroughly and put them on a rack in a moderately hot oven for three quarters of an hour. When you think they are done, take one out in a clean towel and press it gently; if soft, it is done. Then take them one at a time in a towel and press very gently until the potatoe is thoroughly mashed and the skin still unbroken. Put them back in the oven as fast as they are treated and keep warm until used. They may be kept for some time without deteriorating, whereas, if you stick a fork into the potato to try it, the steam will escape and the potatoe will become waxy and soft. Putting potatoes into a very hot oven makes the skins hard and dry. This is liked by some people but it is a fault in the opinion of the majority.

Those French-fried potatoes, which are supposed to be so difficult are simply enough prepared. Do not soak them in water, but put them, a few at a time, into a pan of moderately-heated fat and let them boil in the fat. When the edges begin to turn a little brown, lift, drain, throw them on soft, brown paper and let them stand until cold. At serving time put a few at a time into a frying basket, plunge them into very hot fat, dip them up and down once or twice until they are puffed and brown, drain, dust with salt, and serve at once.

AN EGGLESS SPICE CAKE.

This is an excellent cake for these days when eggs are sitting on such a pinnacle that only the longest purse can reach them.

One-half cup sugar; three-quarters cup shortening; one cup of any kind of jam; three cups of flour; one teaspoon of soda; three-quarters cup of buttermilk, sour milk may be used. One teaspoon each baking powder, cinnamon and allspice; one-half teaspoon each cloves and mace. Sift flour, baking powder and spices together three times; cream sugar and shortening; add buttermilk beaten up with the soda; beat in flour and spices. Beat well, add jam and beat again. Bake in layers; put layers together with jam, and cover top and sides with any preferred icing.

LIVER AND ONIONS.

Brown one pound of sliced liver in hot fat; slice three large onions into it, sprinkle plentifully with flour and salt to taste. Add one-half cup hot water, cover and simmer one-half hour. Stir up well from the bottom occasionally with a knife, and add more hot water as needed. With the onions, this will make a fine gravy.

This picture shows the complete set of the new Eleventh Edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica in the tremendously popular Handy Volume issue printed on genuine India paper. The twenty-nine volumes contain 44,000,000 words, 30,000 pages, and are the work of 1,500 recognized authorities from every civilized country in the world. While this set contains a great wealth of information on every subject known to the human mind, the entire twenty-nine volumes, because they are printed on the wonderfully light, thin but opaque India paper, occupy only 31 inches of shelf room, and each volume, which is no larger than the ordinary magazine, may be held with comfort by the reader for hours at a time.

NOW AS NEVER BEFORE

YOU NEED

THE ENCYCLOPAEDIA BRITANNICA

There probably is not a man, woman or child among the 100,000,000 inhabitants of the United States upon whom the past five years has not had a profound effect. Great reforms have been hastened and this will be a better and cleaner world after the ordeals of fire through which it has passed. The participation of the United States as never before in the world's affairs has brought to the people new interests not limited to the neighborhood, town or city in which they live, but interests that are world-wide. A miracle has been wrought in men's minds, a miracle in which there is a tremendous thirst for knowledge, a knowledge which is absolutely necessary today, as never before. Where can people find correct, authoritative and comprehensive information on the many different subjects in which they are interested as a consequence of this awakening? They naturally turn to the wonderful storehouse of knowledge—the world's greatest guide to correct and authoritative information—the Encyclopaedia Britannica. The Britannica describes the peoples of the world, the countries, industrially, politically and socially. The Britannica furnishes practical, detailed and authoritative articles of great value to the manufacturer, to the importer, to the worker in the industries. The Britannica will give a foundation for study of subjects which will be uppermost in our minds for years to come. The Britannica is the great work of useful information. It is the book for Americans today who are waking up to new thoughts, new work and new interests.

Are We Going to Take Full Advantage of Our Industrial Opportunities?

During the past few years the business of this nation has tremendously expanded. Industries have had to enlarge their plants many times their normal size. Entire new towns, great ship-building yards and large industrial plants have sprung up almost over night. So great has been the pressure to produce tremendous quantities of materials in the shortest length of time that, out of necessity, efficiency has been the watchword of the day. Great progress has been made in shop management. There have been many inventions. Many short cuts have been found for a better and quicker production of material. Today marks the period of the greatest industrial development in this country. How are we going to make use of this tremendous impetus given to our industries? Are we going to carry them to a greater development or are we going to drop back into the old rut as before the war? This latter would be disastrous. On the employer and the worker in these industries fall the responsibility to adjust our business so as to safeguard our industrial welfare. The employer and the worker in these industries must grasp, assimilate and apply the principles of greater efficiency to their plants and keep their own industries abreast of these rapidly changing conditions. The Britannica is a working manual, dealing with every subject which the employer, the employee or any other man can think of and will speed them up mentally and make them alert to the tremendous opportunities of today.

A Complete Library of Knowledge

But this marvelous work, with its 41,000 separate articles, is more than a guide for the enterprising business man of the United States, fitting him to be a citizen of the world—a world merchant. The Britannica is a complete library of knowledge on every subject. It discusses in a way that you can understand every branch of science, industry, literature, art, religion, inventions and engineering; history and race development; wars and peace; architecture, astronomy, chemistry, sociology, education, steam, electricity, geology and geography, biography, law and physics. You and your family will find in the Britannica a liberal education. In answer to the hundred questions which every day come to your mind and to your wife's and children's minds—it will tell you more about everything than you can get from any other source.

What Is Before Us?

There are many serious post-war problems confronting us. Do you understand the tendencies in our industrial life? Why are the prices of commodities high? Will wages go still higher? Will the cost of living gradually drop? Is there likely to be some great cataclysm that will serve to send prices and wages downward? Has there been a general social unrest after other great wars? Are you inclined to be stampeded with fear of what is before us? Are you sitting down and studying the facts of past cases that were somewhat similar? Are you familiar with what has happened after other wars? In England after the Napoleonic campaigns; in the United States after the Civil War; to France, to Germany and to Neutrals after the Franco-Prussian war?

This war has blazed a way for America to commercial supremacy. European countries, in reaching out after commerce and new markets, studied countries, and people, and conditions, so the American business man, merchant, manufacturer and salesman must inform himself if he hopes to make the most of his present opportunities.

This wonderful book of knowledge—the new Encyclopaedia Britannica—literally brings the whole world to the reader. It tells all about foreign countries, their people, their history, their progress, their resources, their imports and exports. An hour a day with the Britannica will give as clear and comprehensive an idea of the rest of the world as we Americans now have of the States of the Union.

Woman Needs the Britannica as Never Before

Woman's position politically, industrially and economically has changed radically in the past five years. Woman has become a power in politics, for her vote is respected and valued. She has taken a more important place in the industrial world. The sensible and up to date woman is studying the cost of foods, food markets and food values. To the woman who wishes to keep abreast with the times, the Britannica is invaluable with its splendid articles on politics, on industries, on domestic science, on foods and on everything pertaining to the home. To the mother with children to educate, the Britannica is indispensable, and it will give her the information to teach her children wisely and correctly.

These Sets Printed on the Wonderful India Paper

The present stock of sets of the Britannica are printed on a genuine India paper—the paper which created a revolution in book publishing. More than 90 per cent of the subscribers of the Britannica have chosen sets on the India paper, for the light, thin, but opaque sheet has proven an ideal medium on which to print the Encyclopaedia Britannica. The beautiful silky texture of the clean, white easy reading page gives a luxurious appearance and a supreme joy in owning the Britannica.

We Have Obtained All the Remaining Sets in the Handy Volume Issue Printed on the Genuine India Paper, Which We Are Offering at a Great Bargain

Since the close of the big sale in which there were sold 120,000 sets of the Encyclopaedia Britannica in the Handy Volume issue, many people, who for some reason failed to purchase at that time, have written asking if there was any possibility of still obtaining a set of the Britannica in the popular Handy Volume issue, printed on the genuine India paper. Many hundreds of these letters have come to our correspondents to answer. So insistent have been the demands, and the writers have expressed such a genuine desire to own this great work, that we left no stone unturned to secure more sets of the Britannica. We have been able to obtain from the publishers sets in each binding, printed on the genuine India paper, bound in the same substantial cloth, in the beautiful semi-flexible sheepskin and in the exquisite Levant, and embracing the same high quality of workmanship as the sets we sold last year. We have also procured sets printed on the standard book paper, which is the paper used generally for books. These are in four beautiful bindings and are very attractive and practical. These sets are sold at prices which make them a tremendous bargain to all.

We Will Be Glad to Send You Free Our Large Illustrated Booklet Describing These Books in Detail

The Spirit of October.

The spirit of October
Came dancing through the trees.
A sister of the twilight
And its softened melodies.
I took her hand in dancing,
And in her eyes of gleam
I saw the perfect vision,
The beauty of a dream.

he looked across the meadows, thought what they had been
When in the dawn of April
They shimmered bright and green.
A smile of old reluctance,
A sigh of passing days,
And then around her gentle limbs
The evening wrapped its haze.

Her sadness was so merry,
Her merriness so sad,
knew the road of sorrow
Was next to being glad.
The spirit of October,
And then the sudden truth—
Beneath her faded garments
The rosy flesh of youth.
—Bentztown Bard in Baltimore Sun.

Dreams.

They wait until the little hours,
When all the world swings low,
o drift within my quiet room
In endless ebb and flow;
often think of them by day,
Whether I will or no.

They call me from my narrow bed
To lofty vaulted halls,
Where pavements heave beneath my feet
And blocks drop from the walls;
ne tiny door a world away—
I reach, ere the roof falls.

r else they lead by wandering ways
To lands I do not know—lonely plains of ice and fire
Where dreadful monsters grow, nd shadowy armies march and march Forever, row on row.

h, could I buy my dream tonight,
A love-tryst I would keep an old garden far away
Across the ocean deep—
I could buy my dreams just once
Before I go to sleep.

NOTED WOMAN TO WED AGAIN.

Mrs. Hope Once Ran Against ex-Premier Asquith.

Will Marry Youngest Son of Scottish Magnate.

Her Unconventional Methods Won Her Notoriety.

BY HAYDEN CHURCH.

[SPECIAL FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Oct. 25.—The beautiful Mrs. Hope of Luffness, who leaped into great prominence by campaigning against ex-Premier Asquith in the historic general election of December last, and later had further notoriety of a less-desirable kind, is again in the news in consequence of her engagement, which has just been announced. Her second husband will be Lionel Clement Erskine Clark, youngest son of the late Godfrey L. Clark, a Scottish magnate of Talygarn.

Mrs. Hope, who aspired to secure nomination as an independent candidate for East Fife, the constituency which Mr. Asquith represented in Parliament for so many years, is the widow of a gallant British officer, who, long "missing," was finally legally presumed to be dead. Col. Hope was a nephew of Lord Rosebery, and was otherwise connected with some of the most socially notable families in Great Britain. His widow is accounted to be one of the handsomest women of her day.

PICTURESQUE METHODS.

Of all the many feminine candidates for Parliament who "stood" or attempted to stand, against men, Mrs. Hope of Luffness was by far the most picturesque. That any woman would have the temerity to oppose Mr. Asquith in East Fife, no one had so much as dreamed. Hence, something like a sensation was caused when the handsome Mrs. Hope announced her intention of running against the ex-Premier, and by her prompt appearance on the stump. She took as her main platform certain supposed grievances of the soldiers, and having real gifts as a speaker, appealed with considerable success to the audiences that attended her meetings.

All her methods were unconventional. Once, backed up by a crowd of soldiers, she waylaid Mr. Asquith, who had just entered his motor car, opened the door herself and challenged the ex-Premier to a joint debate, which he politely told her was out of the question. At another time, while Mr. Asquith was at a meeting with his committee, Mrs. Hope asked him to receive a deputation of soldiers. When, later, addressing a large meeting outside the Liberal Club at Cupar, she reported that the former Prime Minister had refused, there were cries of "sandbag him!"

CAMPAIGN A FIASCO.

Mrs. Hope's campaign ended in a fiasco, her candidature not being allowed by the returning officers on the ground that she was able only to offer a check, and not cash, for the sum of $750 which every Parliamentary candidate is obliged to pay in, to cover election expenses, and which is forfeited if the candidate fails to poll one-third of the votes cast.

A sensational sequel came a couple of months later when the trustees of the late Col. Hope petitioned the Edinburgh Court of Sessions to remove Mrs. Hope from the office of guardian of her two children, on the ground that she was "entirely unfit" to be intrusted with them. Mrs. Hope was then stated to have been guilty of immoral conduct and to be addicted to the excessive use of alcohol. She was charged with associating herself with undesirable persons, and with habitually ill-treating her children and conducting herself before them in a manner calculated seriously to prejudice their health and morals.

Extraordinary evidence in support of these allegations was forthcoming, and as a result, a new guardian, in the person of Lady Mary Hope, Col. Hope's mother, was appointed by the court.

"THE WHITE CITY OF THE BORDER."

Recent oil prospecting around Hume, Mo., has brought that unique Southern Missouri town into public attention. Hume is unique because of its color scheme: every house in the town of more than 1000 persons is painted white.

When Hume was built back in the '80's the residents followed their individual tastes or the exigencies of the occasion in painting their houses. So Hume looked like any other little town, with a gray house standing alongside one in yellow and with a green neighbor mayhap across the street. But Lewis W. Moore, who edits the town paper, decided Hume ought to be original if nothing else. So he started a campaign for a "white city."

So persistently did Moore keep at this campaign that the other residents of Hume fell in line and the painters were kept busy changing the colors of the houses to white. This fact, with the added one, that it stands only a mile from the Kansas line, has brought Hume the title of the "White City of the Border." It was named after the historian, David Hume.—[Kansas City Star.

Practicing for the Movies.

"I heard from Jim last week."

"What is he doing?"

"Learning a new job."

"Getting on all right?"

"Broke an arm last week, he told me."

"Whew!"

"Week before he sprained an ankle."

"Well!"

"One day he nearly lost an eye."

"I never did believe in too much athletics."

"This is different."

"In what way?"

"I asked Jim what he meant by that kind of conduct and he said if he holds out long enough he is going to be a moving-picture actor."—[Unidentified.

Several Words True.

He had just given a long explanation of his lateness.

"I don't believe a word of it!" declared his wife.

"That's where you're wrong, my dear," he replied. "Several words of it are true!"—[Kansas City Star.

ONE of the finest tributes to the Thanksgiving Table are John S. Brown's Shamrock Linens. They typify the very highest ideal in fine napery. It should prove illuminating to compare these elegant linens with ordinary linens. The contrast is too obvious to be ignored in preparing your "festive board" for Thanksgiving. Come to Bullock's Linen Store and familiarize yourself with these superb Table Coverings —Second Floor.

LIBBEY'S Cut Glass is another symbol of sparkling excellence to beautify the Thanksgiving Table. The Crystal Palace, in Bullock's Hill Street Building is the home of Libbey's Cut Glass in Los Angeles, where you can spend some very interesting moments, and learn some very interesting cut glass facts—if you will. Already many Christmas Packages are depending upon Libbey's Cut Glass for their right, merry, welcome.

THE spirit of Christmas is getting very acute in many sections of Bullock's. Santa Claus spends several hours each day in the Toy Store. Wednesday Bullock's Gift Suggestion Bureau establishes its delightful avenues on the Third Floor. The Art and Gift Store is an eloquent inspiration for gifts of illimitable sorts. The Lamp Shade Classes are evolving magical and mysterious degrees of wizardry. Those who never even suspected are finding themselves Lamp Shade artists after only a lesson or two by Bullock's instructors. Bullock's Bureau of Engraving is displaying its patent talents and "personal touch" to the satisfaction of those who insist upon thought and artistic refinement in their Personal Greeting Cards for Christmas. Everywhere one turns it is evident that early Christmas Shopping is proving very resultful—at Bullock's.

FURS

—the grace and poise and distinguishing beauty of Fur is not alone the effect it produces upon the admirer's eye, but more truly the effect it produces upon the owner's consciousness.

—If Milady is sure of her Fur—its Character—its Author, then her pride and pleasure are reliantly reflected.

—But unless she is sure of these things there may be a lack of that fullness of pride or joy or satisfaction which comes from the possession of real Furs.

—The "mediocre" and the "inferior" are two imposing terms in the category of Furs—for 'tis quite often that the Zeal for Supply outstrips the Zeal for Service —so one cannot be too careful.

—It is in this direct connection that Bullock's and Bullock's Furs are firmly emphasized.

—The Selection from Collarettes to Capes and Coats has undergone authentic scrutiny.

—Each and every one is endowed with Character.

—But if by chance an omission should unfold itself after one has purchased a Bullock Fur, there is always the Sincerity of Bullock's as your Surety.

—And this is the Surety of Service that is as important an adjunct of Bullock's as the Furs themselves.

Third Floor.

—Is it too soon to suggest the wisdom of selecting a Bullock Fur now to be set aside for the Christmas Gift?

SAW MANY OF PRISON CAMPS.

English Actor with Notable War Record Here.

Appearing in New Douglas Fairbanks Feature.

News and Gossip of Stage, Screen and Players.

One of the most interesting members of the film colony these days is no less a person than Capt. Herbert Grimwood, noted English actor, formerly with Sir Herbert Tree and who, at one time, owned his own theater in London, and who is now, since returning from the war, playing a leading role with the world's most famous smiler, Douglas Fairbanks, in the latter's current production.

This is Capt. Grimwood's first engagement since the war, the last two years of which he spent in German prison camps, being sent from one to another. He was wounded twice in battle, and was finally taken prisoner at Berquay, when in command, with only eighty of his men and himself coming out alive. It was there he was captured, and taken to a German prison camp, in France, where conditions were very bad. Later he was taken to Silesia, to a camp sixty miles from Austria, and afterward was transferred to other camps.

From the Silesian camp he escaped, through a tunnel from beneath the kitchen, which it took weeks of the most careful labor on the part of himself and seventeen other prisoners to make. At this time he had maps of the country, which he had placed on a cupboard shelf within the leaves of a magazine. The officers of the camp, suspecting something, made a search; they looked through every magazine on the shelf except the one containing the maps. He escaped with a comrade after drawing lots, but subsequently lost sight of the other soldier. Traveling for two weeks by day, he was finally captured and taken back to camp.

Asked concerning his treatment in the various prison camps, Capt. Grimwood stated it was fairly good, since he was not captured until after the Allies had taken as many or more prisoners than the Germans, and the Germans were afraid of retaliation.

Capt. Grimwood found employment in the various prison camps, putting on shows with the prisoners as the actors, and this entertainment, he said, meant much to the morale of the men.

The actor has received a number of flattering offers to return to the stage, but says he will remain in pictures, and that his wife, according, to present plans, will join him in California in the early part of the New Year.

Lois Wouldn't Believe It.

While Bryant Washburn and his company were out on the Pacific in a yacht filming scenes for his latest Paramount-Artcraft picture, under the direction of Donald Crisp, various members of the company came to Lois Wilson and whispered disconcerting words in her ear.

"I don't believe it!" declared Miss Wilson. "I don't believe that Bryant Washburn would make love to any woman but his wife."

"Well, he's up on deck with her now," they informed her. "Go see for yourself!"

"I simply won't believe it, that's all," answered the loyal Miss Wilson.

"You will if you see for yourself, won't you?" she was asked, and of course she was forced to admit that she would.

She went on deck. There in the dark she saw Bryant Washburn, with his arm about the waist of a beautiful blonde.

They say she burst into tears. Those who had told her to go see for herself tried to comfort her, but she would not be comforted. "And Mrs. Washburn is such a sweet woman," she cried. "It will break her heart if I tell her, but I am afraid that is my duty. What shall I do?"

She was still crying a quarter of an hour later when Washburn stepped up to her. "Permit me, Miss Wilson," he said, "to introduce to you the blonde you saw me with." Before she could interrupt, the blonde was facing her. Off came a wig, and the girl was suddenly transformed into a certain male member of the company.

Miss Wilson was much happier than she had been, but she still voices the opinion that practical jokes should be under government ban.

Carroll's Inspiration.

On her wrist is a gold disc, engraved with these words: "Carroll McComas, who sang for the boys on the Rhine."

And that is the real reason why she has gone into motion pictures, and is now at work at the Lasky studio. Believe it or not, but that gold disc, those engraved words and the fighting men from the U.S.A. are entirely responsible for Carroll McComas's desertion of the spoken stage for Shadowland. Whether temporary or permanent, that desertion is surprising, for the capable actress who "sang for the boys on the Rhine" had long resisted the lure of the silver screen, despite frequent and vigorous efforts on the part of producers to win her away from Broadway and the "speakies."

Motion-picture producers could not talk convincingly enough, nor could their money speak loud enough, but the Yankee doughboys—ah, they were different entirely.

"You see," Miss McComas explains, "I spent eight months overseas doing my best to entertain our boys. We gave three performances a day and played to an average of a thousand soldiers at each show. If you are mathematically inclined, you can figure up the vast number of new faces I saw. And I learned to love those faces—love them as if they were very dear and very old friends. They were so appreciative, and so kind to me!

"Very many of them never had seen me before, for I had spent most of my time on Broadway. When I thought of their never seeing me again and my never seeing them, I—well, I did not like it one bit. And then I thought of motion pictures. There was my chance to appear before all those dear boys wherever they might be. I returned to my Los Angeles home and I still was thinking of motion pictures when representatives of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation came to me with a proposal."

Says Beauty Counts First.

"Beauty pays in vaudeville; perhaps better than in any other branch of stage work."

This is the dictum of Amelia Stone, the Orpheum star, whose "Song Romance" which she presents with Arman Kaliz, her husband, amply confirms it.

"So many used to tell us that we had to 'play down' to vaudeville, and when we first went into it, we feared that we would. But we found from the start that vaudeville devotees are keen to enjoy the very finest, the loveliest, the most artistic. They have a fine sense of values, and they know when an artist is sincerely trying to give them something good.

"In no other phase of theatricals have I found this so generally true. Even in light opera, where I used to sing, I found that while I pleased many, so many others craved something more salacious, or comic, or farcical.

"Of course, they do get a lot of farce and knockabout and crude comedy, and all that: but that is as it should be. Life is not all beer and skittles, you know. Such acts, done cleverly, are just as essential."

Citizen of World.

T. H. Gibson-Gowland, who will enact the role of Jo Portugais, the Canadian trapper, in "The Right of Way," in which Bert Lytell is starring for Screen Classics, Inc., is a world-traveler, although for three years he has played character parts in motion pictures.

For five years Mr. Gowland was among the savages of South Africa, where he had many thrilling experiences. He plans to return and make motion pictures of this wild country, for he declares nothing like it has ever been photographed.

Mr. Gowland made his first appearance in motion pictures with Carlyle Blackwell. At that time Jack Dillon, who is directing "The Right of Way," was Mr. Blackwell's director. In the past six months Mr. Gowland has had important character roles in two big productions. George Loane Tucker's new picture, and "The Pinnacle," a Universal special.

Not All Prop Blows.

That battered expression worn by Harry Northrup these days is not entirely due to his ability as an actor. This heavy of the screen is playing the role of Con Burke, a New York East Side ward heeler in James J. Corbett's Universal feature, "The Prince of Avenue A," and has indulged in several fistic encounters with the ex-champion. Try as he would to be careful, Corbett forgets himself occasionally when Director Jack Ford yells "a little more pep, Jim," and Northrup gets a taste of the medicine which cost the late John L. Sullivan the world's championship

To Visit Home Town.

Helene Chadwick, having finished the lead in the eminent author's production "The Cup of Fury," has left for New York for two weeks of shopping and visiting among relatives. This latter part of her programme takes her to the town of Chadwick, which was named after her grandmother, and where the showing of Helene Chadwick pictures is always a gala occasion for the inhabitants.

Tandler Furnishes Atmosphere.

Adolf Tandler, director of the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra, arranged the musical setting for the operatic scenes in Dorothy Phillips' Universal special, "Ambition." Allen Holubar, who is directing the production, engaged Mr. Tandler and his orchestra to appear and play in the opera house scenes in this photoplay.

Desmond Returning.

William Desmond, Jesse D. Hampton star, is en route back to Los Angeles, from New York where he has been visiting his mother who has been seriously ill! He expects soon to begin work in a special production of "The Parish Priest" under direction of Joseph J. Franz.

Sacrifices Oriental Locks.

Under the terms of his contract with Marshall Neilan, Yami Mata, the Japanese actor who will play the role of a villainous Chinaman in "The River's End," the first independent Neilan Production, has had the top of his head shaved to make room for a Chinaman's wig and queue.

To recompense him for the temporary sacrifice of his oriental locks, Mr. Neilan has agreed to pay Mata's salary in full until such a time as the hair has returned to its normal growth

Fillmore Busy Man.

Clyde Fillmore, playing an important role in "The Woman in the Plot," a Universal photodrama under way at Universal City with Erich Von Stroheim directing, is a busy actor. Every evening and sometimes in the afternoon he appears in "Civilian Clothes," now playing its eighteenth week at the Morosco Theater. Morning and midnight he devotes to Universal City.

Gets Story Anyhow.

Tom Mix entertained some friends from Texas several weeks ago. While here they informed him they had formed an oil company and that there were positive indications of oil on their property. The Fox star who was induced to take a number of shares in the new company, asked H. H. Van Loan, who is writing a series of stories for him, if he would not like to avail himself of the opportunity to "get in on the ground floor."

Van Loan said he had invested in oil stock before and had lost his money. "A burned child fears the fire, Tom," said the author, and the matter was forgotten.

Mix a day or two ago received word from his Texas friends stating that they had "struck oil and the outlook is splendid." The actor subsequently communicated the news to Van Loan, who congratulated Mix and told him his good fortune would furnish an excellent theme for one of the six stories he is preparing for him.

U Has a Lead N...

Production at Universal is so far advanced that the powers that are now able to put into practice a theory long entertained that a director can accomplish much better work if he is given a rest of two or three weeks between pictures so that he can make adequate preparation for his next feature. By keeping twenty-two companies busy on the lot and on location for the past six months, Universal is now several months ahead of its programme.

Blanche Sweet's New One.

Blanche Sweet, Jesse D. Hampton star, working under the direction of Robert T. Thornby, has completed the picturization of "The Deadlier Sex," a drama of New York and the Maine woods by Bayard Veiller. The scenario was writen by Fred Myton.

She Called Next One.

Bill Franey, Gale Henry's leading man, tells a humorous incident which happened the first day he landed in Los Angeles with the Ninety-first (Wild West) Division from war service on the French front. Walking along Broadway he was stopped abruptly by a female stranger.

"I beg your pardon, sir, but would you tell me what that 91 W. W means on your shoulder?" she inquired.

"Why that means ninety-one wild women!" Bill ejaculated.

A few steps away another member of the Ninety-first approached and the woman spotted the insignia on his shoulder. Eying him suspiciously and shaking her finger at him she said as he passed,

"Shame on you!"

Musical Revue Coming.

"Let's Go," declared to be a merry hodge-podge of merriment in revue form, is to be the attraction at Clune's Auditorium, following immediately upon the close of the engagement of Sir Harry Lauder.

One of the features of "Let's Go" is said to be the catchy music. The songs are of the popular whistleable variety. Some of the numbers that are sure to catch on are "The Mack Sennett Girls," "The La Paloma Girl," "When the Jazz Band Plays Let's Go," "Kismet," "The Debutante" and "Clothes."

Fanchon and Marco are stars of the revue. Mme. Donald Ayer, the operatic singer is also a featured member. Chief fun-maker is Harry Hines, a blackfaced comedian. Nelson and Chain and others will contribute to the general gayety.

In San Francisco "Let's Go" first played an engagement of ten weeks, returning later for six weeks.

Marjorie's Beauty Spot.

Marjorie Daw, leading woman of Marshall Neilan Productions, is the owner of a natural, yet unnatural, beauty spot, just under her right eye, which is the envy of all members of her sex in the film colony of Hollywood. Marjorie recalls the day, when a wee bit of a tot, she was holding her doll in her arms and watching her daddy in his daily act of shaving.

Curious as to the result of the action of the razor, she awaited her opportunity, and one day when no one was looking she applied a perfect lather to her own face, as well as the doll's, and then wielded the tonsorial blade on both. The next day father had to buy her a new doll, and the doctor had a job to perform on Marjorie's pretty little face. No permanent scars were left, but a little mole formed just under her eye, which relieved her of the necessity of visiting a drug store for beauty patches in this age of girlish vanity.

Eyton's New Home.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Eyton, the former general manager of west coast production for Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, and the latter, Kathlyn Williams, have started actual construction on their beautiful new home, which is destined to be one of the show places of Hollywood. The site is the top of the Vine-street hill, and affords a fine view of the surrounding country. The house itself will be unique, according to Miss Williams, who now calls herself an architec-

SWELL DAYS IN HOLLYWOOD.

They're Rocking the Boat for the "Sea Wolf."

The Outdoor Girl of Jack London's Story.

Who Also Likes Her Share of Finery, Too.

BY EDWIN SCHALLERT.

Just who started rocking the boat out at the Famous Players-Lasky studio has never been accurately ascertained, but they do know that the sea-like sway is going to keep on for three weeks longer, and if it doesn't, at least, while they're making the film version of Jack London's "Sea Wolf," somebody is going to get rougher than the ocean—or the old sea captain of the play.

You see, "rocking the boat" is not a crime on a par with grand larceny or murder these days, because it's all very necessary for the success of the sea story, which is being visualized for cinema presentation. In fact, there is hardly a scene in the main dramatic portion of the "Sea Wolf" that is not laid aboard ship. Consequently, they weren't satisfied with prop boat rockers alone, but the company under George Melford's direction went so far as to drift around outside of San Francisco Bay to get a few real swells to submerge the scenes in atmosphere. And they succeeded in getting them properly doused, and also in making various members of the company acquainted with the potency of lemons, chewing gum and Mother Sill's seasick cure.

Now everybody's back home and happy, including Noah Beery, who plays Wolf Larsen, Tom Forman, who does the heroics as the young author who plops into the water when the ferryboat goes down, and the girl in the case, Mabel Juliene Scott.

Mabel Juliene Scott is the newest of the trio to be lured by the cinema to Southern California, and incidentally to the hazards of the deep. Heretofore, she has been doing whatever cruising was necessary in her young life between the brighter Broadway and the wilds of Omaha and the Middle West. So when Director Melford put the question to her squarely, on the eve of their departure for San Francisco: "Are you a good sailor?" it was quite natural she should answer, "Well, I never sailed a boat, but I'll try."

It isn't often they get one like that on so bright and clever a girl as Miss Scott, and so they've made the most of it. They try to jolly her once in a while about other things, but she doesn't miss any points when it comes to repartee, although she is a very serious-minded young woman, with a heart that's intent on her work.

"The Sea Wolf" is the first Lasky picture in which Miss Scott has appeared. She has the leading feminine role, and it is quite an exacting role, at that, for she has to be on her feet physically as well as mentally. You can't ride the high seas, you know, if you aren't, and although she admits that the ocean taught her several things she didn't know before, Miss Scot has been learning rapidly and figures that she will be able to qualify for her Able Seaman's degree by the time the play is finished, and after another visit to San Francisco bay section—if the Mother Sills holds out.

KNOWS TERRA FIRMA.

It isn't such a long ways from the mountains to the sea in Southern California, and the leading woman of the "Sea Wolf" knows a lot about the terra firma part of the outdoors. You see she began her career in the films in Rex Beach's "The Barrier," playing the important role of the outdoors girl in that. She has also appeared in similar parts in Edgar Lewis productions, and it is expected that she will have a chance at another in a production of "The Round-up" at the Famous Players.

"Just the same, I don't want always to be an outdoor girl," she said. "I feel that I would be limiting my versatility if I remained faithful to one type of character. I think many of the actresses of the screen, have lost their hold on the public simply by allowing familiarity to breed contempt for them in one certain kind of portrayal.

"My first ambition, when I was still studying at the conservatory in Minneapolis, was to be a second Julia Marlowe. How strange are the ambitions of our youth! I wonder whether it is for or against me that I have relinquished my original one? Perhaps it is just a case of becoming adjusted to your proper sphere in life.

"For, you see, I have relinquished that ambition. Now my craving is for variety in roles.

ON THE STAGE.

"After I left the conservatory I went to New York and joined one of those stock companies where you are paid so much a day if you stay. And I managed to stay until I went into stock in Omaha. All this time I had felt drawn to the pictures, but you know how the films stood in the people's eyes six years ago. My family was not exactly in favor of my going on the stage, and I knew that I shouldn't dare broach the subject of pictures to them. Then about three years ago I had an offer to appear in Mr. Beach's feature, and conditions having changed, I accepted. That was the beginning of my film career. And now I'm having a hard time living down my reputation as an outdoor girl.

"I'll admit, though, that I do like these character roles. There is something very wonderful about being able to lose yourself in another individuality. That is what one naturally has to do when wearing a greasy flannel shirt and rough skirt such as I have on.

"I like my real rough-weather costume, too, but of course I'll have to admit that the afternoon gown and the natty tailored suit I wear in some scenes have a pretty strong appeal, too."

In fact, there was no mistaking the evidence of the truly feminine love for beautiful things in Miss Scott's tone when she spoke of these more attractive creations. And that's no wonder, either, for she has been wearing the flannel shirt.

HOOT, MON, SIR HARRY'S HERE.

Lauder to Play Engagement of a Week.

"Civilian Clothes" is Now in Twentieth.

Shakespearean Actor is to Appear in Repertoire.

"It looks to me like a big week this week," might well be remarked by the theatergoer, in variation on a once popular song, on viewing the advance line-up of plays and players. Naturally, it will be a big "nicht" tomorrow, when Sir Harry Lauder makes his return to this city, after several years' absence, for there is only one Lauder, just as there is only one John MacCormack, and other like stellar lights in different varieties of entertainment. Lauder is going to add a special glamour to the vaudeville portion of the programme, which will be rather brilliantly carried out in the musical comedy features at the Orpheum and Pantages.

The high-brows will have the opportunity of the year at the Mason this week, for John Kellerd, noted Shakespearean actor, is emulating Richard Mansfield in his choice of vehicles, presenting among others, "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," "Merchant of Venice," "Passing of the Third Floor Back" and "Hamlet" as a part of his repertoire.

The stock theaters are offering both old and new. "Civilian Clothes" is still an attraction, while "Saturday to Monday" promises many laughs. Armstrong's "Deep Purple" is another feature.

The photoplay headliner of the Hip vaudeville shop is "The Black Circle."

Clune's Auditorium.

Sir Harry Lauder, the Scotch comedian, has returned from a tour of Australia, and will open a week's engagement at Clune's Auditorium, starting tomorrow.

There is only one Harry Lauder, or Sir Harry, as presumably he should now be called. He is an international character, and his rich resonant voice, his laugh, grotesque movements and simple, unrestrained human fun, make such a quaint and rare combination as to give Lauder a place among entertainers which he holds without challenge.

Coincident with his return from Australia and his short American engagement en route to South Africa, Sir Harry is offering a quota of new songs—the kind which first established him in the hearts of his admirers—and in this kind of descriptive, comic song, he is without a peer.

Lauder won his reputation as a singer of character songs by his quaint interpretation of such melodious bits as "She Is Ma Daisy," "I Love a Lassie," "Roamin' in the Gloamin'" and similar songs.

One of the new songs, which is said to have the characteristic Lauder humor, is "When I Was Twenty-one."

Among Lauder's other new songs are "The Waggle O' the Kilt," "I Think I'll Get Wed in the Summertime," "There is Somebody Waiting for Me," "January-O" and "I Wish You Were Here Again." He also will give selections from a group of old favorites, including "It's Nice to Get Up in the Mornin', but Nicer to Lie in Bed," "I Love a Lassie," "A Wee Hoose Amang the Heather," "Roamin' in the Gloamin," etc.

Supplementing Sir Harry's repertoire, will be a company of entertainers, among whom are the Three Kitamuras, a Japanese offering; Miss Marion Vallance, singer of Scotch ballads; Milo, the Act Beautiful, an exhibition of equine intelligence; Miss Muriel Window, "The Little Peacock of Vaudeville," and Lauder's own band of Highland bagpipers.

Mason.

John E. Kellerd, the one American player who is devoting his art to the classic drama, will begin a week's engagement tomorrow night at the Mason. His opening bill, to be repeated Saturday night, will be "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," the tense and mysterious drama made from the weird tale by Robert Louis Stevenson. Tuesday night Mr. Kellerd will present his unique and forceful interpretation of "Hamlet," which masterpiece of Shakespeare he will repeat on Friday night.

Wednesday matinee and Thursday night Mr. Kellerd will revert to so modern an author as Jerome K. Jerome, presenting that high morality play of tender spiritual meaning, "The Passing of the Third Floor Back." The fourth play Wednesday evening and Saturday matinee will be "The Merchant of Venice."

This season Mr. Kellerd is under the direction of William F. Connor, the manager of Mme. Sarah Bernhardt. In the supporting company are Charles A. Smily, John MacFarlane, John Dean, Joseph Singer, George V. Dill, and the Misses Georgette DuParque, Doris Fellows, Edra Dill, Katherine Angus and Fredda Brindley.

Orpheum.

A musical comedy will lead the Orpheum bill beginning with tomorrow matinee. This is "Not Yet, Marie," New York success, boiled down to forty-five minutes, but with essentials in song, plot and episode retained. A company of expert solists appear, headed by William Edmunds, Hazel Boyne, Cotton and Shirley, and with a chorus of picked girls. The piece is by Frank Stammers, and is said to have a real story. Song numbers; three scenes, and the costumes add to the attraction.

Another novelty on the bill is a new frill in farces, "Sweeties" with an unusual plot. Five soldiers woo a girl, each in his own fashion, and the varied methods make for fun as well as sympathy. Comfort and King, blackface team, will return in a new version of their laughable "Coontown Divorcons." Harry Norwood and Alpha Hall are patter artists. Kharum is a Persian pianist. Donal E. Roberts is a strolling tenor, who has a reputation in the East. Jack Morrissey and company offer a novelty in their whip cracking and rope throwing as it is done in the Australian bush.

Arman Kaliz and Amelia Stone are the only act to hold over.

Morosco.

"Civilian Clothes," comedy success by Thompson Buchanan, will enter its twentieth successive week at the Morosco with today's matinee.

Since the premiere of the play here, a company has opened in the Morosco Theater, on Broadway, New York. Another has been rehearsed for Chicago, and other companies are under process of formation by Oliver Morosco.

The leading roles in the company here are played by Clyde Fillmore in the character of Capt. Sam McGinnis and Eleanor Woodruff, as the aristocratic wife.

During the week the 200th performance of the play will be staged.

Pantages.

The feature of the vaudeville at Pantages Theater, beginning the matinee tomorrow, is the musical comedy "Oh, Billy;" an up-to-date George Choos production, headed by Earl B. Mountain and Harry Bulger, Jr., with a chorus of eight girls. Several of the girls are well known locally, having been exploited as "bathing girls" with picture comedies produced here last season. Among them are Elaine Gray, Jessie Berg, Daisy Atkinson, Dixie Barry, Irene Berg, Edna Crystall, Florrie Germaine and Alma McClean.

Hall and Shapire offer "Bundles of Nonsense" with singing, jokes, and slap-stick comedy. Joe Roberts, the banjoist, has many new numbers. David S. Hall and Company give a sketch entitled "How it Really Happened" in which the man tells the audience confidentially how to treat a wife and later, the wife shows what really occurred when the occasion presented itself with the husband returning from a night at Vernon, or elsewhere. Stagpool and Spier, two Australians, offer a series of surprises in acrobatics and eccentric dancing.

Cowboy Elliott and his trained horse "Don Fulane" provide some clever riding and tricks. Also there is a new comedy picture and a series of the latest news views.

Hippodrome.

A photoplay filled with red-blooded thrills is "The Black Circle," starring Creighton Hale, at the Hippodrome starting today. It is an absorbing story of a small town newspaper man's fight against a gang of ruffians. What does the Black Circle mean? Who are the Black Riders? Those are mysteries cleared up in this picture.

On the vaudeville bill are the three violin Misses in songs, dances and violin playing. Grace DeWinters, the female ventriloquist. Knowles and Hurst, "The Long and Short of Vaudeville" in their own comedy creation; Dena Cooper and Company in a playlet, "The Frame-up;" Stafford and Watts, black face comedians and Wright and Earl, dancers.

Pelton's Burbank.

"The Deep Purple," by Paul Armstrong, will open with today's matinee at Pelton's Burbank. This will give the Dowell Stock Company their first chance to show their ability in a play that appeals.

The play's story is wound around a gang of New York bunco men, a woman thief who has "quit" and the old-time badger game with the wealthy mine owner as the intended victim and the reformed lady crook as the means of his deliverance through her attempt to save an innocent young girl who has fallen in the hands of the crooks.

Julia Gray will appear as Kate Fallon, and with Edward Dowell in the role of Laylock.

Majestic.

"Saturday to Monday," a laugh special, will be presented by the Wilkes Stock company at the Majestic Theater tonight. Miss Evelyn Varden and Edward Everett Horton will be seen in the leading roles.

"Saturday to Monday" tells the story of Susanne, who lends her enthusiasm to the suffragist cause.

Queen Emma's Domain.

The formal taking over of German New Guinea by Australia forever removes this valuable area, once known as "Queen Emma's Domain," from the authority of Germany. No matter what happens in the Peace Conference, or whether we have a League of Nations, Australia is going to continue to possess the land which she grabbed as soon as war was declared. Queen Emma passed away immediately after the breaking out of the war, in 1914, so she will not have to live in exile, or pine for her dominion.

Queen Emma was not really a queen at all. She was a half caste Samoan woman who understood business and obtained a large area of the rich cocoanut groves of the country. She acquired them legally and was considered the richest woman in the land. She married a white man, half English and half German, named Forsyth, and as Mrs. Forsyth she literally "ruled the roost." Forsyth died and his widow married a German and started the New Guinea Development Company, with no less a person than the Kaiser himself as a stockholder. It was this development company that really made the island of importance to Germany.—[New York World.

WOMEN ORGANIZE FOR MUSICAL EQUALITY.

CAMPAIGN IS CARRIED INTO CHURCH AND CLUB CIRCLES.

With preparations afoot for secret plans for a dynamic campaign to gain equal professional recognition with men, the fight of the Woman's Musicians' Equality League assumed definite proportions yesterday when Mrs. Sidney Thomas Exley, president of the Los Angeles District Federation of Women's Clubs, told the league that she will ask her executive board to launch the women musicians' campaign officially among the womens' clubs of the city.

At the same time it was decided to carry the campaign into the church circles of the city, and to ask leading ministers of Los Angeles to lend their weight to securing equal opportunities for women musicians.

Mrs. Exley, at a meeting of the Woman Musicians' Equality League yesterday, announced that her board will meet next Thursday. At that time she will ask this board to indorse the woman musicians' campaign, and also to give the backing of the district federation to the movement by asking all individual womens' clubs to make similar indorsements.

The women musicians, in the plan they propose to wage, will prove, they say, that women can keep a secret. For at yesterday's meeting secret campaign plans were mapped out and, after receiving the approval of Mrs. Exley were adopted as a line of action.

The contention of the women musicians is that women have been dismissed from orchestras in the city merely because of their sex.

"Your present fight will make the fight of all women for sex equality an easier one," Mrs. Exley told the women artists. "In various parts of the country professional and business women are struggling for equality, and whatever you do here has even greater import than justice for your special class of women workers.

"Personally I am with you heart and soul. I shall carry your message to every audience I address, and to every person I talk to. I think I can promise that all the other club women will do the same—and when 16,000 club women all talk about the same thing at the same time, they usually 'start something.'"

The South Side Ebell Club yesterday unanimously adopted resolutions protesting against sex discrimination in any orchestras in the city, demanding equal rights for women artists with men. The Wa Wan Club will take the matter up at its meeting next Wednesday and the Dominant Club will take action on Saturday. Miss Lalla Fagge, one of the young women musicians, will address the latter organization.

Women musicians are triumphant over a message sent them by Alfred Hertz, director of the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra, and one of the leading musicians of the world. Mr. Hertz stated that he is unqualifiedly in favor of women in orchestras, and declared that if Los Angeles keeps them out it will place itself far behind London, Paris and other great cities where women always play in the orchestras.

TITLES WORRY AIRMEN.

Royal Air Force is Disturbed Over Rank Designations.

The Royal Air Force is just a little self-conscious and not altogether happy over the new and grandiloquent titles bestowed upon its officers by an ungrateful Air Ministry a few weeks back. Lieutenants and second lieutenants, now styled "flying officers and "pilot officers," have not much to grumble at, as the ranks might mean anything, but "Flight Lieutenant" Smith, ranking as an army captain, is condemned to being mistaken for an ordinary lieutenant, and "Squadron Leader" Jones, ranking as a major, has a real grouch, for in the cavalry a "squadron leader" is usually a lieutenant.

Even the higher ranks are embarrassed, for while a lieutenant-colonel can worry along as a "wing commander," the new "Group Captain" Brown groans when he thinks of how he was once called colonel. The brigadier-general, who has to exchange his sword and baton badge for some, as yet unfixed, insignia to match the rank of "air commodore," says: "I might be in charge of some beastly barge."

Air vice-marshal, air marshal and air chief marshal, for major-generals, lieutenant-generals and generals, respectively, are awful mouthfuls, and the giddy heights of "marshal of the air," corresponding with field marshal and admiral of the fleet, are beyond the reach of ordinary aviators.

The Air Ministry announced, in publishing the changes of rank, that it was due to a desire to "emphasize the independence and integrity of the Royal Air Force as a separate service among the fighting forces of the crown," but the general opinion, in service and civilian circles alike, is that officialdom has badly bungled a question in which there was a scope for originality and ingenuity. The same hidebound officialdom has already bungled the question of uniforms for the Royal Air Force.

The flying fighters hadn't worried much about the subject of uniforms. Any old overalls were good enough for bombing "Jerry," and leather, rubber or furs if it was cold. If you were in the military wing, you could wear khaki; if the navy wing, navy blue. But "Notonyerlife," said officialdom. A special group of "war workers" got busy on a pretty new dark blue uniform. "Not for mine," said the military flyers, inspecting it.

So they tried a greeny brown material, with naval rank badges. "Nunno. Blue for the navy," said the nautical flyers. Then the experts devised a nerve-jarring "sky blue" with naval badges and military ranks. Army and navy alike groaned, but made no more suggestions. Having bought two new kinds of uniforms, and being saddled with a third, they said no more in case worse befell.—[Manitoba Free Press.

THE SUB-DEB OF FILMLAND.

know I never learned to play hopscotch until I was twelve years old? When I had a little vacation from my work in New York, and the children taught me out on the sidewalk. I never really did learn how to play. I was always working," Mary sighed.

"I'm just caught in the golden web of fate," she went on pensively.

Now doesn't that sound subdebby?

I asked her if she minded if I asked her something, and she said no. So I asked her if she had had any love affairs.

"Oh," she said quite frankly, "a lot of childish affairs, nothing deep—yet." But she said it in a tone of conviction, as if she felt a really deep case setting in with unusual severity.

"But if ever I have a big love affair ending unhappily, of course, I shall feel awful if I don't die of a broken heart. It would seem indelicate not to, now wouldn't it?"

Speaking of love one got naturally onto the subject of homes. Miss Minter and her mother have taken the Helen Matthewson residence in Fremont Place, and are to move into it before Thanksgiving.

"What are you looking forward to most in your new home?" I asked.

"Well," said Miss Minter, "of course, I'm looking forward to the big library and to trying to make up my mind about some deep questions, but next to that I'm looking forward to my big four-post bedstead, with the blue canopy over the top and steps leading up to it, into which I shall sink every night about 9:30 o'clock after a hard day's work!"

"Are you going to have any pets?"

"Well, dogs always get killed, and I don't care for monkeys or lizards or toads, so I think I'll have birds. No, not an aviary. I'll just let 'em sit around wherever they want to."

"Do you like talking birds?"

"Well, it depends on what they talk about!"

Asked concerning her future and success, Miss Minter answered, making a very neat little epigram, I thought: "Well, nobody ought to think of himself as reaching the pinnacle of success alone, because if he does that, he'll meet himself coming back.

"It just can't be done," she went on: "you've got to think of your success as carrying people along with you, helping wherever you can, and always trying to inspire."

Miss Minter is thoroughly democratic and loves studying people. That she comes into contact with few makes her interest all the keener. "And I just love people," she said, "especially"—and this is very sub-debby, indeed, isn't it?—"the people who are doing the great work of the world in the background."

The other day there was a little Mexican youngster, the child of one of the studio workers, on the set where Miss Minter was working. The child had been placed for safekeeping in an old wheelbarrow. He simply wouldn't smile, because his dad couldn't leave his work to move him about, so Miss Minter picked up the wheelbarrow and pushed it, with the result the baby soon was crowing delightedly.

"And I read somewhere that you have founded a home for stray dogs and cats?" I asked. Miss Minter talked reluctantly about that, but finally admitted she had endowed one in the East, and that she was going to establish such a home out here as soon as she is settled. Right now she's nursing a wounded wildcat that was used in "Judy of Rogues' Harbor."

But she loves helping people, and here's one I heard from somebody else, which she will be surprised to read about here. There was a returned soldier whom she knew, who is now suffering from tuberculosis. He asked her help, with the result she has found a comfortable home for him, and he is on the way to recovery.

"I love revealing people to themselves," said the star, her blue eyes sparkling with enthusiasm, "and showing them how to help themselves. I had a maid once who was very stupid, but I saw it was just because she had never had sufficient responsibility thrust upon her. So I made her attend to all my small business affairs and look after the children about the studio. Also I got her to reading. She was soon studying at night, and now she's in college. Oh, it was a pleasure to do that."

Miss Minter expresses herself as very happy in her new surroundings, with William D. Taylor, her director, just the most wonderful director in the world.

"Do you know what he did when he came back from war, which service, by the way, he performed entirely voluntarily? Well, though he had no contract with Lasky, and though he was offered by another company just three times what he had been getting with Lasky, he returned to the firm because he had said he would! Now, wasn't that just splendid? That's what I call being a fine gentleman."

"Miss Minter is always very enthusiastic and warm in her friendships. For instance, Mrs. Charlotte Whitney, her secretary, is expecting the arrival of the stork almost any day now, and Miss Minter has been preparing all sorts of wonderful things for the new baby.

CHRISTMAS PLANS.

"We'll have a perfectly wonderful Christmas in the new house," said Miss Minter, "for my grandmother, Charlotte Shelby, you know, is coming out from New York, and then there will be Charlotte Whitney and her baby, and, oh, how wonderful it is to welcome a little soul into this world of life, of sorrow and joy, of weeping over algebra lessons and laughing over having a new automobile or other bauble!"

Which last does sound delightfully sub-debby, now, doesn't it?

You fall to speculating, naturally, talking to Mary Miles Minter, of what Miss Mary would be in other walks of life; and you decide she's the sort of person, who, if she were a society girl, would lead all the charity activities, have all the beaus, be the best dancer, and yet would also read Browning, the Literary Digest and the front page of the internal news.

In short, Mary Miles Minter is a wonderful little all-'round girl.

"Everywoman" Review.

A pre-view of "Everywoman," the Paramount-Artcraft beauty picture, was shown at a Hollywood theater Monday night. The audience was made up largely of studio folk, and a few patrons of the theater. George H. Melford, director, and Theodore Roberts, Wanda Hawley, Monte Blue, Irving Cummings and many other members of the cast who were present were heartily congratulated for their work. Violet Heming, who played the title role, made a distinct hit.

Warner Doesn't Weaken.

A bullet and flying glass apparently hold no fears for H. B. Warner, Jesse D. Hampton star, as demonstrated during the filming of a scene in the current production, "The House of a Thousand Candles."

In one scene a wineglass was to be shot from his hand. Silver Tip, a noted marksman, handled the rifle. They were about to shoot the scene when Mr. Hampton arrived.

The danger of the star losing an eye or a finger, and ruining his career, was feared by Mr. Hampton. So the producer said he would hold the glass in a close-up and let the star finish the scene in a long shot. Fred Gabourie, the production manager, already had held the glass for the rehearsal, but Warner refused, quoting from Wilde's "Ballads of Redding Gaol:"

"For he who lives more lives than one, more deaths than one shall die."

With this he took his position before the camera. Crash went the glass. The stem only remained in Warner's hand, and property wine was splashed all over his face and clothes. A bit of flying glass cut Assistant Director Charles Huber, standing fifteen feet away with Mr. Hampton, but Warner never for an instant forgot the camera was clicking. As he stopped he merely remarked:

"A shame to waste even near wine these prohibition days."

—o—

Bryan Helped His Career.

That William Jennings Bryan helped a lot to start Charles Ray, star of "Crooked Straight" coming to Grauman's tomorrow, on his strenuous screen career, has recently been known. Some eighteen years ago the town of Jacksonville, Ill., held a celebration in honor of Mr. Bryan, a graduate of Illinois College, located there. A 9-year-old boy took part in the festivities. He hustled packing boxes for the bonfire, stopped a runaway horse by hurling himself at the flying bridle, walked a tight rope, and made himself generally useful. It was Charles Ray, and the swift moving panorama made a deep appeal to him.

Eight years later Charlie attended the college of which Bryan is an alumnus. Another celebration was held. Young Ray, tall, ungainly, strong as a young heifer, took the whole celebration on his shoulders. He led the band and gave a one-man gymnastic exhibition; acted as a barker for the circus, and did most of the stunts himself; and when William J. appeared, he shinnied up a telegraph pole, hung by his toes and dropped paper flowers on the head of the greatest also-ran.

Laskys Purchase Land.

By the recent purchase of approximately ten acres of land, the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation acquires full title to the land occupied by the Lasky studio, according to an announcement made by the officials of that organization.

The land involved in the recent transaction comprises a portion of the Lasky studio property and has been hitherto leased by the corporation. Although no figures were mentioned in the announcement, it is understood that the purchase price totaled several hundred thousand dollars.

Negotiations for the transaction were carried forward by Neil McCarthy, attorney for the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, and representatives of the Beveridge estate, former owners of the property.

Two Sennett Comedies.

Mack Sennett has just finished making two new comedies at his Alessandro-street studio—"His Last False Step," in which Ford Sterling, Phyllis Haver, Charlotte Mineau and Kalla Pasha are the featured players; and "Down on the Farm," which those who have seen the picture at his preview declare to be one of the funniest rural comedies. Louise Fazenda is seen as the farmer's daughter, Bert Roach is the farmer, Harry Gribbon is Louise's farmhand sweetheart, James Finlayson is the mean old village banker with the mortgage, and Baby Don Marion, the 2-year-old Mack Sennett comedian, plays a prominent part in this, his third picture.

Baby Don Marion is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry G. Davis of Hollywood. Teddy, the famous Mack Sennett dog, and Pepper, the cat, do some of their stunts in "Down on the Farm."

—o—

Had to Conserve Elephants.

Houdini, now starring in Famous Players-Lasky productions claims the distinction of originating the smallest and biggest tricks of magic. The smallest is his weird stunt of apparently swallowing, one by one, a whole package of needles and then drawing them from his mouth threaded.

The biggest was the piece of magic that set all New York talking when, during his act at the Hippodrome, he daily made a 10,000-pound elephant disappear.

"I had to stop that stunt," Houdini laughs. "Mr. Hoover objected because I was diminishing the supply of elephants too rapidly."

—o—

Polo's New Serial.

Work on "The Vanishing Dagger," a new, fifteen-episode serial, starring Eddie Polo, will start tomorrow at Universal, under the direction of Jacques Jaccard. Many of the scenes and incidents taken on Polo's recent trip abroad will be used in the new serial. Polo's last serial success was "The Lure of the Circus." Since that time he has made ten two-reel westerns called the Cyclone Smith stories.

—o—

Engages Southern Belle.

Leatrice Joy, southern beauty, has been loaned to Maxwell Karger by George Loane Tucker, as Bert Lytell's leading woman in "The Right of Way," the Sir Gilbert Parker novel now filming at Metro.

Miss Joy signed with Metro and started work with Mr. Lytell Thursday. She is the last important member of the cast to be selected. Others in "The Right of Way" with Mr Lytell are Gibson Gowland, Virginia Caldwell, Antrim Short, Carmer Phillips, and Frank Currier.

Leatrice Joy is a New Orleans girl. She was educated in the Sacred Heart Academy, and the local High School. During her senior year she starred in five-reel dramas for a New Orleans concern, releasing through Pathe. On her graduation in February, Miss Joy went to New York, accompanied by her mother, and was engaged an ingenue with Robert Warwick in "A Girl's Folly."

In 1918 Miss Joy came to California, played one or two ingenue parts, and joined a dramatic stock company at San Diego, where for a season she appeared in such plays as "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," "The Walk-Offs," "Upstairs and Down," "Mother Carey's Chickens" and "Sinners."

—o—

Another English "Meller."

"The Hope" will be the second Drury Lane melodrama to be filmed by Screen Classics, Inc., according to Maxwell Karger. Albert Shelby LeVino, who picturized "The Best of Luck," Metro's first Drury Laner, is working on the script.

"The Hope" is a collaboration by the late Cecil Raleigh and Henry Hamilton, and it was produced at the Theater Royal, Drury Lane, Ltd., in 1911, under the direction of Arthur Collins. This trio evolved "The Best of Luck," now under film production with an all-star cast.

The scene of "The Hope" opens in England, and shifts through India and Italy. Among other thrilling episodes are a border embroglio, a volcanic eruption, and an earthquake.

Richard A. Rowland, president of Metro Pictures Corporation, purchased five famous Drury Lane thrillers while on his recent visit to Europe. The sum paid for the five was $100,000, it is stated. "The Best of Luck," the latest to be produced in London, was the first to be picturized. It is now nearing completion under the direction of Ray C. Smallwood, the cast being headed by Jack Holt, Kathryn Adams, Lilie Leslie and Frederic Malatesta.

—o—

Comedienne in Films.

Miss Pansy de Lacour, comedienne, recently with the 1919 Revue and other musical shows, has lately entered the cinema field here, and is appearing in pictures at Goldwyn studio. Miss De Lacour has been on the stage practically all her life. Her parents were in the theatrical profession, and she was born "on the road." She has the honor of being honorary colonel of the Twenty-sixth Infantry, made so while playing a southern city.

—o—

The Shekels of Wealth.

Elsa Lorimer, who is portraying "Wealth" in the "Vision" portion of Cecil de Mille's "Why Change Your Wife" at the Famous Players-Lasky studio, wears a costume that is made entirely of money—that is, it is made of pieces of metal representing money. Thousands of these pieces are linked together, forming an armor-like effect, and they weigh over 300 pounds.

On seeing the costume for the first time, Adele Farrington, who was visiting the studio, immediately compared it to the armor worn by the horse in "Shenandoah."

It seems quite appropriate that Miss Lorimer is representing "Wealth" at this time, as she became the possessor of a collection of diamonds and considerable money only a few weeks ago through a legacy.

—o—

"Photoplay Magazine" Changes.

Coincident with the departure of Julian Johnson, formerly editor of Photoplay Magazine, Alfred A. —an event unique in merchandising annals.

—"15" is the keynote.

—it is the 15th year in Swelldom's onward march of progress.

—15 per cent. EXTRA discounts will be given to every 15th purchaser.

—SPECIAL 15 per cent. discounts will be featured in several departments *—and, oddly enough, every sale price will end with the significant figure 15!

This 15th year has been the most important, many ways, in Swelldom's history—in new friends made—in new goals and ideals achieved—and in wonderfully increased volume of business, the surest mark of the public appreciation which Swelldom has won and ever strives to merit.

EXTRA DISCOUNT of 15%

will be given every 15th—purchaser during this Sale

This will be an event fulfilling all the promises we have given.

An event that will feature the most lavish collection of winter fashions which Swelldom has been able to assemble from the foremost marts of the style world.

An event that will simply bristle with bargains of the better kind—bargains that represent not reduction in the prices of effete, shop-worn merchandise, but the most liberal special concessions in absolutely fresh, up-to-the-minute modes, all gathered especially for this big birthday celebration — all the finest productions of the leading tailleurs of America.

Manufacturers from whom we buy heavily, have honored our anniversary by granting to us this year exceptionally liberal discounts. We are passing on these savings to our patrons, with the addition of still further concessions on our own part, as birthday tokens.

We hope that you will be with us Monday morning to wish us "many returns of the day" and to participate in the benefits of this most important occasion.

BANNING.

Thursday, October 30, a social was held in the Methodist Church. The ladies of the church served light refreshments. The committee on parsonage plans submitted their report and a free discussion followed.

Mr. French Gilman, of this city, and Wilson Hanna, of Colton, attended the convention of ornithologists of Southern California, at Santa Barbara, a few days ago.

Lloyd and James Miller of Los Angeles visited their brother, Frank, here this week.

Jesse Miller, a college friend of Frank Miller, is visiting here this week.

J. O. Ryan left Tuesday for Parkdale, Or., to look after his ranch interests for about two weeks.

Mrs. Harold Fountain is visiting her old home in Woodland, Yolo county.

A number of ladies of the Methodist Church are planning a reception for Rev. F. P. Morgan, the new pastor of the church, and the teachers of the local schools, for Friday, November 7, at 7:30 p.m., at the church. Invitations will be issued to the pastors of all churches of the city and vicinity and the public school-teachers of this city and Cabazon. Mrs. Johnson, Mrs. Hill and Mrs. George Fountain constitute a committee on programme, and they will have a good programme in shape for the occasion.

OXNARD.

One of the most enjoyable parties of the younger social set took place Saturday evening at the Ed Farrell country home near Hueneme. The affair, which was arranged by the Misses Kate and Julia Farrell, was a complete surprise to their brother Raymond Farrell and was in honor of his birthday anniversary. Halloween motif was carried out in the decorations and each guest found their places at the refreshment table marked with their fortune concealed in a nutshell.

A house warming which proved one of the most enjoyable social gatherings of the week was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. Mathers at their new home on the Denlon ranch, on Saturday evening. After an evening of dancing, dainty refreshments, which had been Corns 'Tween Toes?

Use Easy "Gets-It"

Any Corn or Callus Comes Off Peacefully, Gloriously. Never Fails.

Any Corn Peels Off With "Gets-It."

It is easy for "Gets-It" to reach "hard-to-get-at" corns, and better yet, it is easy to remove them because "Gets-It" makes them come right off just like a banana peel. You can try to dig or drag out your corns with a knife, or slice them with a "bloody" razor, or use bandages and tape and wrap up your toe into a package, but that's the "treat-'em-rough," painful, foolish way. Use 2 or 3 drops of "Gets-It"—that's the peaceful, sure, common-sense way that never fails. You reach the corn easily with the little glass rod in the cork of every "Gets-It" bottle. It does not hurt the true flesh. Try it, trot and smile! It's a blessing; never fails.

"Gets-It," the only sure, guaranteed, money-back corn-remover, costs but a trifle at any drug store. Manufactured by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill.

Sold in Los Angeles and recommended as the world's best corn remedy by The Owl Drug Co.

Begy's Mustarine For Sore Throat And Chest Colds

Just rub on Begy's Mustarine if you want to get rid of that cold on the chest, bronchitis, pleurisy or sore throat in double quick time. It cannot blister and you can get a big yellow box of this original, real mustard plaster improvement at a very small price.

A box is equal to 50 blistering mustard plasters and with it you can stop toothache, headache and earache in 10 minutes. Prescribed by doctors for 15 years. Nothing so quick and effective to end rheumatic pains, neuritis, neuralgia and lumbago.

Be sure it's Begy's Mustarine, the original in the yellow box. The 60-cent size contains two and one-half times as much as the 30-cent size. It's great for chilblains and frosted feet.

Money back if it isn't by far the best mustard preparation on the market.

S. C. Wells & Co., LeRoy, N. Y.

STOPS PA MUSTARINE CANNOT BLISTER

How to Remove Wrinkles Quickly

If the average woman only knew it it is not at all difficult to preserve the youthful contour and velvety smoothness of complexion. Every woman hates to see her face wrinkled or baggy, and practically every one has experimented with some sort of patent remedy in the effort either to remove such condition or ward it off.

As a matter of fact, the most effective remedy in the world is one that any woman can easily make up herself at home in a moment's time. Let her take one ounce of pure powdered saxolite, which she can purchase at any drug store, and dissolve it in a half pint of witch hazel. Apply this harmless and refreshing solution to the face every day for awhile. The results are surprising, to say the least. Even after the very first application a marked improvement is apparent. The wrinkles are less in evidence and the face has a comfortable, snug feeling of firmness that is most delightful.—Advertisement.

Curling Hair Like This Promotes Its Health.

For those whose hair is straight and lank nothing better could be recommended than the silmerine method. This insures a beautiful curliness which is perfectly natural in appearance, and the health of the hair is not affected as where the heated iron is used. A few ounces of liquid silmerine—which can of course be had at any drug store—lasts a long time, so it is quite economical to use. It is pleasant to use, too, being neither sticky nor greasy, and is easily applied with a clean tooth brush. The hair should be moistened the full length before retiring.

The pretty wavy effect in evidence in the morning is surprising to those who try this simple method the first time. The liquid also serves as an excellent dressing, giving the hair a delightful gloss.—Advertisement.

SOCIETY.

brought by the self-invited guests were served.

Mrs. James J. Krouser was hostess on a recent afternoon to the members of the bridge club. The Halloween motif was carried out in charming detail in the decorations. Mrs. I. M. Poggi substituted in the absence of one of the members.

An enjoyable surprise party was tendered Mrs. Walter Bell recently at her home, on the occasion of her birthday anniversary. Dancing was the divertisement and at a late hour delicious refreshments were served.

Miss Kathryn Nobel, whose wedding to Henry Ramelli of Santa Paula will take place shortly, was the honoree at a charming prenuptial party at the home of Mrs. Leon Revelon on Tuesday afternoon. The affair was a miscellaneous shower and the numerous handsome gifts received by the bride-to-be were displayed at a table attractively decorated with pink geraniums and fern. A buffet luncheon was served at the afternoon's close.

A merry gathering was held last Sunday when 100 guests assembled only three of whom were not relatives, for a pig dinner at the home of Casper Borchard, Sr., in honor of his seventy-seventh birthday. The guests came from Santa Ana, Hollywood and Los Angeles as well as from all parts of Ventura county.

ANAHEIM.

Quite the event of the week was the triple wedding solemnized on Sunday at high noon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Simpson of Placentia avenue and North streets, when their daughters, Misses Mabel Claire and Elizabeth Maude, and their niece, Miss Alta Ramona Snyder, became the brides of Otto Michaels, Charles M. Commins, and Lawrence S. Lynde., Rev. J. F. Humphrey officiating. The vows were exchanged under an archway formed of maidenhair fern and La France roses, the impressive ring service being used. About twenty near friends and relatives were present, and after the service an elaborate luncheon was served at Hotel Lankershim. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Commins will reside in Fresno, where the groom is associated with Fresno Chamber of Commerce, while Mr. and Mrs. Michaels and Mr. and Mrs. Lynde will reside in Los Angeles, where both grooms are in business.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sidener entertained with a dinner party on Sunday in honor of their wedding anniversary, having as their guests Dr. and Mrs. Markle, who have just recently arrived from the East to reside; Rev. and Mrs. A. B. Markle, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Mayhew, who have just returned from an extended visit to Canada, and Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Ritchie. All of the guests are old-time friends.

The West End Country Club held a very pleasant meeting on Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John Keys of Garden Grove road, the ladies spending a very pleasant season with needlework. Present were Mmes. F. H. Wessler, F. Meredith, J. H. Ritchie, G. W. Tolsen, C. E. Douglass, J. K. Brown, A. F. Fishering and Miss Clara Kincaid.

Mr. and Mrs. V. La Mont gave a housewarming and get-acquainted party at their new Colonial Apartments, that have just been completed, on Friday evening. About thirty-five guests were present, all of whom are tenants. The early part of the evening was passed at an informal game of whist, with Mrs. Seymour and Mr. Cole winning first prizes, Mrs. Walter Mickle and Mr. Kirk, second, while Mrs. Ray Barnett and Dr. Wilheim were awarded the consolations. Dancing was then enjoyed for a season.

On Monday afternoon the Ebell Club had the pleasure of hearing Rev. D. T. Gilmor give a delightful talk on his experiences as a chaplain while in the service. Rev. Gilmor was formerly rector of St. Michael's Church, and a number of his friends who have not seen him since he returned home from service were glad of having this opportunity of seeing him. At the P.-T.A. meeting on Tuesday afternoon a clever playlet, "A Neighborly Chat," was presented. There was a good attendance and this year's interest in P.-T.A. work is very marked.

Eleanor and Frederick Longworth celebrated their birthday anniversaries on Saturday evening by entertaining about fifty children at an elaborate Halloween party.

PASO ROBLES.

Miss Helen Baron is spending a fortnight with her brother, Dr. Paul Baron, of San Francisco.

Mrs. W. A. Johnson is home from a month's visit in San Francisco. She was accompanied on her return by her niece, Miss Katherine Dwyer, who will spend a few weeks as her guest.

Mrs. Frank Fleisig has returned from San Francisco, where she has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Lilian Fabian.

Mrs. A. B. Hitchcock was hostess at a luncheon and bridge party Monday at the Paso Robles Hotel, the following guests being present: Mmes. G. W. Hamilton, Paul Brown, Battershall, G. Booth, H. Nelson, J. S. Campbell, C. Wreden, C. Day, J. Talbot, O. Claassen, J. Beckett, G. Trussler, M. J. Glass, H. Wilmar and T. Goulding.

Mrs. Frank Cummings and Mrs. Roy Warden are spending a few days in San Francisco.

ONTARIO.

Mrs. Howard Raymond Berg was hostess Thursday afternoon at her home, 306 West E street, at a tea of charming appointments. The golden tones of autumn predominated in the effective decorations. Happy informality marked the affair, toward the close of which a tempting collation was served. This was the second of a series of similar events with which Mrs. Berg is entertaining.

Mrs. Harold Clarke Moore was hostess at a smart bridge tea, Tuesday afternoon, at her home, Euclid avenue and Eighth street. Prizes at the auction tournament were awarded Mrs. Hampton Fuller, Mrs. Frederick C. Froehde and Mrs. Harvey Oliver Chapman. A collation followed the games.

Miss Josephine Howard was hostess Friday evening at her home, 307 West J street, to a merry group of friends. Lights shaded in yellow and green cast a warm glow over the rooms and games appropriate to the Halloween season were the order of the evening. Refreshments followed.

The marriage of Miss Orpha Fern Keasey and John D. Kropp was celebrated Monday morning at the parsonage of the First Evangelical Church, 404 East E street, the Rev. August Goetze officiating. Only a few close relatives and intimte friends witnessed the ceremony and numbered Miss Gladys Keasey, Miss Etta Kropp, Miss Augusta Kropp, Virgil Watking and Ernest Larsen. A wedding dinner followed at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Keasey, 1001 South Sultana avenue. Another wedding was solemnized Wednesday at the same place when Miss Minnie Katherine Kropp, sister of John D. Kropp, became the bride of Adolph Joseph Ritter of Corona. A wedding dinner followed at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Kropp, 564 West D street.

Little Miss Betty Webber entertained a large group of friends Thursday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Franklin Webber, 402 West J street, in honor of her birthday anniversary. The hostess was assisted by her mother, Mrs. Henry Edson Swan, Mrs. E. J. Davis and Mrs. Edward T. Davis.

TAFT.

Mrs. H. Coghlan entertained several young people at her home recently in honor of the birthday anniversary of her daughter, Miss Lacie Coghlan. Halloween games were played for a time, after which delightful refreshments were served.

Ten girl friends were entertained at a party given at the home of Bona Stanley. The occasion was the birthday anniversary of the hostess. Refreshments were served.

Jump from Bed in Morning and Drink Hot Water

Tells why everyone should drink hot water each morning before breakfast.

To see the healthy bloom in your face, to see your skin get clearer and clearer, to wake up without a headache, backache, coated tongue or a nasty breath, in fact to feel your best, day in and day out, just try inside bathing every morning for a week.

Before breakfast each day, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it as a harmless means of washing from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and toxins, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases and acidity and gives one a fine appetite for breakfast.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will cost very little at the drug store, but is sufficient to demonstrate that those who are subject to constipation, bilious attacks, acid stomach, rheumatic twinges or whose skin is sallow or pallid, that one week of inside bathing will have them looking and feeling better every way.—[Advertisement.

CUT THIS OUT

OLD ENGLISH RECIPE FOR CATARRH, CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES.

If you know of some one who is troubled with Catarrhal Deafness, head noises or ordinary catarrh, cut out this formula and hand it to them and you may have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. In England scientists for a long time past have recognized that catarrh is a constitutional disease and necessarily requires constitutional treatment.

Sprays, inhalers and nose douches are liable to irritate the delicate air passages and force the disease into the middle ear which frequently means total deafness, or else the disease may be driven down the air passages towards the lungs which is equally as dangerous. The following formula which is used extensively in the damp English climate is a constitutional treatment and should prove especially efficacious to sufferers here who live under more favorable climate conditions.

Secure from your druggist 1 ounce of Parmint (Double strength.) Take this home and add to it ½ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. This will often bring quick relief from distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and hearing improve as the inflammation in the eustachian tubes is reduced. Parmint used in this way acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system and has a tonic action that helps to obtain the desired results. The preparation is easy to make, costs little and is pleasant to take. Every person who has catarrh or head noises or is hard of hearing should give this treatment a trial.—[Advertisement.

THIS MAY HELP YOU

Home - Mixed Cough Syrup Very Cheap, Very Effective.

Mrs. Joseph Meilleur, 445 Jefferson street, Tiffin, Ohio, writes:

"I have used the Mentho-Laxene for colds. Must say I find it better than any cough syrup I have ever used yet. I coughed night and day for a week. After I got the Mentho-Laxene to use the coughing stopped in three days, etc."

Just buy a 2½-ounce bottle of Mentho-Laxene (it is richly concentrated) and mix it with simple syrup, as per directions with bottle, and then you will have a whole pint of the finest, quickest cold, cough and catarrh medicine you ever used, and no opiates or narcotics, either. Hundreds of thousands of people now make their own medicine to avoid expense and uncertainty.—[Advertisement

SANTA PAULA.

Standing against a background of rustic greenery at the S. S. Rogers home on Wednesday evening, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rogers was united in marriage to George W. Harvey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mack Harvey of this city and Los Angeles. Preceding the service "O Promise Me" (De Koven) was sung by Mrs. Stephens, accompanied by Miss Marguerite Crider of Fillmore, with violin obfligato by Thad Harvey. To the strains of the "Lohengrin" march, played by Mrs. L. S. Duke, the bride, Miss Geneveive Lois Rogers, entered on the arm of her father, followed by the matron of honor, Mrs. Annetta Wannell, sister of the bridegroom, wearing yellow charmeuse with yellow net and carrying an arm bouquet of yellow chysanthemums. The bridegroom approached the altar from the opposite side of the room, accompanied by the brother of the bride, Earl Rogers. The bridal gown was of white, silver lace hanging over draped silk, covered by her coronet-style veil, and she wor a string of pearls. Her arm bouquet was in shower style and was composed of bride roses. Rev. Dwight C. Chapin performed the ceremony.

A musical programme was rendered during the time of congratulations and the serving of the two-course supper, which followed. Mr. and Mrs. Harvey slipped away by automobile after the supper was over, planning to go to San Francisco for a short stay, then to return to the Santa Paula-street home, which is in readiness for them. Mrs. Harvey is a student of U.S.C. and is a musician of considerable attainment.

H. Clyde Harms has come to Santa Paula after twenty-three months' in France where he was for a part of that time in the legal department of the international courier service, and is at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Harms on the Limoniera ranch. As soon as the house, which Mr. Harms is having built for his home, shall be completed, Mrs. Harms will arrive, being now on a visit in Tulsa, Okla., her home town. Mrs. Harms was a Red Cross canteen worker in France and it was in this line of service that she and her present husband became acquainted, their marriage taking place last July in London, Eng. Before his entrance into the war, Mr. Harms was engaged in the practice of law in San Francisco, and he expects to establish himself in legal practice here.

In honor of Sergt. Johnston Irish of the United States aviation service, Mrs. C. W. Dawley entertained very informally on Thursday evening, having as her guests at the same time a number of the young friends of her daughter, Miss Vivian Dawley. Music occupied the greator part of the evening.

Whose engagement to Eric E. Lamhofer has just been announced. [Photo by Robbins.]

Halloween parties during this week were quite the order of the day and kept the Santa Paula calendar well filled socially. The Arthur F. Waldens gave a party on Thursday evening at their Hill Road ranch home, and on Friday evening the Elmer G. Outlands entertained at their country place Miss Katherine Higgins gave a party on Friday for a few of her friends of the younger set. Another Halloween affair was the dinner of the Sunset Club at the J. B. Laufman home on Seventh street on Thursday evening to which the guests all came in fancy dress and seasonable games were played after dinner.

Members of the Association of Cotlegiate Alumnae of Ventura county were on Saturday the guests of Mrs. James Culbertson at her home on the Limoniera ranch, when the subject of lemon culture, so vital to this region, was made the topic of an interesting address given by Mr. Cubertson who is the superintendent of this great ranch and is well qualified to speak on this industry, both from its cultural and industrial aspects. Tea was served at the close of the afternoon and an informal musical programme rendered by Miss Arley Mott.

Italy, as seen through the years of the war, was the topic treated by Miss Lelia Taylor, the Red Cross nurse who on Monday afternoon appeared before the regular meeting of the Ebell Club. Her address was wonderfully instructive as well as entertaining. Mrs. F. G. Schulze furnished the musical part of the programme, giving "I Hear a Thrush at Eve" (Cadman) and "In the Dark, In the Dew" (Combs) with piano accompaniment by Miss Arley Mott.

HIGHLAND.

Halloween was celebrated in Highland with various festivities including parties, dinners, wienie roasts and the yearly present pranks of the youngsters. Mrs. J. M. Spaulding presided as hostess at a very charmingly appointed 6 o'clock dinner party given Friday evening at their home on Palm avenue. Halloween motifs decorated the living-room and table.

Mrs. C. M. Hill was tendered a delightful surprise party on Saturday evening in honor of her birthday. Several auto loads arrived at the Hill home early in the evening and after several merry hours, surprise rereshments were produced and greatly enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Powell entertained with a handsomely-appointed 6 o'clock dinner given Saturday at their home at Cliffside ranch in honor of their thirtieth wedding anniversary. Fifteen years of that time have been spent in this community. The appointments of the dinner were in pink and white, pink dahlias and ferns centering the table. Hand-painted place cards marked the covers for Mrs. Charles Wiltshire and daughter, Clara of San Bernardino, Mrs. Nora Boyd, Mrs. Ella Roddick, Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Heatwold of Redlands; Mr. and Mrs. Charles La Follette, Rollin La Follette of Leffingwell; Mr. and Mrs. Powell, Miss Helen and Harold Powell. It was interesting to know that the first four named guests were present when Mr. and Mrs. Powell celebrated their tenth anniversary.

At a beautifully-appointed party at the home of the bride-to-be announcement was made of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Nellie Carter to Fred L. Cram, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Cram of East Base Line. Mr. Cram who is a native Highlander has only recently returned from overseas having been in service nearly two years.

Miss Lyda Colliver of Los Altos and Herbert Quinn of Ocean Park were week-end guests of Mrs. Julia Prescott and Mrs. Florence M. Orton at their home on North Palm avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Evans have returned to the valley after enjoying several months at their summer home at Forest Home.

UNIQUE CREATIONS in DIAMOND JEWELRY

Our presentation of distinctly new ideas in diamond jewelry for the holiday trade includes conceptions of surpassing cleverness and magnificence.

Novelties of a type which are rarely found outside of the great Eastern jewelry institutions of America, characterize this important showing.

Many of our patrons who have recently reviewed our offerings declare that they are unquestionably the most exquisitely designed pieces ever shown in Los Angeles.

Our selections, as usual, have been made with typical Nordlinger discrimination.

Among them are exquisite diamond bowknots and tassels—artistic pieces containing marquise and emerald-cut diamonds—and striking combinations of emerald-cut diamonds and sapphires, also emeralds and diamonds. Description is futile—they must be seen.

Jewelry and associated lines are scarce this season. Do your buying now while stocks are complete. No replacements can be made in time for Xmas. We are ordering stock now that cannot be delivered until Spring.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR WHY IT INCREASES

Hair growth is stimulated and its frequent removal is necessary when merely removed from the surface of the skin. The only logical and practical way to remove hair is to attack it under the skin. DeMiracle, the original sanitary liquid, does this by absorption.

Only genuine DeMiracle has a money-back guarantee in each package. At toilet counters in 60c, $1 and $2 sizes, or by mail from us in plain wrapper on receipt of price.

FREE book mailed in plain sealed envelope on request. DeMiracle, 129th St. and Park Ave., New York

RED FEATHER COMPLEXION POWDER

Contains certain ingredients which make it distinctively perfect.

It has the necessary adhering quality.

It acts as an astringent, contracting the pores of the skin and producing that baby softness.

It is daintily fragrant. Three shades—flesh, brunette and white.

It couldn't be better, though the price were multiplied by ten.

A generous size box for 50c.

SOCIETY.

ange on Saturday evening, where they were guests at a delightful Halloween party given by Mr. Lanfair's sister, Mrs. James Dobbs, at the Dobbs home at Olive. Besides the Halloween features of the affair, there was also celebrated the birthday anniversaries of eight of the guests. A large birthday cake ornamented the table laden with all the good things of the season.

Mrs. Agatha Mullens, who for many years has been a resident of this city, has moved to Los Angeles, where she will make her home with her son, E. D. Wakeham, who has accepted a position in that city. Mr. Wakeham has just been mustered out of the service having served in the navy for nine years.

REDONDO BEACH.

A picnic party to Fisherman's Point was enjoyed Sunday by a number of local people. A luncheon was served on the sands at noon. Bathing and fishing were enjoyed. Those who made the trip were Mrs. M. L. Darling, Mrs. J. E. Collins, Mr. and Mrs. J. Gentry, the Misses Dorothy Darling, Maxine Collins, Helen Gentry, also J. Gentry, Jr., and Phil Hudson.

The P.E.O. forced Duty to serve Pleasure Tuesday when they invited their husbands to dinner after the meeting held that afternoon. The affair was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Sprinkle. Yellow and white were used cleverly in table decorations. Those who enjoyed this delightful gathering were Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Langworthy, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Albee, Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Venable, Dr. and Mrs. A. T. Hembree, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. F. Mounts and Mr. and Mrs. Sprinkle.

The Sigma Kappa Girls gave a welcome home to two members who have been East all summer, Mrs. I. B. Finch and Mrs. C. S. Pickens. Mrs. Ed Lechner was hostess to the affair. After a good visit a dainty supper was enjoyed. Those present were Mrs. Roy Heath, Mrs. Dora Davis, Mrs. Ralph Burgoin, Miss Gertrude Phillips, Miss Elizabeth Oakey, Mrs. Pickens, Mrs. Finch and Mrs. Lechner.

Miss Dorothy Parson was home visiting her parents this week before starting for the East to be married. Miss Parsons has been with her sister, Mrs. Harry Seaton at Point Richmond for some months. She is going to Kansas City to wed Mr Clinton Fuller and will make her home in that city.

Mrs. J. R. Richardson was given a surprise party by a number of friends at her home Wednesday. Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Kribs were dinner guests of the Richardsons, but some fifteen more came unannounced. Games and music were enjoyed. Dainty refreshments were served. Those present were Judge and Mrs. E. H. Miller, Mrs. D. A. Davis, Mrs. Welling, Mrs. M. B. Hopkins, Mrs. M. B. Brownson, Mrs. J. S. McArthur, Mrs. Margaret Jenkins, the Misses Lucille McArthur, Ruth Morris, Wanda Davis, and Messrs. J. V. Cullen and W. Welling.

MANHATTAN BEACH.

The Sinsabaugh home was the scene of a merry party Friday evening when Miss Helen Sinsabaugh entertained the members of her Sunday-school class together with the young men from two other classes. Games were played. Miss Mae Campbell assisted the hostess. Some twenty guests were present.

A group of Pomona College students enjoyed a jolly house party over the week-end as the guests of Miss Marie Hatch, who is attending that school. The party was given at the home of Miss Hatch's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Hatch on Twentieth street.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallis were at home Friday evening to a number of young friends in honor of their daughters, the Misses Adena and Virginia. A merry evening of games and music was spent by the young people. A dainty supper was served at 11 o'clock.

A very pretty luncheon was given Wednesday by Mrs. W. B. Jacobs at her home on Center street. Gold and green were the colors used in decorating, marigolds making a center piece. Mrs. Jacobs was assisted by her daughter, Miss Alice. Covers were laid for Mrs. J. H. Withers, Mrs. S. L. Wallis, Mrs. E. Sinsabaugh, Mrs. Victor Staheli, Mrs. and Miss Jacobs.

Miss M. E. Simmons of Los Angeles is the house guest of her sister, Mrs. J. K. MacPherson this week.

EL SEGUNDO.

An informal reception was given Monday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Smith at their home on Virginia street. The affair was a surprise to the honorees and was arranged by friends to welcome them to their new home here. Music was enjoyed and refreshments were served. Among those present were Messrs. and Mmes. E. Fitzgerald, J. Coward, R. Davis, M. Chapple, J. E. Howell, M. Moore, V. McCarthy, Mrs. R. M. Converse, Mrs. Henderson, the Misses C. Bell, V. Fitzgerald, E. Fitzgerald, Edith Gregory, and Messrs. M. G. McIntyre, Con Hanna, W. E. Peterson, E. McNamera, G. Daniels, H. Putney, W. Hooper, M. Kelley, A. Fitzgerald and F. Stanton.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Vincent, Miss Marion Gilbert and Arthur Tuck formed a theater party to Los Angeles, Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. O. Anderson and Mrs. I. Wickham were in Long Beach Sunday for the day as the guests of Mrs. Gilbert Corn. Mrs. Corn formerly resided in El Segundo, but is now living in Utah. She is spending the winter with friends in Long Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Hanna are enjoying a two weeks' vacation trip to different points of interest in Southern California.

Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Lewis entertained Sunday for friends from Omaha, Neb., Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Durkee and daughter.

GLENDALE.

Goblins and witches held high carnival in Glendale on Halloween, when a number of hostesses took advantage of the holiday to entertain with all manner of weird parties. One of the most delightful of the many affairs took place on Friday evening at "Glen Laurie," the Verdugo Canyon home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Yost, when their daughter, Tamson, served as hostess. The big veranda, screened with autumn leaves and woodbine, formed a yawning cavern through which the little guests were ushered into the living-room, dimly lighted by pumpkin-shaded lamps. Following an evening of merry games, a Halloween supper was served at a prettily appointed table, place cards marking covers for Cecil Chase, Lorna Richman, Reba Hedge, Jack Finch, Stillman Chase, Alexander Chase, Willard Roberts, David Roberts, Carolyn Ayers, Robert

SOCIETY.

Ayers, Mary Cook, Irene Robinson, Charles Bosserman and Erma Lucas. Assisting Mrs. Yost with the entertainment were Mrs. Harry Rogers, Mrs. Richman, Mrs. A. S. Chase and Mrs. William Farlander.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Ripley Jackson entertained, on Friday evening, with a pretty costume party given for their daughter, Miss Grace, and their son, Kenneth, at the Jackson home on East Chestnut street. The house was gayly decorated with autumn leaves and Halloween symbols, and appropriate refreshments were served after an evening spent at dancing. The guest list included the Misses Marie Oliver, Agnes Carroll, Esther Ralston, Hariet Cook, Ruth Wilson, Dorothy Hunt, Eileen Sullivan, Dorothy Carmack, Helen Ford, Martha Myers and Emily Herbert, and Messrs. Francis, Albert and Bob Sullivan, Robert Burson, Clarence Ralston, Sylvester Garner, Brigham Bennett, Ernest Lambert, Dean Culbertson and Jack Alspaugh.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dibbern entertained a number of their friends at a sheet and pillow-case party on Friday evening, at their home on West Lomita avenue. An evening of dancing, interspersed with ghost stories told in the glow of the grate fire, was followed by a Halloween supper served at midnight. The guest list included Mr. and Mrs. Watts and son, of Los Angeles, Messrs. and Mmes. R. Angelica, E. Augustine, Jack West, J. Apfel, W. Gorman of Hollywood, J. F. Hearnshaw and their daughter, Marie.

Graham and Elizabeth Young very delightfully entertained a number of their friends on Halloween at their home on Milford street. The guests made merry at games until a late hour, when refreshments appropriate to the occasion were served. Those present were: Jean and Dick Tyrrill, Dewey and Martha McCourt, Nathan Finch, Allen Lovell and Dorothy Thomson.

Misses Pauline Neer and Cornelia Wilson were hostesses on Friday evening at a Halloween party given at the Neer home on West California avenue. One of the many happy features of the evening was a marshmallow roast on the lawn. Those who enjoyed the evening were the Misses Charlotte Winsel, Margaret Morgan, Bernice Huskin, Dorothy McGinnis, Garnet Alexander, Dorothy McDowell, Frances Wyman, Katherine Stofft and Marguerite Eckles, Messrs. Lawrence Smith, Edwin Earl, Frederick Stofft, Gordon Richardson, Samuel Thompson, Lee Payne, Jack Wright, Valentine Hollingsworth, Albert Bryant and Jack Lawson.

Little Miss Bernice Brown, of 1737 Gardena avenue, not only entertained witches and goblins on Halloween, but celebrated her eleventh birthday anniversary as well. Eleven little girls were invited to the party, and a pretty birthday cake of yellow and brown was cut after the entertainment of games and music. The little guests included Alice and Margery Priaulx, Hazel and Vada Spillsbury, Louise and Marie Stecher, Evelyn and Elaine Horning, and Luella Ashton.

MONETA. Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Goss gave their three little daughters, Misses Frances, Barbara and Kathleen, a Halloween party, to which a dozen young neighbors were invited. They arrived masked and dressed for a frolic. There were indoor and outdoor stunts, and later delicious things to eat, making an evening of fun for the small people.

Mr. and Mrs. Murray Harris and Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Walquist motored to Long Beach a few evenings since for dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Johnson of that city.

Mrs. C. E. Rhone and family of Los Angeles are occupying the Nelson-Croutch place on Gladstone street, Miss Nelson and Mr. Will Croutch having gone to the city for the present.

Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Rose, newcomers to Moneta, who have been living at Broadacres, have bought the Freeman property, opposite the Presbyterian Church on New York street, and will shortly move there.

Mr. B. M. Jones is on a two-weeks' business trip to Porterville.

LONG BEACH. Little Marie Paloma Williams, attractive daughter of Mrs. Alma Vallejo Williams, with her reading and singing ability, was the center of attraction at festivities held at the Chainey ranch, Burnett, this week. The evening's programme included recitations and songs by the little dark-eyed guest, as well as two fancy Spanish dances by her mother. Other numbers included a recitation by John Cox, a monologue by Mrs. Edna Cox, piano selections by Mrs. L. B. Graves and dramatic selections by Dr. George Chainey.

Mr. and Mrs. Noah Moser celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Tuesday, at the Ebell Club House. The couple came to Long Beach three years ago from Loogootee, Ind., where they spent most of their married lives. In honor of the occasion the Ebell Club House was profusely decorated with big yellow chrysanthemums. Piano selections by Ethel Putnam and songs by Mrs. Maud Parr were a feature of the evening. Assisting Mrs Moser in receiving were her daughter, Mrs. Clay H. White, Mr. Clay White, Howar Wright and the Misses Mildred and June Rose Moser. Luncheon was served to more than a score of guests.

GARDENA. The Wednesday Progressive Club entertained at a Halloween party which not only provided an evening full of fun for the 400 who patronized it, but gave $60 towards a sum required for necessary repairs and alterations to the clubhouse. A horrid witch, in darkened forest nook where glowed her fire and boiled her cauldron, disclosed her identity as Mrs. J. M. Woodruff only through her sweet cultivated voice as she sang weirdly of "the wicked shadows falling." A side-splitting event was the appearance on the stage of the "largest boy and girl of the community" with a guessing contest offered as to their combined weight. Mrs. Weed, a large, finely-proportioned woman, who had been rolled in quilts and then dressed in short skirts, white stockings and girl's shoes, her gray hair hidden by dark curls, as the "girl," took her place by the side of a very sturdy Gardena youth, amid appreciative shouts of applause from the audience. Mrs. Frank Newman of Moneta recited most acceptably. Pumpkin pies, doughnuts, contests of various kinds, and a fish pond, occupied the time until an old-time Virginia reel closed the evening.

The marriage of Miss Florence Whorton to William Arthur Finch was solemnized Saturday evening, November 1, at the Gardena Baptist Church, the pastor, Rev. H. C. Hurley, officiating. Within a pergola simulated by greenery with which ferns and yellow chrysanthemums were largely used the ceremony took place. The bride, beautifully gowned, carrying a bouquet, appeared on the arm of her father, who gave her away. Miss Daisy Finnell, a cousin of the bride, from Indiana, was matron of honor. Misses Louise Hurley and Naomi Jamison were bridesmaids and Mr. R. A. Weisengerber of Pasadena was best man. The coveted places of ring-bearer and flower girls were daintily filled by little Misses Jean Sardry, Gladys Cliber and Ruth Jones, and the ushers were Lawrence Sweeney and Earl Kennedy. Miss Ivy Goade played the wedding march. Touches of yellow in costumes as well as in the church decorations gave a most beautiful effect After the ceremony the parents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Alosa Whorton of Palm avenue, gave a reception to the bridal party, during which the newly-married pair slipped away by automobile to their home in Lakeside, where Mr. Finch is a teacher in the high school.

SANTA MONICA. Mrs. H. La Salle Aldrich entertained with a charming dinner party recently at which were honored her beloved twin uncles, Messrs. John A. and Augustus A. Hawkins of Fresno. The Messrs. Hawkins are proverbial twins. They look alike, have the same charm of manner, and have the same affection for their attractive niece, who is making the most of the short time that the gentlemen will remain in Los Angeles. They will return to Fresno within a few weeks.

A recent meeting of the Serra Vista Sewing Circle was held at the home of Mrs. Sophia Miller of Stanford street. Chatting over the needlework were Mrs. Clarence Smith, Mrs. Mary Hilliard, Mrs. D. L. Howard, Mrs. W. J. Davenport, Mrs. R. MacIntosh, Mrs. Ray Howard, Mrs. Amos Graffius, Mrs. Ed Raineau, Miss Annie Hansen.

Mrs. Robert Westmeyer of La Canada recently entertained the members of the Kill Kare Klub at her pretty canyon home. The yellow and brown coloring of the surrounding country was worked into the appointments of the attractive rooms. Mrs. Westmeyer's guests were Mrs. Worthy Lady, Mrs. Ray Howard, Mrs. Clarence Smith, Mrs. Curtis Hines, Mrs. Blythe Johnstone, Mrs. A. N. Colton, Miss Merle Tweed, Miss Helen MacAdams of Pasadena, and Miss Bertha Maack of Los Angeles.

One of those very enjoyable teas that have become such an essential part of club life was held Monday after the programme at Santa Monico Bay Woman's Club. Miss Ruth Hutchinson, soprano, and Maude Howard, accompanist, held a good-sized audience at the club during the afternoon. A happy hour was spent discussing the exquisite music over the tea cups.

VENICE. Miss Elizabeth Finnegan entertained Halloween night with a party in honor of the birthday of her father, Mr. Stephen Finnegan. Witches, cats and cornstalks were cleverly worked into the decorative scheme of orange and black. Halloween games were enjoyed during the early part of the evening, after which a feast was enjoyed, the main feature being a great cake filled with surprises. A dance in a loge at the Venice pavilion was formed of the party later in the evening.

The honor scores at the Five Hundred Club on Monday were those of Mrs. H. A. Perkins with 6730 points, Mrs. M. Horsefield, 6480, and Mrs. E. M. Reed, 5260.

The tenth birthday of little Miss Florence M. Bleakmore was the instigation of a party being given for her by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Creighton Bleakmore of the Beach apartments. A rollicking color scheme of orange and black made an attractive background for the little merrymakers, who were Marie Murphy, Adelaide Patkill, Grace Walley, Pearl Lytle, Laura Worse, Buster and Jack Therlault.

The Sunshine Society held its regular monthly meeting this week at Wavecrest avenue. Sewing was enjoyed in the morning, and a delicious luncheon was served in the early afternoon. It was in charge of Mrs. J. F. Tranter, Mrs. A. Bradbrook, Mrs. Florence Southmayd and Mrs. H. S. Mason. A business meeting was held at 2:30 o'clock.

RIALTO. On Saturday evening when Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Canaday arrived home from their honeymoon trip to Los Angeles and near by beaches a jolly crowd met them at the station armed with tiny sacks of rice and the newly weds carried a plentiful supply to the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Canaday of North Olive street. For their coming the Canaday home had been transformed into a veritable bridal bower being decorated throughout with pink roses and feathery ferns. A course dinner was served at charmingly appointed table centered with a beautiful bride's cake. Of course, the happy couple were felicitated again and again the occasion proving quite the happiest imaginable. Plates were laid for Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Vernon Canaday, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bemis and little daughter, Miss Lavare and Melva Canaday, the happy host and hostess. All day Sunday friends were dropping in to offer congratulations and on Monday the bride and groom left for Brawley where Mr. Canaday has a position with the Gentile Company of Cincinnati and and the new home will be established there.

On Sunday Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Angell entertained a congenial group of friends at their hospitable home the affair being the more delightful for its pleasant informality. An unlimited supply of chrysanthemum blossoms in autumn tints were effectively placed about the rooms and graced the table where 2 o'clock luncheon was served. Having the pleasure of the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. John T. McManis, Miss Nancy McManis, Miss Elsie Angell, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Angell.

At Brae Nazarine church at 3 o'clock on Sunday afternoon Mrs. Maud Abel of Rialto and W. A. Neel of Colton were united in marriage. Rev. George F. Mathes performed the ceremony, other Rialtoan's present being Dr. L. P. Barbour and Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Juhlin. Mr. and Mrs. Neel will for a few months' make their home in Rialto later going to Colton where the groom owns a cosy home.

The Monday evening meeting of the Epworth League resolved itself into a farewell reception for Mr. and Mrs. Frank Golahar who on the following day left for a month's visit with relatives in Oklahoma and Arkansas.

Mrs. George Woodruff entertained most delightfully on Wednesday evening in honor of her husband who celebrated the passing of another milestone. Coming as a complete surprise to the honoree, his happy bewilderment caused much merriment Beautiful rose buds and greenery embelished the beautiful interior of the home and added to the attractiveness of dainty table appointments. Music and cards furnished enjoyable diversion and at a late hour four-course luncheon was served. Those present were: George Woodruff, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Foster and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Gillispie of San Bernardino; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Burrington, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Rice and the gracious hostess.

Of the many Halloween functions of the week perhaps the jolliest of all were those enjoyed by Rialto grammar school pupils. On Friday evening Miss Velma Kingman entertained her teacher and seventh grade classmates at her home on North Date street, which in Halloween dress presented appropriate setting for the fun. Promptly at 7 o'clock a weird old witch made silent entrance gliding about the rooms until she reached the fortune teller and next came the ghost procession, the great-grandmother ghost leader carrying a pot of fire, all being in search of a lost fortune in form of a witch's pie. Games and refreshments coming later were all in keeping with the spirit of the hour. The sixth grade pupils on the same evening enjoyed a Halloween party at the home of their classmate Miss Lillian Glasscock and on Saturday evening the eighth grade girls entertained the boys of the class at the domestic science room in the technical building.

TORRANCE.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Neelands entertained a number of friends at their home Monday evening. A spirited game of five hundred was enjoyed. Miss Clara Barnett and H. Vonhagen won first prizes. Miss Lucille Durham and M. Rappaport were favored with consolation honors. A delicious supper was served at the close of the playing.

Miss Florance O. Issacson and G. A. Carvill were married at the Baptist parsonage in Gardena Saturday afternoon. Rev. H. C. Hurley officiated. The young couple are well known here. They will reside in Lomita.

A jolly party of Torrance people enjoyed a picnic Sunday. They motored up to Fish Canyon, going as far as the falls. Those who made the trip were Mr. and Mrs. R. Sykes and son William, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Brown, Mrs. Adkins and son William, Edmond and W. Metcalf.

Mr. and Mrs. B. Higgs are moving into their new home this week. They recently built a beautiful bungalow on their property just south of Torrance.

Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Gilmore of Texarkana, Tex., arrived in Torrance the first of the week. They will spend the winter here as the guests of Earl Malotte.

HERMOSA BEACH.

The ladies of the Priscilla Club entertained for their husbands Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Gipson. Dinner was served in the garden at 6 o'clock, with wieners as part of the menu. Later, games and music formed the entertainment. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. George Hughes, Mr. and Mrs. J. Gentry, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Yost, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Yost, Mr. and Mrs. G. Glad, Mr. and Mrs. R. Leonard, Mr. and Mrs. W. Ellington, Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Palmer, Mr. and Mrs. J. Hardesty and Mr. and Mrs. H. Bass.

A surprise birthday luncheon was given by Mrs. Charles Ballard in compliment to Mrs. G. H. Hughes. After luncheon, the afternoon was occupied with needlework. Mrs. Hughes, Mrs. W. W. Gipson, Mrs. G. Glad and Mrs. Ballard were those present.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Scott gave a dinner party Sunday for a number of out-of-town guests. Covers were laid for Rev. and Mrs. J. J. Gilbert and daughter, Mrs. Morganthaw, Dr. and Mrs. Cusenbury of Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. A. S. French and son Jack of El Monte.

Mrs. M. Koll entertained a girlhood friend from Denver, Colo., this week. Mrs. O. Levan, who is spending the winter at Long Beach.

CIRCUS MAN VISITING.

A. L. Oraner, of the publicity department of the Hagenbeck Wallace Circus and formerly a Los Angeles film man, arrived here this week following a tour with the organization including more than 200 cities, in thirty-five States, in the United States, and a number in Canada.

READING AND DISCUSSION.

The Playcrafters will meet Monday at 7:30 p.m., in room 512, Fay Building. Mrs. Mary Garbutt will read a one-act play, "He Wouldn't Stay Put." There will be a discussion of the play and following that a review of the public performance last week.

GOOD VALUES IN FOOTWEAR

The Innes Shoe Co. does not claim to sell the best shoes made—nor do we claim to give the best values at all times

What we do claim is that we sell good footwear at all times and that our prices are such that the shoes are always good values

Our experience covers more than thirty years and we have given such values and such service during that time as to merit the constant and increasing patronage of the public

YOUR COAT MAKES OR MARS YOU

There's no more important member of your wardrobe than your coat. It has more to do with your comfort, happiness and health than any other garment you wear.

When you sally out of a cold morning, with fog wraiths filling the air, you are cold and miserable, or happy and comfortable, according to the coat you wear.

When you have a rather distinguished little affair to celebrate, whether it be at a famous hotel or at the home of some friends, it is always your coat in which you make your first impression.

It is the good-looking envelope that makes you attracted towards the letter inside. It is the good-looking coat, more than any other garment, that gives the wearer an appearance of well-being and distinction wherever she goes.

For every coat purpose, Paris coats are best.

Santa Claus
Will Arrive Monday

Listen Children! Santa Claus Will Arrive on Monday at 3:30 in the Afternoon

And Will Hold a Reception

—He has made a flying trip from Christmasland to sunny California. His last message sent to us said:

"Tell the children of Los Angeles that I will be with them on next Monday afternoon. I had hoped to make my usual trip through the streets of your city, but Los Angeles has grown so and the congestion is so great that I have decided to come direct to the store where I will hold a reception at 3:30 in the afternoon.

"Of course you know my headquarters will be at The Broadway, on the Sixth floor, as usual.
"Lovingly yours, "SANTA CLAUS."

—And we are all ready for the arrival of Santa Claus. We have prepared the most attractive little Colonial bungalow, where Santa Claus will make his headquarters while in Los Angeles. He just loves to talk to the little children.

On Monday He Will Distribute Boxes of Candy To the Good Little Boys and Girls —beginning at 3:30 on his arrival.

—We cannot tell you just now what this souvenir will be, but it will be a surprise, all right. Don't miss coming to this reception, and remember the time—3:30 Monday afternoon.

—Come earlier in the day if you can and spend your time looking over the new toys—

Lads Who Have a Liking for Mechanics and the Sea

—lads of, say, twelve to fifteen years—will get keen joy as well as practical knowledge in studying and sailing this "ocean liner" from the Ives Toy Shipyards.

—It is a perfect model of its kind and a boy who likes the sea, ships, or higher mechanics, should have such a boat.

—In addition to the fun and the specialized information which the study and use of Ives boats give, a boy becomes interested in the great game of commerce—will become, perhaps, identified with America's Merchant Marine, now in the making, when it shall sail, a golden stream of trade, from land to land!

—As great careers have started with toys!

—Other perfect-model boats from the Ives Shipyards on display in Toytown.

A Ball For His Head,
Balls For His Hands,
And On Balls For His Feet
The Ball Man Stands!

—A gay fellow, forsooth!

—Pink, red, yellow, green, purple, black balls form his anatomy; and he dangles merrily from a ball on a string!

—Unbreakable and of deep interest to folks of, say, six months to two years.

We Have Over $100,000 Worth of American-Made Toys

—For this year America has excelled all previous efforts in the making of wonderful toys for children. Indeed, there is hardly a wish that any child might have that cannot be gratified in this splendid selection.

—Naturally enough, American Toy Makers know how to make toys for American boys and girls. They're strong and substantial and just the very toys that the boys and girls enjoy the most.

Stately Grey Elephants

—that are made of celluloid and are amazingly true to life, may be had for $1.25 because they were purchased some time ago. The Toy Man tells us that he could not buy them wholesale, now, at this price.

—There are cinnamon bears, too, of celluloid, equally perfect, at the same price—$1.25.

The Bubble Book

—contains a lot of stories in verse form, each one of which is illustrated. Then, too, there is a record of the words and the music of three sets of verses, which may be played on "Baby" or "Little Marvel" phonographs.

—The Bubble Book is especially interesting because its song-stories are pictured, played and sung. —Sixth Floor.

A Little White Goat

—is made of plush, has china eyes and is wearing a flaming red tie. He's a quiet, well-mannered goat, never having been known to eat clothes hung out to dry, or tin cans, or to trounce his small master or mistress.

—Price $1.75.

Coming—the Annual Dolls' Tea Party

Admission by ticket only
—2000 to be served.
—Tickets at Toytown on the Sixth Floor.

American-Made Are the Dolls

—Perhaps the most important stride made by American Toy Manufacturers is in the output of dolls.

—You will be surprised at the wonderful display we have arranged; for the present we will simply speak of a few little dollies.

A Blonde and Very Frenchy-Looking Doll

—is wearing the loveliest little white lawn frock, much trimmed with lace and pink ribbons. Her curls are of real hair, and she has dainty underwearables and little white stockings.

—She has relatives who are brunettes with shining dark curls. Priced $6.50.

A Big Baby Doll

—with cloth body and composition head, hands and feet, who is wearing a lovely white dress and bonnet and a little pink sacque is priced $3.50 to $5.00, according to her size.

Celluloid Kewpies

—are here in many sizes—from the wee denizens of Kewpieland whose height is something like four inches, right up to those big enough for crossing policemen in Kewpietown, whose price is $2.50.

MUSICAL.

ORATORIO PLANS.

BIG CHRISTMAS PRODUCTION OF "MESSIAH."

At least one big oratorio presentation is in sight for the current musical year. Arrangements were consummated during the past week as a result of which the Philharmonic Orchestra will accompany the Los Angeles Oratorio Society, enlarged and amplified for the event, in the performance of Handel's "Messiah" December 21 at Shrine Auditorium. John Smallman is to conduct the oratorio, and soloists for the occasion will shortly be announced.

It is expected to increase the voices in the oratorio society to 300, and for this purpose a special campaign for increased membership is being inaugurated. The organization is meeting every Monday evening at the Y.W.C.A. Building for rehearsals.

Without doubt this will prove the most elaborate oratorio project ever undertaken locally, and it is hoped that the success of the first concert will make possible the pursuit of a plan for giving other works.

OPENING CONCERT OF ELLIS CLUB.

The first Ellis Club concert of the season is scheduled for Tuesday evening at Trinity Auditorium. J. B. Poulin, the conductor, now entering upon his nineteenth season as director of this organization, has planned an attractive programme.

Maurine Dyar, a young Texas girl, will be soloist. In addition to two groups of songs, which will include "Luigi dal Caro Bene", (Secchi,) "Brookside" (Fox.) "La Mort de Jeanne d'Arc" (Bemberg,) "Night and the Curtains Drawn" (Fanatta,) "What's in the Air Today" (Ecen,) "Dream Tryst" (Cadman;) "Entreaty" (Fox) and "Ah, Love, but a Day" (Gilberte,) she will be heard in the obbligato numbers from the cantata, "Golden Sun" (Lester.)

The cantata is being given here for the first time; the other Ellis Club numbers will include "Forest Harps" (Schultz,) "Castilla" (Protheroe) with organ and piano accompaniment. Clough - Leighter's lovely song, "Possession." The closing feature will be the chorus, "All Praise to God" from "Lohengrin," sung in English, with organ and piano accompaniment, Ray Hastings playing the former.

Mrs. Hennion Robinson as usual will accompany at the piano. Miss Mortonsen, violinist, who appeared with the club last year, will be heard in a group of solos.

SCHOOL CONCERT OF PHILHARMONIC.

The first of the special concerts for the public school children will be given by the Philharmonic Orchestra Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock at Trinity Auditorium. These special programmes for the young people were inaugurated in America over ten years ago by Mr. Rothwell, then conductor of the St. Paul Symphony Orchestra.

The numbers will not only be educational in value, but sufficiently convincing in rhythm to remain with the children after the programme is over.

The first programme exploits the individual instruments in the orchestra, the special forte of the violin, flute, oboe, bassoon—every instrument used in fact, is explained and illustrated by a short incidental solo. The second programme will probably be devoted to descriptive music, music carrying with it a definite story. Another programme presented will be devoted entirely to the classical dance forms in music.

The next Pop concert to be given by the Philharmonic Orchestra, under Walter Henry Rothwell's baton, is scheduled for next Sunday afternoon, at Trinity Auditorium. The first popular concert given by this organization was a great success. Sunday musicales have been looked upon with disfavor by the managements, because of the great lure of the out of doors here, however, there could be no doubt of the popularity of the Philharmonic's policy as over 500 were turned away.

Brahm van den Berg, pianist, will be soloist, playing the Grieg A Minor Concerto. Since taking up his residence here he has devoted almost his entire time to composing, teaching and personal study, until now on the eve of his departure for the East he has a series of recital programmes ready to present.

The programme will include the famous "Tannhaeuser" March (Wagner;) the "Carmen" Suite No. 2 (Bizet:) J. Strauss's "Tales of the Vienna Woods," and the Prelude, "Le Deluge" (Saint-Saens.) In the latter, Sylvain Noack, the concert master, will have an incidental solo.

Syncopated Orchestra.

The jazziest music possible will be presented next week at Trinity Auditorium, when the American Syncopated Band, of thirty dusky music-makers present their programmes of song and instrumental music.

George Edmund Dulf, conductor, was leader of the Black Devils Band, which is said to have introduced Paris and the French army to jazz. His band played for Gen. Pershing at Brest, and won honorable mention from Gens. Foch and Petain when the Black Devils gave their programmes for these military strategists.

Few of the present generation have forgotten the jubilee singers, whose mission up to a decade ago was to acquaint the world with the wealth of native harmony contained in the old negro spirituals, which these musicians have revived.

Pupil of Franck Here.

A figure in local music and art this year is Mrs. Jane Sterling, daughter of the late Camilla Urso, noted violinist. Mrs. Sterling studied under Cesar Franck and has played extensively, chiefly in Italy and France.

"The music situation in Los Angeles is of unusual interest just now," Mrs. Sterling said yesterday "With two symphony orchestras in keen competition with each other, and with women musicians challenging the attention of the city because of what they claim is sex discrimination against them, there should be a stimulus to music here this winter that will do Los Angeles a world of good. Like all other visiting musicians, I am immensely intrigued by the situation."

New Musical Course.

It is announced that the California School of Arts will have a musical appreciation course, conducted by Margery Morrison, beginning November 7. It is open to all music lovers, whether they are musicians or not, it is stated.

Miss Morrison has a broad field to choose from, as she has been an opera coach and accompanist in New York City for many years. She also has had success as a lecturer. The lecture on MacDowell which she will give later in the month is listed with the New York Board of Education.

New Studio Opening.

A new studio will be opened this afternoon on Hollywood boulevard by Maude Fisher and Gweldolen Hubbard. There will be a programme, including the reading by Mrs. Hubbard of the fifth Song of Solomon with incidental music by Beatrice Pattenden. Miss Fisher will give several eurythmic interpretations.

Educational Programme.

The educational programme given at the studio of Margaret Goetz yesterday was attended by about 100 persons for a hearing of a Tschaikowsky evening, presented by Dr. Alexis Kall of Petrograd, assisted by Mme. Romanova, pianist, Eugenie Buyke, soprano, and H. Erschokk, baritone. The next of the repertoire recitals will take place on the 15th, and will present American composers in concert.

Walter Rothwell, among others, was present.

At Governor's Reception.

The Davis Musical College participated in the reception tendered Gov. W. D. Stephens on Thursday night Henrietta M. Russell, pianist, one of the well-known teachers of the college, and Mr. Elmer Kendrick, violinist, a pupil of Mr. John Marquardt, head of the violin department, gave an hour's programme of classic and semi-classic selections.

Dr. Ray Hastings, organist of the Davis Musical College, was heard in an elaborate organ recital at the First Congregational Church of Santa Barbara. On Friday evening he appeared in a recital at San Dimas Union Church auditorium.

In Charge of Choir.

Thomas Taylor Drill, the well-known vocal teacher and musical director, has returned from New York, where he has been engaged in teaching, singing and conducting community singing, during the past two years, and has located his studio in Blanchard Hall. Many pupils of Mr. Drill have won note on the stage and in concert, among them Ina Claire, Alma Francis, Charles Purcell, George Field, Myrtle Stedman, Harry Benham, Nelle Kouns (Kouns Sisters,) Percy Rectory Stephens, Beatrice Neal, May A. Trude, Alma K. Moss, W. A. Steffen, Margaret Sroufe, J. Ben Wheatley, and numerous others. Mr. Drill conducted the "Great Land Show Chorus" of 500 voices in conjunction with Creatore's Band, at the festival that lasted for seventeen nights at Fiesta Park, this city, in 1912.

He was also for eleven years, musical director of the Musurgia Oratorio Society, and the Irish Choral Society of Chicago. He is now in charge of the choir and music of Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church of this city.

Draa Pupil Heard.

Wednesday night at the Gamut Club was laides' night, and was featured by a musicale, well worthy of the occasion. Miss Irene Mason, who rendered the piano selections, is a pupil of Charles Draa. Her first public appearance was on August 5 at Santa Monica, consisting of eight popular selections as follows: "Dream of Love," by Lita, "Hellers Tarntille;" "Hark! Hark! the Lark," by Litz, etc. On Wednesday evening, Miss Mason played "Prelude C Sharp Minor," by Rachmaninoff; "Hark! Hark! The Lark!" by Litz

MAHLER BATON IS GIFT TO TANDLER.

Interesting history is connected with the baton Adolph Tandler will use in conducting the concerts of the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra this season, the first of which will take place November 21 at Clune's Auditorium. This baton, in the first instance, belonged to Gustav Mahler, the great composer. Alexander Saslavsky, concert master of the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra, and formerly assistant conductor of the New York Symphony under Walter Damrosch, studied with Mahler, and during his studies became an intimate friend of the great musician. As a mark of this friendship, Mahler presented the baton to Saslavsky.

On arriving in Los Angeles from New York, Saslavsky presented it to Tandler, who will use it himself for the first time when he conducts the orchestra in Tschaikowsky's First Symphony.

Special interest has been increased in the symphony season by the announcement that Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Huntington have subscribed $10,000 in life memberships; that Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Doheny and Dr. and Mrs. Norman Bridge have done the same thing, and that Mrs. Albert Sherman Hoyt, president, Mrs. Irving Ingraham and D. M. Linnard have each given $5000 for a life membership. Sparks Berry, manager, yesterday issued a statement calling on season ticket-holders to call at the Symphony headquarters and get their tickets. So many season tickets have been ordered by telephone and then not called for, Mr. Berry says, that he fears a great rush at the offices at the last moment before the first concert.

While society folk will occupy the loges, many of the boxes and other seats in the Auditorium for the first concert, high school students have reserved nearly all the boxes on the mezzanine. Groups of students have ordered seats in blocks of several hundred, and the mezzanine has been turned over to them almost exclusively.

The thousands who will hear the first concert will enjoy a re-created orchestra. There have been so many changes and additions to the personnel that it will seem almost like a new organization.

Mr. Tandler says his series of programmes for the whole season will be largely of works that are new here, though there will be a reasonable allowance of the standard classics. And on each programme he expects to play an American work if the limits of the programmes permit.

PLAN A MUSICALE AFTER LYRIC CONCERT.

With Helen Brown-Read, Jay Plowe and Robert Alter scheduled as soloists for the first concert of the Woman's Lyric Club next Friday, Miss M. Louise Wharton was announced yesterday as soloist for a musical tea which the club will give on the following Tuesday at its headquarters in the Trinity Building. This will open the social activities of the Woman's Lyric Club, and will introduce a series of such teas, each programmed for a Tuesday following one of the big concerts. A reception committee and refreshments will supply the hospitality features, while a musicale has been arranged by the following artists—Miss Wharton, J. B. Poulin, director of the club; Freda Peycke, Elizabeth Monsor, Elsie Cohn, Kosloff and Carroll McComas.

The programme for the big concert Friday evening is as follows: "God in Nature," Franz Schubert; "In the Engle-Nook," George Nevin; "The Three Cavaliers," Kurt Schindler; "To the Spirit of Music," Percy Rector Stephens; "Page's Road Song," Harold Osborn Smith; "When I Walk in the Garden," Robert Schumann; Solo Trio, "Ashes of Roses," Rossetta Cole; "Sunset," Edward Morsmanx; "The Nightingale and the Rose," Henry Hadley, with Helen Brown-Read, Jay Plowe and Robert Alter as trio soloists

An effect of beauty is promised in stage settings for the concert. The theme of "God in Nature," the initial song, will be the keynote for the committee of the Woman's Lyric Club members, including Mrs. Edith Wing Hughes, chairman; Mmes. A. R. Jaquith, Gail Dimmitt, Louise Bitter, E. W. Hitchcock, C. P. Smith, Stella Stanley, Louise Shoemaker, O. M. Otto and Wheatley, and Misses Maud Gilbert, Margaret Messer and Helen White.

ACHIEVES NOTE AS COMPOSER.

LAURELS OF EASTERN SUCCESS BROUGHT BY BLANCHE EBERT SEAVER.

Blanche Ebert Seaver, well known to Los Angeles concert goers as an accomplished acompanist, and more latterly recognized throughout the country for her compositions, has returned home after two years spent on the Atlantic Coast, where her husband has been stationed in convoy service of the United States Navy.

Mrs. Seaver has had the unusual experience of immediate success with her songs, the best known of which is her arrangement of "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," which was made popular here by the stirring interpretation which Estelle Heart-Dreyfus gave of it on repeated occasions. Mrs. Seaver was Mrs. Dreyfus's accompanist, and will take up the work of accompanying her here again, although she plans to devote much time to composing. She will assist Mrs. Dreyfus in the latter's song recital to be given at Trinity Auditorium in January.

Mrs. Seaver's arrangement of the "Battle Hymn" was played by Leopold Stokowski and the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra last season, with a baritone solo. Julia Arthur will use the song on her tours with band and orchestra this year. Mrs. Arthur reads the poem to the music of her orchestra, and has achieved successful effects in this manner of presentation. Walter Damrosch, too, has taken a keen interest in the work of the young composer, and will also use the orchestral arrangement of the hymn.

Mrs. Seaver studied music in Chicago, which was her home before coming to the Coast, and she has also studied here, but it was not until very recently that she began to compose. Her first work was "A Silent Thought," written to words by Estelle Heartt-Dreyfus. "The Flower," the "Baby's Catechism" and others have followed, all with immediate success.

The Irish committee asked Mrs. Seaver to write a song for them and their cause, and she has composed a ballad, "Will Irish Dreams Come True?" writing both music and words.

While in Philadelphia Mrs. Seaver worked as accompanist for Sasha Jacobinoff, and the brilliant violinist learned with regret that the work with his accompanist could not continue throughout his season. Mrs. Seaver, however, plans to make her home here, and hopes gradually to broaden out into larger forms of composition.

PIERRE KEY'S Music Article

BY PIERRE V. R. KEY.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Into recent days of music hereabouts has come the spark and fire of the virtuoso star. How the public responds to him—or to her—when to such magic there is added feminine charm. Everywhere on the continent human tendency is the same. We rush pellmell toward a personality and sit at its feet. A statesman, a conquering warrior, an athlete who has run the swiftest race—even our favorite baseball player who has hit the sphere high up and far away—move us. We were moved lately by Jascha Heifetz and Fritz Kreisler throughout the opening recitals they gave prior to starting the long, long trails of their season's tours. How furiously were they welcomed, these two. Yes, "furiously" is the word. Especially "Fritz," as the people call him. He has become an idol since he returned, three years ago, out of the Austrian trenches with a splinter in his side. We were not at war then; and Kreisler had done his Emperor's bit.

But for two years his violin has been mute. A score of times have I passed him in some New York street, a sad-eyed Kreisler, grown older, his face heavy-lined. Out of temporary retirement he returned, a great artist still, with his seriousness deepened. Must the musician himself feel in order to plumb the emotional depths of his listeners? I think so. Kreisler feels. You sense that quality instantly he begins to play.

Before he started in this New York recital, however, he had to stand for three full minutes before an ovation such as no violinist I ever knew received. Fancy more than 3000 people sitting in the regular Carnegie Hall seats joining with half a thousand more placed around Kreisler on the stage and several hundred "standees," in a riot of welcome. I wasn't near enough to see if the violinist's eyes became dimmed.

The throng hung on Kreisler's tones for nearly three hours that afternoon; they applauded until their palms must have gone numb; they insisted on, and got, encore after encore. All the while "Fritz" was playing better than I've ever heard him, which is something of a superlative. He piles no emotional fuel into his musical furnace. Instead, he gives a mixture of numerous qualities which go to make him a rather different violinist from any other we have. His playing is like the mellowness of a rare old wine. And on this occasion his intonation was well nigh flawless.

Concertos by Vivaldi and Viotti and the G minor sonata of Tartini were the serious compositions on the programme. Gluck's "Melodie," the ballet music from Schubert's "Rosamunde," a transcription made by Kreisler of the "Hymn to the Sun" from Rimsky-Korsakoff's pantomine-opera, "Le Coq d'Or," and the violinist's own "La Gitana" and "Tambourin Chinois" completed the list. The critical reviews of the next day were as one in the general summing up, which recognized the spiritual quality of his performance.

Concerning Heifetz there appeared some dissension. The ablest writers found this young fiddler as colossal as a year ago in that golden tone of his and in his incomparable technique. Two or three, however, gently challenged his interpretation of his part of the Franck sonata for violin and piano. For these, it seemed, there was not enough "flaming eloquence." Nor did Bruch's "Scottish Fantasia" suit everyone.

All the same, he evoked from an audience nearly the size of Kreisler's applause which at time bordered upon a tumult. I agree with my colleague, Richard Aldrich, that it would be a pity if, at his age, Heifetz disclosed resources which maturity alone bring. Ten years hence, at 29, this genius will doubtless reveal some of those qualities that constitute the Kreisler mellowness. Which means that all Kreisler now accomplishes will then be surpassed.

Compared with these two violin masters the initial appearance of Jacques Thibaud was a trifle drab. Not that he isn't a splendid artist. All the finesse and elegance of the French school is at Thibaud's command. The Brahms concerto, though, is not for him. It is far too rugged in the rugged spots. And in the moments of rapidly executed phrases we caught, too often, slightly false notes. The critics all mentioned it. Bodanzky, leading the New Symphony Orchestra at its second autumnal appearance, provided a masterful accompaniment.

Bodanzky, by the way, is growing into our most popular conductor. He has a following all his own, and it's of quite a respectable size. I believe it is a record to attract so large an audience as is present at every New Symphony concert. Looking about one may see personages from important walks of life; and those exclusive souls who flutter about the light reflected by the Friends of Music affairs held at the Ritz-Carlton.

There were some austere moments in the Bodanzky readings of Mendelssohn's "Ruy Blas" overture, and not enough insight into the Gallic elusiveness of the Debussy "Iberia." These impressionistic musical sketches of Spain are not Debussy at his best. I have tried, unsuccessfully, to agree with the scholarly Laurence Gilman that these orchestral images represent the final of the Debussy masterpieces — before his creative genius failed. But Bodanzky retrieved himself in the Berlioz "Queen Mab" scherzo and the "Rakoczy March." His orchestra, however, is still tonally harsh, as most every one admits.

While we were setting the clock back an hour, and wondering if the sixty minutes thereby gained was a tangible commodity, several things happened musically. One was the operetta debut here of the light-voiced Chinese soprano, Lady Tsen Mei, in the Society of American Singers' presentation of "The Geisha." She came, we saw; but our ears were not conquered. Rather dainty to look upon, this erstwhile vaudeville entertainer, yet not exclusively oriental. She was reared in Pittsburgh and later gained bachelor of arts and bachelor of laws degrees from Pennsylvania and Columbus universities.

Little Gladys Caldwell romped off with the popular honors of "The Geisha" performance. A crowded house of "paid admissions" was openly delighted with what was done, and most of the cast of thirty persons, from comedian Frank Moulan to Morton Adkins, Bertram Peacock, Herbert Waterous and shapely Cora Tracey, got a hand. Everything, in fact, but the scenery. Each time I see one of these Park Theater sets I try to think of something visually alluring — a Josef Urban creation, for example.

Arriving out of breath in my rush from Carnegie Hall to the smaller Aeolian, I was disturbed at finding that excellent young pianist, Lester Donahue, fumbling at a piano keyboard in an endeavor to play some phrases in the first movement of the B minor Chopin sonata, which had momentarily been forgotten. A splendid pianistic talent, Mr. Donahue's; yet he hasn't developed in the last year as we had expected. Several experts have commented on this. And then that habit of forgetting, which he has previously shown. We sympathize with the young man and wish him luck in overcoming—as doubtless he will—this fault.

Among the artists recently heard here, whom the audiences liked, the critics approved, and I admired were:

The straightforward, if not supreme, violin playing of Cecil Burleigh, the composer.

The first piano recital of Madeleine Brard, the 16-year-old Paris Conservatoire first-prize medalist, who has a glowing future if her rare talents are conserved.

The colorful and individual pianoforte interpretations of Miss Aurore Croix, who improved upon her final recital of last spring.

Rudolph Ganz's sterling piano playing, which is invariably safe, sane and most agreeable.

The artistic and musical singing of the young soprano, Greta Torpadie, who makes the most of a pleasing, if not great, voice.

What impressed me as worth mentioning during the days with which this article deals were:

How much alike are the profiles of Secretary of War Baker and Pianist Ralph Leopold, who is a brother-in-law of Mrs. Baker.

The effrontery of a manager, who thought I hadn't heard a "flapper" pianist attempt a Beethoven sonata, and who assured me how "well" she had played it.

The demise of the Star Opera Company in its tactless effort to give performances in the German language.

The refreshing modesty of Edward Johnson (and he a tenor.) the Chicago Opera Company's new star, whose "interview" I intend shortly to publish.

The reappearance—in spite of the printers' strike—of concert programmes done in type instead of mimeograph.

I feel inclined, after listening to Nikolai Sokoloff conduct Arthur Bodanzky's New Symphony Orchestra at the Hippodrome, to congratulate Cleveland. For this gifted young Russian musician is beginning his second season as leader of Cleveland's symphony and, from information reaching me, he is accomplishing truly admirable things. He has all the Russian feeling for orchestral color, which his fine musicianship never allows being overused. No conductor my achieve his best in leading a body of musicians after only one rehearsal—which is all Mr. Sokoloff had. It is because of this, which I fortunately knew, that prompts me all the more to realize what was accomplished with an all-Tschaikowsky programme including the fourth symphony and the "March Slav." It was a pleasure to again hear the vital pianoforte playing of Josef Lhevinne, who returns to us after a six years' absence with unpleasant recollections of what occurred during his incarceration in a German war prison. Lhevinne gave us a powerful interpretation of the first Tschaikowsky concerto. But the Hippodrome is too large an auditorium for the piano; or the voice, as Helen Stanley no doubt felt during her singing of the musically fine "letter scene" from "Eugen Onegin."

A Before-Christmas Offer

THIS LIBERTY PHONOGRAPH COMBINED WITH PARLOR LAMP

Both for $115.00

—When one realizes the nearness of Christmas—the uncertainty of deliveries, with a lessened production and the usual increased demand for Phonographs for holiday giving, it is not surprising that so many are now placing their orders for Christmas phonographs.

—The Broadway is presenting in this combination a very unique feature, that will appeal to many who are contemplating the purchasing of phonographs.

The Liberty Phonograph

—is equal in size to phonographs that are usually priced higher.

—The cabinet work is of excellent character, choice of mahogany or oak.

—The Liberty Phonograph plays all records, is built with a guaranteed motor, has tone control, automatic stop.

—And each machine is equipped with diamond and sapphire needles.

—as you will note in the picture above is the style of lamp now in vogue in the newer home furnishings.

—A mahogany standard, finished with a rich silk shade, in gold, old rose or blue.

—Both the lamp and the phonograph combined are priced to you at $115.00.

The Liberal Payment Plan is applicable in the purchase of this combination.

BROADWAY, FOURTH AND HILL.

THEIR ANNIVERSARY

BY MABEL HERBERT URNER.

The dark, greasy length of the boarding-house hall stretched out before her. She left the front door open until she could glance over the letters that lay on the ledge of the hatrack.

There was nothing for her. There never was. Yet every evening when she came in there was always the faint hope that there might be.

Wearily she climbed the stairs. Someone was sweeping on the top floor and the dust came down over the banisters in clouds. She hurried into her room—a back hall room. A chill, musty odor greeted her.

In spite of the cold she raised the window to let in the fresh air. The grayness of a sodden day had deepened into an early twilight. A dismal stretch of roofs and littered back yards lay beneath her.

Dirty patches of snow clung here and there and dripped from roofs and ledges. Clothes flapped dejectly from countless lines and fire escapes. Ash barrels, bottles, rubbish—.

Shivering she put down the window to shut out the squalid scene. The room was now piercing cold. She lit the small gas stove in the corner; but soon the sickening odor of gas and stove polish made her turn it out again.

Wrapping around her the street coat she had taken off, she lay down on the narrow couch-bed and sobbed despairingly.

How much longer could she bear it? The sordid misery of it all was corrosive. Could she go on living like this? The monotonous work all day in a noisy, crowded office and the long, dreary evenings in this dingy little room.

And this was the twenty-eighth of November! The third anniversary of her marriage. All day she had been trying not to think of the date, to force from her mind every thought of what it had once meant. But now she gave herself up to the rush of insistent memories.

For almost an hour she lay there, forgetting the dreary, hopeless surroundings in the memory of a sheltered, protected happiness. Always he had shielded her from every care and hardship, and now—

Had he looked for her? Had he tried to find her? Her pride had not permitted her to leave any clew.

Under another name in a cheap boarding-house district—it was as though she had ceased to exist. And all because of a foolish, futile quarrel—the hot-tempered, intolerant pride of youth.

A harsh jangling bell! She started up with a shudder—the dinner bell. She could not go down tonight. Her whole nature shrank from the thought of the dingy basement dining-room, the long tables with the soiled cloths and damp napkins, the smell of food, the cheap talk and laughter.

She longed to lie still and live on in her memories, but she must eat something to have strength for tomorrow's work. There was a small lunchroom round the corner; she would go there for a bowl of milk and crackers.

Wearily she rose, smoothed her hair and put on her wraps before the clouded, wavy mirror that hung over the washstand.

She groped her way down the dark stairs. The gas was never lit in the upper halls, and only faint strips of light came from under the doors along the way. Voices, clattering dishes, and a sickening smell of grease came up from the basement.

Quickly she let herself out the front door, glad of the fresh, cold air that greeted her. The small lunchroom was crowded. It had looked clean and quiet as she passed it every morning, but now the atmosphere was rough and noisy.

She hurried by. She would walk around the block and back to her room. It was useless to force herself to eat in such places tonight. A sob came in her throat as she thought of how, a year ago, they were dining at the Cafe ——. How often they had dined there, always the same table, the same walter.

Before the muddy steps of the boarding-house a leaping thought possessed her. Why should she not go there tonight? Her heart beat fast. She would sit at the same table, have the same waiter and try to imagine that he was with her.

She had deprived herself of so much—surely she could have this. The $10 she had saved in case she should be sick—but she would not be sick, or if she should be she would work just the same. She would take that money and have one more hour of warmth and lights and music. She would go! She would reserve the table now before her courage failed.

The green and blue bottles of a drug store shone out cheerfully from the next block. A moment later she was there telephoning to the head waiter of the Cafe——.

"Yes, the sixth table from the entrance on the left side." . . . "Yes, I'll hold the wire." . . . "Hello! It's reserved?" . . . "The one back of it? Very well, I'll have to take that."

For the next hour she did not stop to think—she only acted. Back in the hall room, with pulsing swiftness, she unpacked a gray crepe de chine, the only gown of her old life that she had brought with her. Eagerly, nervously, she dressed.

A last glance at the wavy mirror and she was again hurrying down the dark hall and stairs, out to the street and into a car at the corner.

Quickly the car passed from the shabby boarding-house district into broad, well-lit thoroughfares. Taxicabs, limousines and crowds of well-dressed people surged by.

With breathless interest she watched the streets and buildings. She was almost there. At a crowded corner she left the car and hurried across to the flashing sign that marked the restaurant.

Past the attendant at the entrance, through the corridors and into the main dining-room. A moment later the head waiter had seated her at her table. It had all happened with bewildering quickness.

And then Park was bowing and smiling before her.

"Good evening, ma'am."

He spoke as though she had been there only a few nights ago, instead of it having been over eight months since he had last served her. It is a way waiters, good waiters, have.

"You're waiting, ma'am?" He tipped forward the chair opposite.

She flushed painfully. Why had she not thought of that? Of course they would think she was waiting for her husband. Women do not go alone to fashionable dining places, and she had always been there with him.

"Oh, yes, Mr. Wilmer will probably be here later. He phoned that he was detained. But I—I think I'll order and let you serve me now. He may be quite late."

"Yes, ma'am." A menu was placed before her.

She had not intended to say that; the words had come of themselves. But just the saying of them had thrilled her. He was coming later. . . . He had been detained at his office. . . . He would join her as soon as possible. . . .

Her mind dwelt lingeringly on the phrases. She would try to believe them—to live this one hour as though they were true.

She wrote her order and then leaned back and gave herself up to the alluring charm of it all.

The music, the lights, the murmur of voices—it was all the same. The same crested china—how familiar the design!

The same red silk shades on the table lights. In playing with the fringe one night she had broken off a few of the beads. She wondered if she could find that same strand—it would be shorter than the others.

But that had been at their old table—the table in front of her. It was not taken yet; a chair was tipped forward to mark it reserved. She felt an unreasoning resentment at the persons who had engaged it. There were so many tables—they might have chosen some other.

Park was placing a hassock under her feet. She smiled her acknowledgment. Park always remembered her little preferences—a footstool, unsalted butter and a dessert, not a table spoon, for her soup. All the details of his service were perfect.

At first her excited exhilaration in the surroundings had absorbed her. But gradually she became conscious of her embarrassing position. The restaurant was crowded, and only she was alone. The other women all had escorts, accentuating her sense of isolation.

But besides this was a growing consciousness that she would take back to her hall room a keener heartache than she had brought. This one glympse into the warmth and happiness of the past would only make more unendurable her life as it was now. Everything around her brought vivid memories of him, of all the happy hours they had spent there.

A couple at a near-by table were leaving. The man took the fur wrap from the waiter and put it carefully about the girl. How often he had stooped over her with that same tender care! He would never allow a waiter to help her into a wrap.

The orchestra now swept into the opening bars of a Hungarian Rhapsody. That they should play that tonight! The thing he had loved so much, and had so often requested. The weird, minor notes almost broke down her self-control.

And then—she put her hand to her throat—to stop the cry that was there. The man who had passed and who was now taking a seat alone at the reserved table—

He had not seen her! For a dazed moment she was conscious only of that—he had not seen her! Then she saw Park hurrying over. He was going to tell him. The waiter thought he was taking the wrong table because he had not seen her.

He was going to tell him! And she could not stop it—she was helpless, powerless to stop it!

Was it a swift intuition that made Park just then glance toward her? For one breathless second her eyes held his.

He paused uncertainly. Then he passed on to Mr. Wilmer's table, greeted him with his usual unobtrusive bow, arranged the silver and offered a menu.

Realizing that Park had in some way understood, for a moment she forgot her need to leave at once, forgot the people that were about her, forgot everything except that he was before her.

He was sitting with his back toward her. The slight stoop of the shoulder, the dear familiar pose of the head, the touch of gray in the hair along the temples!

Then a flaming rush of fear and shame—if he should turn around! To have him think she had come there hoping to see him—trying to win him back—oh, no—no, not that!

A slight motion brought Park to her side.

"Order a taxi—now," she faltered.

"Very well, ma'am."

He returned almost immediately, deftly and silently helped her into her wraps, and then followed her out to the curbing.

When the cab door shut her in, Katherine leaned back against the cushions, white and motionless.

She had not noticed Park's whispered order to the driver, nor that it was several moments before the cab started, nor that it was driven very slowly.

Park hurried back through the restaurant, straight toward Mr. Wilmer's table.

"Pardon me, sir, but you might like to know that——"

"Mr. Wilmer glanced up in surprise. It was not Park's usual voice or expression.

"The lady—the one who used to come here with you so often—was sitting at the table behind you. She's just left—I—"

George Wilmer was on his feet. A fork fell clinking to the floor.

"Here? My wife—here! And you didn't tell me—you didn't—. Where—how did she go?"

"She took a taxi, sir."

"The address? What address did she give?"

"She gave it to the driver herself—I couldn't hear. But I told him to go along the avenue very slow. There's another driver out here who knows him—in case you want to——"

"Yes—yes; which one?"

They were at the door now.

"This one, sir!"

"Do you know that taxi—the one that just left here with a lady?" he demanded, as he sprang into the cab.

"Yes, sir."

"If you catch it and have the man drive to — Park avenue I'll give you $20 each!"

Katherine, still leaning back with closed eyes, did not see the car that kept almost beside her, nor notice the drivers' hurried furtive conference.

At length the sound of grating brakes. The cab drew up. She stepped out.

It was not the dingy boarding-house that stood before her—but her own home. Bewildered, she shrank back.

Then she saw him coming toward her. A throbbing pause, and he led her unresisting up the steps.

The next moment the front door closed them in, and all the loneliness and heartache of those desolate months she was sobbing out in his arms.

WOMEN.

Telegraph girls employed by the London general postoffice now number more than 6500.

Women of the Philippine Islands make some very fine lace from strong silky fiber obtained from pineapple leaves.

Vermont's army of women workers in industrial establishments increased 33.3 per cent. during the last six months of 1918.

The making of Muscadine grape products is to be a new home industry for southern club girls, if plans now being made by the home-demonstration agents of the United States Department of Agriculture and State agricultural colleges in the South are fulfilled.

Ten per cent. of the students who entered the nurses' training schools in New York State during the past year are college graduates, due in a large measure to the training camp for college women held at Vassar College as a war measure, in the summer of 1918. This announcement was made at the convention of the New York State Organization of Nurses.

Thirty Kansas girls have formed a club and pledged themselves to marry none other than ex-service men.

Sorosis, the first woman's club organized in America, was established in 1868 by a group of women protesting against the exclusion of women as guests at a banquet tendered Charles Dickens, then visiting in New York City.

Oxford and Cambridge are now the only prominent universities in the United Kingdom that do not grant degrees to women.

The Women's Fair Price Association of Kansas City has instituted a house-to-house campaign to educate housewives in marketing with a view to bringing prices down.

The earliest institution exclusively for women was Mt. Holyoke, founded in 1837. The system of coeducation in the United States began in Oberlin (Ohio) College in 1833.

The Hotel Petrograd in Paris, which recently closed its doors, is being remodeled preparatory to being reopened as an American woman's club.

A little agricultural club girl in Charleston county, South Carolina, is using her earnings to make a first payment on a home. She has always lived in a rented house. Last year she had a club garden and as her interest in the work grew so also did her desire for a home of her own, with an acre of ground attached. She finally decided she would earn one. She has worked during two summers, saving every cent for the future home-purchase money. This fall she will have enough to make the first payment on the little bungalow and the acre of ground she has wished and worked for.

A 12-year-old club girl in Winn Parish, La., recently obtained a perfect mark on a 500-word spelling test. Her father had promised that if she did so he would give her any prize she desired. One of her classmates had been promised the same thing by her father. The classmate asked for a silk dress, the club member for a small steam-pressure cooker.

It is a welcome sight to see the words "and daughter" as the suffix to the name over a shop. It is a sign of the times of women's interest in business and their recognition as responsible helpmates. In the West End there is more than one emporium of feminine attire under the ownership of So-and-So and Daughter—or daughters, and I know of another which belongs officially to father and daughter; but I have never yet come across a shop under the joint ownership of husband and wife, yet we all know of countless small businesses in which the wife of the owner does a goodly share of the work.—[London News.

Hen Leads in Thrift.

The average well cared for hen will lay 150 eggs in a year, each weighing two or three ounces. Thus the hen yields four times her own weight in a year. At the same rate a cow would yield two tons of butter or cheese. In addition the hen will care for, and raise ten or twelve chicks, until they are able to look after themselves.—[Thrift Magazine.

WHY WAR BONDS ARE IN DEMAND

Government Securities Attain Their Value.

ople Write to Washington About Investments.

ited States Securities are Soundest on Market.

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.
[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Every y some scores of people from or Tacoma, from Providence Pueblo, or from some other point the big map of the most prosperation on earth, write letters to Treasury Department at Washington and ask advice as to safe investments for the moneys that are ulating in their pockets.

t department does not want itself in the position of unpushing its own wares, but a lot of confidence in the government securities that are kicking and really feels that an opportunity to profit on an investment these securities is about as good as one should want. If pushed treasury officials reveal a situation, which makes as though an investor might and fare worse than by purchasing government bonds.

all there are ten varieties of bonds on the market. The government has none of them for sale. are already sold. They are owned by the people. The government makes no profit by their rise or fall. It has got to pay interest on them at par and has not to retire them at maturity. It is all the same to the government if they sell at ninety or a hundred and twenty.

The First Liberty Bonds issued drew the lowest rate of interest. They were three and a half bonds. Strange to say, of all the issues this is the one that is today bringing the highest price. These three and a halfs are now selling above par. The reason for this is that they are exempt from income tax. Rich folks whose surplus income goes largely into the coffers of Uncle Sam, buy these bonds and are allowed to keep the whole three and a half per cent. They are a good buy for the rich folks, but they would be the worst buy in the lot for a poor man who is not paying a high rate of income tax.

FOURTH ISSUE BELOW.

It is peculiar that the Fourth Liberty Loan issue, which pays 4 1-4 per cent. interest sells way below par. It is the cheapest of the government securities on the market. It sells around ninety-four. It is not exempt from income tax, and so is not so good for the rich man. It is fine, however, for the poor man. It is worth more than ninety-four. The reason it is cheap is largely due to the fact that there is so much of it. It was the big issue. There is $6,000,000,000 worth of it. There is always a certain per cent. of bond holders who are forced to sell for one reason or another. Of a big issue there are more holders who put their bonds on the market. The old law of supply and demand works and the price is run down. The Fourth Liberty Loan four and a quarter at the present price pays 4.77 per cent. on the investment.

The bankers' favorite of the Liberty bonds is the third four and a quarter. These bonds mature in ten years. They are selling a little below par. The interest is good and the early maturity insures a profit on the buy. At the present market price they figure to yield 4.87 on the money put into them.

Then there are the second four and a quarters. They are the buy of them all that just now yields the highest return on the investment. They sell around ninety-four. The government has the privilege of retiring them in 1927 and will probably do so. This means that there will be a profit of 6 cents on each dollar. This, added to the interest that will be collected in the meantime, means that these government bonds are today a 5.18 per cent. investment, which is mighty good for the bonds of the government, which is the most financially sound of any in the world.

These figures are based on the known fact of the rate of interest paid on these bonds, and the known figures at which they will be retired. There is nothing speculative in government bonds bought at these figures. One knows exactly what his returns will be.

SPECULATIVE ELEMENT.

But there is a speculative element in the purchase of government bonds. Before the war, for instance, this government was able to sell its bonds at par when they bore interest at the rate of 3 per cent. When a nation is at war, no matter how strong it may be, its securities will not sell as readily as in times of peace. It must offer higher rates of interest. The United States offered those rates of interest. It sold most of its bonds around four and a half. It will continue to pay that four and a half until their maturity, which will be ten, twenty and thirty years.

If it is granted that, after we have returned to normal conditions, the rate of interest the government will have to pay will be as high as 3½ per cent., there will still be a handsome interest premium on these long-time loans. It can hardly fail to be true that the prices of these bonds will rise in the open market. One of these Liberty Loan Bonds can sell at 120 and yet yield a 3 per cent. return on the investment. Those wise in finance believe that 120 will be about the normal price of the best of these bonds two or three years from now. If one buys at 95 today and sells at 120 three years from now he will have cleared $25 on each $100 bond. In the meantime he will have secured interest on his investment.

The financial authorities cite the facts of history. In the Civil War government 6 per cent. bonds were issued and sold at 83. At the end of the war they went to 118, and finally reached 126. In the Spanish-American War 3 per cent. bonds were sold at par, and in a year had gone to 110. British Consuls have always been cheap when England was at war, and high in times of peace. German bonds sold at 78 during the Franco-Prussian War, despite the fact that Germany was winning all the time, and went to 98 soon after peace was restored. If the financial experience of nations in wars of the past are indications of what may be expected, our issues should gain twenty points in the next few years.

ADVICE TO INVESTORS.

So the Treasury Department thinks no investor can make a wiser choice than government securities. It believes that any man with money in his pocket will fare handsomely if he goes to his banker and says: "Here are my savings. Put them in Liberty Loan Bonds."

As a matter of fact many people are buying them. When, on the New York stock exchange, the bond business of the day amounts to $15,000,000, $12,000,000 of it is likely to be government securities. The only reason why the price has not gone sky-rocketing is because there is so much of this paper in existence, so much of it offered for sale. When it begins to settle down deeper into the safety deposit vaults of the nation, to disappear from the counters, the price will rise.

When you buy a Liberty Bond, the government warns, do not put it in a tin box or a pigeonhole at home. It may be stolen or burned up, and you would probably be unable to recover its value. Leave it in your bank. Almost any bank will keep your bonds without any charge. Many of them will clip the coupons as they mature and credit them to your account. They are safe in the bank.

And, finally, the government calls attention to another form of investment it offers—Treasury Savings Certificates. One may buy a Treasury Savings Certificate whenever he has a sum of money from $50 to $1000. They are for sale at all first and second-class postoffices, and any banker will take your order for one. It will pay you 4¼ to 4½ per cent. It is registered and cannot be lost. Whenever you want your money on it you can cash it anywhere. It is like getting a $100 bill on which interest is paid. You might as well keep your extra money working.

Horse Marines Not a Joke.

The old joke about horse marines has gone into the discard along with the memory of Capt. Jinks.

Nearly every marine is able to perform the duties of a cavalryman when the occasion demands, and mounted detachments of marines are now on duty in Haiti, China and elsewhere. The sea soldiers do some plain and fancy riding at their school of equitation, conducted by the Marine Corps at Quantico, near Washington, and students are given a course of lectures on horsemanship.

As a demonstration of their skill, horse marines competed in the rodeo held recently at San Francisco, and carried off several prizes.

Soldiers' Paper Brought Home.

From Andernach, Germany, to Little Rock, Ark., is a long leap, but that is the jump made by the Watch on the Rhine, an eight-page weekly newspaper that the men of the Third United States Division edited, printed and supplied regularly to 30,000 readers during the six months previous to the departure of the division from Germany in August.

The publication, besides recording matters of interest regarding the troops still with the Third Division, which is located near Little Rock at Camp Pike, aims specially to keep fresh the memories of the days with the A.E.F., and to echo the spirit of all those who have at any time been members of the division.

NEW BRIDGES STOLEN.

WOODBURY (N. J.) Oct. 29.—"Gentlemen, our new bridge has been stolen." That announcement on the part of Freeholder Fooder of Monroe township startled his fellow-legislators a few days ago and the board immediately authorized a reward of $200 for the arrest of the thief or the return of the bridge.

The stolen bridge crossed Great Egg Harbor River and connected Gloucester and Camden counties. It was built of cedar and cost the taxpayers $2000. It was the source of great pride to the citizens of the communities which it served.—[Philadelphia Ledger.

Its Energy is Estimated at 14,000,000 Horse Power.

[From the Kansas City Times.]

In the northeastern part of Argentina a long neck of territory runs up between Paraguay on the west and Brazil on the east, and at a spot where the boundaries of Argentina, Brazil and Paraguay meet, the Iguazu River debouches into the Upper Parana River, and near the mouth of the former stream the waters foam and fret and leap and bound over a perpendicular cliff some 213 feet high, forming one of the great cataracts of the world. In grandeur and scenic beauty the Iguazu Falls compare favorably with Niagara. The Iguazu Falls are fifty feet higher and have a lateral extent of 1250 feet greater than their North American rival. But Niagara has a greater volume of water.

The Iguazu Falls, it is estimated, have an energy of 14,000,000 horse power. The government of the Argentine Republic is now giving serious consideration to the problem of harnessing a portion of this tremendous horse power and transmitting it in the form of electricity a thousand miles to the Argentine capital, Buenos Aires. Dr. Thomas A. Le Breton, Ambassador of Argentina to the United States, has submitted to his government a report on the water power development that has been done and is contemplated in the United States, including the work at Niagara Falls, where the great power has been harnessed and used to produce electricity to run factories and mills in manufacturing centers.

COAL SHORTAGE ALARMS.

The world war showed Buenos Aires the danger of a coal shortage, and it is now estimated that electric power can be carried from the Iguazu Falls and sold at a price that will bring it in easy competition with the cheaper grades of coal. The present plan contemplates using 150,000 horse power, which later can be increased to 300,000. Four lines will be built, each one being capable of carrying the entire amount of electricity needed, so that in the event of a breakdown on one line the others can carry the "juice" and there will be no interruption of the service to the public. Other cities where the electric power can be distributed are Parana, Rosario, Corrientes and Santa Fe. The project will cost from $30,000,000 to $40,000,000.

As the Iguazu Falls lie on the boundary line between Brazil and Argentina, a decision as to the amount of water power to which each country is entitled must be made, the same as Canada and the United States determined their respective water-power rights from the Niagara Falls that bounded across the boundary line.

CLEVELAND FIXED BOUNDARY.

At one time both Brazil and Argentina laid exclusive claim to the Iguazu Falls, and the matter was part of a boundary line dispute that was referred to President Grover Cleveland of the United States in 1894 for determination. Large and small, there are 275 cascades altogether. One writer who visited the falls says of this wonderful scene that the waters stream, seethe, leap, bound, froth and foam, throwing the sweat of their agony high in the air, and writhing, twisting, screaming and moaning, bear off to the Parana. Under a blue sky these iridescent waters, beaten into foam, pearls and glittering mist, bathe the great background in a shower of beauty that all the more adds to the riot of tropical hues already there."

When a high wind is blowing the roar of the cataract can be heard twenty miles away. Few sightseers ever visit these wonderful Iguazu Falls, because it takes six days to make the long, tedious, but picturesque journey of a thousand miles from Buenos Aires, through the fertile plains of Santa Fe and the wild luxuriance of the virgin forest, passing over the territory of the missions and the ruins of Jesuit churches and convents.

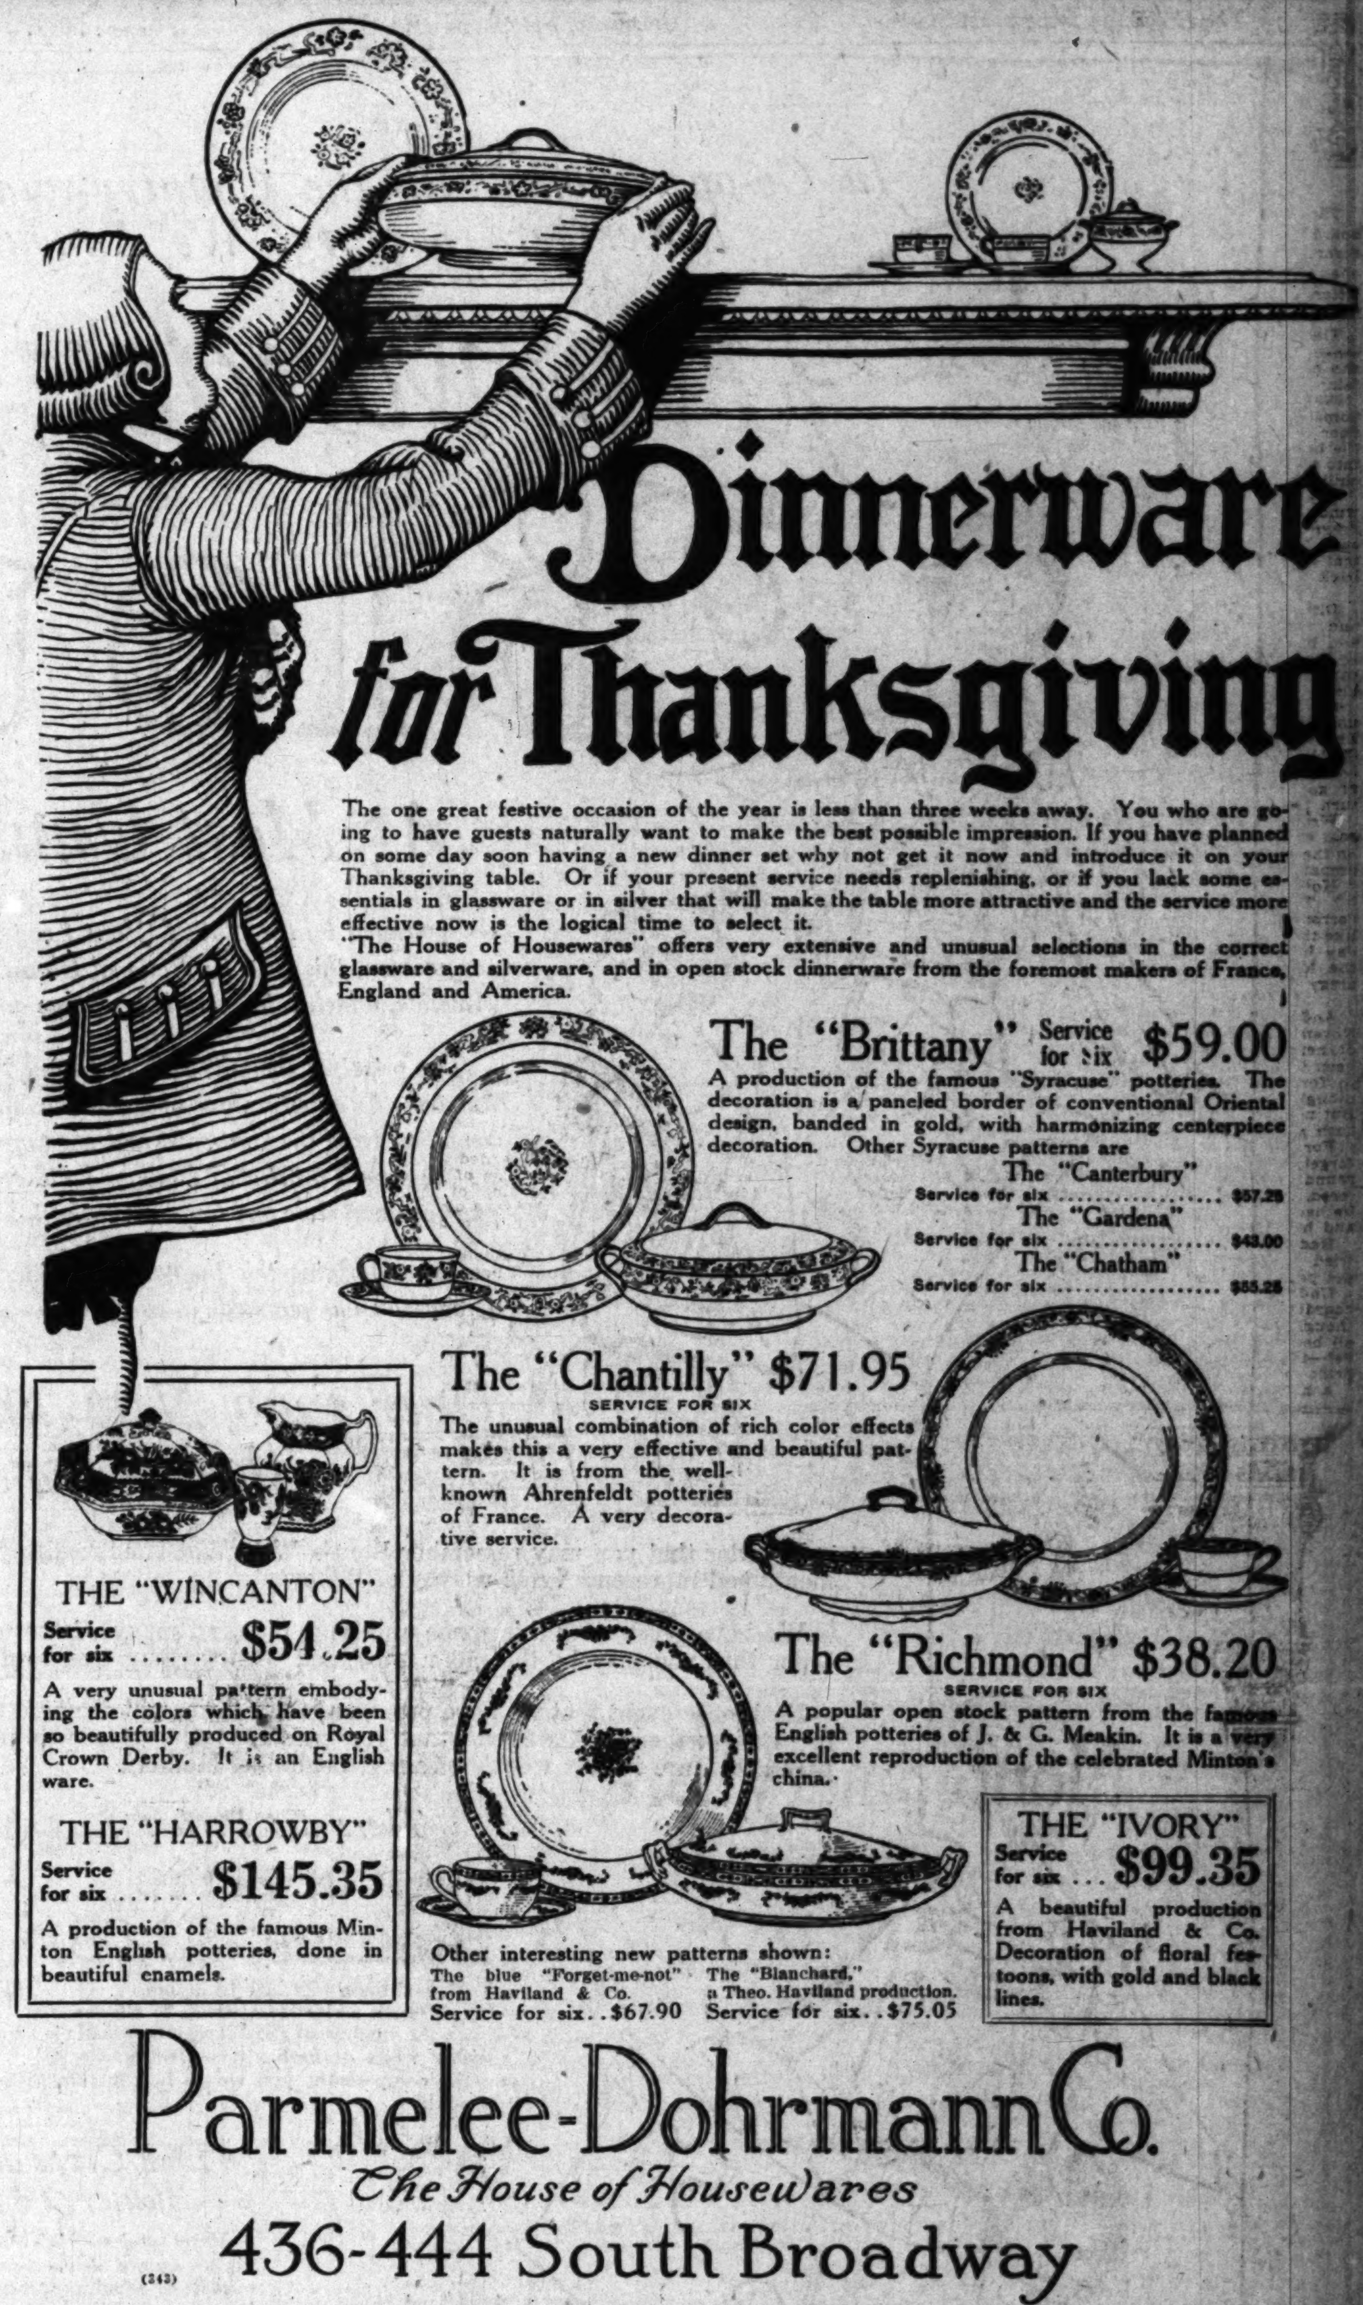
ROOSEVELT DELIGHTED OVER BULL BAT'S NEST.

Roosevelt's intense eagerness over any new discovery in the bird world is interestingly described by John M. Parker, who once entertained the colonel on a camping trip along the Gulf Coast of Mississippi and Louisiana. One day they discovered one of those queer birds known as the bull bat, and the colonel was greatly excited about it. Here is the way that Mr. Parker describes the incident:

"One day my sons were running around on a little island, and presently began waving for us to come over. We immediately answered. When we got close to them we saw them pointing to a bird on the ground, blended so well with oyster shells and debris that it was almost invisible unless you watched closely. They motioned to the colonel to step up to the bird, and as he did so it flew off the nest, fluttering along the way a great many birds do, simulating being badly wounded or crippled in order to lead us away from its nest. It was a bull bat, or night hawk, and as the colonel glanced at the nest he remarked: 'By jove, this bird is hatching now.'

"Herbert K. Job, the nearest and possibly the most famous bird photographer in the world, came in answer to our call and fixed up his old green shade from under which he made some wonderful pictures both of the bird returning to the nest, and then how he scared her off the nest. He made pictures of the two little bull bats breaking the shell of the egg, and to see the eggs divided was wonderfully interesting. Mr. Job photographed them with patience and with a total disregard of mosquitoes.

"The evening we returned to Pass Christian the colonel went around my yard with a great deal of interest, and announced that he had found nests of twenty-seven varieties of birds. One in particular interested him very much—the crested fly-catcher. I told him that the bird had nested there since I had had the place, and that only a few days before had raised an entire brood of young ones, which were now flying around the yard. He immediately asked me whether I had ever investigated the nest carefully myself. I told him no and asked why. He stated that he had never found a single nest of a crested fly-catcher that did not have in it a shed skin of a snake, and said that he would like very much to see whether this nest 'way down on the Gulf of Mexico could be an exception. We got a ladder and I took the nest out. Instead of having one skin in it, there were two, to his very great delight and joy."—[Tulsa World.



Dinnerware for Thanksgiving

The one great festive occasion of the year is less than three weeks away. You who are going to have guests naturally want to make the best possible impression. If you have planned on some day soon having a new dinner set why not get it now and introduce it on your Thanksgiving table. Or if your present service needs replenishing, or if you lack some essentials in glassware or in silver that will make the table more attractive and the service more effective now is the logical time to select it.

"The House of Housewares" offers very extensive and unusual selections in the correct glassware and silverware, and in open stock dinnerware from the foremost makers of France, England and America.

HISTORIC HALL.

Souvenirs of American Revolution in Collection in Versailles.

A new hall of the historic Museum of Versailles has recently been opened and filled with souvenirs of the American Revolution. Gustave Babin, writing in L'Illustration, Paris, refers to it as the Hall of American Independence. The central feature of the collection is a bronze replica of Houdon's famous statue of Washington at Richmond, presented to the Versailles Museum by the State of New York in 1910, when Robert Bacon was American ambassador. Babin gives a careful description of the statue, recalling features of it which most Americans have forgotten, notably the lictor's fasces on which the left arm of the figure rests, the sword hanging from it and the plowshare in the background, "symbols of the career of the American Cincinnatus," says the writer. The color of the bronze, according to Babin, has an ugly, "brassy" appearance and should be torn down with an artificial patina.

For the most part, the works of art in the hall, which previously were scattered all over the museum, lack artistic merit, having interest chiefly because of their models and subjects. The writer hopes for additions to the collection. The chefs d'oeuvre are the replica of the Houdon marble, a marble bust of Lafayette, also by Houdon, a plaster cast of the same artist's bust of Benjamin Franklin and a copy of Charles Peale's full-length portrait of Washington, which was probably Houdon's model for the statue. The painting represents Washington after the fall of Yorktown.

The remainder of the collection consists of portraits of the American statesmen and soldiers of the day—Hancock, Hamilton, Green, Knox and so forth—and of a great many Frenchmen identified with our fight for independence—d'Estaing, de Grasse, du Chaffrault, Chevalier du Pavillon, Armand-Louis de Gontaut (Marquis de Lauzun), Biron, Rochambeau and many others with names which probably should be more familiar to Americans than they are. In addition to these, there are a number of marine pieces, painted by command of Louis XVI to commemorate French exploits of the time—battles of the French coast and in the Chesapeake, and Gudins' stirring painting of the engagement between the French frigate l'Embuscade and the English fleet off Boston on July 30, 1775.

Pierre de Nolhac, retiring administrator of the museum, and Andre Perate were responsible for the new hall. The former, "as a good Frenchman," says Babin, "nourished upon tradition and history, wished to recall the leading role and decisive part played by Louis XVI, with his illustrious minister, Vergennes, in the enfranchisement of the United States, and so placed the portrait of the King in the middle of the center panel, in the place of honor, above that of his minister." The writer declares that the Kings' portrait by Duplessis flatters Louis in giving him a young, smiling, attractive face, "very different from the idea which we have formed of the royal exterior, which had neither great nobility nor much grace."

Such as it is, the collection is well worth visiting, according to the Frenchman—"to say nothing of the charm which one experiences in finding Versailles calm again after the fever which lately we have seen agitating it. . . . And so deliciously beautiful in the autumn light."

In Co-operation With the Country-wide Movement for National Blouse Week November 10 to 15, We Announce This Uncommon Offering—

Five Wonder groupings of Blouses

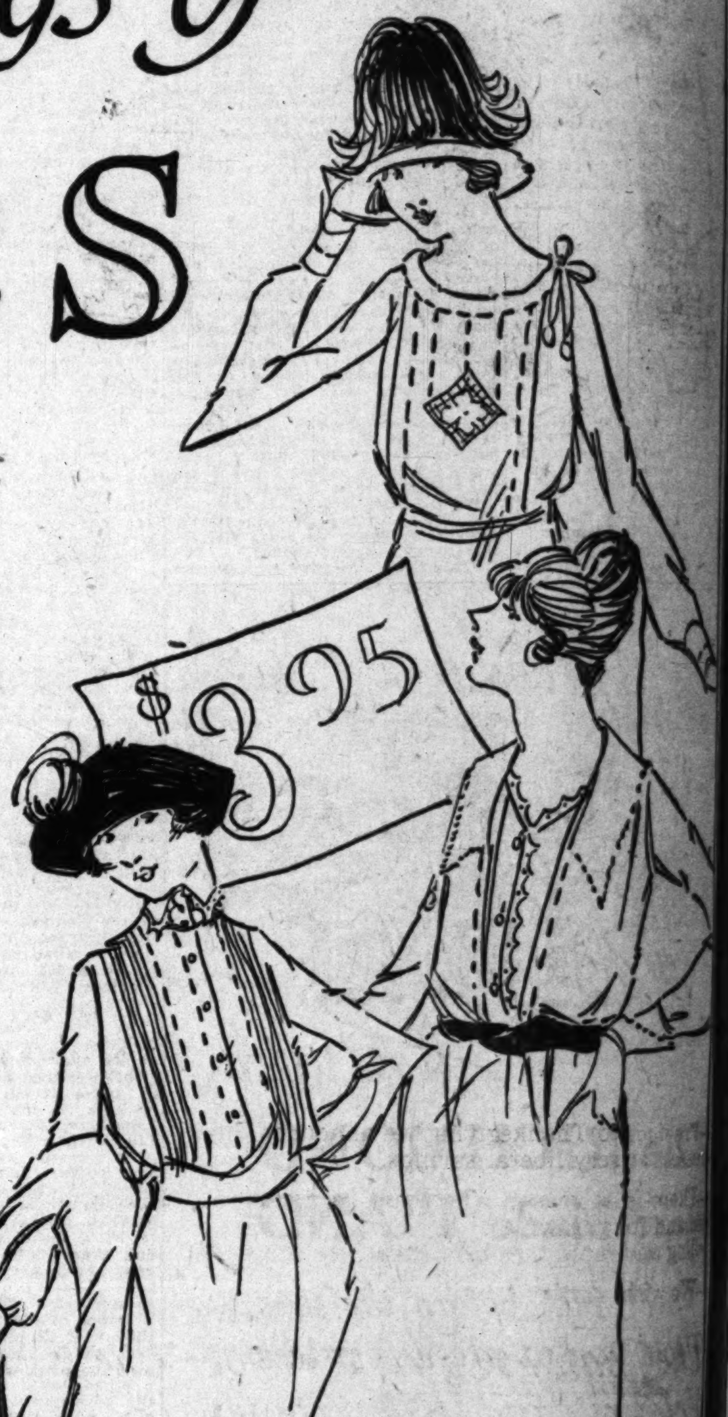
At Most Unusual Savings

—Sponsored by the United Waist League of America, in the interests of American women, this is to be National Blouse Week, wherever blouses are worn in America, which is in every city, village and hamlet.

—The principal thought back of Blouse Week is to acquaint the women of America with the extensiveness of the blouse industry. For the modern blouse in its evolution from the shirtwaist and a garment of utility, only, has been developed by the superb artistry of Paris and the good taste of our own country into a garment of smart style and fine craftsmanship.

—But underlying this thought is the idea of wider exploitation of blouses, so The Broadway has planned, in co-operation with this occasion, to offer



Over 1200 New and Beautiful Blouses for Less

—In order that you may remember Blouse Week and The Broadway, every one of the five groups mentioned represents value worthy of the event.

—We have given over this space and have pictured many of the garments to be included in order that you may be the more impressed with the importance of the occasion.

—No Blouse event that we have presented this season will compare with this from the standpoint of savings; therefore, we urge that you read the full details of this announcement and come prepared to share in this week's offering, beginning Monday.

There are Perfect
Georgette Blouses, $3.95

—With real linen filet lace trimming.
—Six different styles from which to choose.
—Note the quality of the Georgette, which is in either white or flesh. If we were to give you the comparisons you would hardly think it possible.

Then, Georgette Blouses, $5

—Nearly every color to go with the new suit—navy, taupe, brown, beige, mahogany and the evening shades of apricot, coral, peach and blue as well as flesh and white.

—Could one ask for prettier blouses more moderately priced?

50 Doz. Crepe de Chine Blouses at $3.95

—Many styles—high neck, round neck, square neck and V neck models of equal importance with the item mentioned above—the saving is identical.

—Made of an all silk crepe de chine in white or flesh.

10 Doz. of the Finer Blouses at $6.50

—These are of Georgette in the new colorings. Some braided models, some beaded, some are lace trimmed.
—$6.50 is the price that has been named for Blouse Week only.
—There are 10 dozen of these blouses to offer. Third Floor.

50 Doz. Lingerie Blouses at 89c

—These are classified as manufacturers' imperfect blouses; otherwise the price would be ever so much more. Some are prettily trimmed with Val. laces, some embroidered and some tailored.
—There are some 50 dozen included; you'll want several of these when you see them, the imperfections are slight.

50 Doz. Lingerie Blouses at $1.29

—More elaborate blouses that are also a manufacturers' imperfect line. But blouses that would ordinarily bring so much more that we can assure you, you will appreciate the saving.

Introducing Several Groupings of Coats, Suits and Dresses

at Unusual Savings

—Previous to Thanksgiving we announce the opportunity to purchase new coats, suits and dresses, at very liberal savings.

—There is no reason why these garments should be lowered in price, for there is an unusual demand for garments of this character, right now. It is merely in the interests of increased selling and rapid turn-over that these coats, suits and dresses may be purchased at these prices.

—We wish, particularly, to emphasize

The Coats at $39.75, Wool Velours and Silvertones

—Smart, new winter styles, loose fitting and belted; others in the full back style—many are lined; others half lined.

—They're made plain or with fur trimming, deep cuffs and novelty buttons.

—Wood browns, new blues, taupe, henna, etc., are included in the assortment at the lowered price of $39.75.

Equally Important are the Suits at $35 & $49.75

—Two remarkable groupings of desired suits.

—Late fall and winter styles.

Those at $35

—Include fine serges, tricotines, velours, mannish tweeds and suitings.

—Plain tailored, long and medium length coats. Semi-fitted and belted.

—Very attractive garments that are uncommonly low in price, at $35.00.

The Suits at $49.75

—Are greatly lowered for the occasion. Suits of the better sort that are made of fine wool velours, bolivias, silvertones, wool duvetyns, suits that are correctly finished and tailored—many fur trimmed.

—Plain and novelty linings.

—Choice of beige, brown, morocco, Pekin, taupe, navy and other shades.

Two Lots of Wool Dresses $19.75 and $29.75

—Fine wool serge dresses of panamas and tricotines, as well as wool jerseys and broadcloths.

—Dresses of the trotteur type, plain tailored models.

—Some straight line, some in the modified style.

—Silk braid and buttons for trimmings with touches of embroidery on many of these dresses.

—The excellent materials, style and finish as well as the color range make these dresses very attractive at the lowered prices.

—Mode, plum, navy, taupe, brown and henna; also navy blue serge are priced at $19.75 and $29.75. Third Floor.

Fur—Fashion's Latest Whim In the Designing Of —Simply adorable are the new hats of fur combined with cloth of gold and silver laces.

Hats For Milady

—Materials that blend so richly with the fur.

—Here we note a close-fitting hat of beaver with a crown artistically draped with gold cloth.

—Then we turn to another with mole fur band, around a soft crown of gold lace over old blue.

—Just a touch of trimming in the shape of French flowers adorns the front.

—Hats that lend themselves so well to the tailored suit, yet are very effective for evening wear.

—These new close-fitting hats priced $25 and $30 are vogue just now. Third Floor.

We Recommend the Perfect Fitting

Carter's Union Suits

—Both regular and extra size garments in wool and cotton mixed. Two styles high neck, long sleeves; Dutch neck, elbow sleeves, ankle length.

—Regular sizes, $3.50, extra sizes, $4.

WOMEN'S UNION SUITS — Light fleeced cotton; priced $1.50 and $1.75.

CHILDREN'S UNION SUITS—Medium weight cotton; $1.50 to $1.75. Aisle 6.

Suggestions for the Making of Home Furnishings

—Come readily from a visit to this fourth floor department.

—Many women are now fashioning table runners, made on novel lines of velours and tapestries.

—Such rich looking pillows that are needed these days to add just the finishing touch to the setting of a room.

—You'll be delighted with the novel designs that have come out of our decorative studios.

As for the New LAMP SHADES

—They are legion—we have in mind six new and distinctive models in lamp shades that are artistic triumphs, and these are but a few from an unusual assortment.

—This department can assist you in so many ways, particularly if you are furnishing a home or planning holiday gifts for those who own homes.

—There are many here who have made a particular study of interior furnishings. The department itself should prove an inspiration to those who are planning pretty things for the home.

Thanksgiving--The Linens

Dinnerware—The Silverware—Carving Sets and Roasters

—Thanksgiving reminds us today of what it meant in the early days of our country, when that little band who came over on the Mayflower celebrated their gratitude to Him who had preserved them from the perils of the deep.

—To us individually, Thanksgiving signifies a reunion of the kinsfolk at the hearthstone. It is a feast day, indeed, and it is right that we should celebrate it as such.

—Let us, therefore, provide well for the occasion with suitable napery, the dishes, the silverware, and let us not forget the kitchen wherein the roaster plays such an important part.

As to Linens

—We emphasize some important news of linens that many interest you at this time.

Pattern Cloths $11

—Size 72x72-inch, extra fine snow white, all linen double damask. Plain satin band and floral patterns. A surprisingly good quality at $11.

All Linen Cloths $10

Carving Sets

—The small sets, used to carve small steak or game, priced from $1.75 to $7 for the two pieces.

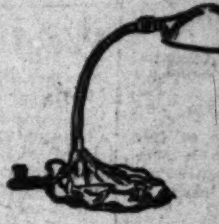
—Larger sets, three pieces—to carve the big turkey or roast at $3.75 to $11. 5th Floor

Desk Lamps

—The logical time to read seems to be during the long winter evenings, and what is more conducive to reading comfort than a good lamp?

—The variety of styles and shapes are too numerous to describe individually. All nicely finished. Some adjustable to different angles.

—There are some at $2.50 and then on upwards to $6.25.



Electric Desk Lamp $2.95

—A less-than-regular price on an adjustable gooseneck desk lamp, that may be arranged to direct the light from any angle. Different finishes and the price is lowered for Monday to $2.95.

—The low price is occasioned by the slight imperfections in weave. In the lot are sizes 9½ to 11; choose from gray, brown, black, white, navy blue and heliotrope, though not in each size; 17c pr.

Cotton Sweaters, $2.00

—In chain-stitch style, serviceable gray shade, made with ruff-neck and two pockets. Unusually good, at the pirce of $2.00.
—Sizes 34 to 42.

Merino Underwear, $1.50

—Fashioned in regulation winter style. In gray shade, shirts in sizes 34 to 50, drawers sizes 30 to 48. Warm, soft garments.

Aisle 8, The Broadway Basement.

Here's Dainty

Muslinwear Priced at 95c

—The substantial quality of this muslin underwear makes it suitable for daily use, yet does not cause it to sacrifice the claim to daintiness.

Gowns

—are made in slip-over style, cut full and firmly sewed.

Chemises

—Have dainty yokes of lace and embroidery.
—Garments, truly, for which you would expect to pay more than 95c each.

Silk Camisoles Less at $1.00

With the good crepe de chine and wash satin of which these are fashioned, finely-patterned laces are associated, making these camisoles lovely for wear under sheer blouses.
—Some have pretty sleeve effects, of the lace.
—Less Monday at $1.00.

Lace and Embroidery Adorned Muslin Underwear at $1.35

—which is a less-than-usual price for Monday's selling.
—In ways ingenious, have lace and embroidery been used to beautify the gowns and chemises in this assortment.
—Entire yokes of lace or embroidery, threaded with soft, shimmery ribbons, adorn some of the chimeses.

Tailored Models

—too, are to be found, these of soft crepe that requires no ironing.

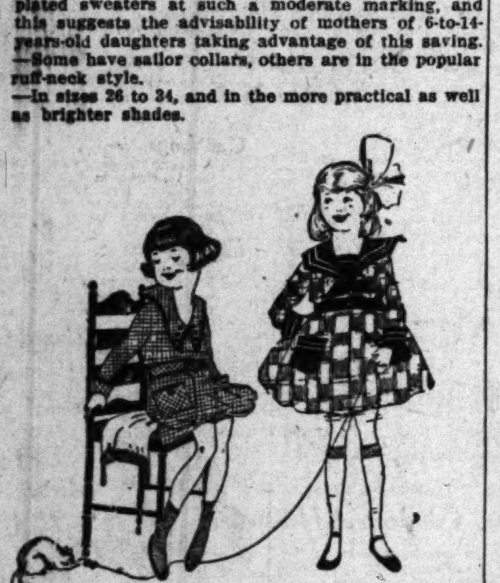
Petticoats

—are well made, the lace or embroidery-trimmed flounces making them dainty indeed.
—All less, Monday, at $1.35.

Aisle 7, The Broadway Basement.

Wool Plated Sweaters

—for school maids are unusually valueful at their price of $2.95.
—A special purchase enables us to offer these wool-plated sweaters at such a moderate marking, and this suggests the advisability of mothers of 6-to-14-years-old daughters taking advantage of this saving.
—Some have sailor collars, others are in the popular ruff-neck style.
—In sizes 26 to 34, and in the more practical as well as brighter shades.



Gingham Frocks $2.49

—Cunningly fashioned, in fascinating new styles. In plain shades, plaids, and combinations of the two. Sizes 6 to 14.

Gingham Creepers and Rompers 98c

—For wee tots, are in the dainty little check design as well as plain shades.
—These creepers and rompers are very substantially made, and the size range from 0 to 2 in creepers; 2 to 6 in rompers.
—Monday's price of 98c offers a goodly saving, too.

Aisle 7, The Broadway Basement.

Boys of 2½ to 8

Look So Trig in These

Eton Suits

—Fashioned of velvet, corduroy, serge and wool novelty weaves, and while made on the Eton model, these suits display variations in the way of belts, tucks, pockets and collars, affording a pleasing diversity from which to choose.
—All have separate white collars.
—Many have cord and tassel, others Windsor ties. All well lined.
—Their accuracy of cut, their smartness of fit, will please fond mothers.
—Priced $8.00 to $11.00.

Boys' Wool Sweaters $5.00

—A lowered price for Monday, on these very popular, heavy weight, Jumbo-knit coat-style sweaters, that have the large collars and frog fasteners.
—In shades of light and dark gray, also cardinal.
—Sizes 28 to 36.
—Coming from two higher priced lines, this is an unusually valueful offering for Monday, at $5.00.

Boys' Night Robes $1.45

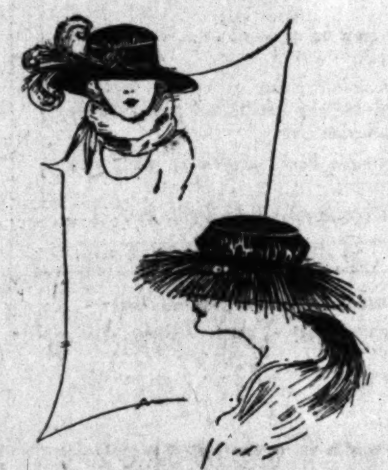
Winter Models in Men's and Young Men's

Overcoats

—A big shipment of these overcoats has just arrived, and in it you will find a goodly variety of wool fabrics and colorings that are correct for winter wear.
—There are single as well as double-breasted models; they have convertible-style collars, and all are quarter-lined.
—Overcoats that, while performing their duty of keeping their wearers warm, will do so in a good-looking way.
—Sizes 34 to 42, priced $21 to $29.50.

Aisle 7, The Broadway Basement.



Hand-Made

Trimmed Hats Less at $3.95

—We have chosen one model here, another there, and so on, to make up a special assemblage which we will offer Monday, each hat repriced to $3.95.

—Hats made of good quality velvet—some of panne velvet.

—Models are all in authentic styles for winter-tide wearing.

—In size they run the gamut from jaunty little turbans up to large dress hats.

—Ostrich tips and novelties, glycerined ostrich, hand-embroidery, ribbon and feather fancies lend their beauty and grace in making these models distinctive—smart!

—If your new winter hat has not been purchased, or you would like to have another at a small and saving price, do not fail to see this assemblage Monday, at $3.95.

Aisle 7, The Broadway Basement.

Untrimmed Shapes $1.00

—Some of black velvet, with brim facings in rose or Copenhagen blue, will be offered at much less Monday, when they will be priced $1.00.

—There will be small and medium shapes in brown, navy blue and taupe velvet as well as black.

—Included, too, will be some tailored models whose gros-grain ribbon bandings and bows are all that is needed to complete these hats for wear.

—All less, Monday, at $1.00, though some have been five times as much.

Aisle 7, The Broadway Basement.

Household Bed Linens

—Though coming under the title of "bed linens" the majority of the sheets and pillow cases Madame Housewife is now using for daily service are cotton weaves. Their purchase enables Madame to demonstrate her wise economy, too.

42x36-in. Pillow Cases 37c each —Of good bleached muslin, and they are well made, too.

72x90-in. Seamless Sheets $1.59 each —Truly a low price for sheets of this size, made from firmly-woven, good quality bleached sheeting. Size 72x90-in. is before hemming.

Aisle 3, The Broadway Basement.

Smallwares

Initialed "Kerchiefs" Box of 6 for 65c

—The daintiness of these fine lawn kerchiefs, with their striped edges and prettily-embroidered initialed corners, suggests that one buy them now to use later as Christmas gifts.

Stationery 35c Box

—Good quality paper, 24 sheets and 24 envelopes, in neat box. In white, as well as blue, pink and buff.

Lenox Soap 5c Bar

SUPERFLUOUS HAIRS—

WARTS AND MOLES.

Pulling a few stiff hairs from the face may start a serious growth. Let me demonstrate free of charge how pulling, cutting, using wax depilatories and the so-called hair removers promote growth of hair on the face. My electric machine is the only known method of killing superfluous hair, fuzz, warts and moles, without destroying the surrounding tissue. This machine destroys 300 hairs an hour. I have had 19 years' experience and devote all my time to the work. A binding guarantee that any hairs or moles I treat will never return. Many L. A. satisfied customers will testify to my skill as an expert.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR—

HUMILIATING AND UNSIGHTLY.

There is only one method known today of permanently removing superfluous hair, and that is Electrolysis (electric needle.) This process in the hands of a reliable and expert operator insures absolute satisfaction. I stand back of my work and guarantee any hair treated by me will be permanently destroyed, leaving no scars.

OPPORTUNITY KNOCKS!

Want honest, dependable parties to manage branch sales agencies in this city and elsewhere in California, for a patented, low priced device that is selling like "hot cakes" in the East and Middle West. The manufacturers have only lately been able (by greatly enlarging their facilities) to supply the West Coast district. This article has the prestige of highest indorsements by well-known authorities, and is backed by an enormous sales record strictly on its merits as a time and labor-saver. Will tie up exclusive territory and enable real workers who have some capital (from a few hundred dollars up, according to size of district wanted) to get in on this highly-profitable proposition. Replies should state your past business experience, amount available and location preferred. Address BLACKBOURNE & CO., Postoffice Box 36 Station C, Los Angeles.

PERSONAL—PROSTATE DISORDERS, BLADder trouble in men; getting up frequently at night, positively and rapidly overcome without drugs privately at home. Doctors, osteopaths, chiropractors, physical culture directors use it; easily used by anyone anywhere; no matter what you have tried or how old the case, this method will bring results quickly. Write for free illustrated booklet and convincing testimony ELECTROTHERMAL CO., 110 Harrison Bldg., Steubenville, O.
